Personal Income Tax And Excise Taxes May Be Trimmed

Minister Likely to Unveil A 'Consumers' Budget

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Harris likely will unveil a "consumers" budget Tuesday night, snipping federal levies in several areas but more particularly in the fields of excise and personal income taxes.

The 1955-56 budget, it is understood, will be aimed at stimulating the economy by boosting purchasing power in the hands of taxpayers and aiding business men to reduce prices and possibly increase sales of a batch of factory-produced products.

Tax cuts, in the personal income and excise tax fields, may total about $150,000,000—roughly equivalent to the officially forecast drop in the government's spending for the fiscal year which opened today.

FIVE PER CENT CUT

The tax reduction on personal income likely will amount to about $60,000,000 and the reductions in excise taxes about $90,000,000. On the basis of estimates for the fiscal year just ended, the personal income tax cut would be five per cent of the $1,200,000,000 collected in this field.

In addition, Mr. Harris in all probability will announce:

1. A tariff for the first time on polyethylene, a basic plastic material, in wide use in the production particularly in the production of transparent food wrappers. The item has been allowed in duty-free, but a newly-developed Canadian industry has petitioned for imposition of a 20-per-cent tariff as protection against imports.

2. A deficit in the government's 1954-55 accounts of about $130,000,000, ranging about 10 per cent of the budget and the first deficit in that-way since 1946.

Mapping out of the 1955-56 budget will be Mr. Harris' first—but not last—task to be conducted in utmost secrecy. But informants disclosed that planning was developed in a general atmosphere that Canada is recovering from its economic recession of 1954 and that the gross national product — value of all goods and services produced—will rise by $1,000,000,000 or more in 1955.

Program Will Overcome Hydro Power Shortage

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP)—A $4,000,000 expansion program is planned by the Great Lakes Power Company to overcome a hydro power shortage for industries in this area.

The company president, E. F. Hollingsworth, told the Sault Ste. Marie city council Thursday night the plan calls for raising the power company's Montreal river dam 33 feet.

The council meeting was called to discuss an unprecedented Sault power shortage which has curtailed operation of local industries. Steel and paper companies were represented at the meeting.

The expansion program will be proposed to a meeting of the power company shareholders in May. Mr. Hollingsworth said he is confident it will be passed.

The president said lowering of Lake Superior water level by two feet last year has cost the Sault power plant 3,900 horsepower.

Car Is Pinned Under Transport, Two Are Killed

BURLINGTON, Ont. (CP) — A Nelson township farmer and an employee of a trucking company were killed near here early today when their car was driven under a heavy transport and thrust into a hydro pole.

Harold Lee, 39, and a young woman, not immediately identified, were thrown from the car by the force of the collision.

Police said both were dead when their bodies were removed from beneath the wheels of the transport.

Transport driver Frank Bail of Norwood told police he was driving west on the highway when the eastbound car made a left turn in front of him. Bail escaped injury.

The woman was described as about 30 years old, five feet, four inches tall and wearing black clothing. Ontario Provincial Police said they are working with Hamilton and Toronto departments to establish her identity.

Mr. Lee's employer said his farm for housing project purposes. He was unmarried.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO — (CP) — Synopsis: Colder air has invaded the Maritimes, Quebec, and the extreme northern sections of Ontario this morning and it is expected to brush briefly across eastern Ontario tonight with warmer air pushing in again tomorrow. The intense disturbance that caused several dust storms in the American southwest Thursday has become stationary over Oklahoma and is not expected to affect Ontario in the next 36 hours.

HOUSE APPROVES INCREASE IN WAR VETS' ALLOWANCES

Raises Take Effect First Day of New Fiscal Year

OTTAWA (CP)—Opposition critics took their last pre-budget jab at government policy on aid to needy older war veterans and then stepped aside in time for a bill increasing such aid to receive Senate passage and royal assent. The increases take effect today, first day of the new fiscal year.

The House of Commons Thursday amending the War Veterans Allowance Act had to be given royal approval before adjournment on the last day of the old year.

A series of opposition members spoke until midnight in the House of Commons, criticizing the government for not acceding to requests of the Canadian Legion and other veterans groups for even greater aid than proposed by the bill.

PC CRITICISM

John Diefenbaker (PC—Prince Albert) said the government had intended to "railroad" the measure through Parliament. If it didn't require immediate passage and royal assent the opposition would force an all-night fight for improvements.

His was the last in a series of criticisms which began more than six weeks ago when the measure was introduced. Ninety minutes later the measure was passed by the Senate without debate and became one of several bills given royal assent by Governor-General Vincent Massey, Chief Justice Patrick Kerwin.

The legislation increases the monthly allowances for needy veterans or their widows to $60 from $50 for single persons and to $108 from $90 for those married.

Permissive ceiling on annual income—in effect the means test—is raised to $1,020 from $720 for single persons and to $1,440 from $1,200 for married persons. Ceilings include the allowances.

Killed by Car

TOBERMORY, Ont. (CP)—Erma Dean, 8, died shortly after being struck by a car near her St. Edmunds township home Thursday night. A companion, Mary Martin, 9, of Dale, suffered minor injuries.

Police said the car was driven by William Adams of Tobermory, 70 miles northwest of Owen Sound.

DECLARE EMERGENCY

PARIS (Reuters) — The French National Assembly early today passed by a vote of 379 to 219 a law declaring a six-month "state of emergency" in Algeria, where outlaws have been waging hit-and-run warfare with French security forces since November.

Roman Catholic Students in Chicago Open Drive Against Off-Color Songs

CHICAGO (AP)—A campaign under way in Chicago against color lyrics in phonograph records with hopes of spreading to the national offensive.

Spearheading the Chicago drive are thousands of Roman Catholic high school students who have spent the past month in Chicago diocesan rockeys in a "crusade for decent discs."

They are asking 3,000 other Catholic high schools throughout the United States to join in the movement.

Right thick in the fight for cleaner records are the amusement industry's leading trade magazines, Billboard and Variety, and several Roman Catholic publications in Chicago.

WGN, Inc., has formed a special review board "to pass on all recorded music" used on WGN and WGN-TV in Chicago. The board considers the following records—some of them targets of much of the criticism—were not objectionable per se:

"Dim, Dim the Lights;" "I've Been Thinkin';" "I Wanna Hug You, Kiss You, Squeeze You;" "Rock and Roll, Baby!" "After the Lights Go Down," and "Live Fast, Love Hard, Die Young."

However, three other songs mentioned in the student's letters were "Unchained Melody," "Comfort cleared—"Make Yourself Comfortable," "Let Me Be Naughty" and "That's What I Like."

Australia Ready to Fight Against Communist Terrorists

CANBERRA (Reuters) — Australia today announced that she will send land, sea and air forces to Malaya to fight alongside British and New Zealand troops against Communist terrorists.

The announcement served as a reply to an appeal of State Secretary Dulles of the United States to the seven other Manila pact powers at the Bangkok conference last February. Dulles declared that the U. S. striking force in the Far East had exceeded its wartime peak, and urged the other allies to make their own military contributions to halt Red aggression.

Prime Minister Robert G. Menzies replied today by pledging to send an Australian infantry battalion as soon as practicable to Malaya. The battalion will join the British and New Zealand troops in a new brigade of strategic reserves.

Menzies told a press conference his country will also send to Malaya two fighter squadrons and one bomber squadron and two destroyers at the British rate of $1 million an annual visit by an aircraft carrier.

Herbert Evatt, leader of the opposition Labor party, criticized the plan to send Australian troops to Malaya.

In a statement, Evatt said: "The Labor party believes some attempt should be made now to settle this warfare either by some form of agreement or forceful amnesty, by a quicker grant of self-government for the Malayan people and by the eradication of poor working conditions in the rubber plantations."

Menzies described the opposition to the dispatch of troops as "detestable and unaustralian" and said it made him ashamed.

Col. McCormick, Publisher Of Chicago Tribune, Dies

CHICAGO (AP) —, Col. Robert Rutherford McCormick, 74, colorful publisher and president of the Chicago Tribune, died today. He had been in failing health for several years but had remained active in his work until early this month.

McCormick was president of The Tribune Co., the New York Daily News and the Chicago Sun-Times of Thorold, Ont. The Ontario firm, Ltd., is associated with—often the Shore Paper Co. and the Quebec Ontario Transportation Co., operator of a fleet of lakers.

The company reported that its 1953 gross income was "approximately a quarter-billion dollars."

McCormick and the Chicago Tribune were the centre of many controversies. Britain and the British "aristocracy" were often the objects of attack, and McCormick once suggested that England, Canada and Australia join the United States as states.

The veteran publisher died at his farm home west of Chicago at 2:47 a. m. CST (3:47 a. m. EST). He had been in hospital several times in recent years.

On July 13 he underwent an abdominal operation to correct adhesions and a bladder and bowel condition. He left the hospital seven days later and went to Florida.

He returned to Chicago March 19, spent 10 days in observation in a hospital and then went to his farm.

McCormick, who gained the title of colonel in the First World War, was the key man in a publishing organization which owns the newspapers with the largest circulations in the United States—the Chicago Tribune and the New York Daily News.

He stepped into an executive post at The Tribune when it had a daily circulation of about 200,000, a recent check—last September—The Tribune had a daily circulation of 1,292,584.

The Tribune, largest standard-sized newspaper in the U. S., each day proclaims itself as "the world's greatest newspaper."

The tall—six - foot - four—colonel shaped The Tribune's policies and frequently they were provocative.

He fought isolationism, almost against foreign involvements and opposed American entry into the Second World War, even after the Pearl Harbor attack in 1941.

The Tribune was a constant critic of the Democratic administrations of Franklin D. Roosevelt and Harry S. Truman—and it brandished its broadsword at many Republicans, too.

The colonel had a knack for capsuling his views in succinct statements—such as the one he made on his return from a 1948 visit to Europe:

"American public opinion is not represented by the striped pants set."

The colonel, a supporter of Senator Robert Taft, the Ohio Republican, was disappointed when Gen. Eisenhower won the Republican nomination in 1952.

Present System Of Beer Order Forms Remains

TORONTO (CP)—No change is planned in the present system of beer order forms in Ontario, Liquor Control Board of Ontario officials of Ontario said Thursday.

He indicated that one reason for the order form is to keep minors from buying beer. A purchaser must sign a law form declaring he is at least 21 years old.

The Telegram said one of its reporters bought 12 pints of beer in the name of a dog—"Rover Collie of 46 Avenue."

Mr. Collings said that, to do away with the present beer order forms, the Liquor Control Act would have to be amended, since the act says "written order" must precede the purchase of beer. He added that the Ontario legislature has given no consideration to a possible change in the act. The legislature's 1955 session ended Thursday.

Mobile Bank Branch Holds Up Traffic

TORONTO (CP)—A fully equipped bank on wheels brought help to traffic on highway 400 Thursday night.

The bank is a 31-foot trailer, containing vaults, offices, and a furnished apartment for the manager. It was enroute to Sudbury, being pulled by a truck.

Provincial police investigated the slow-moving vehicle and to avoid possible accidents they ordered it off the road until a bumper on the truck could be obtained.

Business will be solicited from the well-wheeled branch in the mining country around Sudbury.

Bombs Hurled At Installations

NICOSIA, Cyprus (Reuters)—Unidentified terrorists today hurled makeshift bombs at government, military and police installations in three towns of this British Mediterranean island.

It was the greatest outbreak since anti-British riots here last December and the colony's first terrorist attack since 1931 when supporters of the enosis (Cyprus' union with Greece) movement burned down government house.

No casualties were reported.

Publishers Take Over Negotiations With Union Men

LONDON (AP)—With Britain's biggest dispute of the year believed brewing, Fleet street publishers personally took over negotiations with union leaders today in the hope of averting a strike that would end the London newspaper strike which began a week ago today.

Lord Rothermere, publisher of The Daily Mail, for the first time in years, took the lead in the negotiations, and the delegation from the Newspaper Proprietors Association also was represented by counsel called in both sides for a conference over a new wage offer.

Sir Winston Churchill is expected to step down early next week as prime minister. The impending deadline has spurred the negotiations.

The lack of newspapers more and more is a giving Londoners a strange flavor from papers from the world—and even the latest neighborhood happenings. Most of them were in the dark about detailed results of Thursday's election to the new county councils.

The BBC has increased its radio and television newscast, but they offer only skeleton coverage.

Firehall Burns

URBANA, Ohio (AP)—The roof was burned off nearby Woodstock's volunteer fire department headquarters Thursday night, but a fireman saved the engine and water from the building by driving them from the building.

WEST DEMANDS REDS WITHDRAW BERLIN ROAD TAX

Say Political Purpose Behind Steep Levy

BERLIN (Reuters)—The three western powers today demanded that Soviet authorities take steps for the withdrawal "without delay" of vastly increased road taxes on traffic between Berlin and West Germany.

The United States, British and French high commissioners said the increases, effective at midnight Thursday night, were "so exorbitant" that they could be regarded as "politically inspired."

Their demand came in similar letters to the Soviet high commissioner, Georgi Pushkin, delivered to his headquarters in East Berlin.

At the same time, the West German government threatened to cut off all Soviet-West German trade unless the new road tolls are cancelled. An announcement following a cabinet meeting in Bonn called for immediate East-West German negotiations to end the Soviet tax before such a step became necessary.

Communist East Germany is necessary.

announcing the increases two days ago, said the additional funds were needed for upkeep of the 110-mile highway running through the Soviet zone.

Trucks have been the mainstay of Russia's incoming supplies, but extra freight trains have been pressed into service since the new restrictions came into effect. Trucks piled up during the night at the zone checkpoints as East German police began collecting the new taxes.

UAW Delegates Pledge Support For Annual Wage

By NORMAN WALKER

CLEVELAND (AP)—The big CIO auto workers union neared an end of its annual convention today with delegates pledged to an all-out campaign to win the union's guaranteed annual wage demand from the American automobile industry.

Walter Reuther, president of the CIO and the UAW, predicted "we are going to meet powerful foes in the field of battle" when bargaining begins next week with General Motors and Ford. "We can't lick with Ford, but "we shall not fail."

The UAW is committed to this action by a policy demand for the year-round pay plan, plus improved pensions and liberalized vacations.

In the absence of immediate reaction from the industry to the UAW's bargaining requests, Reuther said Thursday on a recent announcement that businessmen are raising a fund to conduct a public relations and public opinion program against the year-round pay plan.

The fund is being solicited by the United Business Committee, affiliated with the National Association of Manufacturers, and Reuther said their goal is to raise $30,000,000.

"I pray there will be that little bit of wisdom necessary to see the facts of life on the part of the leadership of the NAM," Reuther said, "and that they'll save their 30 million—the amount they want to raise—to block some progress because we are going forward."

Death of 400 Monkeys in Plane Imperils Polio Vaccine Supply

TORONTO (CP)—The Star says an accident to a shipload of 400 monkeys a month ago at a London airport threatens to dry up the source of Canada's polio vaccine.

The newspaper says officials from the Canadian department of external affairs and the United States state department are in New York trying to appease the Indian government which refuses to fly out any more monkeys.

The Star says 400 monkeys were found smothered to death at a London airport after being shipped out of India by air, the story says.

The monkeys are the rhesus variety whose kidneys are used to develop polio vaccine. The vaccine is made by pharmaceutical companies in the United States and at the Connaught medical research laboratories in Toronto.

The Star quotes an unidentified spokesman as saying that U. S. and Canada have enough on hand to last only one season if the monkey shipments are cut off.

Earth Quivers For Eight Hours; Loss In Millions

Thousands Left Homeless In Southern Philippines

MANILA (AP) — Violent earthquakes rocked the southern Philippines today, causing hundreds of deaths and untold damage.

The Philippine News Service reported "hundreds" dead or missing in the Tagaya district shore of Lanao province. Earlier PNS said there were 164 confirmed deaths in the districts of that province.

For nearly eight hours the earth trembled and shook. The ground split open. Land and lake waters were reported issuing from cracks in the land. Some houses toppled into Lake Nalao.

Communications were disrupted in most sections, but reports filtering out of the stricken island of Mindanao indicated widespread disaster.

The Philippine national Red Cross said the provincial secretary of Lanao province reported from Iligan, on the eastern shore, that persons were dead or missing in two districts bordering Lake Lanao.

Many persons presumably were included in an earlier report by the Philippine news service that 164 were confirmed dead in four districts of Lanao province. The Manila Times reported the same figures.

The news agency dispatch indicated many persons were victims of landslides.

President Ramon Magsaysay tonight declared a state of emergency in four provinces.

Hardest hit was northwestern Mindanao, second largest island in the archipelago. The first heavy shock hit the area at 2.15 a.m. Thereafter a chain reaction of tremors set in, heaving the earth on Panay, Negros, Samar, Cebu, Leyte and Bohol islands.

The Philippine Red Cross said the death toll appeared largest at Lake Lanao on Mindanao. Coastal towns to the west were devastated. Homes crumpled, churches collapsed and power failed.

Reuter put the death toll at 35,262, an estimated $1,000,000 in damage and 40,000 persons left homeless.

"Everyone in this area and many around the world the world had ended and death had come," Manila Times correspondent reported.

The weather bureau said the intensity of the earth-quake was recorded at Dipolog City, population 40,000, on the northern tip of Zamboanga province on Mindanao.

The residents at Dipolog was seven on a scale of nine.

The bureau said it had no recording equipment at Ozamis but believed the intensity was greater there.

Coming in the early morning hours when most residents were asleep, the earthquake threw villages, towns and cities into panic.

Dipolog stone Roman Catholic church at Ozamis, built in Spain's 18th century architecture, was reported destroyed. Public buildings trembled and fell.

Water suspended from broken mains. Electric lines snapped. Men, women and children were scrambled for safety in the pre-dawn darkness.

Gift of Candy To Accompany Polio Injections

TORONTO (CP)—Half a million Ontario children will receive candy to brighten the idea of taking injections during the Canadian Foundation for Poliomyelitis' campaign to prevent polio.

A large candy manufacturer donated half a million pieces of candy to be given public and separate school children when they receive the first of three injections.

Dust Storm Is Subsiding

DALHART, Tex. (AP) — Dust storms, mixed with snow and rain, which swept over parts of five southwestern states Thursday were subsiding today.

Cross-bedding clouds of black-brown dirt Thursday blew over chunks of Texas, Colorado, New Mexico, Kansas and Oklahoma.

The winds today were blowing what dust was still in the air southward and southward into the Gulf of Mexico.

Special Meeting Of City Council To Discuss Gas

A special meeting of city council will be held Monday evening to hear representatives of companies seeking franchises for the distribution of natural gas in the city. At least four companies are expected to hae representatives at the meeting.

During the past year city council has had requests from several gas distribution firms seeking franchises in the city, and the special meeting has been called at the request of the finance committee in order that all companies may present their stories.

It is reported that although construction of the Trans-Canada Pipeline is being held up, efforts will be made to build a line east from Toronto with temporary arrangements to be sought for the procurement of natural gas elsewhere.

"Infectious Diseases of Children"

Some 23 district nurses are maintained in Ontario by the Ontario Society for Crippled Children to assist in the organization's work. The Society is at present conducting its annual Easter Seals campaign, this year to raise $550,000 by April 10, aided on the Easter level by 200 service clubs. In Belleville the Rotary Club so far has received donations amounting to $3,226.

Polio Only One of Many Ailments Causing Physical Handicaps

Because much has been heard of poliomyelitis as a cause of crippling children, it is seldom realized that there is a wide range of afflictions, many of them developing before birth, that can have tragic effects on the lives of their unfortunate victims. Yet today many of these can be wholly corrected, and the severity of others can be alleviated to the child grow up to a more normal life.

Only a generation or two ago the sight of a grown person handicapped by a club foot was not uncommon. Today, especially if a doctor can begin treatment during the first few weeks after its birth, this deformity in a child can be corrected completely. Similarly, dislocated hips, also a congenital condition, can be corrected, yet it once accounted for many crippled persons.

TEAMWORK PROGRAM

These, and many other handicapping deformities, are still just about as common in birth as they were a hundred years ago, yet the teamwork program of the Ontario Society for Crippled Children, working in collaboration with its two hundred - odd Ontario service club affiliates, makes it possible to almost wipe out completely, conditions that once handicapped hundreds of people. In addition, tremendous strides have been made in providing surgery, therapy, mechanical appliances and even e and even training to provide self-dependence for children afflicted by cerebral palsy, osteomyelitis, perthes disease and several other afflictions, which only a few years ago doomed most of their victims to helplessness.

Each year the service clubs in Ontario hold their annual Easter Seal campaign, the proceeds of which make possible the never-ending program of treatment and training carried on by the Society.

Signs Will Show Speeders to Be Electrically Timed

When the new electrical timer for checking on speeding motorists is put into operation by the police department motorists will not be able to say they haven't been warned.

At least motorists are going to be fully warned if the city council traffic committee has its way.

At a meeting of the committee held Thursday members recommended that 10 signs be purchased showing speed is to be electrically timed.

Obituary

MRS. ARTHUR DAWE

PICTON — Following an illness of several months, Stella May Rutter, widow of Arthur Dawe, passed away at her home on Thursday, March 24, 1955. Born at Tweed, Ont., she was the daughter of Abraham Rutter and his wife, Elizabeth Demille. The greater part of her married life was spent in Picton, with the exception of a short time at Wiarton. Possessed of a friendly and helpful nature, she won a host of friends who mourn her passing. She was a devoted mother and grandmother. She was an adherent of the Baptist church, and a great lover of her home and flowers.

Survivors are two daughters, Mrs. Mary Wilson, Reg. N., and Mrs. Robert Lightfoot, Reg. N.; a son, Rayburn Dawe, also five grandchildren, Elaine, Wilson, Stephen Lightfoot, Judy, Robin and Wendy Dawe; a brother, William Rutter.

She was predeceased by her parents, husband, brother, Ben Benjamin, Henry, George and Albert Rutter.

Mr. Fern Marikawa, assisted by Rev. A. Carswell, conducted the funeral service at the Tozer Baptist Church, Picton, on Saturday, March 26.

Many relatives and friends were present to pay their last respects to an esteemed friend. From out-of-town were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rutter, Lyndhurst; Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Thompson, Roseboro; Mr. and Mrs. Archie Carson, Frankford.

The profusion of beautiful floral tributes included those from Metropolitan Life Assurance Co; Baptist Church members; P. E. County Pioneer Association; Picton Kiwanis Club.

Special music was played by Mrs. Harold Ostrander.

Entombment was in Cherry Valley Mausoleum. Bearers were George Jones, James Hawker, Harry Farley, Lyle Robinson, Wm. Wannamaker, Harold Demille.

Miss Marilyn Parks to Tour English and Scottish Farms

Miss Marilyn Parks, Foxboro public school teacher hailing from Ameliasburg, is one of four young Ontario farm girls and boys who will sail May 22nd for a visit of three in England and Scotland, it has been announced by F. S. Thomas, minister of agriculture.

The other three young people to make the trip are Miss Marie Saunders of Smithville; James Needham, of Ripley and Bev. S. Gray of Port Hope.

MISS MARILYN PARKS

The four young people who will take the trip under the auspices of the Ontario Department of Agriculture are all active members of Junior Farmer Clubs and have shown leadership ability in club, farm, school and church work. They were selected from a group of 24 candidates representing counties and districts of the province following personal interviews at the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph.

During their stay abroad they will be guests of young farmers' associations in England and Scotland and will live on farms of both countries, where they will have the opportunity of studying agricultural conditions and methods. Leader of the delegation will be R. G. Bennett, associate director of extension for the Department of Agriculture.

TEACHER FOR THREE YEARS

Miss Parks who has taught public school for three years since she completed normal school training in 1953, comes from a 300 - acre farm north of Madoc. She has completed 15 4-H club projects and is also secretary of the Hastings county junior farmer association. She was a member of the debating team which won the Eastern Ontario championship. She is a leader of the Foxboro C.G.I.T.; is secretary of the Thurlow Women's Teachers' Federation and Sunday School teacher and pianist. At the Chicago National 4-H congress in 1954, Miss Parks represented Hastings county.

Miss Parks is "thrilled" about being chosen for the overseas trip despite the fact she will have to pay for a small number for a month she will be away prior to the close of school. Now 21, Marilyn is looking forward to "many years of teaching" before she marries.

1,879 Persons Now Receiving Claims in Area

Employment in Belleville and area is slowly making a comeback after the peak unemployment period reached late in February, it was stated today by H. H. Reed, manager of the local employment service office.

As of Thursday night a total of 1879 persons in Belleville and the area served by the local office were receiving claims, according to Mr. Reed. The peak unemployment period was the week ending February 24th when the total on claim was 2001.

The breakdown of last night's figures showed there were 1,379 persons on "ordinary" claims," meaning Belleville and the rural area within a 40 cent return bus fare. Of these 594 were male and 185 female. Rural claims totalled 980 persons, 870 of them being male and 110 female. Of the total of 1879 currently on claim there are 123 on short time claims. These people are working two or three days per week and receive benefits for the period of the week in which they do not work.

The unemployment list is slowly going down as the spring season opens up," Mr. Reed said, "but the snowstorm of last week put us back a week or so."

Construction of the new hospital wing and the new addition to the Sir Winston Churchill school, together with slight activity in residential construction, is expected to put quite a number back to work.

Enquiries are also coming in for farm help with 15 farm workers being placed within the past week. Calls for farm help are all for experienced workers.

Police Blotter

The arrest of four men on drunk charges, the apprehension of two Hillcrest men for theft and the investigation of several minor motor accidents constituted almost the total of city police activity during the past 24 hours.

The four individuals appeared in city magistrate's court this morning and were fined the usual ten days in the county jail in lieu of payment of fines.

Burton and Albert Reid, of Hillcrest, were arrested by police and charged with the theft of 500 feet of welders' cable from the C.P.R. Both were fined in city court this morning and were remanded until April 9th.

George David McFarland, of Belleville and Frankford, appeared on several charges of uttering bogus cheques and was remanded until April 9th. Both city and provincial police have charges against McFarland.

George Hyde-Whipp, Yeomans Street, pleaded guilty to common assault of his wife and was given one year's suspended sentence on payment of court costs.

Thursday in county magistrate's court, Douglas Ernest Mumby, of Belleville, was acquitted on a charge of receiving. The charge was laid by provincial police in connection with the sale of a stolen TV set.

IN MEMORIAM

POLLARD. — In loving memory of a dear husband, Earl J. Pollard, who passed away four years ago today, April 1st, 1951.
Four years have passed since that sad day
Memories will always stay
We cannot write
In the bloom of life death claimed you
In the prime of manhood days,
But I hope some day to meet you
And to be with you always.
—Ever remembered by wife Ruby. A1

POLLARD. — In loving memory of our dear Dad, Earl Pollard, who passed away suddenly April 1st, 1951.
He little thought when leaving home
Would be our last return would come
That he would never speak again
In the bloom of life death claimed you
We do not see him die,
We did not see him die,
We only missed you when you were gone
And never said good-bye.
—Sadly missed by daughter Doris, and sons Ronald and Gordon. A1

KINCAID. — In loving memory of a dear husband, father and grandfather, Daniel Kincaid, who passed away April 1st, 1953.
Oh God, we ask you to give to clasp your hand
Your one kind face to see.
Your loving smile, your welcome
And your sympathy.
That meant so much to us
No one knows the silent heartache
Since you have been taken away
Of the grief that is borne in silence
For we loved you in May.
—Always remembered by wife Carrie, daughter and children. A1

SEELEY. — In loving memory of a dear father, Harry (Dick) Seeley, who passed away April 1st, 1954, and dear brother, Gerald, who passed away on active service April 10th, 1945.
Loving and kind in all their ways.
Upright in all they did and in the midst of days
Sincere and kind in heart and mind
What a beautiful memory they left behind.
—Sadly missed and ever remembered by Mrs. Harry, John and Helen A1

JOSLIN. — In loving memory of a dear father, James Albert Joslin, who passed away April 1st, 1945.
In our hearts your memory lingers,
Sweetly recalling days gone by,
There's only a day dear Father
When we do not think of you.
—Lovingly remembered by the family and grandchildren. A1

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — All major sections of the stock market were firmly ahead today with heavy trading.

Industrials gained ¾ points on the 1 p. m. index after falling ¼ point. Thursday. Base metals were also strong. Western oils and golds moved sluggishly ahead.

Trading was brisk.

Steep Rock jumped 45 cents to $3.05 in early afternoon, to lead base metals up. Uraniums, which shot ahead in early morning trade, eased a little in afternoon profit-taking.

FREED ON CHARGE

TORONTO (CP)—Herbert White, veteran Toronto police detective, Thursday was acquitted of a charge of "having a forged American bank note, knowing it to be forged." Magistrate W. W. McEown said there was doubt as to White's knowledge that a $10 United States bill in his possession was counterfeit.

Weekly Livestock Review

TORONTO (CP) — Cattle prices were steady to firm Monday at the Ontario public stockyards. Calf prices were firm while hogs were $1 higher and sheep and lambs generally steady.

The run of 4,400 head of cattle was comparable to last week and about 200 head more than the same week a year ago. Included in the fresh run were 429 head of western cattle, mostly steers. There were two carloads exported to the United States.

The general quality of the slaughter cattle was noticeably lower than in the past few weeks. An estimated 400 head will be unsold at the close, consisting mostly of stockers.

Prices: Choice steers, all weights $20-21 with odd lots to $21.50; good steers $19-20; medium $16-19; commons $12-16; good heifers $17-18; choice cows $15-20 and an odd extreme sale to $19; mediums $14-16; commons $12-14; lower stems and heifers $10-12; choice fed yearlings $20.50-21.50; odd sales to $22; good fed yearlings $19-20; mediums $17-19; good cows $13.50-14; light heifers cows to $15; canners and cutters down to $8; good heavy bologna bulls $13-13.50 with sales to $14; common and medium light bulls down to $10.

Calves unchanged to $1 lower. Shipments back to the country were slightly less than 600 head, about the same as last week. This is because steers will good stockers selling at $19-19.25 with odd lots at $19.50; mediums $16-18; odd small lots of common stockers $12-15.

Calves totalled 1,200 head. This is about the same as last week. Good and choice veals firmed up to sell at $26-28; mediums $18-25; commons $10-17.

Hogs were $1.00. Grade A hogs sold at $25.75-26. There were no hogs shipped to eastern Canadian slaughterers; sows $19; stags unchanged at $14.

Sheep and lambs were 275 head, a decrease of some 400 head under last week. This is because there were no lambs shipped from western Canada. Good native feeder lambs sold at $22.50-23; common and medium lambs ranged from $18-20, according to quality. A few good light sheep $8-10 with common and heavy sheep down to $3.

DOLLAR RATE

MONTREAL (CP) — The U. S. dollar was at a discount of 1 25-32 per cent in Canadian funds reported at noon today. Thursday's noon rate was 98 9-32 cents. Pound sterling $2.87¾ against $2.74 9-16.

Peterborough Plant to Build Nuclear Reactor

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Officials of the Canadian General Electric Co. today announced that the nuclear reactor for Canada's first atomic power station will be designed and built at the company's Peterborough plant.

Trade Minister Howe and Ontario Premier Frost announced last week that the station, costing between $13,000,000 and $15,000,000 would be built somewhere in Ontario. Mr. Howe said Canadian General Electric would absorb "a sizable portion" of the cost. The Ontario Hydro - Electric Power Commission and Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd. will share the rest.

Development of the plant will be in charge of Ian F. Mcrae, vice-president, and former manager of General Electric's Peterborough division.

SHIPS COLLIDE

CAPE MAY, N.J. (AP) — A United States Navy destroyer escort, heading home from a reserve training cruise, collided with the 7,607-ton Panamanian Mormacspruce in Delaware bay Thursday night. The two vessels were wedged together long making water, but in no danger of sinking.

GOOD OLD FASHIONED SALE ATTRACTS BUYERS

Booth Radio opened their doors Thursday morning to some of the greatest values seen in Belleville for some time. Many people orders ranged from $49.00 for a used set to brand new sets at $159.00. This year's refrigerators which were just released on the market in February are now available at up to $150.00. Many miscellaneous items are to be had, including T.V. antennas as low as $6.00 each — electric kettles $6.95 T.V. antenna rotators for $24.00.

Booth Radio claim their warehouse is being loaded with new manufacturing and they must vacate it immediately. They state that this sale will continue until all merchandise is cleared.

W.E. Sandercock Lauds Dept. Of Highways for Providing Better Roads in Province

Appreciation to the Ontario Highways Department for the construction of development roads in the West Hastings riding, was expressed by W. Elmer Sandercock, M.L.A., in a recent address before the Ontario Legislature. The text of Mr. Sandercock's address given following presentation of Premier Frost's budget is as follows:

Mr. Speaker — When the Prime Minister the provincial treasurer presented his budget to the House we were all very proud that we lived in such a prosperous part of the world. Without the province's natural resources. Industry and farmland it would not be possible to support such an outstanding budget.

The extra unconditional grants to municipalities was a very excellent and fair way of distributing this grant of money. I was pleased that there were no strings attached as to how it was to be spent as the requirements and problems are not the same in all municipalities. I have confidence in the elected councils of the municipalities of this province that it will be spent to the best advantage.

I have listened with interest to the many speeches made here this year, they have been outstanding with many good suggestions having been brought forward. If these are put into practice, they would be of great benefit to the people of this province.

We have heard considerable about highways and roads of all kinds since everyone is looking for more and better roads. The prosperity of the citizens of this great province has led to an ever increasing number of motor vehicles.

In addition to the larger number of passenger cars and trucks commercial traffic is dependent upon our highways. We are all aware of the expanding tourist trade and its importance to our economy. For this reason the Department of Highways is to be congratulated for its endeavors to provide us with more and better roads.

TWO PROBLEMS

The riding that I have the honor to represent has two distinct highway problems. The Riding of Hastings West is about 70 miles wide and over 100 miles long.

The bulk of our population is concentrated in the centres of Belleville and Trenton. This presents us with our first problem. These cities have expanded so that the ten miles of highway between them is almost a continuous residential street with one of the largest air bases in Canada at the Trenton end.

In addition to the regular interurban traffic on this road, it is also the main road between Montreal and Toronto. This is further complicated by the swing bridge over the Murray Canal. We are happy that the department has made a long overdue start on it by-pass for this area. The grading for ten miles has been completed and we are assured that work on the bridges over the Trent and Moira rivers as well as the clover leafs and the remaining 17 miles of highway will proceed rapidly this year.

We appreciate efforts of the department in providing highways and development roads in the rural part of our riding. The highways in the Bancroft area have done much to opening up one of Ontario's most interesting summer resorts. Further efforts in this direction should provide an even greater return from our American tourist trade.

AID TO FARMERS

The development roads, however, are closest to my heart as they provide modern transportation facilities to one of the most important groups in our society, the producing farmer on the back concession. Those who live in urban areas cannot realize the value of these roads. They provide the means of access by which school buses can take the children to modern schools. They provide ready access to the produce markets. In short, they provide the means of communication which can make life on the farm as desirable as that in the city.

The construction of these roads is beyond the financial ability of the counties or townships. It is therefore important that the government continue and expand this very desirable policy of road building.

While on this topic of highways I would be to congratulate the Highway Safety Committee on their report. There was one aspect which was not emphasized sufficiently, in my estimation, and that was the construction of curves on older roads to provide safer sighting for the faster traffic of today. In my own community, I have observed an increasing number of accidents which seem to be caused by this condition. This would be an economical way of making some of our older roads more safe.

May I point out that money spent on roads in Hastings County is an investment, for it is one of the most rapidly developing centres in this province. The Faraday - Bancroft mineral development is rapidly proving to be the most valuable in northern Ontario. The Bethlehem Steel iron mine at Marmora is ready to go into production. This is southern Ontario's only iron mine and the millions spent in developing it indicate its value to the community.

NOT FIRST DEVELOPMENT

This is not the first iron ore development in the Marmora district. In the Marmora Herald of March 17 there appeared a 115-year-old report of much interest. The report is of Isaac Fraser, one of the commissioners appointed with Anthony Manahan and George Neville Ridley by His Excellency Sir Francis Bond Head, late lieutenant governor of Upper Canada under commission bearing date the 16th day of July 1837 to carry into effect the objects expressed in an address of the House of Assembly passed the 17th day of February, 1837, praying that His Excellency would cause an examination to be made before the next session of the legislature of the iron works, known as the Marmora Iron Works, in the County of Hastings, and that His Excellency would also ascertain upon what terms the proprietors of those works and of the land thereto attached would be willing to dispose of the same, and further estimate to be made of the probable expense of transferring the penitentiary from Kingston to Marmora for the purpose of employing the convicts in the manufacturing of iron there, should such a measure be decided upon by the legislature.

The report was quite lengthy, giving all details of the property having large substantial buildings, two smelting furnaces, four forge fires, two trip hammers, and all necessary equipment. When in full operation it produced at the rate of four tons of cast iron and five tons of bar per day.

Attached to the works are a grist mill with one run of stone, a saw-mill with one circular two pit-saw, tannery and bakery and a blacksmith shop, carpenters' shop, with tools for each, and housing for all workmen and labourers.

PLAN ABANDONED

The whole project was studied from every angle but apparently the idea was dropped and has been left to free enterprise.

Belleville and Trenton are two rapidly developing industrial centres. We also have interesting examples of decentralized industrial development in Batawa, Frankford, Stirling, Marmora and Deloro. Belleville and Trenton are important railway centres. Quinte County, with its sturdy United Empire Loyalists, is one of the leading cheese producing areas in this province. Our other farm commodities, although less widely publicized, are equally important, and as long as this government maintains its policy of encouraging fair agricultural returns, will contribute to the growing prosperity of the area.

FAMILY ALLOWANCE DEFENDED

In too many cases, says the Brantford Expositor, money received as family allowances is spent foolishly, without benefit to the children.

This is probably true, but cannot be proven.

It cannot be proven because nobody can say for certain that the children in any family would have received as much as they do even if no family allowances had been paid.

The fact that the family allowance cheque is cashed and that the money so obtained is then spent on an Easter hat, a fishing rod or even a bottle of liquor is no proof that the system is being abused. Some families separate their family allowance money from the remainder of the family income, but many do not and the failure to do so is not a proof that the system is abused.

Even if the child receives no more than it would if no allowance was paid, criticism may not be justified. Some families put the needs of children first and would supply all of them in any event. In such cases, when the government undertakes to meet the cost of a portion of the child's needs, surely the family has a right to reduce its contribution by a like amount?

The truth of the matter is that for the majority of Canadian families where there is a wage-earner and that wage-earner is working, the system of family allowances is nothing more than an additional income tax exemption. This additional exemption is urgently needed. Without the monthly family allowance cheque, the exemption granted for children is entirely inadequate.

For this reason, scant support should be accorded a proposal by the Expositor that there should be "re-assessment" of "the blanket-style handout involved in the present system." Even if re-assessment of the system is accompanied by a revision of the exemptions for children under the Income Tax Act, it would be unfair.

Even if such revisions were made, limiting the payments of family allowances to children of needy families would result in a clumsier system than the present "blanket-style handout." Administration of a "means test" is always unpleasant and never an easy or pleasant task. The "blanket-style handout" system evades not only the cost but the headaches of a "means test." Those in need of the baby bonus get it automatically and those not in need of the allowance also get it automatically, but in their case it can be considered as a quite justifiable exemption from income tax.

If there is anything wrong with the family allowance system it is that inflation has drastically curtailed the real value of the amounts paid and present payments are thus actually below the scale deemed advisable when the legislation was first passed. As the national standard of living has increased in the interval, there would seem no real justification for such a reduction in these payments.

COMEDY AND TRAGEDY IN THE FAR EAST

Two stories came out of the Far East Wednesday to emphasize the fact that this is still a strange world.

One of them, though interesting and even whimsical, easily have most serious repercussions, had its comic overtones. Nobody in the effete West can be expected to take seriously a country where former river pirates band themselves together, raise a private army and control not only a city's vice and gambling establishments but also its police force, then ally themselves with two religious groups, also possessing private armies, in an effort to oust the government. But because of the Communist threat in Indochina, the existence of such a situation at Saigon is important to the whole world.

The other story was one of stark tragedy. In the South Celebes islands of Indonesia 20,000 persons have lost their homes as the result of raids by looting gangs. Six thousand houses were burned by the raiders. Those who did not flee in time were captured by raiders and taken into the forests. Thousands of others fled to army posts and neighboring villages, swelling the number of refugees in the South Celebes to the almost incredible number of 1,200,000. The looters are led by Kahar Muzakkar and his religious group of fanatical Moslems is the most powerful of the bandits. Strange and terrible are the reading this, in the middle years of the twentieth century!

WHERE YOUR DOLLAR GOES

Viewers with alarm have a merry time whenever statistics for expenditures on alcoholic beverages or on tobacco hit the public prints.

When we are told, for instance, that on a national basis the Canadian consumer spends 4.7 cents of every dollar for alcoholic beverages and 1.8 cents on cigars, cigarets and tobacco, the costs of these luxuries appear large.

But the really startling figure is that for automotive commodities, 22 cents out of every dollar on a national basis. In Ontario and on the Pacific coast the consumer spends more on automotive items than he does on food.

That figure provides food for thought.

Other expenditures, as listed by "Canadian Business," publication of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, are: 10.5 cents on clothing, 3.2 cents on building materials, 2.4 on fuel and ice, 2.2 on drugs and sundries, 2.2 on farm and garden equipment, 2 cents on footwear, 1.9 on electrical appliances, 1.8 cents on hardware, 1.7 on furniture, 1.6 on dry goods and notions, 1.3 on hay, straw and feed, 1.2 on household supplies. Balance of the dollar is spent on miscellaneous items.

APRIL 1

I've put salt in my tea,
I've kicked hats over rocks,
At the city hall
I have called Mr. Fox.
For a purse snatched away
I have skipped all in vain,
But to please them today
I will do it again.

I have turned with dismay
Now for many a morn
When I heard some one say
That my trousers were torn.
By a knife made to bend
I've been fooled times before,
But today I'll pretend
To be tricked just once more.

Let them pepper my cake,
Let my fork fastened be,
No complaint will I make
When they're laughing at me.
"April fool, April fool!"
Is a shout I shall hear,
For I've made it my rule
To be one, once a year.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

April 1, 1935

Crown Attorney R. C. Donnan of this city presented the patent proclaiming his appointment as a King's Counsel to Mr. Justice Makings in weekly court at Deputy Hall, Toronto, today and was invited to take his place in the seats set apart in the courtroom for "His Majesty's Counsel learned in the law."

"Montrose Cottage" on George Street, south of Bridge Street, which was for many years the home of Capt. Joseph Parker Cochrane, who intends to remodel the property into an up-to-date two family dwelling.

Mr. Harold Hall unfortunately spent the night at the police station.

Mr. Joe Mitchell was home from McMaster University, Hamilton, to spend the week-end.

Mr. M. R. Doyle spent the week-end in Toronto.

Miss Eugenia May was home from Toronto University to spend the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur May.

Mrs. A. E. MacColl, Mrs. Terry Dolan, Mrs. R. L. Brown, Mrs. M. W. Sparling, Miss F. Hamilton, Miss Leona Wilson, Miss Alec Gordon, Mr. Leslie Lennox and Mr. Clifford Templer, members of the Presto Music Club were in Toronto on Friday evening to hear Lawrence Tibbett in recital at Massey Hall.

30 YEARS AGO

April 1, 1925

Mr. S. A. Barkley has returned to the city from Carleton Place where he visited his father.

Mrs. E. West and Mrs. F. E. Jenkins of Madoc, and Mrs. Bissonette of Stirling were in this city yesterday to attend a meeting at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

Mr. W. J. Fairweather, the new golf professional at the Bay of Quinte Country Club has arrived to assume his duties.

40 YEARS AGO

April 1, 1915

A party of young people from the city had a most enjoyable time at Mr. Bubbet's sugar bush in the thing concession of Sidney township, Mr. Bubbet was an excellent host and supplied generous quantities of maple syrup, maple sugar, eggs and other refreshments.

At the annual meeting of the sergeants of the 15th. Regiment Argyll Light Infantry the following officers were elected: president, Color-Sergeant J. Freeman; vice president, Color-Sergeant C. R. Cooke; treasurer, Paymaster Sergeant H. L. Chown; secretary, Signaller Sergeant W. H. Reid; auditors, Q. M. Sergeant Frank Mills and Color Sergeant J. Turner; board of management, Sergeant W. Adamson, H. Holton and R. F. Anderson.

50 YEARS AGO

April 1, 1905

Mr. L. A. Appleby is retiring today as governor of the county jail after many years of faithful and efficient service; he will retire to his farm at Turiff in North Hastings.

E. D. O'Flynn died at his home in Madoc Village early this afternoon at the age of 74 years. For many years he conducted successfully a private bank in Madoc; he was highly esteemed and over a long period of time he was prominent in the affairs of the county. Mr. F. E. O'Flynn, barrister, of this city is a son of the late Mr. O'Flynn.

Cheese inspectors and instructors for this county have been appointed as follows: E. Ketcheson, Belleville; R. W. Ward, Foxboro; A. H. Thompson, Madoc, and J. B. Lawrence, Frankford.

At the January session of the county council the report of the committee with regards to the building of a house of refuge was rejected and no action was taken. As something must be done soon in the matter, it is probable that a special meeting of the county council will be called in the near future to take some action.

Letter to the Editor

Complains of Holes On Everett Street

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer

Will you kindly give me a little space in your valuable paper, of which I am a constant reader.

At Monday night's council meeting some reference was made regarding a certain sewer in Parkwood Heights. I don't know anything about conditions there but would like to give a special invitation to the powers that be to visit Everett Street, especially between Moira and Henry Streets.

In that section there are deep holes in the road, and every time it rains, or thaws, as at present, these holes fill with water, and the cars dashing through throw water, dirt and gravel over the sidewalk, and even up on to the lawns.

It's just about impossible to keep our fronts clean and tidy.

It's a disgrace to our city to have such a condition exist, and something should be done, soon, to remedy this miserable situation.

W. J. HART.

He Made Time Cheap

By E. Harford Walls, in the London, Eng., Recorder)

Walking across a field the other day, a Lancashire farmer was something sickening at his feet. He stooped and picked up the object. It was a watch which he had lost three years before and which the passage of a plow had disinterred.

Without much hope, he wound up the watch, held it to his ear, and, miraculously, it was ticking happily. It still is . . . and keeping good time, too.

That farmer and another, in the Midlands, who accidentally dropped his watch under a tractor, not to mention a Nottinghamshire farm laborer, who let his fall into the middle of a bonfire, can testify to the toughness of these timepieces, each purchased for a modest sum many years before.

Time meant money to Robert E. Ingersoll in America when he's son, who, in 1892, launched on a sceptical world, the first mass produced watch to bear his name, marks the jubilee of his famous invention.

People in the U.S.A. shook their heads. A watch for a dollar? What a new notion. The cheapest watch until then had cost $5 and more.

Evidently Ingersoll had been seeing too much of that other old character — what was his name? — oh, yes, Henry Ford. A good watch at $1 was as much to be cerebrated an idea as those ridiculous horseless carriages with which young Ford was making his time.

All the same Ingersoll's arguments and enthusiasm prevailed — but only just. Hedged around by "firs" and "buts," he got his way. He put a thousand on the market at that absurdly low price. They sold like wildfire. Soon he was selling 10,000 a year. He probably did small profits and quick returns paid dividends. Before long he was nearly a million a year.

What was the secret of his extraordinary success- At that time the work of producing watches was all done by hand. Each part was made and assembled individually. Robert Ingersoll conceived the idea of mass-producing individual parts of the watch movement, so that they were all interchangeable. Rumor has it even that Ingersoll actually introduced Ford to the principles of mass production. Anyway, as a result, down went the price of the article and soon came to be known as "the watch that made the dollar famous."

Then, in January, 1905, just fifty years ago this week, two men sailed aboard the S.S. "Minnetonka" for England. Without realizing it, they were setting forth on a merchant adventure which, to date, has put more than 30 million watches in the pockets and on the wrists of men and women in Britain.

One of these men came only by extreme hesitation of the other, and then only because the contract he had signed was strictly binding for a year. The persuader was Robert Ingersoll, the second son of the founder, Daniella. Daniella came for a year, stayed for 25, and, at the age of the grand old man of the British Ingersoll Company which, by that time, had the assets of the American concern in Britain. In 1935, the only thing that remained about the set-up here is the name.

At Ystradgynlais, in South Wales, Ingersoll watches are born. Here watches an hour being assembled by highly skilled workers using specially-constructed pneumatic jigs and miniature pressure tools. Here are made parts, many of which were evolved by Ingersoll engineers for this movement, enable 500,000 watches a year to be made more efficiently and economically than in the U.S.A., and more scientifically than in Switzerland.

Since 1947, nearly six million Ingersoll watches have been made in this factory. They are just part of the huge total of 100 million timekeepers which the original "dollar" watch was launched on an incredulous world.

New Moons Reported

(Edmonton Journal)

One of the most interesting developments in astronomy lately is the suggestion that the earth may have more than one moon. A distinguished amateur astronomer, John P. Bagby of Chicago, has reported the discovery of a number of tiny satellites revolving about our planet at distances of a few hundred miles. The discovery is being investigated by observatories all over the world.

Startling as the idea may appear at first sight, there is nothing fantastic about Mr. Bagby's claim. Most of the other plants of the solar system have more than one moon. Jupiter has twelve and Saturn nine, while the familiar "rings of Saturn" are now generally believed to consist of minute particles revolving about that planet. Even Mars, which is much smaller than the earth, has two.

It is also well known that an immense number of small bodies exist within the solar system, revolving around the sun. They are perhaps the remains of an ancient star or planet which has broke up in the past. Some of the larger ones, known as asteroids, are from 100 to 500 miles in diameter. Others are just masses of rock or metal a few feet across. When one of these small objects comes close to the earth, and is caught in the gravitational field, it falls to the surface as a spectacular meteorite. An asteroid approaching the earth with a suitable speed and direction could be captured and revolve about the earth like a smaller moon. Professor Clyde Tombaugh, the astronomer who discovered the planet Pluto, claimed last year that he had seen recently behind ten meteors. So it is quite possible that our planet has acquired a number of tiny satellites over the ages, revolving in the little-explored space between the earth and the moon.

If such satellites are proved to exist, they may have considerable practical significance. As they perhaps inevitable in this age of rocket flight, many writers already have dark hints of using them for military observation, or for the dropping of guided missiles. In a saner future, they might find useful employment as bases for voyages to the moon and the planets. A natural satellite, circling a few hundred miles above the earth, would be far more convenient than the artificial satellites which scientific fantasists have talked of assembling in space for this purpose.

Even if this is the final important discovery was claimed by an amateur indicates the importance of the amateur astronomer. We are inclined to think of astronomy in terms of huge observatories with huge telescopes and staffs of professional astronomers, but these, however, the observatories concentrate mainly on observing regular phenomena for which instruments are designed. The exploration of the earth's own neighborhood, including the moon, has been left largely to the amateurs who include many devoted and highly trained men and women. It would be appropriate if one of these should be the discoverer of earth's nearest neighbors in space.

Grateful

(Hamilton Spectator)

The president of the American Dental Association says plain water is as satisfactory as anything for brushing the teeth. Senator Sooper replies that from a sense of gratitude he will keep right on using toothpaste—after all, what comedians did the city water department ever sponsor?

Train Best Way to Travel

(Hamilton Spectator)

We take the train for a number of reasons. One is simply that we like trains as such, and we enjoy watching the ritual of their running.

Another is that we like leisurely travel. We like those three days and four nights of being detached in a little world on wheels where nobody can get at us to bother us.

We like the business of settling into a transcontinental sleeping car, which is much like the business of settling into a transcontinental ship.

We like watching the countryside unwinding gently but inexorably past our window. We like the long, slow, rumbling of rails receding behind the observation car to a point on the horizon, and the occasional sighting of mountains when viewed from their long perspective.

We like the feeling of participation in the railroad's occasional struggle against snow and ice and rock and sliding mud; and when the train at last reaches tide-water at the head of Burrard inlet we enjoy a sort of low level sense of achievement—a sense that in a strange way we have shared in the symbolic bonding-together of our country by steel.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

ULTIMATE HOPE

Is optimism a virtue, according to Christian standards, and pessimism a vice?

That depends. Christianity is realistic. There are times when optimism fails us be optimistic; there are other times when realism holds us by pessimistic. On the whole, it can be said that Christianity is decidedly pessimistic as regards the future—particularly the ultimate end of all things.

For Christianity teaches that the life we live every day is a period of preparation for a larger preparation for something that will take place later on — a great ultimate, the end of which is not yet revealed in the trial, that individuals and nations will flunk their examinations—or, to put it more bluntly, that word "mess" will continue to be applied to life as it is and as far as we can peer into the future. But the ultimate picture is bright, with a radiance which outshines any brightness human eyes ever beheld upon.

The world continues to get a little better with each passing century. There is such a thing as progress but it is very, very slow and is to be measured by generations and centuries and not by years. The end of the world is being prepared for the time being the case, right is destined to triumph eventually and completeness that the human mind cannot comprehend.

Personal Health Talks

By DR. WM. BRADY

REHABILITATION OF BORIC ACID

Dr. Brady

Now that most people with a fair knowledge of and interest in the promotion of health and vite are getting or trying to get an adequate daily ration of sunshine (ultraviolet) vitamin D, popular magazines are no longer warning the public about the hypothetical dangers involved in taking "too much" vitamin D. How much "too much" would be the science experts never indicated.

Indeed, before the discovery of vitamin D by McCollum and his associates in 1922, a minimum daily ration of one fluid-ounce (two tablespoonfuls) of standard cod liver oil was generally satisfactory "insurance" for chronic rheumatic —but that was before "arthritis" became the most puzzling gullible customers with joint disability.

A year or two ago, Drs. R. B. and A. Goldbloom reported in the "Journal of Pediatrics" on their boric acid poisoning in an infant, resulting from the use of borated talcum powder. They also thought enough boric acid to poison a large dog had been absorbed through raw spots in the skin. They added that they had found 109 similar cases reported in other medical journals throughout the world. That was enough. The "science" writers and editors zealously warned the public against further did.

use of borated talcum, boric acid solution, boric acid ointments. Gee whiz, what fools these doctors be—they have been using as safe and sane a drug as boric acid as an all-round cleansing, soothing, mildly antiseptic lotion for sore eyes, etc., for nearly a century, and they never suspected the existence of the disastrous if still the hasty experts published their report.

A year or so after the Goldbloom report was published one of the authors (R. B. Goldbloom) published in the same journal a retraction of the original allegation.

Russell Fisher, M.D., Henry Freimuth, Ph.D., Kathleen O'Connor, B.S., and Viola Johns, M.D., remind us (J. A. M. A. 2/5/38) that boron is widely distributed in fruits and other foods, and -the human organism constantly absorbs and excretes it. Four ounces (half a glass) of orange juice might contain 1.68 mg. of boron, equivalent to 8.8 mg. of boric acid (approximately one-sixth of a grain), and this fact renders the "scientific" medical authorities of the presence of boric acid in the urine invalid. Indeed, these "scientific" reports of alleged boric acid poisoning from alleged absorption from the skin have been rested on such "proof."

But I would say one has to be constantly on guard against being bamboozled when reading these medical authorities. these "scientifics," as Lum would say, and seldom have the courage or honesty to acknowledge and correct an error, as Dr. Goldbloom did.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE STORY OF HANDS

There is nothing more interesting than the study of hands. They reveal beauty, character and a life story. It tells more than the face with its lines, though they are closely related. The most beautiful hands are not those that are soft with nails nicely pointed, and manicured, but those that have been acquainted with the soil, that have wrote poetry, and that have loved and mothered many.

I can never forget my mother's hands. They were work hands, hands that were never idle as long as there was someone to whom they could render service. They were love hands, for they never did anything begrudgingly. They cooked, washed, made clothes, painted, wrote poetry, and ministered to the poor and to the ill—always hunting for some one to help. The story of my mother's hands was one of kindness and thoughtfulness toward others, no matter who

"those others" might be.

So much has been told about the face of Lincoln—a face into which was written the story of the life of this great man's heart. But his hands—they are remarkable as to his face. They showed the story of an early manual labor, branded with the toil of the open south. George Barnard, the American sculptor, in his famous bronze bust of Lincoln standing in Lyle Park, Cincinnati, Ohio, has sculptured Lincoln's hands as nobly as he did the face of his body. They are a picture of gentleness and strength.

Hands reveal to me far more than does any other human characteristic. A man's hands tell a lot of love within it for when it is pressed in another one's kindness, sympathy, and encouragement, it speaks a great language! The story of a hand is the story of a heart. And the most beautiful of all hands are those that are the signs of work, love, and sacrifice.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Most of those who draw the old age pension doubtless need it bad. Many of them are desperately so. But there are considerable numbers, surely, who find it a pleasant thing to get a little extra egg to decorate their already well-lined nests, in the smoking compartment of the Toronto express one night, four of the eight men present, all of middle age or over with the conversation happened to turn onto the old age pension, we got a four-man unit.

The first of the four confessed that he got his $480 to a brother who was not as well off as he. The next man said that he was on the train, en route to visit his grown children for a week or two, on an annual pilgrimage financed by his pension. The third man frankly admitted that the $480 was a godsend to him and his wife, and that he could not see how they could get along without it.

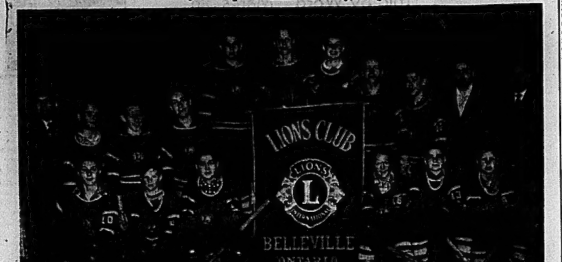
The fourth man said:

"I was retired automatically and pensioned at the age of sixty. One year later, my wife took ill and suffered three years of costly hospitals before she died. I used up all my savings, the equity in our home and more. Between the age of sixty-four and seventy, I lived on what I could get by with, which, with my company pension, enabled me to live, and to pay off the debts I had incurred.

"Well, the thing I had to give up that hurt most was a boat club I belonged to. We had a cabin of lakes with the best fishing in the district. I had to quit it when I was sixty-one years old, the age at which a man's boat club friends really appreciate fishing.

"By the time I reached seventy, which was three years ago, I had learned how to live on my company pension, safely, and when the old age pension came along, guess what I did with it."

Yep. All of us in the smoker guessed right.



"They welcomed me back into the club," said the happy pensioner, "and I've been there full time ever since."

Broadcasters Want Independent Body to Regulate Industry

OTTAWA (CP)—Private broadcasters will continue to fight for an independent body to regulate radio and television despite a strong government indication that this responsibility will remain with the CBC.

Prime Minister St. Laurent told the Commons Thursday that he personally is opposed to shifting regulatory control over broadcasting from the publicly-owned corporation to a private tribunal.

However, the Canadian Association of Radio-and Television Broadcasters later issued a statement saying it will continue to press for establishment of an independent regulatory body. It represents most of Canada's private broadcasters.

Mr. St. Laurent was asked by opposition members to comment on a resolution passed Wednesday by the advisory council of the National Liberal Federation urging the government to name a commission to consider whether an independent body should be set up.

John Diefenbaker (PC — Prince Albert) asked the prime minister whether he considers the value of an independent board desirable or necessary.

"My personal opinion is that it is not desirable or necessary," Mr. St. Laurent replied.

He said he still accepts the recommendation of the majority report of the Massey royal commission on arts, letters and sciences that existing policy be continued. A minority report urged the setting up of an independent regulatory board.

Letter: Jane Revenue Minister McCann, who reports to Parliament for the CBC, said the government is opposed to a separate regulatory body.

The Massey report said demands for an independent organization are based "on a false assumption that broadcasting in Canada is an industry." It said it regarded broadcasting as a service which should be directed and controlled in the public interest by a body responsible to Parliament.

The Liberal Federation's advisory council proposed the appointment of a commission to look into the "advisability of establishing a regulatory tribunal not connected in any way with any operating broadcasting station or stations." After completing its study the commission would recommend whether an independent body should be established.

The Young Liberal Federation of Canada also passed a resolution at its 1954 convention here urging the setting up of an independent tribunal. It said such a body would correct the "present inequitable situation wherein the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation is a big regulatory power over non-government stations with which it competes for audience and business."

The Association of Radio and Television Broadcasters said the establishment of a separate body "is obviously supported by an overwhelming majority of Canadian Liberals whether of the small or large 'l' variety."

Crofton

CROFTON — Mrs. W. J. Gray spent a few days last week with her daughter, Mrs. Leo Lefort, Mr. Lefort and family, at Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Hutson, of Roslin, were Thursday evening dinner guests of their mother, Mrs. George Hutson.

Mrs. B. M. Moran called on Mrs. D. B. Munro, on Thursday evening.

Mrs. Victor Bongard was among those to be entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Cross, at Christian St., on Thursday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Salisbury and Janet, of Belleville, were dinner guests of Mrs. E. Crook.

Mrs. E. Crook spent Wednesday with her sister, Mrs. Charles Halght and with her brother, Mr. W. Salisbury, at Belleville, on Saturday.

Owing to the storm there was no church service on Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. S. J. Munro returned to her home on Saturday after spending the winter with her niece, Mrs. Everett Wood and Mr. Wood of Belleville.

Deseronto

DESERONTO — Mr. and Mrs. William Wood spent the week-end in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Maracle were week-end visitors in Syracuse.

Mr. Gerald Fox spent the week-end in Toronto, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Atkins and family.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Edwards and Leo Edwards of New Toronto, were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Hodge and family of Niagara Falls, N.Y.

LADIES' EUCHRE

Mrs. G. Fox entertained the members of the Ladies' Club on Wednesday evening. The winners of high score were Mrs. George Cole and Mrs. Harry Bender; travelling, Mrs. C. McKenna. Consolation, Mrs. John Gartland.

Refreshments were served at the close of the evening.

Rawdon

BIRTHDAY HONORED

RAWDON — Mr. James Menzies celebrated his 76th birthday anniversary on Sunday. On Saturday evening Mrs. Menzies entertained to dinner Mr. Kenneth Menzies, Lorraine and Allen, Warkworth; Mr. and Mrs. Elwood McIlnoyle, Peterborough, and Mrs. Cecil Nelson and Leslie, Ridge Road. Owing to the heavy snow storm several other relatives were unable to pay a visit on Sunday.

St. Paul's Sunday School honored Mrs. Harold Hagerman recently by dedicating a pulpit marker. Harold served five years as a faithful superintendent of St. Paul's Sunday school. The marker was presented for dedication by Mr. George Carlisle, the 1955 superintendent.

Mrs. Frank Jeffs, president of Mount Pleasant-Rawdon W.M.S.; Mrs. Herbert Smith, stewardship secretary; Mrs. Percy MacMullen, recording secretary; Mrs. John Mulheron, leader of Bethel Mission Band, and the pastor's wife, Mrs. W. G. Fletcher, attended the annual meeting of Belleville Presbyterial at Picton United Church on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Orno Sharp, Miss Betty Sharp, Rev. W. G. Fletcher, Messrs. Edgar Graham, Glenn Watson, Ralph Johnson and Craig Watson represented Rawdon circuit at St. Andrew's United Church, Marmora, on Friday evening. Mr. Harold Hagerman also attended.

On Sunday evening a small group greeted the pastor, Rev. W. G. Fletcher at Mount Pleasant United Church. Due to weather conditions and concession roads filled with snow the attendance was perhaps the smallest on record.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Merrick, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Merrick, Mr. and Mrs. Irvine Potts, Mr. and Mrs. Carleton Potts, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Scott, Miss Ruth Linn, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Weaver and Mr. and Mrs. Percy MacMullen of Mount Pleasant-Rawdon, attended the Thresherm'n's and Power Farmers' banquet and dance at Tobe's County Gardens, Friday evening. Mr. Merrick, as past president, was one of the directors that evening and Mrs. MacMullen contributed two readings.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Pyear, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Pyear, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Brown and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Armstrong of Carmel community were in attendance. Mrs. A. Pyear presided at the piano and her son Russell entertained.

Mrs. Will Heath was hostess for Bethel W.A. and Mrs. Thomas Laycock presided. The Bible lesson was read by Mrs. Harold Elliott and following a brief worship and business the ladies completed a quilt.

Mr. and Mrs. Ira Althouse, Peterborough, and Mrs. Charles Dunham visited friends in Ontario over the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Bailey and children spent Sunday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Ralph McMullen and children, Frankford.

Congratulations are extended to Miss Ruth Linn, 1954 Mission Band leader of Mount Pleasant-Rawdon. She was awarded a star at Belleville Presbyterial W.M.S. annual meeting held at Picton, as she had complied with all the rules and regulations set forth by the Dominion Board.

Ruth was awarded a certificate in 1953 and this star is to be added to the card.

The children greatly assisted in their regular attendance. The annual study book is a "must" in order to fulfill the regulations.

MISSION BAND

Mount Pleasant - Rawdon Sunbeam Mission Band convened at the church on Sunday morning and opened with a singing of hymns. Raeburn Scott presided. Gail Scott gave her report. Teddy Richardson and Kenneth Smith gathered the offering. Mrs. F. Jeffs told the children an Easter story and Carol and Jean Sharpe sang "Let the Sunshine In," with Mrs. Smith presiding at the piano. The leader, Mrs. Ed. Richardson outlined the study chapter entitled "Christmas in India."

RAWDON — The heavy snowstorm and wind which arrived early Saturday morning filled concession roads with packed snow by Saturday night. Several farm folk were blocked in all day Sunday. The snow ploughs were kept busy trying to clear the roads for motor travel. A number of public school children missed their classes on Monday. The weatherman dished out typical March weather over the week-end and at the time of writing more snow is promised. Evidently March intends to keep the old lion busy switching cold air and snow for the few remaining days before the new month of April is ushered in. In some places laneways are drifted full from one fence to the other.

Approximately 75 people from Stirling, Marmora and Sidney attended the annual banquet and dance sponsored by the Threshermen's and Power Farmers at Tobe's County Gardens on Friday evening.

Messrs. Oscar Merrick, past president, Mr. Goldie F. McIntyre, secretary-treasurer; Reeve Theodore Cooney and Mr. Kenneth Tompkins were among those who spent considerable time and energy to make the event a success.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Smith, of Campbellcroft, were recent guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. Jeffs.

Mr. George McEathron, Hermon, Ontario, who is in years would visited his sons, Mr. Jack McEathron, Anson, and Mr. Lincoln McEathron, Campbellford, last week.

Messrs. Roy Thrasher, John Bethel W.A. and Mrs. Thomas Gregan, George Weaver, Ralph Jeffs and Ross Jeffs spent Friday at Consecon on business.

Mrs. William Morris of Carmel, visited Mrs. D. Ulman in the village on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Everett Grills, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Grills and Mrs. Louise Anderson of Carmel community, spent the week-end at Lindsay Falls. Mr. E. Grills and Mrs. A. E. Baker each celebrated a birthday on Tuesday, March 29th.

Mrs. Roy Thrasher visited Mrs. Paul Sharp on Friday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Claude Tucker were entertained Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Caskey, Frankford.

Two Injured As Car Hits Hydro Pole

CAMPBELLFORD

CAMPBELLFORD — Two men were injured here on Tuesday afternoon when their car went off the road and struck a hydro pole on Bridge St., West.

Edward Trembly, 43, of RR 4, Campbellford, was driving a car registered in the name of his wife, Dorothy. As he rounded a curve on Bridge Street, and was proceeding south, the right wheels of his car dropped off the pavement. He lost control of the car and it struck a hydro pole, doing damage to the front end of the vehicle, estimated at about $300.

Trembly received a bump on the head and a scrape on the right arm. A passenger in the car, Ellis Hoard, of 217 Front St., Campbellford, received head and body bruises, lacerations and concussion. He was taken to Campbellford Memorial Hospital, where his condition is reported as satisfactory.

Chief Constable George Rose of Campbellford investigated.

6th Tyendinaga

6TH TYENDINAGA — Mrs. C. Goodman and Masters Bill and Johnny Phillips, Belleville, spent the supper hour on Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Alton Goodman and boys.

Mr. A. Boldrick, Mrs. J. Boldrick, also Miss Beaula Boldrick called on Mr. George Boldrick, Thomasburg, Sunday afternoon.

A good number enjoyed a euchre party in the school Wednesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Lorne McKenzie spent the dinner hour on Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Perrill, Consecon, and the supper hour with Mr. and Mrs. Percy Ashbury of Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Alton Goodman and boys called on Mr. and Mrs. J. Emerson, Second Line, one evening recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Treverton and Clare were Saturday supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Skelly.

Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Bird and boys, Belleville, spent a day recently with Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Boldrick.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Skelly and David were Monday evening visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Treverton.

New Church Chancel Dedicated

Parishioners of Holloway Street United Church this week dedicated the new chancel of their church, pictured above. The chancel, of a smooth, modern design, is made throughout of oak and embodies the four symbols of the United Church on its front panelling. It is the work of Ole Jonassen, architect and builder of Sydenham, Ont. In the foreground is the church's new communion table which will be dedicated next Sunday by pastor Rev. Sidney Larman and his congregation.

Work in Africa Told by Word And Picture

On Tuesday evening South Hastings district Young People assembled at Bridge St. Church to hear a messages from the Rev. Merrill Ferguson, a missionary from Angola, Africa.

The worship service, which was conducted by George Frost, convener of Missions and World Outreach Commission, and Reta Christie, president, was opened with the singing of the hymn, "Thou Whose Almighty Word." The Scripture lesson was taken from II Corinthians 4: 1-6 and Matthew 5: 13-16 and read by George Frost.

"Let There Be Light" was the theme of the meditation which was given by Reta Christie and followed by prayer led by George Frost.

At this time, a quartet, Marlene Moorcroft, Marlene Carlisle, Boyd Moorcroft and Grant Richardson favored with the singing of "Wailing on Jesus."

Reta Christie brought greetings to the young people and introduced them to Mr. Ferguson.

An offering was taken which was to be given to Mr. Ferguson in the furthering of his work in Africa.

WORK IN AFRICA

Mr. Ferguson gave an interesting talk on his work in Africa, which is the training of laymen, who will in turn minister unto the natives.

Following his address Mr. Ferguson showed colored pictures which gave a greater understanding of Africa and its inhabitants.

George Frost expressed appreciation to Mr. Ferguson for his interesting and informative talk.

A sing-song, under the leadership of Mrs. Irene Hagerman, gave the evening a more informal air and a social hour was enjoyed while coffee and doughnuts were served.

White Cane Club Marks 5th Anniversary

This week some 60 members and guests of the White Cane Club celebrated the fifth anniversary of the club at the YMCA.

The guest speaker for the evening, the Rev. J. A. Buckley, of St. Joseph's, Belleville, used as his text, "Five Windows of the Soul."

Entertainment was provided by the Manhattan Minstrels, a minstrel act from Kingston, introduced by field secretary of the club, P. J. Timmins.

Following the banquet the guests were introduced, among them a strong representation from the Kingston Friendship Club.

Service clubs in the city were represented by the following: Mrs. Lang (Rinettes); Mrs. Calbury (Women of the Moose); D. Diamantides (YMCA); Fred Adsett (Rotary); Stu Dixon (Lions); T. Hutchinson (Y's Men); Mrs. Weir. (Y's Menettes)..Don Thomas (Kinsmen).

The Kinettes, Rotary and Moose Clubs received special thanks for their assistance to the club. Centre of attraction at the banquet was a huge birthday cake, marking the spirit of the occasion.

Guests were welcomed by Clarence Morris, while the guest speaker was thanked by Bob Patton, Kingston.

Wife Preservers

A new mixing bowl with a scalloped rim is the second adaptation that bowls by millions of polyethylene plastic. Its thick, sturdy and light weight are an aid in mixing batters, cakes, cookies, etc. By simply pouring in the rim of the bowl a handy pour-by spout can be formed anywhere on the rim.

Woman Loves "Breaking In" Wild Horses

WILLIAMS LAKE, B.C. (CP)—The nearest dress is in a store window 156 miles away and the party line means a 26-mile jaunt, but Gerry Bracewell couldn't care less.

Gerry's husband owns the 2,000-acre Circle X ranch in the Chilcotin country.

While women are scarce in that part of B.C., it's even more surprising to find one who's been a licensed big game guide for six years.

She bakes bread and churns butter, writes the local news for the Williams Lake Tribune, and her goal in life it to make good citizens of her two young sons.

BREAKS HORSES

But Gerry also dopes, brands, feeds and herds cattle. She loves "breaking in" wild horses. She's at home in the saddle and is the self-appointed veterinarian of the sprawling ranch.

Gerry learned much about ranch life through expert guidance, but some of it was trial and error.

She recalls the day she spotted a bear in a swamp and levelled her 30-30 rifle at the animal without dismounting.

She was leading another horse and as the frightened beast spun around, the rope completely encircled her.

"I sure did some tall talking that day. It's a good thing I can talk to a horse. The animals finally quieted down. They would have cut me in two."

17-DAY TRIP

At one stage, Gerry went 12 years without seeing a single cattle drive to Williams Lake. One year she, another girl and a chuckwagon bost drove 80 head of cattle 17 days over the trail from Tatlayoko to Williams Lake.

On one drive, her seven-months-old baby, complete with formula and diapers, made the trip beside her in the chuckwagon.

When she first began guiding, hunters were doubtful about going out with a woman. But any doubts were usually dispelled by their share of trophies. And her "no drinking while hunting" edict won respect.

Should things get dull, Gerry has her official weather reports to mail in for the Tatlayoko district. She can look forward to her annual trip, via horseback and snowshoe, to the highest peak in the area—to measure depth and density of the snowpack.

Women's Institute

HILLIER W. I.

3rd of Hillier — The Hillier Institute was entertained on Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Charles Benway.

The president, Mrs. Delbert Boyle was in the chair. Mrs. Sherman Foster, secretary-treasurer, read the minutes of the last meeting. Business and bills were attended to. Plans were made to pack a box of used clothing for overseas to be packed at Hillier school. Several of the schools, Cold Creek, Hillier and Niles Corners, had been gathering the clothing in their districts.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Francis Loundsberry, of Cold Creek, on April 15th, in the evening.

Mrs. Walter Forsythe played for the singing.

Mrs. Wesley Wright, Mrs. Will Dainard and Mrs. F. Loundsberry helped serve refreshments.

PARK DALE W. I.

The Park Dale Women's Institute held its March meeting at the home of Mrs. D. Burley. There was a good attendance with four visitors present. The meeting was opened in the usual way.

Mrs. Salmon gave a few briefs of the conference held last year in Guelph. It was decided to send the president to the conference May 12-13th of this year.

Mrs. V. Elliott, the district president, gave an inspiring address on the "Aims of the Institute."

Mrs. E. Gray, convener, took charge of the program. The motto, "Don't be a Green Eyed Monster," was prepared and read by Mrs. N. McKibbon. A few Irish songs were sung.

Mrs. N. Bazuk read the current events. Mrs. A. Reid conducted three Irish contests which were won by Mrs. Salmon, Mrs. R. Bland and Mrs. N. McKibbon.

Refreshments were served and a social half hour enjoyed.

WOOL IS VITAL

TORONTO (CP)—The wool industry is becoming of vital importance to Canada, G. E. O'Brien, general manager of the Canadian Wool Growers' Co-operative, said Thursday. Addressing the annual meeting, he said that despite the growing competition from synthetic fabrics, many leaders in the textile trade have reported a return to wool.

21 Children Born to Couple In Alberta

BROOKS, Alta. (CP)—Mrs S.B. Hemsing of nearby Rolling Hills recently gave birth to her 21st child at the local municipal hospital. Twenty sons and daughters are living. The oldest is 22-year-old Dorothy, a secretary at the Pondka Hospital.

The mother wants to name the latest addition Bernard but Mr. Hemsing is not so sure that he wants the name applied to his youngest son, even though it's his own second name. Before making a decision he wishes to consult his family.

The second oldest child, Arnold, is an oil rig worker near Edmonton. The rest are living at home.

There are 10 boys and 10 girls, including three sets of twins—a boy and girl in each—aged 3 years, 4 years and 52 years.

Mr. and Mrs. Hemsing came to the Rolling Hills district from Divide, Sask., in 1939, and operate a 400-acre irrigated farm.

Feeding such a large family taxes the resources of the farm. Besides the meat produced, four cows provide milk. Mrs. Hemsing is kept busy baking bread—35 to 40 loaves at a time. She churns butter twice a week, gathers eggs, and cans vegetables from a large garden.

NBC SIGNS COMO

NEW YORK (AP)—Singing star Perry Como of CBS radio and television has been signed to a 15-year contract by NBC, his agent and NBC said Thursday. Terms were not announced.

Women's Activities

BETHEL-ZION W. I.

The regular meeting of Bethel-Zion Women's Institute was held at Maple Leaf school with an attendance of 12 members.

The president, Mrs. Morden Brough presided and opened the meeting. It was decided to send a donation to Ceylon and one to the A.C.C.W.W.

Mrs. Percy Ray and Mrs. Gordon Ray were appointed to buy dishes and silverware for the Institute. Plans were also made for a banquet for the Bethel-Zion hockey team on April 14th.

Mrs. Earle Ray and Mrs. Gordon Ray were appointed to buy a stove or to see about heating the hall. Mrs. Floyd Ray and Miss Helen Tummon were appointed to look after the program for the banquet.

Mrs. C. Cronkright read the slate of officers for the coming year.

Mrs. Gordon Kennedy, convener for "Community Activities and Public Relations", took charge of the program and gave a paper, "Neighbors Across the Street," and a reading, "A New Neighbor." Mrs. Bryant Casey gave a St. Patrick's reading followed by a solo by Mrs. Floyd Ray. Mrs. Percy Ray also gave a reading on "Human Relations," taken from the Home and Country. After the meeting closed a social half hour followed.

Odd Fellows B.L. Sponsors Euchre Party

A pleasant evening was spent Wednesday when the Odd Fellows Bowling League sponsored a euchre party at the Odd Fellows Hall, Front Street.

Those winning prizes included: ladies, Mrs. Bernice Prindle, Mrs. W. Hull; consolation, Miss Susan Fry; men's, John Preston and W. Winn; consolation, Miss Ila Addy.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

NOT BLACK DRESS FOR BRIDE'S MOTHER

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My daughter is to be married soon, and I have a serious dress problem. I am a very large woman, and I do not feel comfortable in any color but black. Would it be at all right for me to wear a black dress trimmed with pink at my daughter's church wedding?—Mother

I wish I could comfort you by telling you that it would be proper for you to wear a black dress at your daughter's church wedding. But the rule is, and quite understandably, that the bride's mother should not wear a black dress, and I'm sure you would want to avoid any criticism or comment. However, many a bride's mother has solved this problem by wearing a dress of rich dark blue (no attractive and so becoming to practically all women, large or small), and really very nearly as "dark" as black.

I am quite sure you will feel just as comfortable in this dark blue shade, and you will feel more assured when you know you are wearing a correct shade. And you can so charmingly lighten this shade with interesting, bright accessories.

MINISTER'S NAME ON WEDDING INVITATIONS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Our daughter is to marry a minister. We want to be absolutely sure that the invitation reads correctly. And tell us, please, where the man's name is mentioned. Should the line read "to the Reverend—" or—M.

This is the correct form:

Mr. and Mrs. Robert John Allen request the honour of your presence at the marriage of their daughter Helena

The Reverend Peter Clark Ames on Tuesday, the seventh of June at four o'clock

Park Church

Haven, New York

Note-1: The "to" should be eliminated as a separate line. Also The before Reverend should be capitalized, as indicated: The Reverend.

Note 2: Although in your letter you used the initial for your husband's middle name, this name should be given in full in the invitation.

SEATING HER HUSBAND AND SON

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My daughter by my first marriage is to have a church wedding soon. I know that the bride's mother is supposed to go up the aisle last, just before the processional begins. But how do we arrange for the seating of a husband and son (he is not giving the bride away) and of my 3-year-old son?—Bride's Mother

Your husband and your young son would be escorted up the aisle by an usher (to their seats in the first pew on the left of the aisle), between ten minutes and five minutes before you are escorted up the aisle, to your place with them in the first pew on the left of the aisle.

DON'T TIP STEWARDESS OR STEWARD

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I'm soon to take my first trip in a commercial airplane. I've been told that I should not tip the stewardess or steward. True?—S.N.B.

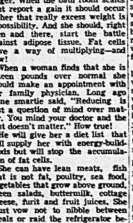
True. No member of the personnel of an airplane is ever tipped. Neither do you tip the driver of the airline bus, which takes passengers from the terminal to the airport. There is usually a fee for this trip, but you give only the fee, no tip.

Beauty

By HELEN JAMIESON

CLOSE FIGURING

The harshest moment for any woman to face is that one when she must finally confess that she is much to curvesome and that she wasn't fooling anybody but herself when she said that "a few pounds don't make any difference" and, anyhow, as she "feels perfectly marvelous," why should she start on the dreary project of reducing?



So why not face the facts in the beginning? A woman cannot help but be aware of the fact that she is gaining weight when every so often she has to buy frocks a size larger. When the bath room scales first report a gain it should occur to her that really severe weight is a possibility. And she should, right then and there, start the battle against additional tissue. Fat cells have a way of multiplying—and how!

When a woman finds that she is fifteen pounds over normal she should make an appointment with her family physician. Long ago some amateur said, "Reducing is just a question of mind over matter. You mind your stomach and the rest doesn't matter." How true!

He will give her a diet list that will supply her with energy-building foods but will stop the accumulation of fat cells.

She can have lean meats, fish that is not fat, poultry, sea food, vegetables that grow above ground, green salads, buttermilk, cottage cheese, fruit and fruit juices. She must vow not to nibble between meals or raid the refrigerator before she goes to bed.

There is only one cause of obesity and that is overeating. If the hearty eater engages in considerable muscular activity she will burn up the calories; otherwise they will be stored away to form the unpretty bulges that ruin the figure.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

ONLY FRANKNESS CAN RESTORE THIS FRIENDSHIP

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My boy friend and I broke up about a year ago.

He has some friends who are neighbors of my family's, and among them is a certain lady who doesn't like my parents and myself. She told some terrible tales to other neighbors, and they repeated them to my ex-boy friend.

One night my ex-boy friend and his friends were talking and I overheard part of their conversation. Something my ex-boy friend said gave me a sudden feeling that the world had tumbled out from under me, and after that I suffered dreadfully, lost my appetite and a lot of weight.

Now this ex-boy friend wants to go with me again, and says he still loves me. But should I ever forget the remark I heard him make that night, I don't think I could ever go back to him.

What do you think I should do? I have known this boy for a good many years and still care for him, and he was always kind to me up until I broke with him. But since then, he has been very unkind. Do you think I should drop him a note, tell him about the incident and ask for an apology, or just try and forget it and him also?—Sad Heart.

Dear B.H.:

If he had told me why you and this boy broke up in the first place, and also given me some idea of how much overheard in him, I could upset you so, it would be easier for me to advise you. Knowing neither of these things, however, all I can say is that I shouldn't think you would care to renew your friendship with a boy who, you feel, has been so unkind to you. Surely there must be other boys around who would be more satisfactory as friends.

However, if you feel you would like to pick up your old friendship with him, as your letter seems to suggest, and if, as you say, he wants to do the same, then certainly should be very frank and honest with him. Tell him just how you feel, and give him an opportunity to explain things and set them straight, if it is possible to do so.

HOW CAN SHE GET ACQUAINTED WITH THE BOY SHE LIKES?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

There is a boy at school of whom I am very fond. He always speaks to me when we see each other, and he's always very friendly. When I first met him, we were both going steady, but now we are both free, and I would like to go with him. I don't know, though, if he feels the same way about me, although he always has a smile and something nice to say to me.

How can I get him to like me enough to ask me for a date. Please don't tell me to give a party and invite him, because I have tried that, but he won't mingle, and that is the only time I can give a party or have any entertainment at my home.—T.

Dear T.:

Surely this boy doesn't work seven nights a week, does he? He must have at least one night a week off.

Sometime when you meet him in the hall at school, why don't you just stop a moment and say, in a nice, easy way, that you're planning a party to which you'd like him to come; that you know he has a night job and you want to have the party when he has an evening off, so will he tell you what his free evenings are? If you don't make a big thing of it, but just let it come along as a part of a casual conversation, the boy will probably be pleased that you would like to have him come to your party, and at the same time you won't seem to be centering the whole thing on him.

See how smart you can be about this. It will give you good practice in social grace.

Lasting Luxury

By ALICE ALDEN

Black and white is an old favorite, as we all know. In the same key, but just a bit different is white combined with very dark brown. For a nice expression of this color scheme we refer you to this divine little capelet, good for resort wear, for cruise wear, for town wear right into the summer—therefore a practical luxury according to feminine logic. The very dark ranch mink bordering the elegantly simple white ermine capelet finished at the front with a cluster of ranch mink tails.

Readers' Friday Column

As Conducted by Mary Moore

April fool note: When we were young an old gag in our house on the morning of April 1st was to call mother to the window "to see the canary". When time passed and I became the fall guy I would dutifully stick my head out of the window, the kids would shout April Fool, I'd chase them, they'd run and that was that. Last year things were different. Marianne happened to be having a day off and just for fun went through the bird routine. But that time there was a bird — a cardinal — and she was the one who was fooled.

Question: I would like to make cakes and cookies using entirely whole wheat flour as a true health measure in our eating, we just want plain good wholesome eating . . . could you give us some recipes . . . also recipe for making cottage cheese cake? — Mrs. Mabel K.

Answer: With great pleasure, Mabel, I have mailed you my recipe for whole wheat bread. The texture of cakes becomes very different when whole wheat flour is used alone. Try first this

WHOLESOME CAKE

Measure 1 cup sifted white flour and put in a sifter, add 3/4 cup unsifted whole wheat flour and sift together with 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1/2 teaspoon salt. The larger grains of whole wheat should be tipped out of sifter into the dry mix. In mixing bowl cream until very light 1-3 cup soft butter or best quality shortening and cream into it 2/3 cup sugar until very light. Beat in 1 egg. Add alternately 1 cup milk and the dry ingredients, stirring barely enough to mix. Add 1-2 cup plump raisins or chopped dates and 1 teaspoon vanilla. Bake in paper-lined square pan at 375 deg. Fahr. about 40 minutes.

MATRIMONIAL SQUARES

(keep well)

One and one-half lbs. dates, 1 1/2 cups boiling water, grated rind of 1 medium lemon, juice of 1 lemon, 1 cup sifted pastry flour, 1 cup sifted whole wheat flour, 2 1/2 cups quick — cooking rolled oats, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1/2 teaspoon baking soda, 1/2 cup brown sugar, 1 cup shortening. Add water and lemon rind to dates and cook over low heat until thick, stirring frequently. Cool and add lemon juice. Sift into the mixing bowl the floors, salt, baking powder, soda and sugar. Tip whole wheat grains left in sifter into bowl. Add rolled oats. With pastry blender cut in fat as for tea biscuits. Spread one-half of this flour mixture in buttered pan 12 x 8 x 2 inches, pressing down firmly. Spread with cooled date mixture. Cover with remaining flour mixture, patting top to smooth. Brush over top 1 egg beaten with 2 tablespoons water (this prevents crumbling). Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 1 hour on centre rack in oven. Cool in pan. Cut into oblongs or squares.

Note: Use whole wheat flour in the recipes calling for flour but be sure to sift it — and for a starter only use half whole wheat flour and half white until you become accustomed to the different texture and flavor. Good luck to you. I have mailed recipe for cheese cake.

Question: I would like to have the dessert made with sherry and gelatine . . . is there a way of making macaroons using cocoa, almond paste or maybe cornflakes . . . I have two more cocoa on hand . . . M. A. McN.

Answer: Could the following be the sherry jelly you are referring to?:

SHERRY JELLY

Soak 2 tablespoons gelatin in 1/2 cup cold water 5 minutes, add 1 cup boiling water and stir to dissolve. Add 1/4 teaspoon salt, 1 cup sugar and stir to dissolve. Add 1 1/2 cups sherry or muscatel, juice of 1 large lemon and chill until partially congealed. Pour over 1 cup white seedless grapes and 1 1/2 cups sliced fresh peaches. Chill until firm. Serve with pouring or unsweetened whipped cream.

Most of the macaroons that are chocolate flavored call for cooking chocolate. Would you like to try.

COCOA DATE DROP COOKIES

Cream 1/2 cup shortening well with 3/4 cup sugar. Beat in 1 egg. Sift together 2 cups sifted flour, 2 tablespoons cocoa, and add alternately with 1/2 cup milk and 1 teaspoon vanilla. Stir in 3/4 cup chopped dates or 1 cup cocoanut. Drop by teaspoonfuls on buttered sheet and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. about 12 minutes.

HINTS FOR SAWING FIR PLYWOOD PANELS

Here are a few hints for easy sawing of fir plywood on do-it-yourself projects.

Cut plywood panels on a solid platform rather than between two sawhorses. Held on a firm base fir veneer cuts smoother, faster, with less chance of splintering the veneer.

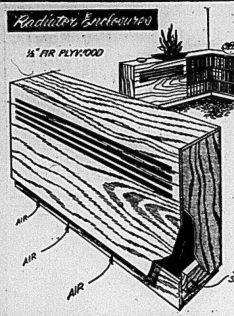
For handsaw work, panels are best cut face up with the angle between saw-teeth and panel surface as flat as possible.

To prevent back splintering, place a thin piece of scrap wood under the cut, hold the panel down firmly and cut through both the scrap and the plywood.

A 10-point sharp cross-cut handsaw generally gives excellent results. A sharp, fine-tooth coping saw cuts curves easily.

The best "trick-of-the-trade" in power sawing is to have a sharp saw.

For table power sawing, keep the fir plywood panel face up. A combination blade filed with less than normal hook is best. Set the blade to protrude no more than ½ inch through the panel. A large diameter circular saw (10 inches or more) generally gives best results.



For hand power sawing place the panel face down; the blade should protrude not more than ½ inch.

Full size fir plywood panels are most easily handled on a table extension that can be quickly put together using a panel as a top.

Storing of handy fir plywood panels for future use is no problem. Sheets should be stacked flat in a dry shelter. To retain a natural light finish they should be covered from sun and weather. Because the glueline of fir plywood is completely waterproof unsanded sheathing grades are often stored outdoors without protection.

A large number of fir plywood construction plans are available from your local lumber dealer. If you are thinking of panelling a room, remodelling the basement or attic, constructing extra storage space or built-ins either inside or out, your lumber dealer has a variety of helpful hints and plans on how to do it with fir plywood.

Radiator Enclosures

Ugly Radiators in Older Homes Given Smart Fir Plywood Cover

Ugly radiators stand like cast-iron skeletons in some of the finest of older Canadian homes — and like family skeletons they should be kept out of sight and out of mind.

Not that the bare metal bones of a radiator can be readily picked up and put out of the way at anything like reasonable cost. But attractive "closets" can be built around them at little expense by the home handyman.

With a dab of imagination, a few hours work and some fir plywood, the ugly radiator can blossom into a beautiful bookshelf or a handsome cabinet.

HIDDEN AWAY

Bachelors in rented quarters in older houses, young couple setting out to remodel an apartment and owners of fine old homes all will be satisfied with the ease with which they can conceal that unsightly radiator in the corner. They will be equally astonished at the effect of hiding the cast-iron monster away.

Not only will a properly designed radiator cover conceal an ugly fixture, but it can actually help heat the room more efficiently by concentrating and directing the heat into the room.

The cover should be constructed to give minimum interference to the flow of air over the radiator. The iron monsters must "breathe" and provision for its breathing is essential, especially at the floor and near the top.

Heating efficiency can be increased if a shield of aluminum foil is attached to a fir plywood panel and placed on the wall at the back of the radiator. This reduces heat loss through the wall and actually directs heat out into the room.

Simplest concealment for a radiator is a three-sided cover made from fir plywood that acts as a "closet" for the ugly skeleton, but is at the same time a handsome addition to the room. Built for easy removal for dusting it can be painted to match the walls or finished to take advantage of the natural beauty of the grain.

This cover can be made readily of fir plywood. Ends, front and top can be attached with screws or finishing nails. The front panel is open at the bottom so that a kick-back not only prevents scuffing but also permits air to flow from the floor around the radiator.

KICK-BACK

The kick-back fits in neatly with adjoining built-ins and makes cleaning easier as dust is prevented from getting in under the radiator. Ventilator holes can be cut with a brace-and-bit and keyhole saw. A metal or wooden grill could be purchased and fixed in place of the ventilator openings if a more finished job were desired.

With imagination and a little more work this haste three-sided cover can be readily extended into a variety of combinations of selves, cabinets, book shelves, drawers and other storage units.

Impatience Is Big Enemy Of the Home Handyman

By ANDREW C. LANG

What's the difference between a finished product turned out by a home handyman and a similar job completed by a professional? Why does one often have a "home-made" look and the other a "finished" look?

The answer to both those questions is, of course, experience. On the surface, that would seem to indicate that the amateur do-it-yourselfer can never hope to achieve the perfection of the professional until he acquires the necessary experience.

But, like that much-sung tune from "Porgy and Bess"—it ain't necessarily so.

Modern tools and modern materials have brought the amateur and the professional much closer together in working skills than before manufacturers began entering to the fix it-make it trade. The chief reason why the home workman doesn't always get first-class results is that he refuses to take his time. Once he starts a project, he wants to see it finished.

The professional, with that all-important experience as his guide, moves along smoothly and easily from step to step. The amateur does not have that experience—but can effectively balance it merely by taking more time to do the job. Fundamental as that seems, it is a fact that the term usually takes less time to do something rather than more time.

This great enemy of the home handyman—impatience — shows itself in many ways.

It's there when he omits putting on a coat of sealer even though he has been instructed to do so.

It's there when he neglects the sanding operation between the coats of glossy finishing materials.

It's there when he doesn't bother to drill pilot holes for the screws.

It's there when he makes a wood joint which isn't "just right" and decides that it will do, even though an extra few minutes would enable him to make it perfect.

It's there when he doesn't give contact cement sufficient time to dry before bonding plastic laminate to wood.

And on . . . and on . . . and on.

POWER TOOLS MISUSED

The peculiar angle to this "hurry, hurry" complex is that the unskilled worker of today is able—even when he takes his time—to complete a job much faster than the professional of yesterday. With power tools he can saw wood, make joints, drill holes, sand and do everything else in far less time than when all such operations had to be done by hand. Better yet, he can attain a degree of accuracy never before possible except by the most expert craftsmen. This accuracy is achieved, however, only when the do-it-yourselfer is willing to take the little extra time necessary to make the proper adjustments . . . some of which consist merely of turning knobs or moving levers.

Like the golf duffer who makes his backswing too rapidly because he cannot wait to hit the ball, the impatient handyman plunges into a project with insufficient preparation because he cannot wait until the idea becomes a reality.

The best advice for the handyman is the same as the oft-repeated advice to the golf duffer: "Take it Easy."

If your windows are hard to curtain why not make a neat frame for them out of fir plywood covered with fabric? Cut the valances to fit, cover them with suitably patterned fabric and you'll have an attractive finish for those bare-looking windows.

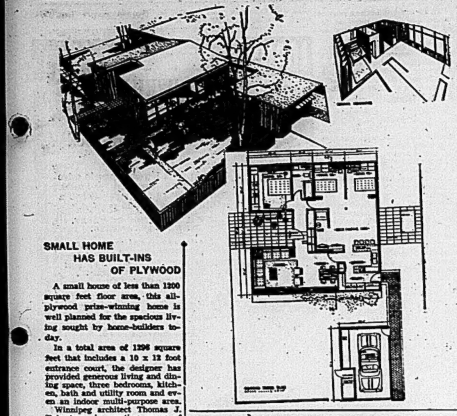
NHA SMALL HOUSE DESIGNS — Architect A. McPhalen, of Ottawa, has used every foot of available floor space to best advantage in the design of this new three-bedroom bungalow. A planting area and an attractive window arrangement give a pleasing appearance to the exterior.

The L-shaped living and dining area has large windows at either end and one unbroken wall which permits convenient furniture arrangement. Plenty of cupboard space is provided in the well-arranged and brightly-lighted kitchen. The three bedrooms also have good closet space and a large linen closet is another storage feature.



The floor area of this house is 923 square feet and the cubic measurement is 16,452 cubic feet. The exterior dimensions are 24 feet by 28 feet 6 inches and the height from grade to the top of the ridge 20ft. are available at minimum cost from Houston's.

SMALL HOME HAS BUILT-INS OF PLYWOOD

A small house of less than 1200 square feet floor area, this all-plywood prize-winning home is well planned for the spacious living sought by home-builders today.

In a total area of 1296 square feet that includes a 10 x 12 foot entrance court, the designer has provided generous living and dining space, three bedrooms, kitchen, bath and utility room and even an indoor multi-purpose area.

Winnipeg architect Thomas J. Robertson, in meeting many of the specific space problems of the small home, won a mention award with this plan in a national home design contest for architects sponsored by the Plywood Manufacturers Association of British Columbia.

SPACIOUS FEELING

The efficient plan plus extensive and imaginative use of space-saving fir plywood built-ins results in a feeling of spaciousness especially when the design brings outdoor living areas into the home.

The modern home with no basement and no attic to serve as a catchall for miscellaneous storage puts a premium on built-in storage space. No shortage of storage space exists in this compact home. Spacious built-in closets, cupboards, shelves, desks, vanity tables and the like are liberally scattered throughout. Made of fir plywood they are as contemporary as today's furniture in design and as practical as filing cabinets.

A multi-purpose room that opens onto a flagged terrace and outdoor sand-box play area for the children is an unusual and very practical feature of this interesting home plan.

HANDY WORKBENCH

Primarily a children's play room that motors can supervise from the kitchen, the spacious area also includes a handy workbench with overhead cupboards for father and a food bar for casual family meals. The room is separated from the kitchen by cupboards over the pass-through to the bar. These cupboards are part of the efficient built-in kitchen – utility room combination that utilizes every inch of working space.

The complete utilization of space is carried out in every room. For convenience, all units for storage of personal clothing are designed on a 2-foot module and may be grouped in any desired number or combination of drawer and door storage according to individual needs.

Installed in the master bedroom and in each of the children's rooms, clothing storage is provided for in the hall as well where a three-unit fir plywood section for outdoor garments is located facing the main entry. One entire wall of the main bedroom is a storage wall with six 2-foot square built-ins arranged so that father and mother each has a set of three cabinets with drawers and roomy hanger space.

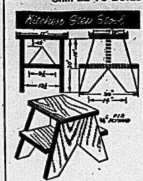
GARAGE STORAGE

Other built-ins featured in the Robertson plan include smart, modern vanity tables, writing desks, living room lounge and handsome bookstorage unit that extends a full 24 feet along one side of the living – dining area. Folding plywood doors close off the children's bedroom. Even the 14 x 20 foot garage is complete with a fir plywood storage unit where garden furniture and tools are kept when not in use.

Waterproof glue fir plywood, equally suitable for outdoor or indoor use, has been specified for both exterior and interior finish of this distinctive dry-built 36 x 61 square home. Careful choice of color and variations of solid and rub-down paint finishes supply the necessary decorative contrasts.

Shingles and shakes can be applied with excellent results over 5/16 inch fir plywood roof sheathing with nails normally used for finishing a roof.

Build It Yourself



Constantly rising costs have led builders and "do-it-yourself" enthusiasts to explore every means of reducing investment in both construction and repairs. And, so far as exterior and interior construction are concerned, the use of hardboard—a by-product of the newsprint industry — has furnished the ideal solution to many a problem.

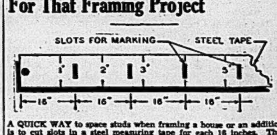
Hardboard has become a sensationally popular building material throughout Canada and over much of the United States because of its flexibility in use, its economy in cost, and the ease with which it can be applied and worked. It is a fibre product of exceptional strength yet it can be sawn, planed, applied and finished with ease by stalks. In fact, as a working material both for the professional and the amateur builder, it equals lumber for general use and has a number of particular advantages.

Among the available grades of Abitibi hardboard an exclusive feature is Woodgrain finish. The manufacturers have contrived to place on standard hardboard, a rich, fancy, fiddleback finish so that the board can be used for interior panelling with striking effects, while retaining all the advantages of the standard wallboard.

Abitibi hardboard is being used all over the country, in its various grades, for the exteriors of cottages, garage, small farm buildings, etc. Inside, it is ideal for shower cabinets, built-in furniture, kitchen counter tops, partitions and ceilings, panelling, etc. It has become the most popular medium for fixing up attics, rumpus rooms, kitchens, bathrooms.

KITCHEN FOOT STOOL OF FIR PLYWOOD SIMPLE TO BUILD

This handy little kitchen item will get you a couple of quick steps up in the world and into more high places than you'd think possible.



If you are a housewife who's short on height and have a kitchen lined with those big, roomy cupboards built on glantess proportions, this simple step-stool will put you on even footing.

It will also be handy hanging wash on the line less of a strain and cleaning of high places easier. The fact that junior might find the cookie-jar handier to reach with one around shouldn't deter you from having the man of the house make one for you.

The step-stool shown here is made of ¾-inch fir plywood and its rugged construction is planned for plenty of ups and downs over the years.

Quickly cut from one panel to the dimensions as shown, the parts can be fitted and nailed in an evening.

Here's a Time-Saving Tip For That Framing Project

A QUICK WAY to space studs when framing a house or an addition is to cut slots in a steel measuring tape for each 16 inches. This is the standard spacing for such structural members—16 inches on their centers. You can make a pencil mark through each slot while the tape rests on the work. This is a tip from the idea pool of the American Builder, trade publication of house builders.

DOOR FACE LIFTING WITH FIR PLYWOOD WILL DO WONDERS

When you're remodelling that older house or apartment paint will do wonders but it won't do much for doors. It takes a face-lifting with fir plywood to hide those heavy lines that betray age.

Fortunately, the face-lifting is not a major operation. Practically any door can have old-fashioned mouldings and panel designs brought up to date. The procedure is simple, inexpensive and the unskilled handyman can turn out a professional-looking door.

FIRST STEP

The first step is to have two sheets of ¼-inch fir plywood cut to the exact size of the door. The grade should have one good side sanded ready for finishing. The easiest working procedure is to remove the door from its hinges but remodelling can be done on some doors while they are hung. Before taking it from the hinges, remove the handles and the plates behind them. If the door has heavy molding around inset panels, lift off the molding with a chisel.

A hole should be carefully bored so the door-knob shaft can be passed through the plywood panel exactly. The fir plywood sheet is actually fixed in place with glue and nailed securely. Edges, of course, must be a perfect fit. Finishing nails should be countersunk and the holes filled.

When rehanging the door it will be necessary to move the stop of the door jamb back one-half inch to bring the door flush. In this case the hinges will have to be moved one-quarter inch as well. If the door jamb is nailed in one piece it will be necessary to recess the hinge-edge of the door for clearance.

To bring the job right up to date the old-fashioned knobs and plates can be replaced with new knobs and small circular plates of brass.

Five Candidates Admitted To I. O. O. F. Lodge

TWEED — On Monday evening Tweed I.O.O.F. No. 290 was host to degree captain Bro. Harold Brand and 35 members of his third degree team from Centre Hastings Lodge No. 10, Kingston.

The candidates of the third degree were conferred on five candidates of Tweed Lodge in a most capable manner.

Greetings were extended to Tweed Lodge by the Grand Marshal of the Grand Lodge of Ontario, Bro. Russell Galbraith, who also extended best wishes from the Grand Master, Bro. Newton Foster, who was unable to be present. Best wishes were also extended from District Deputy Grand Master Bro. Bert Keenan of District No. 49, Kingston.

Other members who spoke briefly were Noble Grand, Bro. Douglas Downey, and Vice Grand Bro. Donald Lane, of Kingston Lodge.

Expressions of welcome and congratulations were extended to Kingston degree team by Acting Noble Grand Bro. Earl Graham and Bro. Wm. J. Woods.

The candidates expressed their pleasure at being received into Tweed Lodge of Odd Fellows.

A chicken banquet was enjoyed at the close of the evening.

Johnstown

JOHNSTOWN — Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Curtis entertained their friends, Mr. and Mrs. George Biggs and son, of Brooklyn, on Sunday.

Mr. Winfield Harder spent some time in Trenton Memorial Hospital recently.

Mrs. Alec Vandervoort is spending a week or so in Kingston.

That would give Canada a record GNP of at least $25,000,000,000, widening the field of potential tax yields and giving Mr. Harris a lot of elbow room in planning tax changes and reductions.

The previous GNP high was $24,400,000,000 in 1953. It dropped last year mostly because of a prairie crop failure.

In all likelihood Mr. Harris will be trying for a balanced budget in 1955-56, though it appears possible that if economic forecasts do not hold true he will have another deficit.

Despite rosy predictions for 1955, there still is considerable unemployment in Canada. The feeling among those assisting in preparation of the budget is that the best way limited tax cuts can aid in stimulating the economy and increasing employment is to encourage greater purchases of factory goods.

Helping to stimulate sales, too—they believe—would be reductions in existing excise taxes. There has been speculation that Mr. Harris will reduce by one-third the 15-per-cent levy on automobiles and that there will be other cuts in the 10-per-cent levy on tires and tubes and other items.

Scoharie

SCOHARIE — Mr. Finley Hennessy and son, Elwood, who are working in Toronto, spent the week-end at home with Mrs. Hennessy, Ronald and Paul.

Sincere sympathy is extended to John and Wendell Leavitt in the passing of their grandmother, Mrs. John G. Leavitt. Mrs. Leavitt was a resident here at one time. Mr. and Mrs. John Leavitt, Mrs. Charles Leavitt and Wendell and Mr. and Mrs. Norman Leavitt attended the funeral service at A. M. Palmatier Funeral Home, Picton, on Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Leavitt spent a couple of days in Toronto and attended the Sportsman's Show.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill McGee were Tuesday evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. Foster Jackson, West Lake.

Gunner and Mrs. Lynch and small son are occupying Finley Hennessy's house vacated by Mr. and Mrs. Thele. All welcome Mr. and Mrs. Lynch to the community.

HOUSE APPROVES

The allowances are paid to some 42,000 persons, mostly veterans of the First World War.

All three opposition groups supported the Canadian Legion's request for ceilings of $1,200 and $2,000 for single and married veterans, respectively.

Colin Bennett, parliamentary assistant to Veterans Minister Lapointe, said that despite opposition statements veterans will be pleased with the increases.

It was easier to make speeches asking for increases than to defend the income ceilings decided on by the government. Whatever the ceiling, there would be instances of hardship and inequity.

Raising the ceilings would not help the 20,640 recipients who received no other income. Helping such veterans was the main purpose of the act.

LIBERAL REPLY

"We are just as interested in the older veteran as the people who have spoken on the other (opposition) side," he declared.

Sybil Bennett (PC—Halton) said that, in view of the treatment given veterans, if she were a young man she would give long consideration before offering her services to her country.

She said it is outrageous that when allowance recipients reach the age of 70 their $40 monthly old age pension is counted in the means test with a consequent lowering of the allowances.

"There are millionaires running around this country receiving the old age pension. Is anything deducted from them? Not a cent."

Mr. Bennett noted that the war veterans allowance is, in effect, a pension granted as an earlier age in view of the effects of war service. To pay a full allowance after the age of 70 would be duplication.

STEADY IMPROVEMENTS

He added that although there have been steady improvements over the years of Liberal administration since 1935, there had been no changes in the allowance under the Conservative government of the late prime minister R. B. Bennett from 1930-35.

He said Miss Bennett apparently is taking more interest in old veterans' welfare than did the namesake of both her and himself.

(Miss Bennett is a distant relative of the former prime minister.)

H. W. Herridge (CCF—Kootenay West) said the opposition's requests could be paid for by only a fraction of the planned $132,000,000 cut in defence spending. If next Tuesday night's budget showed there was truth in rumors of a cut in corporation taxes, it would prove the government was more considerate of large corporations than of needy veterans.

John Blackmore (SC — Lethbridge) said that if veterans had haggled with Canada in time of crisis as the government was haggling with them now "this country the German empire long, long would have been ticked away in ages."

Legislature Prorogues Without Announcing Date of Election; Many Important Bills Passed

TORONTO (CP)—The fifth session of the 24th Ontario legislature ended Thursday without announcement of the date of the next provincial general election.

As governors headed back to their ridings the speculation on a vote continued. The dates favored by members and observers have been June or the fall although the legislature's five-year term is not finished until November, 1956.

The prorogation speech, prepared by Premier Frost and his cabinet and read by Lieutenant-Governor Louis D. Breithaupt, made no mention of an election.

The 2,000-word speech dealt with legislation resulting from the 38-day session and complimented the legislature for "able and conscientious attention" to matters introduced for its consideration.

EXPANSION NEEDED

It said the province's growing population requires expansion of highways, municipal roads, waterworks, sewers, hospitals, schools, university buildings, flood control, conservation and public works of all kinds.

The development program approved by the legislature was unparalleled in the province's history, the speech said. It termed the province's record industrial investment program as being designed to increase productive assets, create employment opportunities and bolster income.

It made no reference to the subject of highways irregularities, which caused a number of heated words during the session, nor did it mention the status of the province's farm-assessment plan.

The hog-marketed scheme in the province has been challenged as being unconstitutional by a farmer in the Scheringville area near Stratford and the court case is still pending. It is not known what effect it will have on the over-all marketing legislation.

However, the speech said important amendments to the Farm Marketing Act would give farmers a direct voice in dealing with buyers in the marketing of their produce.

Rural areas would have extended and improved telephone service through extended operations of the Ontario Telephone Development Corporation.

The speech said progress has been made in ensuring the preservation of existing provincial parks and in providing for establishment of new recreational areas. Forestry and fish and game resources would be safeguarded by bills introduced during the current session.

Planning, conservation and housing measures had been brought up to date by revision of the Planning Act. Legislation affecting municipal boards' would have more flexibility of operation.

The efficiency of the jury system in civil cases would be strengthened by increased and costs reduced because of amendments to the Jurors Act. The number of members was reduced to six from 12 and in grand juries to seven from 18.

It said important measures had been improved in the health field, including grants to hospitals, grants for research and treatment of cancer, mental patients, the Rh factor in pregnancy and maternal and child care.

Referring to education, it said appropriations for all educational purposes totalled more than $102,000,000 including grants to universities and other institutions. A $4,-a-pupil unconditional grant to municipalities and school boards was pointed out.

It said needs of municipalities for Trans-Canada Conditional and pera capita grants had been increased and a new grant in the local system has been brought into operation under which, on the average, it cost only $1 a head by a municipality, was from provincial revenue.

The federal and provincial governments had agreed to pay 75 per cent of the cost of civil defence.

In the field of welfare, the Rehabilitation Services Act included integrate services offered by various departments. Assistance would be provided for those not covered by the Workmen's Compensation Act and veterans' pensions.

The Indian Welfare Act would extend mothers' allowances to Indians and authorize agreements with the federal government on child welfare and homes for the aged facilities and rehabilitation services for Indians.

Other acts would help to prevent husbands who deserted their wives and children from avoiding financial costs for maintaining them; provide for new highway restrictions for persons eligible for admission to homes for the aged; enable the provincial and federal governments to share expenses of allowances for disabled persons.

In a reference to select committees of the legislature, the speech said highway safety would be improved through amendments to the Highways Traffic Act which resulted from the report of the committee on highway safety.

Aged Couple Burned in Fire Near Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) —Mr. and Mrs. Demetio Menger, both about 75, died Thursday night when fire levelled their frame house on the capital's southern outskirts.

Neighbors could reach the couple when they discovered the fire, but smoke and flames kept them from entering the house. The Mengers did not respond to calls from the neighbors, who reached the scene soon after the fire started.

Firemen were unable to save the house. They found Menger's body in a corner of the room where the couple slept. His wife's body was on one of the cots they slept on.

Cause of the fire has not been determined.

Parliamentarians to Russia? Commons May Learn Today

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons may be told today whether Canada will accept a Russian invitation to send a group of parliamentarians to the Soviet.

External Affairs Minister Pearson said Thursday night on the Commons' CBC television broadcast "Press Conference" that the government has received an invitation from Russia.

He added that the invitation came in a "strange way" but declined to elaborate, saying he plans to broach the subject first in the Commons, scheduled to resume an external affairs debate today.

Mr. Pearson told the four newspaper men interviewing him that he would not only be willing to go to Moscow but farther if it would serve the cause of peace.

Russia suggested a few months ago that parliamentarians from various countries address each other's parliaments. But Mr. Pearson's statement apparently was the first indication that formal invitations have been sent by Russia to the Western nations.

He may be quizzed in the Commons on press reports that it is expected that NATO forces or more Americans forces may be stationed in Canada to bolster the North American defence network.

Mr. Pearson said Thursday night Canada has not suggested to NATO that servicemen from member countries be sent to Canada. He did say, however, there is no reason why such forces should not be welcome in Canada.

He also said he did not discuss the stationing of more American forces in Canada during his recent visit to Britain with Foster Dulles, U.S. state secretary.

Cheque Sent To Dr. Murray For Research

TORONTO (CP) — A $5,000 cheque for further research in the serum treatment of cancer has been sent to Dr. Gordon Murray by J. H. Rand, Jr., chairman of the board of Remington Rand Limited.

A covering letter from E. W. Tyrrill, Mr. Rand's solicitor, said Mr. Rand "is very interested in your research and the results of it to date."

A personal note from Mr. Tyrrill thanked Dr. Murray for "saving my sister's life." Mr. Tyrrill's sister was recently treated by Dr. Murray.

A serum, made from horses, was developed by Dr. Murray for use in the treatment of breast cancer.

Color Pictures Of Regular News Stories Run

VANCOUVER (CP)—A four-column photograph of three characters from "Alice in Wonderland" was published on the front page of the Vancouver Sun Thursday as the first example of full-color photography under a new "true-to-press" process.

The newspaper said it has set up a completely new department to bring its readers color pictures of regular stories of the day. The new type of photography demands radically new cameras, printers and analysis equipment.

Canada's Policy To Be Announced By Minister

OTTAWA (CP)—Health Minister Martin said Thursday that he will announce Canada's policy for production and distribution of anti-polio vaccine April 7, the day before the University of Michigan reveals its assessment of Salk vaccine as a polio preventive.

Mr. Martin said Dr. G. D. W. Cameron, his deputy, will be at Ann Arbor, Mich., when the university gives the results of trials of Salk vaccine last year in the United States and in Alberta and Manitoba.

"We have every hope that the university's report will be favorable," he said. "We are following this with great interest. Canada is the only country where the government has assisted in the production of the vaccine. (In the U.S. it was produced by the Polio Foundation.)

Salk vaccine trials were carried out among 500,000 American children in 1954.

At Montreal, a spokesman for Canadian Aviation Electronics said Thursday a closed - circuit television network is being set up to save Dr. Jonas Salk time in the findings of his polio vaccine to doctors in 180 Canadian and American centres.

Montreal, Toronto and Ottawa will be tied in the network which will be extended to Quebec City and Kingston, Ont.

CLAIMS BOARD DELAYS

TORONTO (CP)—A CIO-CCL union official Thursday urged Labor Minister Daley of Ontario to speed up decisions of the Ontario labor relations board. Oliver Quinn, Canadian director of United Glass and Ceramic Workers of America (CIO-CCL) said in a telegram to the minister that "labor legislation is actually sabotaged by labor board delays."

Eisenhower's Foreign Trade Program Is in Trouble

By GEORGE KITCHEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON (CP)—President Eisenhower's foreign trade program is in trouble.

The legislation, almost as vital to Canada as it is to the United States itself, is under secret study by the powerful Senate finance committee and some observers fear it may be so weakened by amendments as to make it ineffective as a trade-stimulating instrument.

The administration had hoped the bill would have comparatively smooth congressional sailing. It went through the House of Representatives by a narrow margin but essentially unaltered. In the Senate, however, it has run into bitter opposition and a flood of amendments from industries and regions which fear increased competition.

The committee went behind closed doors to consider the bill this week after 16 days of public testimony by 125 witnesses, most of whom expressed opposition. From the committee, the bill will go to the floor of the Senate. Seasoned observers say the chances of its emerging from the committee without amendment are remote.

FRESH AMMUNITION

Briefly, the bill would extend the reciprocal trade agreements law for three years and give the president power to reduce tariffs by 15 per cent in return for concessions from other countries. He could do this without reference to Congress, the depositary of tariff - cutting powers under the constitution.

Fresh ammunition has been thrown into the fight against the legislation by the administration's plan to ask Congress to approve American membership in the Organization of Trade Co-operation, formed recently in Geneva by administer the General Agreement on Tariff and Trade, better known as GATT.

Some protectionist senators have expressed suspicion about the relationship between the two bills and chairman H. F. Byrd (Dem.-Va.) of the Senate committee served blunt notice last week that his committee would not act on the trade measure until it had been given the details of the new international trade organization. He did not want other members of the trade group "ganging up" on the United States.

Canada, which must trade to live, is watching the trade battle unfold and with great interest. The United States is Canada's best customer. In 1954, the U.S. bought $2,312,800,000 worth of Canadian merchandise. For her part, Canada purchased from the U.S. goods valued at $2,961,380,000, more than Britain, France, Germany, Italy and Japan put together.

One thing that puzzles—and irks—Canadian officials is the lack of attention being paid in the current skirmishing here to this great flow of Canadian - American trade. Pointing up Canadian interest, External Affairs Minister Pearson, Trade Minister Howe and Arnold Heeney, Canadian ambassador in Washington, all have emphasized that trading position in recent speeches.

Apart from its general concern about trade, the Canadian government also is worried about proposed amendments to restrict peculiarly Canadian items, like lead and zinc. These, if adopted, would hurt Canadian industries. The Senate committee now has those amendments under consideration, along with dozens of others that have been suggested.

Two major amendments before the committee would crippe the bill. One would require that all trade agreements be submitted to Congress for approval. The other would make binding any ruling by the U.S. tariff commission. At present, the president may accept or reject such findings.

Senate supporters of the trade program hope they can beat down the weakening amendments still depend partly on whether President Eisenhower personally throws his prestige into the battle.

The president already has indicated he will do just that. He told a recent press conference he would "use every bit of influence that I can properly and appropriately bring to bear" to have the bill passed.

The Senate committee meetings behind closed doors are expected to continue for another week or more.

Bailiff Evicts Family of Four

TORONTO (CP)—A German immigrant family and their children were dragged from their beds and evicted from a house in suburban Scarborough Township Thursday.

The father, Albert Ballache, 43, was at work when he got word that his wife, Emily, 40, and the four children ranging from four to 12 years, were out on the street.

Ballache, who has been in Canada six months said he bought the house last November, eight months paying $250 down with the agreement to pay $50 a month on possession the beginning of January.

The farmer tenants didn't get out until the end of January and Ballache tried to get their $40 rent for January from the landlord, claiming that it was his. But the house was not Ballache's name until he paid the balance of his cost and he was evicted over the $40 rent.

The welfare department took over the family and arranged for lodgings for one night, sheriff J.D. Conover said.

Mayor Adds Name

MONTREAL (CP)—Mayor Jean Drapeau of Montreal Thursday added his name to a petition sponsored by a French-Canadian National Assembly branch to change the name of the new Queen Elizabeth Hotel, now under construction, changed to Chateau Maisonneuve.

The $20,000,000 hotel is being built by Canadian National Railways and adjoins central station and Windsor Station.

Ligue d'Action Nationale (National Action League) Wednesday collected 100,000 names on the petition.

Mickey Jelke Again Convicted On Vice Charge

NEW YORK (AP) — Minot F. (Mickey) Jelke, handsome young oleomargarine heir, was convicted early today for the second time on vice charges.

He could draw up to 40 years in prison at his sentencing, set for April 28. But he was sentenced to only three to six years two years ago on his first conviction, which was reversed on appeal.

Jelke was convicted here by $42,-000 bail after the jury of 10 men and two women reported its guilty verdict at 1:16 a.m. following more than 10 hours of deliberation. TWO TWO COUNTS

He was convicted on two counts of compulsory prostitution — the legal term for the offence. The charges consisted of:

1. "Enticing, inducing and procuring" Pat Ward, now 21, to lead the life of a prostitute.

2. Attempting to do the same with Marguerite Cordova, 26, former night club chanck girl.

Defence counsel would not discuss the possibility of an appeal at the present time.

Jelke, who had paced the court corridors during the jury's deliberation, paled as the verdict was announced. The 25-year-old playboy was visibly shaken as he stood at the defence table facing the jury of eight men and four women.

LIVED OFF GIRL

The prosecution contended he got $1,000 a month from Ward and $500 to $15,000 from Miss Ward while living with her for five months in the Ward family apartment gifts from his family and help ibid, plus over until he came into his millions.

Both Miss Ward and Miss Cordova were questioned by defence vice girls who testified against him.

The defence assailed the characters of prosecution witnesses—especially Miss Ward. It contended that Jelke had plenty of money.

The judge instructed the jury that it made no difference whether Miss Ward and Miss Cordova were prostitutes before they met Jelke or after they ended association with him.

Jelke's pretty, blonde, 27-year-old wife, Christine Gardner Jelke, had left the courtroom shortly before the verdict. She and Jelke were found in bed together in his apartment when he was arrested on the charges. They later were married after his first trial.

ALLOW LIBEL CLAIM

NEWARK, N.J. (AP)—Damages of $20,000 were awarded Thursday in Essex County Circuit Court here who had brought a $250,000 libel suit against Conde McGinley, publisher of the semi 7 monthly newspaper Common Sense. A Superior Court jury decided the award after Judge Howard Ewart had told the jurors Common Sense libelled Dr. Prinz in its April 1, 1954, issue. Dr. Joachim Prinz is a rabbi who was expelled from Germany for revolutionary Confounsitic activities."

Availability of 'Baby' A Bombs Revising NATO Defence Plans

By HAROLD KING

PARIS (Reuters) — The availability of "baby" A-bombs is rapidly revising the defence plans of NATO, the military organization for its extreme northern flank in Norway.

Planners of supreme headquarters are acutely aware of two important events which are bringing about the changes.

One is the availability of the tactical atom bomb on a "call and deliver" basis from the United States and division in England equipped with F-84F Thunderjets.

The other is the establishment in March, three Thunderstreaks set a speed record, averaging 650 miles an hour on a flight from Canada Los Angeles to New York.

The Thunderstreak is under the assignment to head the air side at the organization's northern headquarters in Oslo at Maj.-Gen. Homer Saunders. Saunders not only is an expert in fighter-bomber tactics and doctrine but was the first man to realize the potency of the baby A-bomb as a tactical air weapon and the first to fight its possession by the U.S. air force.

The concentration in planning, he understood, is on the best possible use of the baby A-bomb carried by the Thunderstreaks. The question is whether this intermediate force is best housed on or beachhead which threatens to spread and overrun the countryside, or on behind-the-lines point which supplies the beachhead.

Saunders will be committed to foreign troops to be based on her soil. In fact, she assured Russia recently will not be allowed her security is threatened. This assurance was given when Russia protested against Norway joining NATO.

Norway has developed what is probably the most effective small air force in Europe. Her eight squadrons are fighter - bombers and reconnaissance types, largely F-84 Thunderjets.

Senior officers were all combat-trained with the RAF, the RCAF or the U.S. air force during the Second World War. They are experienced and capable.

Norwegian bases are being equipped, as far as possible, to permit staging for other units which might be employed in any type of mission. This would permit other units to land on these fields for fuel or maintenance, either going to or coming from any mission in the northern direction.

One of the changes all this has brought about is the increased probability of holding Norway—particularly north Norway—in the event of a sudden attack in the far north.

In most of Europe it is axiomatic that a jet pilot at 40,000 feet can fly 200 miles and score on targets. In Norway he would be lucky to find one, because hundreds of square miles are mountains.

All of these things, together with a preponderance of mountains, lakes and fjords, few communication lines and fewer transport lines, and the fact that only 3% per cent of the country is under cultivation and there are only 2,500,000 people to defend it, add up to a considerable defence problem.

Missing Detroit Child Found Dead in Garbage Dump Victim of Sex-Crazed Fiend

FREE VIET NAME FACES THREAT OF CIVIL WAR

Leaders of three religious sects in free Viet Nam have asked for resignation of U.S.-backed Premier Ngo Dinh Diem, seen above, in a dispute carrying a threat of civil war. The warlords of the Hoa Hao, Binh Xuyen and Cao Dai sects have ordered their private armies to begin a land blockade of capital Saigon, at the same time offering their help in forming a new government. But the U.S. is opposed to this offer, for it contends the sects cannot unite the South against the threat of communism in north.—Central Press Canadian.

Part of Ear Torn

MONTREAL (CP)—A 26-year-old man was ordered Thursday for voluntary statement April 5 on a charge of biting off the ears of an immigrant.

C. K. Lieks, a restaurant clerk, testified at the preliminary hearing of Jean Langlois that he was forced to escape in his underwear March 14 when Langlois attacked him when he found him with his girl friend.

Earlier, a doctor testified that parts of Lieke's ears were torn away and he required plastic surgery.

HARBOR STILL CLOSED

MIDLAND, Ont. (CP)—There is still 14 inches of ice in Midland harbor but officials hope to have the navigation season open by April 20. Ice Master Carl Wednesday crews started unloading the cargo of the lake-boat, T. R. McLagan. It was reported there was 28 inches of ice at the McLagan's stern.

DETROIT (AP) — Bright-eyed Barbara Grace, who vanished as she skipped off to school a week ago, died at the hands of a sex-crazed kidnapper. The seven-year-old was raped, beaten, strangled to death and then knifed 15 times.'

For a graveyard, her abductor chose a desolate garbage dump at the end of a lonely lane. The mutilated body, twisted in a bloodsoaked army blanket, was found by accident among rusty beer cans and junk Thursday in suburban Oakland county 25 miles from the girl's Detroit home.

A search for clues, already the greatest in Michigan police history, today turned into a "find the murderer or else" race.

Police worked through the night on the first solid information they have had since the case broke. Fresh tire tracks and footprints on the two-lane path were moulded in plaster and everything possible was searched for fingerprints.

CHECKED 600 TIPS

Before the body was found, police had checked out more than 600 tips without success.

They had been worked up almost immediately after the body was discovered. One, a 30-year-old Pontiac man, was cleared after a lie detector test. The other was held for questioning after a spell of nervous cases.

Psychologist Richard E. Olsen of Pontiac said the girl probably died March 24, the day she kissed her mother goodbye and started toward school, her rosary and homework in her hand. His autopsy detailed the attack and murder and said the frenzied knifing occurred after death.

Led to the morgue to identify the body were Barbara's father, Frank Gaca, a Detroit postman, stayed 90 seconds and burst from the building in a fury. He cried again, "I only hope she didn't suffer," and left.

FOUND NEAR TRACK

The child's body, clad only in a cotton dress, was discovered when Rufus Zamora, 28, a section hand for the Grand Trunk Railroad, spotted the blanket as he worked nearby.

Strewn six feet from her body was Barbara's blue snow suit and her mittens. Her pretty face already was blood red.

Slowa around the trash heap on which she lay was her rosary, a school pad and homework papers. On one of the papers was a test in which Barbara had written three words correctly and "angel." Neatly printed were these words:

"I love an angel.
I love an angel.
"I have an angel."

Annual Canadian Paper Awards Are Announced

TORONTO (CP)—Seven Canadian newspaper awards were announced today as winners of the sixth annual national newspaper awards. The awards, started in Canada in 1954, The annual competition is open to all daily newspapers and by Canadian daily newspapers and news associations. Winners receive a medal and certificate.

Awards:

Editorial writing — C. B. Pyper, Toronto Telegram.

Spot news reporting — Gwyn Morgan Thomas, Toronto Star.

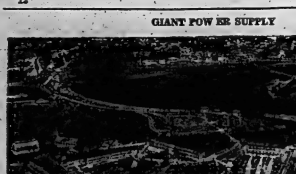
Feature writing — Mac Reynolds, Vancouver Sun.

Staff corresponding — Bill Boss, The Canadian Press.

Spot news photography — E. W. (Ted) Dinsmore, Toronto Telegram.

Feature news photography —Ray Munro, Vancouver Province.

Cartooning — Lewis Gordon, Montreal Gazette.



The awards will be presented at a dinner in Toronto April 16 given by the Toronto Men's Press Club. The awards are designed to reward and promote excellence in Canadian newspaper writing and originated by the club six years ago with the support of the late George McCullagh, former publisher of the Globe and Mail.

The basis of support has since been broadened.

DISPUTES CLAIM

QUEBEC (CP)—Trade Minister Beaulieu took exception Thursday to those who claim Quebec workers are paid less than others in Ontario. Quebec's largest industries prove the contrary by paying the highest wages in Canada, he told a meeting of the Quebec Association of Professional Industrialists, an employer's organization.

Quebec's Power Output Half Of Hydro-Electric Capacity In All the Rest of Canada

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP) — Waterfalls that once hushed undisturbed as the sea now are providing vital power for Quebec's rapidly expanding industrial empire.

Quebec's power output, say provincial government officials, is equal to more than half of the hydro-electric capacity in all the rest of Canada.

This power potential has sparked an unprecedented industrial development in Quebec.

The Quebec government estimates that 5,000 new industries have been established in the province in the last 18 years. Every one of their development is inextricably linked with the growth of the power projects.

SHOW VAST PLANTS

This was stressed in a campaign designed by the Montreal Chamber de Commerce to focus attention on Quebec's cities, products and natural resources. As part of the campaign 75 newspaper, radio and television reporters from Canada, the United States and Europe were taken on a six-day tour of some of the province's main industrial centres.

The reporters were shown two of the province's largest power developments—at Shawinigan Falls and at Arvida. They were told of others and heard a Quebec cabinet minister state that the province's unexploited reserves of power are bound to attract additional industries.

Trade Minister Beaulieu said in addressing the reporters at the conclusion of the tour that Quebec has a hydro-electric plant of approximately 20,000,000 horsepower. About one-third of the potential—approximately 7,000,000 horsepower—has been developed; Another third is within economic distance of the industrial heart of the province awaiting development; and the remainder is a reserve for the future.

Mr. Beaulieu said this reserve of power provides a guarantee for continued industrial growth.

HISTORIC DEVELOPMENT

Quebec's production of power started in 1681 on the outskirts of Quebec City when a grist mill used a battered water wheel to develop a few horsepower.

Since then more than 100 different sites on three dozen different rivers have been developed.

At Shawinigan Falls and Arvida the reports were told how the power developments were linked with industry, Shawinigan, picturesque city of 40,000 on the St. Maurice river 85 miles northeast of Montreal, was little more than wilderness 30 years ago when a group of businessmen stood beside a waterfall and discussed the possibility of harnessing it for power.

They decided to install two 5,000-horsepower generators. That was the start of the Shawinigan Water and Power Company. Today the company is developing more than 1,800,000 horsepower from sites on the St. Maurice river and supplying it to a wide variety of industries in Shawinigan and surrounding areas.

In Arvida, the Aluminum Company of Canada has tapped the Saguenay river in Quebec to develop more than 2,000,000 horsepower mainly to operate the nearby aluminum smelter, one of the largest in the world.

PUBLICLY-OWNED PROJECTS

Quebec government-owned projects are other, big power projects. Near the Montreal suburb of Beauharnois Hydro - Quebec is producing 1,400,000 horsepower from the St. Lawrence river.

A more spectacular development was completed by Hydro-Quebec last year at Labrieville, 400 miles northeast of Montreal. On the roaring Bersimis river, a plant was built to supply power to communities on the north shore of the St. Lawrence river, to a copper mine across the river on the Gaspe peninsula, and to provide additional sources of energy for Quebec City and Montreal.

From the Labrieville plant, with an installed capacity of 1,200,000 horsepower, underwater cables were stretched across the 31½ miles separating Labrieville from the Gaspe peninsula. But soon after power started moving through the cables a severe development in transmission was stopped. When the conditions on the St. Lawrence permit, Hydro-Quebec will resume the trouble and decide what action will be necessary to get power flowing from the new project.

The province's whole power potential has been linked in a grid system so that if one area suffers a temporary shortage it can draw supplies from another area. This grid system extends into the Ontario Hydro network which at Windsor links with another grid system in the United States.

It would be possible through this grid system, said one official, for power produced in Labrieville to light a lamp in far-off California.

Wellington

WELLINGTON — The members of Star in the East Lodge, No. 164, Wellington, were hosts recently to their wives at an annual "Ladies Night".

A banquet was served by the ladies of the Evening Auxiliary in the United Church Hall to 128 guests. Mr. Walter Fox was Master of Ceremonies. The Rev. A. Poulter gave the invocation.

After a bountiful and enjoyable meal, Mr. Tom Pillingham conducted a rousing sing-song, with Mrs. Jack Hall at the piano.

Canadiens Romp Over Boston Bruins 5-1 To Sweep Series; Set Record

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

STRANGE GOINGS-ON!

Kingston streets will resound to the strains of "See the Conquering Heroes Come" tomorrow afternoon. Under the auspices of the laddies of the local Chamber of Commerce, a victory sports parade will clop-clop from the Community Centre to the city hall, where special victory ceremonies will be held.

In the midst of the parade will be the Kingston Goodyears (if they can get by "Java" Casterton's Princess Street mocha salon), champions of the senior "B" hockey group. And if you look closely you may discern a bunch of strange ky-looking buckaroos, wearing an Indian head crest on their windbreakers. At first glance you might labor under the impression they are victims of an ulcerated tooth epidemic. A closer look will satisfy you that the lump in their collective cheeks is not the result of molar trouble—nor is it a large juicy wad of the "weed." Merely, their tongues slightly out of focus. They will be the Orillia Pontiacs, in town for the second struggle of the senor "B" semi-finals against the Casterton crew cuts, which gets under way tomorrow night at the centre.

There will be all kinds of attractions in the parade from squirt hockey champions to the croquet kids. It is going to be quite a parade, so this corner is informed. And there is no truth in the rumor that the demon statistician and his figure magician, the famous St. Michael-Mac pair will be included, one riding his trusty Underwood and the other totin' an adding machine.

The piece-de-resistance of the Princess patrol will be two mayors-and-a-horse. It is the day for Mayor George Wright of Kingston to get smoky—for he will be on his high horse. Mayor John Roth of Belleville, wearing sideburns of bemishen of another day, will be the Kingston "Stan-O-War" pink mullah, will wear an humble mien (he was born on the wrong side of the tar) as he leads the mayor-cargo'd nag along Princess and Bridge to the Cataraqui.

At the city hall when Chief Jack Trusiach, Inspector Bob Nesbitt and a flock of Kingston's finest will be on duty, there will be laudatory addresses. Ma'yor Wright will stand in his stirrups and extol the industrial, business, educational and other attractions of his city while the crowd roars its approval. If you bother to count the "yeas and nays" there will be thirteen of the latter. Twelve will come from the stalwart band of loyalists from Sydney to the Chamber of Commerce—and the other from the horse. But you can discount the latter. After all a horse's neigh is a horse's "yea."

Then the tribute to the conquering heroes. It is stated this afoot. Mayor Wright will warble "The times have gone for the Goodyears are with us," and Mayor Roth will counter with "Take a Memo, mayor, you might need one." Even the horse gets in on the musical interlude. The nag will playfully nudge Mayor Roth and whinny "Let Me Go, Lover."

Seriously, the parade is slated to leave the Community Centre at two o'clock tomorrow afternoon. It will jaunt down Princess Street to the city hall where the celebrations will take place.

GOOD SHOW!

It was a good show at the Shrine Club last night where the Belleville Memos were given an excellent dinner and show, thanks to the efforts of a guy who does not want his name in the paper. Let's get this straight. The dinner was paid for by a city business man — and "NOT" the Arena Commission.

The party was confined to the Memos, their executive and the radio and press. It was a fine show and one much appreciated by the famous who expressed in no uncertain manner their appreciation of the "mystery man" host.

There were speeches and a lot of good natured ribbing, etc., but on the whole, the Memos relaxed, wore their Sunday clothes and had a helluva good time, thanks to "Mr. Mystery."

Our thanks to you, sir, and we feel we voice the appreciation of the club. Keith MacDonald, named the 1954 "Athlete of the Year," was nearly mobbed by his mates. The team heartily endorsed the selection made by the "Athlete" committee and Keith's arm was nearly shaken off. Incidentally, the formal presentation of the trophy will be made in Picton, with big Vern Goyer, the first winner of the mug doing the honors to team-mate Keith.

ATTENTION FISHERMEN, HUNTERS.

The Belleville Fish and Game Club will hold its final meeting of the season in the Belleville YMCA on Tuesday, April 5 at 8.00 p.m.

Every member is urged to attend and the general public is welcome as there will be a fine program of films, a speaker from the Department of Lands and Forests and a swap night.

Bring your used plugs, spoons and flies and exchange them for something that will catch fish.

LeClair Sparks Hab Attack In Team's 'Easiest Victory'; Play Red Wings on Sunday

By W. R. WHEATLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP)—Polishing off Boston Bruins 5-1 Thursday night to wind up their Stanley Cup semi-final series, Montreal Canadiens took on a mile more confidence today as they prepared to meet the powerful Detroit Red Wings in the final of hockey's annual classic.

The crippled Bruins never threatened seriously in the fifth game and the Montrealers romped along to their easiest victory in taking the series four games to one.

Jackie Leclair sparked the Montreal attack with two goals and the others were scored by Dickie Moore, Floyd Curry and Jean Beliveau. Canadiens had a 4-0 edge at lead midway through the second period when Lorne (Gump) Ferguson counted for the Bruins.

The first two games of the best-of-seven final will be played in Detroit next Sunday and Tuesday. The latter two will be moved back to Montreal ice for the next two games, April 7 and 9. Later dates, as necessary, have not been announced by the National Hockey League.

BOSTON SLOWED DOWN

Canadiens were in command all the way through. Boston never quite began running up the count the Bruins' hopes were shot. In the final period Dickie Moore staggered to a new low and the Montrealers, never in any danger, coasted along to an easy win.

Leclair figured in two of the goals. The Bruins' short Leo Labine when Moore scored Montreal's second goal and Leclair's shot were minus Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion, when Ferguson scored for Boston.

In entering the cup final for the fifth consecutive year, Canadiens have bettered their own record of four straight, set last season when they lost to Detroit in the deciding seventh game in overtime.

Coach Dick Irvin said he may have to reshuffle his lines for Sunday's game, using Bert Olmstead on a penalty-killing line instead of lightweight Donnie Marshall.

Irvin's only prediction was that "the series will be tough and we will do our best."

The Bruins went into Thursday night's game minus Sugar Jim Henry, their veteran goalie, and defencemen Fern Flaman and Warren Godfrey. Jim Morrow injured in the fourth game in Boston last Tuesday, won by Canadiens 4-3 in overtime.

Long John Henderson, who worked his share of games this season in the Boston net, took over Henry's job and was subjected to a steady bombardment. He had 31 shots tossed at him, plus plenty of skirmishing outside his goal crease, while goalie Jacques Plante of Montreal had only 14 Boston shots to handle.

Curry, Beliveau and Leclair finished the series against Boston as Montreal's leading goal - getters with three each. On total points, Curry and Beliveau are tied at six, each counting three assists in addition to three goals.

BOUDREAU DROPS 4

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) Manager Lou Boudreau of Kansas City Athletics Thursday lopped four men off his roster, sending them to Columbus of the International League. The four are Lou Limmer, first baseman; Al Pinkston, outfielder; Bob McKenzie, catcher; and Carl Duser, pitcher.

Royals Whip Quebec Aces To Take Lead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal Royals Thursday night whipped the Quebec Aces 5-1 in Quebec to take a 3-2 lead in the best-of-nine Quebec Hockey League semi-finals. With the remaining games to be divided between the two cities, the Royals immediately became favorites to win and advance into the finals.

Shawinigan Falls Cataracts just about sewed up the other finals berth by edging Chicoutimi Saguenens 3-1 at Shawinigan Falls. The victory gave the Cataracts a 4-1 lead in the series.

The series resumes at Chicoutimi and Montreal Sunday.

Sarnia Ousts Woodstock 4-3

WOODSTOCK (CP)—Sarnia Sailors handed Woodstock Athletics a 4-3 setback Thursday night to advance into the Ontario Hockey Association senior B semi-finals. Sarnia took a two-game total-goals playoff 6-3 after a best-of-seven quarter-final ended in a tie.

Rollie Beauchamp, Fred Free, Dick Bestard and Dunham scored singles for Sarnia. John Ford, Jerry Striggle and Kowalchuck got Woodstock's goals.

Sarnia will meet Dundas Saturday in the opening game of the OHA semi-finals.

REMEMBER WHEN

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal Canadiens and Seattle were unable to reach a decision in their Stanley Cup final which was called off, 36 years ago today, because of an influenza outbreak at Seattle. The teams were tied at two wins and a tie apiece, but five of the Canadien players were taken ill and defenceman Joe Hall died a few days later.

Habs Think Cup Series Will Be Tough

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Canadiens took their 5-1 win over Boston Bruins in stride Thursday night and instead of great jubilation in the dressing room there was sober realization that the Stanley Cup final with Detroit Red Wings is still ahead of them.

There was quiet congratulation of each other by the players and a consensus that "the big series coming up will be tough."

Coach Dick Irvin would make no predictions, saying the final will be a hard grind and "we will do our best."

Irvin, managing director Frank Selke and Maurice (Rocket) Richard congratulated the team and then conferred quietly in a corner of the room. Richard was suspended by president Clarence Campbell of the National Hockey League earlier this month for a violent outbreak in Boston.

MOSDELL OK

Ken Mosdell, who injured his shoulder and hip when he crashed into the boards after being checked by Boston's Bob Armstrong, did not appear at all sore.

The only out-and-out prediction about final series came from Sam Pollock, Canadiens director of junior farm clubs, who proclaimed straight-faced that Canadiens "will take Detroit in four straight."

The only Boston room coach Milt Schmidt shook hands with all his players and said they "had nothing to be ashamed of and didn't quit."

Schmidt said "it was just in the books." He added that "we were no match for Canadiens tonight."

He said the turning point in the series was the fourth game in Boston Tuesday, which Canadiens won in overtime.

Dutchmen Force Seventh Game Edge Soo Greyhounds 2-1

KITCHENER (CP) — Ten days, six games and 22 goals after the all-Ontario senior A hockey finals began the championship is still a tossup. Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen and Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds are making it that close.

The Dutchmen, Ontario Hockey Association champions, forced a seventh and deciding game by edging Sault Ste. Marie 3-2 before 7,600 fans here Thursday night. The victory squared the best-of-seven series 3-3.

The winner of the final game here Saturday will meet Moncton Hawks in Montreal for Canada Allan Cup final.

Cecil Scholes, benched in the fourth and fifth games because of sluggish play, was the man of the hour Thursday, scoring goals, he his tied with two Sault Ste. Marie players for the scoring leadership of the series.

Jimmy McBurney, who scored the only goal for the Greyhounds Thursday night, and his teammate Ken Watson also have six points, each with three goals and three assists.

The Dutchmen took a 1-0 lead in the second period and made it 2-0 in the third before the Greyhounds broke Keith Woodall's shutout in the last minute of the game.

The Greyhounds received 11 of the 19 penalties, including three 10-minute misconducts. Kitchener's eight penalties were all minors but their last one, called on Howie Lee at 18:15 of the third period, probably cost Woodall his shutout.

COULD HAVE TIED

The Greyhounds, but for some tough breaks, could have tied the series at the end of the game. On the other hand, the Dutchmen would have made it a runaway if it wasn't for the sparkling goaltending of Ed Chadwick in the Sault Ste. Marie nets. He made tremendous saves on point-blank attempts by Jim Logan, Joe Scherzl, Gerry Theberge and Scholes and had a total of 31 stops for the night.

Woodall made 27 saves.

The closeness of the series is shown not only in the 3-3 tie in games but the goals for and against each team. The Dutchmen have scored 12 and the Greyhounds 10.

Sault Ste. Marie won the first game 1-0, the third 3-1 and the fifth 5-3. Kitchener took the second 3-0 the fourth 4-1 and the sixth 3-1.

WHY ON EARTH DO THEY DO IT?

...play catch-as-catch-can with the insurable value of their property

A lot of people guess at the value of their property in buying insurance, taking no risk chances. Depreciation should be figured somewhere near right. Insurance needs may have been made inadequate by fit fits o give . . .

Moral: Have your insurance checked given the once-over by someone who knows. We'd like to do it without charge.

The best of Tall Tales

We once met a sculptor who was such a perfectionist in his job that he was never quite satisfied with the results of his labours. Every Monday morning he would put on a sculptor's smock, pick up a mallet and chisel and start to carve a new one-ton block of marble. And every time the sculpture looked perfect to everyone else he would step back for a few minutes and then go back to chipping away a bit more. It was because he worked this way that he had to start the week with such a big chunk of rock. You see, his job was making cameos in a ring factory.

'Experts' Pick N.Y. Giants To Win National Loop Flag

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP)—New York Giants, a well-balanced, strong and confident club, were picked to win their second straight National League pennant but only after a terrific, head-to-head battle was secured battle with Milwaukee Braves and Brooklyn Dodgers.

These three clubs figure to dominate the rest of the National League with the youth-studded St. Louis Cardinals squeezing into the first division in another three-team fight with Cincinnati and Philadelphia. Despite obvious improvement that should give their backers hope for the future, Chicago Cubs and Pittsburgh Pirates do not hope to improve their 7-8 finishes of a year ago.

The Braves and Dodgers are stronger than they were last year when injuries crucified key players and allowed the Giants to run away with the flag. Manager Leo Durocher calls here, de combat for lengthy spells. But neither club has the soundness, the smooth team play, the right defence, the clutch hitting and pitching of the winning spirit of the Giants.

FOUR KEY MEN

Indeed, the Giants' balance are four key men, each a dominating influence in his own sphere—Al Dark, the shortstop; Alvin Mays, the leader of the pitching staff; Whitey Lockman, the leader of the pitching staff; and Leo Durocher, the leader.

The Giants have made no major moves to strengthen their ball club but have no glaring weaknesses. They could use another starting pitcher, but so could every other club in the league. Maglie, Ruben Gomez, Don Liddle and Jim Hearn, backed by the wonderful bullpen pair of Hoyt Wilhelm and Marv Grissom, give the Giants ample pitching protection. Wes Westrum, Ray Katt and Mickey Grasso insure good catching. The infield of Whitey Lockman, Davey Williams, Dark and Hank Thompson is solid as is the outfield consisting of Don Mueller, Mays and Monte Irvin. And then there is always Dusty Rhodes.

Do You Suppose The Guy Is Worried?

LONDON (AP) — Don Cockell, British heavyweight champion, has had a look at Rocky Marciano's style on film and figures Marciano isn't the crude fighter people make him out to be."

Cockell is scheduled to meet Marciano for Rocky's world title in San Francisco May 16.

Appearing on a television sports program, Cockell watched a film of a Marciano-Ezzard Charles fight and said:

"Marciano is very deceptive. He's a difficult target to hit. He fights with his chin down and punches twice in the same place."

Cockell was asked about American reports that the British champ probably won't prove too much trouble for Marciano and replied:

"If they are interested enough to write about me, why should I worry?"

TAMPA (AP) — The brightest spot in the Chicago White Sox picture this spring, says general manager Frank Lane, has been the spirited play of Clint Courtney, the bespectacled and belligerent catcher he picked up during the winter in one of his multi-player deals with Baltimore Orioles.

It was thought for a time, with some reason, that Lane acquired Courtney strictly as trading material, inasmuch as the Sox already had an established catcher in Sherm Lollar, but it is evident that he has no such thought now.

"It'd say he is the one bright spot of the whole training season," Lane said. "He's made several plays that even Gilbert, Marty Marion, says were as great as any he ever saw. In fact, Marty tells me that if I can get him a whole club of Courtneys and Jim Rivera he'll promise me a pennant. He says if you had nine who played the game as hard as they do, some of them couldn't help being great."

"I'd like to see him (Courtney) start every series against the Yankees," Lane grinned. "He really hates that Casey Stengel and everybody else connected with the club. At least we'll have some excitement."

The Sox, who finished third last year mainly because they had a mark of only 7-15 against the Yankees (they broke exactly even with Cleveland) do not have a single regular from their own farm system.

By his myriad deals, some of them involving the same players two or three times, Lane has confounded the belief that you can't build a good club these days except by bottle feeding you own kids until they are ready. The Sox boss has himself a team which could be rough all the way if George Kell feels like playing third base the way he has demonstrated he can.

DeMarco Fights Saxton Tonight For Welter Crown

By BOB HOOBING

BOSTON (AP)—Tony DeMarco's chances of winning the welterweight boxing title from champion Johnny Saxton tonight depend largely on whether the Irish cyclone can prove he's not a bleeder.

The healed knot of cartilage over DeMarco's left eye and the chin a sparmate cut last December could be decisive in the 15-round battle for the 147-pound crown.

The Boston Garden fight is scheduled to start at 10 p.m. (EST) with no television or radio permitted.

DeMarco, No. 3 ranked challenger from the north end, has escaped eye cuts in his past five bouts covering 12 months. But he has warmups for a scheduled December meeting with Joe Miroell. Tony was grazed along the ridge of his chin and the fight was cancelled.

DREW WITH CARTER

Since then he's had a 10-round non-title draw with lightweight champion Jimmy Carter from which he escaped unscathed.

Of four setbacks in DeMarco's 69-fight professional career, two came on technical knockouts because of bleeding.

But DeMarco's manager, Rip Valenti, says those days are gone.

"Sure Tony's cut, but he's learned a lot since then. Lots of good fighters have been cut early in their careers, but after they learned a little about defending themselves they never got cut again."

It will be the first title defence for Saxton, the 24-year-old New York Negro, since winning the championship from Kid Gavilan in Philadelphia last October.

Odds ranged from 12 to 5 to 2 to 1 on the champion.

Elston Howard First Negro For Yankees

NEW YORK (CP)—A New York Times columnist says Elston Howard seems certain to become the first Negro ever to play for New York Yankees.

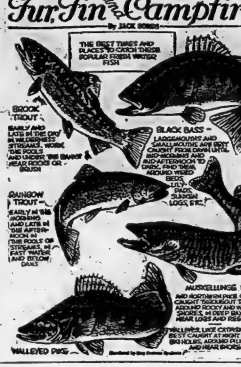
Discussing the future of the 25-year-old catcher — outfielder, who he named the International League's most valuable player last year when he played for Toronto Maple Leafs, Arthur Daley says:

"The days when a Negro travelled against New York Yankees that they have been prejudiced against Negroes . . . his bonafides have never believed a word of it."

Daley adds that the Yankee front office has stubbornly refused to hire a Negro just because he is a Negro but has studied the right man.

"It's quite possible that their search has ended," Daley says. "Elston Howard would seem to have qualified for the job both as a ballplayer and as a person. There's been nothing official about this as yet. But he has been a mighty impressive performer so far."

Daley quotes manager Casey Stengel as impressed with Howard's hitting but unable to make up his mind where to use him.



BREAKS LEG

OTTAWA (CP) — Andy Tommy Jr., 22, a top ranking Canadian skier, broke his lower right leg in a freakish spill at nearby Camp Fortune Wednesday.

Two weeks ago Andy escaped injury in a car accident near Woodstock, Ont., where his brother Art, also a leading ski competitor, suffered a cracked knee. The Tommy brothers were travelling at the time to Sun Valley, Idaho, for the Harriman Cup ski races held last week.

FEATURE YANK STARS

MONTREAL (CP) — American track stars' will highlight the eastern Canada indoor track championships at the Montreal Forum tonight, with interest centred on the two-mile run.

Horace Ashenfelter, 1952 U. S. Olympic champion in the 3,000-metre steeplechase, is entered in the two-mile event in what promises to be the "rubber" race between him and Gordon McKenzie.

In indoor meets this season Ashenfelter, who runs for the New York Athletic Club, won once over McKenzie in 9:15.5, but in their next meeting the New York Pioneer A.C. runner finished first in 9:18.8.

The mile run favorite is Lowell Kellers, former Big Ten Conference champion at two miles and in the cross-country, who earlier this month was second in New York to Wes Santee.

Janice White Cancels Plans For Swim

VICTORIA (CP)—Eighteen-year-old Janice White, the practically unknown swimmer from Toronto, has cancelled plans to swim the strait of Juan De Fuca between here and Port Angeles, Wash.

Cancellation was made Thursday night after a weather conference, but the door was left open for an attempt at a later date.

Winter winds twice forced the postponement of Miss White's attempt to make a 22-mile swim across the unconquered strait.

A joint statement from Miss White and Leland Tog and Barge Co., who were to provide an escort tug for the swim, said:

"Janice's father, Mr. Lester G. White, now in Victoria and has consulted with Capt. Goodwin, and the weather conditions are unsettled and unfavorable they have decided to cancel the swim Indefinitely. Janice has not given up her ambition to swim the strait and hopes that another more favorable time be arranged."

Capt. Goodwin was Miss White's pilot.

A Pacific storm passed over the area Thursday night, leaving behind a westerly winds of 40 to 50 miles an hour and heavy seas.

TOP FIRST ROUND

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP)—Fred Haas, 39-year-old former tournament golfer from Claremont, Calif., and chunky 25-year-old Billy Maxwell of Ocala, Fla., 1951 U.S. amateur champion, fired seven-under-par 65s Thursday to share the first round lead in the $12,500 Azalea open golf tournament.

Training Camp Notes

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Exhibition baseball almost had the air of championship competition about it Thursday, with managers giving strategy a good workout.

Four of the games were decided by one run, including a 3-2 decision by the Milwaukee Braves over the Brooklyn Dodgers as rookie Al Pacchiol broke up a 2-2 tie between the two National League contenders with a pinch single in the eighth.

Boston and Philadelphia also contributed to the general excellence of the day's games, with the Red Sox winning 4-3.

With less than two weeks remaining before opening day, there was but one game that had more wallop than finesse. That was a 14-11 comedy won from the world champion New York Giants by the Cleveland Indians. Among other things, there were 18 ground rule doubles caused by an overflow San Antonio crowd of 11,649.

STRATEGY BLOOPS

The Brooklyns and Milwaukee were neck and neck until Pacchiol, batting for Chris Christy of the Texas League, dropped his shot over third with the bases jammed.

Mickey Vernon lined a two-out pinch single in the eighth to score Irving Noren from third as Washington's 4-3 triumph over Cincinnati.

Ralph Branca, a lefthanded reliefer, got the job done for Pittsburgh in a 6-5 success against Baltimore by fanning Hal Smith with the bases full in the ninth.

Bob Talcmayer worked out of a jam for the St. Louis Cardinals, using his knuckler after the Chicago White Sox had loaded the bases with none out in the eighth. Rip Repulski's 10th inning single gave it to the Cards' 3-2.

Beneath the majestic crown of the Sugar Loaf, the people of Rio de Janeiro welcomed the Seagram Collection of Paintings of Canadian Cities.

At the Brazilian premiere in famous Copacabana Palace, and then at the Museum of Art, this Seagram Collection was seen by thousands of enthusiastic citizens.

Throughout Latin America and Europe, the Seagram Collection portrayed the vitality of Canada: her industrial expansion, her cultural progress, her vision and talents. Abroad for a full year, the Seagram Collection helped bring a lasting appreciation and a fuller understanding of Canada to millions of people around the world.

HUSBAND DEAD

Mrs. Leon Januszewski cries uncontrollably following the death of her husband at Montreal. The body of the 44-year-old Polish immigrant was found battered about the head and lying in a pool of blood in a downtown boarding house which he had purchased recently. Police said the man was attacked when he went upstairs to ask the occupants of a room to make less noise. The Januszewski's recently were reunited with their 16-year-old son who came from Poland. They have another son, 6. (CP Photo).

LIONS START SUIT

TORONTO (CP) — The Detroit Lions football team Thursday started legal proceedings aimed at forcing two players who have recently signed with Toronto Argonauts of the Big Four Football League to return to the Detroit team.

They filed writs naming Thomas E. Dublinski and Gilbert L. Mains.

JAMAICA STARTS TODAY

NEW YORK (AP)—Jamaica race track opens the long New York thoroughbred season today, with a crowd of some 33,000 expected in turn out and see wheeling Eddie Arcaro and White Skies go repeat in the $25,000-added Paumonok Handicap.

Last April Fools Day Arcaro hustled White Skies to a nose victory over Laffango in the Paumonok.

Kitty Kallen Has Worked Hard For Any Success Achieved

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Sometimes fame comes fast, sometimes you have to work like the dickens for it.

Kitty Kallen took the latter route. She has been a name in the show world since the early '40s, when she sang with the Jimmy Dorsey and Harry James bands. She went on to success as a single, replacing Edie Legan in "Finian's Rainbow," and singing in the better clubs. She also became a regular with Martin and Lewis on their personal tours.

She made good money, but she worked hard for it, too. She knew that the only way for a singer to get firmly established nowadays is via hit records, and she had never been able to make much of a dent on discs.

Kitty sank $5,000 into a record-ing session. Second to Mitch Miller, "Are You Looking for a Sweetheart," and offered to release it. The firm agreed to sign her to a contract if the platter sold more than 20,000 copies. It sold 260,000 and she got her deal.

One day she was in the Decca office when a new song arrived from a couple of amateurs of Richmond, Va. — newspaper woman Edith Lisderman and disc jockey Carl Stutz.

Kitty took a fancy to the tune and recorded it. The title was "Little Things Mean a Lot," and she reports that it has sold 1,900,-000 copies in the United States and now is No. 1 in England and Australia. She followed it with "Chapel in the Moonlight," another big hit.

Decca is the parent company of Universal-International, so it was natural that the studio put in a call for Kitty's services. She now has one of the lead in "The Second Woman I See" and there's talk of a one-picture-a-year deal.

'The Search' Happy Marriage Of Television and Education

By WAYNE OLIVER

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS-TV's Sunday afternoon program "The Search" is a happy marriage of television and education.

CBS producer Irving Gitlin and educationists of 28 co-operating colleges and universities have managed to make profound and complex research subjects dramatic and interesting without resort to artifices of showmanship.

One of the most remarkable is the coming Sunday episode screened in advance for this variety-hungry columnist. It's the story of a joint attack on juvenile delinquency being made by Yale University and the Detroit police department.

You're told by Dr. Nilmas Wattenburg, professor of educational psychology at Wayne, this disturbing fact:

"More than 1,000,000 times a year police have to ask this question: 'Does this particular boy look like a good risk, or is he headed for further trouble?'

DIFFERENT TYPES

He explains there are different types of youngsters who get into trouble and they must be dealt with differently. He divides them as follows: 1. The "good risk" delinquent; 2. The mentally ill child who might proceed to violent crime if not treated; 3. The gang type; 4. The gang type whose behavior is guided by that of his companions.

Wattenberg and narrator Charles Romine then guide the viewer into actual cases illustrating each type. The April 3 show will be among the best of the 24-week series that has four weeks yet to go. The April 10 and 17 rerecast will consist of two-part study on mental health.

Gitling says the series has done much more than provide information and education for viewers. It has, he says, stimulated the public with the vast and varied research being carried on by American colleges and universities.

Marlon Brando, one of the guests on Ed Murrow's "Person to Person" tonight, tells CBS his attitude about TV in this: "Put the right story in my hand and I'll cry for it, Until that happens, I'm not interested." Murrow has scheduled Marilyn Monroe for his April 8 show. . . . A new five play-a-week drama feature Theatre has its premiere on CBS-TV Sunday at 10 p. m. EST in the spot vacated by "Father Knows Best."

Stamps Meet Flyers In Western Final

CALGARY (CP) — The Western Hockey League final series became an all - Alberta affair Thursday night when the defending champion Calgary Stampeders edged Victoria Cougars 3-1 to wind up a best-of-seven semi-final in five games.

It was the second straight year in which Stampeders have ousted Cougars in five semi-final games.

Calgary now meets Edmonton Flyers in the best-of-seven final for the Edinburgh Trophy. The series right to meet the Quebec Hockey League winner for the Edinburgh Trophy.

A crowd of 6,000 watched defenceman Max Quackenbush notch what proved the winner for Stampeders late in the second period when he fired a screened shot past Marcel Pelletier in the Victoria goal. Sid Finney scored Stampeders' lone marker.

Turns Down Big Offer

NEW YORK (AP) — Willie Ketchum, manager of lightweight champion Jimmy Carter, Thursday turned down a $17,500 offer to make Carter's April 20 fight in Washington, D.C., with Cuba's Orlando Zulueta a championship affair.

The offer was made by promoter Goldie Ahearn. Carter and Zulueta are scheduled for a 15-round over-the-weight bout.

Ketchum asked for $25,000 and Ahearn indicated they may be able to get together.

New Abbott and Costello Comedy is Sheer Bedlam

The hilarity of Hollywood's silent picture days becomes sheer bedlam when Bud Abbott and Lou Costello take up this fabulously funny era in "Abbott and Costello Meet the Keystone Kops," which opened to a riotous showing yesterday at the McCarthy Theatre.

The howls start when Bud and Lou, fresh from the thrill of a Nickelodeon thriller, are lured into investing money to make their own in a movie studio that doesn't exist. And the pandemonium of merriment builds as the comedians trek to Hollywood to unmask the conniving, oily villain and his wackiest stunt - men who ever turned the movies upside-down.

There are spills, chills and laughs galore as Bud and Lou get involved with studio Indians Mack Sennett Bathing Beauties and the immortal Keystone Kops — when they go farce-trolling in the air, on the plains and in the water. Between crazy chases, pies in the face and the inevitable across-the-tracks race with the railroad train, the laughs are loud, long and likely to arouse longings for the "good old days."

Fred Clark, the phony, lovesick Bari, the vamp, Maxie Rosenbloom, the crook's go - between, Mack Sennett as himself, and old-timers Heinie Conklin, Hank Mann and Snub Pollard join Bud Abbott and Lou Costello and the high - kicking, mad - scrambling Keystone Kops to give this happy adventure into Hollywood history a real mark of authenticity.

With veteran comedy director Charles Lamont at the helm, and such masters of visual comedy as Abbott and Costello in their wildest roles, this Howard Christie production is a top attendance rearing everywhere.

Second feature is "Thunder Pass" with Dane Clark and Andy Devine.

AT THE BELLE — William Holden and Grace Kelly provide the love interest in Paramount's film version of James A. Michener's best - selling novel, "The Bridges at Toko-Ri," opening today at the Belle Theatre. The cast also includes Mickey Rooney, Fredric March and Mickey Rooney.

AT THE CAPITOL — Cornelius Rockery (Huntz Hall) and Sidney Prescott (Leo Gorcey) are two of the Bowery Boys who appear in "High Society," opening today and Saturday at the Capitol Theatre. On the same program is "Treasure of Ruby Hills" starring Zachary Scott. Extra attraction fiatury cartoons "Hot Lead", with Tim Holt.

Richard Joins Old Mates

OTTAWA (CP)—Montreal Canadiens' original punch line of a fine National Hockey League season of ups will be reunited for an old timers' game here Monday night.

Maurice (Rocket) Richard, suspended from NHL play for the waning season, agreed Thursday to join his former mates, centre Elmer Lach and left wing Toe Blake on a composite Montreal-Toronto squad playing against former Ottawa district hockey greats.

The explosive right winger was suspended two weeks ago for striking a referee in a game at Boston. The suspension applied to Canadiens' last three scheduled games and the Stanley Cup playoffs.

Other Montreal greats in the game will include Hockey Senator Ken Reardon, Gerry McNeil, Pete Morin, Gerry Heffernan and Bud O'Connor.

From Toronto there will be Hank Goldup, Billy Taylor, Wally Stanowski, Roy Conacher, Harvey Jackson and W. K. (Buzz) McCreedy, Liberal member of Parliament for Parry Sound-Muskoka.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON

The Hibiter

Conventions are the best inventions for devilment. They are stark reveelers of special information that could be had no other way. If you take them at all, take them seriously.

Hold the south hand shown here:

♠K 8 4 3
♥A K J 8 6 4 2
♦K

The bidding starts off like this:

South	North
2 Hearts	4 Hearts

What is the picture you get of the hand held by your partner in the north? What is he trying to tell you? What is he expecting you to do about it? What should you do about it?

Your opening two bid is forcing to game. It asks partner to say at once whether or not he has a sure trick. This he can do with only a simple takeout, a simple assist, or a jump to three no-trump.

This showing of a sure trick is virtually an invitation to probe for a slam. Therefore, a jump takeout or jump assist by responder is not needed for this purpose. So, why did north jump assist?

He is denying a sure trick and promising strong jump support with side suit shortage. The inference is that he is inviting probe of slam despite the fact that he lacks a sure trick.

He is virtually saying: "If you can get along without an ace in my hand we can probably make a slam. So, look for slam in your suit if you have three aces or a couple of aces and a void."

You have that kind of a hand. The short suit your partner seems to be boasting about could be spades. If it is, slam is quite certain. It happens to be void in spades you could have a grand slam.

You could be disappointed, of course. His short suit might even be diamonds. But you cannot live a sheltered bridge life.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Saturday, April 2, 1955

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Simple tasks and simple truths are stressed now. Keep usefully busy and cheerful and you will find the day more than friendly, helpful. Don't shun hard jobs, either.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Unless new undertakings are immediately urgent, why not try to clear desk, home and schedule generally of unfinished tasks. Much can be gained by having clean slate for next week.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — A little sound initiative and some ambition can go far now. Keep flexible, desire for change within a reasonable scope and concentrate sufficiently on urgent tasks.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Ever try leaving a task for a few minutes if you become confused or too tired? Do so, and when you go back to the task it will have become easier and you will be freshly interested. Rays improved.

July 24 to August 23 — (Leo) — Industry, trades, domestic work, children's interests, chores, writing, study, teaching, research among top sponsored under this day's friendly outlook. Selling, buying, religious services honored.

August 24 to September 23 — (Virgo) — This should be an agreeable day for your specific talents, for activities for which you are trained or have liking. Avoid apprehension and wholeheartedly put your efforts into today's musts.

September 24 to October 23 — (Libra) — Better returns from your work and business efforts now. Maintain a calm, reasonable attitude to counteract minor obstacles which may appear suddenly. Don't become confused, too anxious.

October 24 to November 22 — (Scorpio) — Influences suggest taking things calmly but, at the same time, not procrastinating. You are at your best when not rushed at break-neck speed. Take duties in order, prepare for tomorrow and fare well.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — You may have to tune up your talents and ability and use more tact than usual but day is favoring for the earnest do-er, one who strives after purposeful attainment.

December 23 to January 21 — (Capricorn) — Though ambitious and eager to be up and doing today, do stop to plan your program wisely and save steps, time, energy. Today can be your day.

January 22 to February 20 — (Aquarius) — Advice to Capricorn helpful here. Be sure you do not waste time on unnecessary items and thus cheat more important matters of your attention.

February 21 to March 20 — (Pisces) — Heed Taurus and Cancer now. You can have fresh opportunities, benefits through your God-given gifts.

You born today, are versatile, bright, often clever, which does not mean you do not appreciate home and family, but rather that you love life, interesting places, activity. Rightly directed, your energy and ambitions could lead to a whole new world of wonderful accomplishments. Or you could just scatter your talents and misuse your vitalities. You must decide. Usually Aries are too level-headed to do aught but achieve, though sometimes they do wear down with forces. CRUSHED BY ELEVATOR

WORCESTER, Mass. (AP) — William Andropoulos, 67, a shortorder cook, was crushed to death Thursday night when caught in an elevator in the restaurant where he worked. Police said Andropoulos apparently pulled the wrong cord in the automatic elevator.

14 ATTEMPTS

BOSTON (AP) — David Pollard, 29, second-year steamfitter, has had his 14th bid to become a lawyer. The Massachusetts Supreme Court Thursday turned down his plea to be allowed to take an oral examination only to practice law. He contended his poor handwriting had hampered him in the written tests. In the last 30 years he has failed 13 times in the bar examinations.

Stirling

STIRLING — Owing to the snow storm and drifted roadways which tied up motor travel there were only two services held on Sunday afternoon at King George High School, Stirling. Few students were able to be in attendance in the forenoon.

Miss Geneva Wager, Fenelon Falls, spent a few days with her friend, Mrs. Sid Demorest and Mrs. Demorest.

Mrs. Earl Eggleton, press secretary of Stirling Women's Institute and Mrs. Jim Hough were overnight guests on Wednesday of Mr. and Mrs. Orval Graham, Picton, and attended the executive meeting and the evening session of three sessions of Belleville Presbyterial on Thursday at Picton United Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Heasman and Mrs. Ina Lee attended the funeral of the late Mrs. George E. Sherry, in Belleville, on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Brooks attended a Co-op banquet at Plainfield on Thursday evening.

Mrs. Clifford Lanning is confined to her home with a fractured shoulder and other bruises.

On Thursday afternoon a heavy gust of wind picked up a barn door, which had blown to the ground, and buried the door through the air striking Mrs. Lanning.

Messrs. John Kane, Phil Conley, Roy Bush, Glenn Bush, Claude Tucker and Roy Tucker spent Friday evening at Thomasburg.

Mrs. Ed. Heasman and her mother, Mrs. Lee, will entertain Silver Valley Women's Institute for its annual meeting on Thursday, April 7th. The election of officers and payment of dues will be the main items.

Mrs. George Carlisle, president St. Paul's Auxiliary; Mrs. Sid Williams, Mrs. Sam Elliott, Mrs. Will West, Mrs. Volney Richardson, Mrs. Arthur Jackson, Mrs. Herb David, Mrs. C. R. Brown attended the annual meeting of Lennox and Addington at Picton on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Bush entertained the Farm Forum last week and all enjoyed a potluck supper. The final session will be held this week at River Valley school house.

Mrs. Roy Bush, Mrs. Ross Holland, Mrs. Gerald Brooks and Mrs. George Heasman of River Valley Missionary Auxiliary, attended the Presbyterial meeting at Picton on Thursday last.

Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Dalrymple entertained the former's father over the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Conley recently entertained Mr. and Mrs. George Conley and Mrs. A. Figden, of Oshawa.

RUNAWAY TRAIN

TOKYO (AP) — A four - car electric train without engineer or passenger started rolling along a siding near Mount Fuji Thursday, roared down two miles of track at 25 miles an hour, smashed into a string of freight cars, broke electric poles, twisted tracks and disrupted train service for hours.

LEAVE FOR ARCTIC

LONDON (AP) — Another group of Soviet polar explorers left Moscow by air Thursday for the central Arctic, Moscow radio said. They will establish a base somewhere in the Arctic to be known as station No. 4 — near the North Pole. The locations were not pinpointed.

COL. McCORMICK

In a radio talk Aug. 23 that year McCormick proposed that a new party be formed. A Republican, he contended that too many Republicans were not represented by either Eisenhower or Adlai E. Stevenson, the Democratic presidential candidate.

That left them, he said, with "no place to go" politically.

No such new party has been formed thus far.

MANY POSITIONS

McCormick held these positions: Editor and publisher of the Chicago Tribune; chairman, vice-president and treasurer of the News Syndicate Co., published also of the New York Daily News; chairman, vice-president and treasurer of the Chicago Tribune-New York News Syndicate Inc., marketing agency for Tribune comics and features.

In addition, he was president of WGN, Inc., owner of radio station WGN and television station WGN-TV in Chicago.

He served as a director of The Associated Press from 1927 to 1948.

McCormick, who had no children, is survived by his second wife, the former Maryland Mathison Hooper. They were married Dec. 21, 1944. He also is survived by his niece, Mrs. Ruth McCormick Tankersley, who served as editor of the Washington Times-Herald for a two-year period.

Col. McCormick had broad business interests in Canada, dating back to 1910 when he first considered establishing a newsprint mill in Ontario. These interests, primarily in Ontario and Quebec, expanded to include newsprint and allied manufacturing, transportation, hydro development and forestry operations.

In 1911 he established Ontario Paper Co. Ltd., with head office at Thorold, Ont. The mill of the Thorold mill began producing newsprint in 1912.

Col. McCormick was president of Ontario Paper for many years and was recently chairman. He was vice-president of Quebec North Shore Paper Co. Ltd., president of the Quebec and Ontario Transportation Ltd., and vice-president of the Manicouagan Power Co. of Quebec.

EARLY DEVELOPMENT

Col. McCormick had a great deal to do with early development of natural resources in Quebec's north shore, which in recent years has become one of Canada's most promising mining areas.

In 1936, Col. McCormick and Canadian colleagues built their first Ontario community—Heron Bay—on the north shore of Lake Superior, about 200 miles east of Port Arthur. This community's area today supplies pulpwood for the Thorold mill and is the site of experimental forestry projects.

In the same year, construction was started on the community of Baie Comeau, near Sheltter Bay and Franquelin, where a newsprint mill was built to supply the New York News.

Col. McCormick authorized the expenditure of thousands of dollars in research and experimental work and today surrounding the Thorold mill are plants producing commercial yeast, industrial alcohol and vanillin from waste sulphite liquors.

His last major development in Canada was the 100,000-horsepower Manicouagan Power Co. plant west of Baie Comeau, on the north shore of the St. Lawrence.

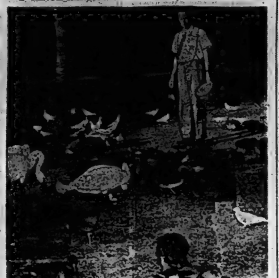
Hastings Farm Forum

The five forums reporting: River Valley, Melrose, Hazzard's, Foxboro and Brookside, for the discussion on "Safety on the Highway" gave the following reasons for highway accidents: Excessive speed; carelessness; wet pavements; ice; high grades; road-hogging; lack of courtesy; day-dreaming; irresponsible drivers; drinking drivers; fatigue; ignorance of rules of road; county roads too narrow, especially over hills and around corners; slow drivers as well as fast drivers, and pedestrians taking incalculable chances.

SOME REMEDIES



Some of the remedies: education for young people in driving safely; confiscation of licences of those who habitually appear in traffic court; periodical check on cars for mechanical defects; the careless pedestrian should be brought to court the same as the careless driver; walking on the highway at night without a light should be as serious an offence as the driver without lights; learn the rules of the road; periodic examination of drivers before licences are issued.

One forum suggests get rid of those high powered cars which only ask for trouble. There should be regulations by law that they can't travel over 50 miles per hour.

ANNOUNCES HOMING DEVICE

OTTAWA (CP)—Computing Devices of Canada Ltd., Thursday announced development of an instrument which enables a fighter pilot, by merely pressing a button, to find out immediately how far he is from an airfield and what direction to fly to reach it. The company said the instrument, known as a position and homing indicator, now is being tested by the RCAF, RAF and United States Air Force.

SCIENCE MARCHES ON AT BIRD SANCTUARY

Without knowing it, these birds being fed here by Manly Miner, son of Jack Miner, who founded famous bird sanctuary north of Kingsville, Ont., are among thousands contributing some flying time each day in the cause of science. They are the chief actors in Operation Wood Duck, which is being undertaken for the first time by the Canadian Defence Research board to determine the effects of birds on radar screens. The Miner sanctuary was chosen because of the tens of thousands of geese and ducks which seek refuge on farm on their annual flight to Canada's Arctic regions.—Central Press Canadian.

CNR President Says Outlook Better in '55

OTTAWA (CP) — Annual accounts of Trans-Canada Air Lines today come under the scrutiny of the Commons railway committee, which has given its OK to the 1954 and 1955 financial figures of another publicly-owned company, the Canadian National Railways.

The committee, after three days of examination, Thursday night approved the 1954 annual report of the CNR with its $28,700,000 deficit and its budget for the current year that forecasts a nominal surplus of $500,000.

Today, it will go into the financial figures of TCA, whose monetary affairs have been looking up while the CNR has been hit by a general slump in rail revenues.

Thursday, CNR President Donald Gordon told the committee that the 1955 outlook for the railway is better than last year.

BETTER ON NET

He said the company at the moment is doing better, on its net, than at this time in 1954 and hopes that in the long run it can get away from its traditional financial position.

In the two years before 1954, it had two small surpluses, engendered by a parliamentary writedown of its old debts. But a traffic slump threw it back into the red ink last year.

Mr. Gordon also said employment on the CNR—Canada's largest employer apart from the federal government—probably will be down this year from 1954. He did not look for more layoffs but believed there would be less seasonal hiring.

Owing to the severe snow storm and windy weather the up flow has been very scant, but here's hoping it has changed for this season.

6th Sidney

6TH SIDNEY — Wednesday evening dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Sine were: Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Defoe, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Phillips, Mr. and Mrs. Edison Sine and girls, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Defoe and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Defoe.

The storm is the big news this week. Owing to the blocked roads the church service was withdrawn and the schools closed.

Some from here attended the group leaders of the Quinte Medical Co-op supper meeting in Plainfield Orange Hall on Friday evening.

Miss Georgina Berns spent last week with her sister, Mrs. Carl Rose and Mr. Rose.

Mr. and Mrs. Ken Faul spent the week-end in Toronto.

Mrs. Alton Sine and Betty called on Mrs. Morton, Belleville, recently.

Tuesday Said Day Churchill Will Relinquish Post

Only Queen Will Hear His Words of Resignation

By DAVE MASON

LONDON (AP)—Opinion hardened in Britain today that Winston Churchill will step down as prime minister next week—perhaps Tuesday.

But there still has been no official word on the 80-year-old government leader's plans, and none is expected until such a time as Churchill formally gives up the government reins.

The authoritative news agency, Press Association, says "there is now every reason to believe that on Tuesday Sir Winston Churchill will drive from 10 Downing street to Buckingham Palace where he will place his resignation as prime minister in the hands of the Queen."

"ONLY FEW DAYS"

The Independent newspaper, The Economist, a man-in-the-street . . . Churchill has avoided any direct answer to parliamentary questions about his retirement with such puckish assiduity that it is now more widely assumed in view of that his retirement is only a few days off."

On Monday night the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh will dine with Churchill at official functions ing street residence. Many expect the dinner to be Churchill's "farewell party."

According to tradition, the sovereign alone hears the prime minister's official words of resignation.

Should Churchill place his resignation in the Queen's hands, it is firmly believed he would advise her at once to send for Foreign Secretary Eden and appoint him prime minister.

STAY IN COMMONS?

"Perhaps," says Press Association parliamentary correspondent, "as Sir Winston's car leaves the palace, he will pass Sir Anthony's car coming in."

Most observers believe that if Churchill decides to resign as prime minister he will not leave the House of Commons, but continue in his other capacity — as "elder statesman" in Parliament.

There has been some private speculation that Churchill will hold up his resignation until the London newspaper strike is settled. But early settlement of the wage strike appears remote following Friday's breakdown of a 10-hour negotiation session.

Drew Says West Must Be Ready For Any Dangers

Rearming W. Germany Presents Problems

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Drew says reunification of East and West Germany is constantly in the minds of Germans and the West must be prepared to meet the dangers of rearming West Germany.

Rearmament is a bold and necessary step, Mr. Drew said in the Commons Friday.

But West German forces to be formed under the Paris agreements should be watched closely by Allied staff officers to guard against any attempt at remilitying Germany by force.

There should be a clear definition now of agreements to meet emergencies.

POSSIBLE EMERGENCY

Mr. Drew suggested one possible emergency — a recurrence of the 1953 riots in East Germany in which Russian forces intervened. There might be a different outcome if West Germans were armed.

As West Germany adds a not a clear public conception of what Germans regard as reunification. Germans in Berlin were told of nine "lost provinces" in the East which are part of Germany. Thus an attempt at forceful reunification might lead to a Russian attack and start World War III.

"Evidence are the kind of realities we must face if we are to hac peace," Mr. Drew said. "If there are any questions I could refer to great trouble."

He was more than an hour as an external affairs debate, which began March 24, resumed its course.

FIRST SINCE ILLNESS

It was his first major Commons speech since he was carried to the chamber in February after recovering from an extended illness which kept him absent from the Commons' earlier debate on natiwhich began March 24, resumed its course.

He said the recent French ratification of the agreements was a great and gladdening sign of friendship. The West should extend friendship but also be frank in pointing out issues while there still is time to face them.

He saw no short cut to peace. A Soviet invitation for a group of parliamentarians to visit Russia and discussed briefly at the start of the day's sitting.

Commons Affairs Minister Fearson said Canada would welcome any genuine move to end cold war propaganda — contacts with Russia. There was a danger, however, that could be such a visit by Canadian MPs but Canada should be cautious.

Mr. Drew said he hopes such an exchange visit would be arranged at a two-way move might show visiting Communists weaknesses in Canada's way of life and establish more firmly the democratic beliefs of Canadians visiting the Soviet Union.

A. M. Nicholson (CCF)—Mackenzie's successor Minister St. Laurent, Mr. Pearson and all three opposition leaders, Messrs. Drew and the four women members of the Commons, should go to Russia.

Mr. Drew's suggestion of Formosa was a main topic in the foreign policy debate.

ABOARD THE FIRST ATOM SUBMARINE

This is one of the first photos released by the U.S. navy showing the men who operate the Nautilus, first nuclear-powered submarine, as it gets under way at Groton, Conn. German Treaties Through Senate In Record Time

Smashing 76-2 Vote After Short Debate

By ROWLAND EVANS Jr.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The German rearmament treaties moved through the United States Senate "probably in faster time than any major treaty in recent times," a staff aide said today.

Dr. Francis Wilcox, chief of the foreign relations committee staff, gave this appraisal of the four-day span which saw the committee start hearings Tuesday, report Thursday, and bring them up for a smashing 76-to-2 approval by the Senate after only three hours of debate Friday.

The two pacts give the West German Republic sovereignty, the right to rearm and membership in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. They may play a significant role in the future.

Why, then, did the Senate dispose of them so quickly?

AGREED EARLIER

The major reason is that the Senate had already receded itself as overwhelmingly in favor of rearmed Germany before the new treaties ever came before it.

Back in 1952, the Senate held lengthy hearings on somewhat similar treaties setting up the Bonn organization. They may play a significant role in the future.

Another reason for speed was the Eisenhower administration's hope that it could head off Senate approval to show Western Europe the earnest and continuing American interest in the problem of the Western European defence system.

Most of the countries whose approval is required have already acted. Still to come, but expected without delay, are final actions by the Netherlands, Belgium, Luxembourg and Denmark.

Peiping Charges American Planes Flew Over China

Maintain Borders Violated By Four Groups on Friday

TOKYO (AP) — Peiping radio charged tonight that 18 American planes in four groups violated Red China's boundaries Friday.

A Chinese - language broadcast heard in Tokyo said "the Chinese people are now watching with anxious consideration the progress of such provocations."

The broadcast said Red Chinese planes pursued United States planes which flew over Chiao Tung, Lai Yang and "other places in Shantung province." The three American planes escaped eastward."

Lake Ontario Rescue Service Is Proposed

PORT CREDIT (CP)—The first step toward organizing an international air-water rescue service for western Lake Ontario was taken here last night at a meeting of yachtsmen, police, U. S. Air Force and Coast Guard representatives.

They agreed to form a committee under the chairmanship of William Robertson of Port Credit to examine the establishment of a network of rescue services from Buffalo around the lakeshore to Oshawa in a 24-hour radio communication.

The organization may base future searching operations for planes, ships or small craft in distress on the U. S. Coast Guard search grid.

Capt. Thomas Shepard, commanding officer of a U. S. air-sea rescue unit at Youngstown, N. Y., offered the facilities of two powerful radar-equipped, crash rescue boats. He said they will go any where in Lake Ontario in any weather or sea emergency call.

He emphasized that an established emergency system was necessary to be sure that any appeal for help should come through the local body such as the Ontario Provincial Police.

Cmdr. C. A. Hargrove, commander of the Buffalo Coast Guard station, said yachtsmen could perform a great service through educating lake users on the need for seaworthy craft which are properly equipped for emergencies.

He said also that while the U. S. Coast Guard is on the job and just would continue to give emergency assistance, international complications sometime arose.

160 Charges Of Tax Evasion Filed by Govt.

ST. BONIFACE, Man. (CP)— Directors of three St. Boniface firms pleaded guilty in court Friday to a total of 160 charges under the Income Tax Act involving tax-evasion and making false returns.

Magistrate Henri Lacerte remanded them until Tuesday for sentence. Reading of the charges was waived.

The charges were laid by the department of national revenue against three companies—St. Boniface Abattoir Ltd., St. Boniface Hide and Fur Ltd. and Ste. Agathe, Fainstein and Trepel Ltd.

Charges involved a total of $721,695 which the revenue department alleged was due to it in income war tax, income tax and excess profits tax over a period of 11 years.

Crown counsel G. R. Hunter told court he was informed by revenue department officials that it was the largest tax evasion case yet brought before the courts in Canada. He said the complete figure, taxes and interest, would be about $1,200,000.

Members Leave For Tour Of South Asia

OTTAWA (CP)—Thirty-four staff and student members of the National Defence College leave today for a two-month overseas tour which will take some of them into South Asia, the army said Friday.

They will visit the United Kingdom and France, then split into two groups. One will visit western Europe, the other the Middle East and South Asia. Among countries to be visited West Germany, Greece, Turkey, Italy, Pakistan and India.

The tour is one of a series arranged annually to provide students with first-hand knowledge of conditions in other countries. The party, to be accompanied by Maj.-Gen. J. D. B. Smith, commandant of the college at Kingston, will return to Canada in early June.

Two Accidents Kill 4 Persons; Two More Drown

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Two double fatalities were among six violent deaths which occurred in Ontario Friday. In addition, to the four highway deaths, two children were drowned.

Near Burlington, Nelson township farmer Harold Alton, 39, and a companion, Jean Brabant, 23, was killed on the Queen Elizabeth way when their car collided with a transport.

North of Streetsville 20 miles west of Toronto, Charles M. O'Neill, 40, and his passenger, Mrs. Margaret Carr, 67, both of Streetsville, died and five others were injured in two cars collided at an unmarked intersection.

TWO DROWN IN DITCHES

At Sudbury, Raymond Barbeau, 2½-year-old McKim township boy, was drowned after he apparently fell into a water-filled roadside ditch. A similar accident occurred at Lindsay where Patricia Kiely, 2, slipped into a ditch and drowned near her farm home.

Miss Brabant, killed at Burlington, moved to Hamilton from Timmins two years ago. She is survived by her mother, Mrs. Alvina Brabant, three brothers, Fernand and Serge of Timmins and Jacques and three sisters, including Mrs. Dolores Sapinski, and Mrs. Lillian Hickey, both of Hamilton.

Her body was identified by her brother-in-law, Murray Wilmott, of Burlington, after it lay in a morgue nearly all day. An inquest will be held.

At Streetsville the elderly man and woman were thrown from their station wagon and crushed to death under its wheels.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO— (CP) — Synopsis: Cooler air that has covered northern Ontario for the past 24 hours is pushing slowly southward and is expected to cover most of the Great Lakes region tonight before retreating eastwards Sunday. Patches of cloud mark the edge of this colder air.

Drew Says West Must Be Ready For Any Dangers

Rearming W. Germany Presents Problems

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Drew says reunification of East and West Germany is constantly in the minds of Germans and the West must be prepared to meet the dangers of rearming West Germany.

Rearmament is a bold and necessary step, Mr. Drew said in the Commons Friday.

But West German forces to be formed under the Paris agreements should be watched closely by Allied staff officers to guard against any attempt at remilitying Germany by force.

There should be a clear definition now of agreements to meet emergencies.

POSSIBLE EMERGENCY

Mr. Drew suggested one possible emergency — a recurrence of the 1953 riots in East Germany in which Russian forces intervened. There might be a different outcome if West Germans were armed.

As West Germany adds a not a clear public conception of what Germans regard as reunification. Germans in Berlin were told of nine "lost provinces" in the East which are part of Germany. Thus an attempt at forceful reunification might lead to a Russian attack and start World War III.

"Evidence are the kind of realities we must face if we are to hac peace," Mr. Drew said. "If there are any questions I could refer to great trouble."

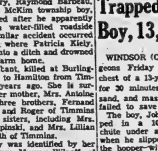
He was more than an hour as an external affairs debate, which began March 24, resumed its course.

FIRST SINCE ILLNESS

It was his first major Commons speech since he was carried to the chamber in February after recovering from an extended illness which kept him absent from the Commons' earlier debate on natiwhich began March 24, resumed its course.

He said the recent French ratification of the agreements was a great and gladdening sign of friendship. The West should extend friendship but also be frank in pointing out issues while there still is time to face them.

He saw no short cut to peace. A Soviet invitation for a group of parliamentarians to visit Russia and discussed briefly at the start of the day's sitting.



Commons Affairs Minister Fearson said Canada would welcome any genuine move to end cold war propaganda — contacts with Russia. There was a danger, however, that could be such a visit by Canadian MPs but Canada should be cautious.

Mr. Drew said he hopes such an exchange visit would be arranged at a two-way move might show visiting Communists weaknesses in Canada's way of life and establish more firmly the democratic beliefs of Canadians visiting the Soviet Union.

A. M. Nicholson (CCF)—Mackenzie's successor Minister St. Laurent, Mr. Pearson and all three opposition leaders, Messrs. Drew and the four women members of the Commons, should go to Russia.

Mr. Drew's suggestion of Formosa was a main topic in the foreign policy debate.

Trapped in Narrow Loading Chute, Boy, 13, Is Smothered by Tons of Sand

WINDSOR (CP)—A team of surgeons Friday night opened the chest of a 13-year-old boy, Buried for 30 minutes under 10 tons of sand, and massaged his heart but failed to save his life.

The boy, John Black, was trapped in a narrow 3-foot-square chute under a sand-filled hopper when he slipped while playing in the hopper with two companions.

He was pulled through the sand by his feet after his body had been dug out frantically with shovels by their companions 30 minutes.

He was taken to hospital, where doctors worked on him for more than an hour before he was pronounced dead. Two doctors massaged his heart for several minutes in an effort to start it beating naturally, but said it had been stopped too long.

Several onlookers, including the boy's brother, John Black Sr., helped police and firemen as they dug into the shifting tons of sand in an effort to free the boy.

He was finally pulled through the chute after men working beneath the small opening managed to grab his legs and work him through.

The father stood by helplessly clenching his fists while the boy was placed in the ambulance to be taken to hospital. The mother was not present at the time.

Police said the boy was playing on top of the hopper with two companions, Fredrick Sander, 13, and John Knight, 13.

Sander said he slipped into the hopper while he was playing, and fell into the mouth of the chute. He managed to lift himself from the sand, it started to cave in over top of him. When the boy stopped moving, the boy was buried beneath several feet of it, they said.

One of his companions said the boy was buried "before we could even move."

"We were playing up there in the sand, when Johnny just fell in so we couldn't seem him," Billy Boehner said. "We tried to get him out but the sand kept falling in faster than we could dig.

"It kept covering his face and we couldn't push it away. Then we ran for help."

List 327 Dead and 254 Hurt In Earthquakes in Philippines

By HENRY HARTZENBUSCH

DANSALAN CITY, Philippines (AP)—Lanao provincial officials today listed 327 persons dead, 254 injured and tremendous damage in the wake of Friday's disastrous earthquake in the southern Philippines.

Loss damage alone in the corn-growing region of Lake Lanao was estimated at 85,000,000 pesos.

The largest death toll apparently was in the Lake Lanao area, where a quake-caused tidal wave swept away hundreds of homes and inundated waterfront areas.

Earlier reports, pieced together from accounts by the Philippine Red Cross, Philippine news service and various officials in the area, had listed nearly 200 dead, 100 missing and at least 2,000 injured.

Uncounted thousands are homeless.

Disrupted communications have restored only a trickling of the tragic details of the mighty earth quakes, but even so they present a picture of widespread destruction and suffering.

President Ramon Magsaysay flew to the area today.

Heaviest of the shocks, which continued nearly eight hours, shattered cities and villages bordering the western half of Lake Lanao, in northwestern Mindanao, and iligan City on the island's north coast.

Yawing cracks split highways. Bridges were twisted. Churches, public buildings and houses collapsed—some of them sliding into Lake Lanao.

The Philippine constabulary reported the waters of Lake Lanao dropped three or four feet, apparently drained by a fissure on its floor. The lake is about 20 miles long and 10 miles wide.

Charles R. Burrows, U.S. embassy charge d'affaires, called it a "disaster of major proportions." Quakers were the most intense on record in the southern Philippines.

Says Constable Asked Him to Get Safe Combination

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—A crown witness said Friday a former London township police constable directed him to get the combinations of a supermarket safe last month by the best means possible.

Francis J. Morrow, 19, of nearby Lambeth told the court he and Clarence Hawkshaw, 31, engineered plans to rob a London cafeteria here. Morrow said Hawkshaw gave him a police billy club, a call of cartridges and $2 to buy a cutter.

Morrow testified at the preliminary in a jig of Hawkshaw, charged with conspiring to break into the safe and attempted theft the March 4 backjack-beating of Mrs. Stanley Orr, 35, whose burglar manager of the groceteria.

"I was to get the combination from Mr. Orr by the best means possible," he said.

CROWN QUESTION

Asked by Crown attorney Claude C. Savage what he meant, Morrow replied: "More or less pry it out of him."

"How do you mean, 'pry'?"

"I was to use my billy club."

The hearing was adjourned until Tuesday.

Earlier Friday, Morrow and John C. Swanson, 19, of London were committed to stand trial, at the next court assizes on a joint charge of assault in the beating of Mrs. Orr. Swanson, of three, her home in nearby Byron, Morrow is also charged on the conspiracy count.

Mrs. Ogg, who identified Morrow and Swanson as the two men who forced their way into her home, testified at the preliminary hearing of the two youths:

"I was going to shut the door but Swanson had a gun and pointed at me and told me to go back into the house."

SUES FOR GOLF INJURY

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—A retired auto manufacturing executive wants $150,450 damages for injuries he said he suffered when a golf ball hit by actor Jack Carson struck him. Lewis E. Fiske, 74, said the ball hit him Feb. 6, 1954, at the Desert Inn Country Club course. He named the former Carson, Man., comedian and the Desert Inn as defendants.

Trenton Dakota Joins Hunt For Missing Plane

WINNIPEG (CP) — Two RCAF Dakotas head out today over the wilderness of northwestern Ontario in search of a Central Northern Airways plane missing with two men.

The search planes, one from Winnipeg and the other from Trenton, Ont., will scour the area between Winisk on the southwest shore of Hudson bay and Trout lake, 215 miles southwest, for the Bellanca airbus which carried a pilot and an engineer, who haven't been identified. A CNA Norseman also is scheduled to join the search.

The Bellanca, used for freighting, left Winisk early Friday on the 2½-hour flight to Trout lake, about 300 miles northeast of Winnipeg. Nothing has been heard from it since.

India Expected To Relax Ban On Monkey Sales

TORONTO (CP)—Officials of the Connaught medical laboratories, attached to the University of Toronto has been an important unit in the program of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis in New York in the production of the Salk vaccine used in the fight on polio, said Friday they believe an early relaxation will be arranged and the federal government ban on export of monkeys for polio research purposes will be decreased. Supplies of supply will be developed.

Dr. R. D. Defries, director of the Connaught laboratories, said: "We are not unduly alarmed by the report that export of monkeys has been placed under an embargo by the government in India. As a matter of fact, at this time of the year there always has been a restriction of the supply of monkeys from India because of seasonal conditions. We are hopeful that the matter will be ironed out soon."

Attempt to Prevent Guelph Plant Strike

GUELPH (CP)—Company and union officials will meet Monday in Toronto in an attempt to avert conciliation officer for the Ontario labor department, to attempt a settlement of the threatened strike at the Canadian General Electric plant here.

The deadline for the walkout was set at 4 p.m., Friday by the United Electrical Workers (Ind.) in a strike vote Friday by members of the plant. The meeting with Mr. Fine has been arranged for 1:30 p.m.

DENT GAMBLING LICENCE

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP)—Nevada Tax Commissioner Jack Dent Friday denied a state gambling licence to movie actress Ava Gardner. She had sought to buy a two-per-cent interest for $63,000 in the Last Frontier Hotel in Las Vegas, owned by gangster Bugsy Siegel before he was shot in Beverly Hills, Calif., about four years ago. The commission turned down the application on the background does not warrant his entering Nevada gambling."

Whole New Class of "Hypnotic" Drugs Reported to Chemical Assoc.

CINCINNATI (AP) — Progress towards possible development of a whole new class of "hypnotic" drugs that would be safer to use than barbiturates was reported by scientists who have compounds forming—sacrolites, yet packing plenty of sleep-inducing power, Dr. Seymour L. Shapiro told the American Chemical Society's 127th national meeting.

Dr. Seymour L. Shapiro of the U.S. Vitamin Corp. said presumably they meet the requirements for science's long-sought "ideal" hypnotic drug, in that it is non-habit-forming, and hasn't some of the disagreeable after-effects often associated with use of narcotics or barbiturates.

But it is had the major drawback of requiring "very large dosag," and its use had virtually been abandoned.

However, a few years ago, Shapiro continued, some chemists discovered that by replacing one group' of atoms in the Tertiary Amyl Alcohol molecule with a different one, they compounds produced which had "considerable hypnotic power, but with a new original, and relatively few side effects. Also, the dose was cut considerably.

This led Shapiro and his associates to study the effect of still further configurations. They found that various groups of atoms could be added, and that best results were obtained when two were added at the same time.

Now, said Shapiro, they have a "very large" group of compounds, some of which have a wider range of safety from toxicity at effective treatment levels than the original TAA; all produce hypnotic effects at far lower does and some produce "a more prolonged sleep" in experimental animals.

But he stressed that all of these newer compounds are still in the experimental stage.

Peiping Charges American Planes Flew Over China

Maintain Borders Violated By Four Groups on Friday

TOKYO (AP) — Peiping radio charged tonight that 18 American planes in four groups violated Red China's boundaries Friday.

A Chinese - language broadcast heard in Tokyo said "the Chinese people are now watching with anxious consideration the progress of such provocations."

The broadcast said Red Chinese planes pursued United States planes which flew over Chiao Tung, Lai Yang and "other places in Shantung province." The three American planes escaped eastward."

Lake Ontario Rescue Service Is Proposed

PORT CREDIT (CP)—The first step toward organizing an international air-water rescue service for western Lake Ontario was taken here last night at a meeting of yachtsmen, police, U. S. Air Force and Coast Guard representatives.

They agreed to form a committee under the chairmanship of William Robertson of Port Credit to examine the establishment of a network of rescue services from Buffalo around the lakeshore to Oshawa in a 24-hour radio communication.

The organization may base future searching operations for planes, ships or small craft in distress on the U. S. Coast Guard search grid.

Capt. Thomas Shepard, commanding officer of a U. S. air-sea rescue unit at Youngstown, N. Y., offered the facilities of two powerful radar-equipped, crash rescue boats. He said they will go any where in Lake Ontario in any weather or sea emergency call.

He emphasized that an established emergency system was necessary to be sure that any appeal for help should come through the local body such as the Ontario Provincial Police.

Cmdr. C. A. Hargrove, commander of the Buffalo Coast Guard station, said yachtsmen could perform a great service through educating lake users on the need for seaworthy craft which are properly equipped for emergencies.

He said also that while the U. S. Coast Guard is on the job and just would continue to give emergency assistance, international complications sometime arose.

Quebec Village Receives Food After 12 Days

STE. CROIX DE LOTBINIERE, Que. (CP)—Twelve days of snowbound confinement have ended for the winter-weary residents of Ste. Croix.

By today, the worst storms of the century in the St. Lawrence river town were a fast-fading memory for the 1,500 townsfolk as they finally began to put their affairs in order and revel in a return to normal times.

For Ste. Croix, normal times are symbolized by nine miles of open road between the village and Lotbiniere Station, and daily deliveries of the long-missing fresh fruit and vegetables, milk, bread, coal, cigarets and the hundred - and - one other things the villagers have been doing without or sharing among themselves since March 21.

That day the brushed aside the last drift on the Ste. Croix-Laurier road at noon and by Friday night trucks were bouncing over the dangerous stretch that carried the road to bring in fuel and supplies.

J.D. Luscombe New Member Of Funeral Home

The Pinkston Funeral Home, operated since 1907 by Orland Pinkston, will now be known as the Pinkston and Luscombe Funeral Home as Mr. Luscombe was taken into the business this week. The business was purchased by Mr. Pinkston from Tickell and Browne in that year.

Mr. Luscombe, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. Luscombe, was educated in the city and is a graduate of the collegiate. He has been associated with the Funeral Home since 1950 and attended the Canadian School of Embalming at the Bantling Institute in Toronto. He graduated in 1953 as a licensed embalmer and funeral director and while studying served on the staff of a Toronto funeral home.

The new proprietor, with Mr. Pinkston, is a member of Bethel Hall and most active in the work of the Y's Men's Club and the Theatre Guild. He has made a wide circle of friends in the city and district and will be a welcome addition to the business life of this community.

Police Blotter

City and provincial police had their hands full Friday night dealing with persons charged with the Liquor Control Act regulations, with over half a dozen men being rounded up for different infractions of the Act.

City police rounded up three men in one group, two of whom attempted to make a getaway on arrival at the police station. They were booked on drunk charges and the other for having liquor in his possession at a place other than his residence.

A Brampton truck driver reported by provincial police to be "all over the road" was apprehended by city police and lodged in the police cells. He was charged for having liquor in his possession and also for being without a driver's permit.

Provincial police rounded up two men on LCA charges, and also held a Montreal man wanted in that city for non-support.

Horizontal Conveyor Belt, Two Miles Long, Built And Installed by Stephens-Adamson

The longest horizontal conveyor belt in the world will go into operation within six months at Wabana Iron Mines property on rocky Bell Island, replacing a fleet of 24-ton trucks hauling iron ore from the pithead to a nearby port.

The belt, manufactured and installed by the Stephens-Adamson Manufacturing Co. of Canada Ltd., will be two miles long. The $3,000,000 surface project being carried out by Wabana will completely change the method of conveyance at the company's property since air miles from St. Johns, Newfoundland. The conveyor, running from the pithead, will dump ore into the holds of freighters hugging the 230-foot cliffs of a deep bay two miles away. The freighters will carry Wabana's ore to Canadian and European markets which have contracted to buy the bulk of the company's production for the next seven years.

When the new surface program is completed, including completion of a new concentrating plant, some 300 miners, about one quarter of the total working force, will return to work.

G. A. Freeman, general manager of Stephens - Adamson, said Friday that his company not only fabricated the conveyor, but is installing it as well.

"We do not usually do the foundation work," he said, "but in this case we are doing the whole job."

Stephens-Adamson also built and installed a three-mile long inclined conveyor at Wabana a few years ago. This inclined conveyor is the longest in the world.

In A. Forsyth, president of Dominion Steel and Coal Co. which controls Wabana, told The Canadian Press that the mine's entire production had been contracted for the next seven years and 85 per cent of production for an additional five years.

Within the last four years production at Wabana has increased from 1,800,000 tons to 2,800,000 largely because of the introduction of new equipment and new methods.

Spring Weather Increases Size Of Market Here

Bright spring weather brought out increased numbers of vendors and purchasers to the Belleville market today.

Maple syrup was the principal offering on the outside market with vendors quoting the customary $3.50 per gallon and $1.50 per quart. Plate were 72c and bulging sugar fetched 15c per cake. Vendors reported the sap season was getting along fairly well and with the sap run being somewhat below normal so far this season.

On the inside market eggs sold at 47c for firsts with mediums bringing 42c per dozen. Fowl sold at 40c with chickens bringing 50c per lb.

There was a good offering of apples with top grade Spys and Delicious bringing $3.50 per hamper or 80c per basket. Mcintosh and Sweets sold at 75c per basket and Ben Davis at 50c per basket.

Potatoes were $3 per 75-lb. bag or 30 cents per basket. Spanish onions sold at $1.25 per basket and cooking onions 75c. Beans were 50c per qt.; fancy local carrots 25c per gallon; parsnips 35c per gal. and local turnips were a dime per bunch or three for 25c.

Spring flowers made their appearance on the market with hothouse quots of daffodils, tulips and narcissus and hyacinths being offered.

Smelts were 40c per lb.

Coal Never Delivered

MONTREAL (CP)—Five more persons were arraigned Friday on charges of defrauding the federal government of $77,000 in connection with a 10½-year alleged coal stealin racket in Quebec.

This brought to 13 the number arraigned in the last two days on charges of theft, fraud and conspiracy, resulting from a nine-month investigation by the RCMP.

RCMP officers said as much as 13,000,000 pounds of coal was paid for but never delivered to such federal agencies as post offices and the defence department.

Presidents' Night Is Held By Y's Men

Over 100 members of the Y'S Men's Club, their wives and guests, attended the annual dinner on "Presidents' Night" last Thursday evening at the Y.M.C.A. Among those attending were presidents of the Lions' Club, the Kinsmen's Club, the Rotary Club and the Kinette Club with their wives as guests.

Following the dinner, the incoming officers for the 1955-56 took place with Willis Hutcheson, as president Scott Denton, as vice-president Don Moorman, as secretary, and Ross Booth as treasurer.

GUEST SPEAKER

The guest speaker for the evening was Gordon H. Stow, of Lansing, Michigan, international president of Y's Men's Clubs, and well-known architect.

His address was both interesting and informative as he told of his experiences in "Y'dom"; of the work of the new clubs in many parts of the world; urging as he did at each, the Y's Men continue in display industry and initiative in the service projects of the Y's Men's Club, and support of the Y.M.C.A. the foster parent.

He advised the ladies to be tolerant with their Y's Men husbands who spent considerable time on club work.

Mr. Stow was thanked by Mr. Ross Booth for his fine address.

Awards for perfect attendance were also presented, and a singsong with a musical number by Ron Elmy was enjoyed.

The evening ended with two hours of dancing.

Obituary

"BERTIE" WAITE (Getmaky)

"Bertie" Waite, a former resident of Belleville, died suddenly at his home in Grimsby, Friday, April 1st. He was in his 65th year.

The deceased was born in Rawdon, near Leedy, England. He was of the late Mr. and Mrs. Holden Waite, and lived in Belleville, Sudbury and Kingston prior to moving to Grimsby two years ago.

"Bertie" Waite was employed in Canada in 1911 and for a time worked at McLaughlin Motors Ltd. age in Belleville. In 1914 he joined the 34th Battery and served overseas. On his return to Canada he was employed as an X-ray technician on the staff of the Mowat hospital. Later he entered the government service as a technician.

He is survived by his wife, the former Ethel Combes; two sisters, Mrs. Mary Jane Edmondson, Toronto; Mrs. Ida Roach, of England, and a brother, Herbert Waite, of Belleville.

Resting at the Grant Funeral Home. The funeral announcement appears elsewhere in this edition.

WILLIAM JAMES HICKERSON (Announcement)

William James Hickerson, a lifelong resident of Ameliasburg district, died in the Belleville General Hospital, Saturday morning, April 2nd, after a brief illness, four weeks' duration. He was in his 85th year.

The deceased was born in Mountain View, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hickerson.

He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Pearl Henry of Toronto and Mrs. Rosport (Gladys) Wall of Cobourg and two sons, Jesse of Maynooth and Blanche of Toronto. He was predeceased by his wife, the former Lillian M. McNabb.

He was a member of the United Church.

Resting at the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home. The funeral announcement appears elsewhere in this edition.

PERCY CLAUDE BARNETT (Tweed)

TWEED — Percy Claude Barnett, a grocer in Tweed for 60 years, died in the Belleville General Hospital, Saturday morning, April 2nd, after being in failing health for the past three years. He was in his 76th year.

The deceased was born in Athens, Ontario, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Clinton Barnett, and lived in Greenwood until he was ten years of age when the family established a grocery business in Tweed. He started working in the family store at the age of ten and was active in the business until recently when ill health prevented him from working.

He is survived by his wife, the former Bessie Hudgins; two son, Don, of Dorval, P.Q., and Wilfred of Tweed, and three daughters, Mrs. Arthur (Dorothy) Leman, of Richmond Hill, and Mrs. Walter (Barbara) Dobson, of Toronto, and one sister, Mrs. C. H. Kerr, of Toronto. He was predeceased by his only brother in 1935.

The deceased was a member of St. John's United Church, Tweed, and was an elder of the church, a member of the Official Board, and was a member of the Board of Stewards and chief usher for many years.

He was a member of the Tweed volunteer fire brigade for more than 40 years and was fire chief for many years.

Resting at his late residence, Tweed. The funeral announcement appears elsewhere in this edition.

3 Cars Stolen Friday Night

Auto thieves were active in Belleville and district during the night with two cars being reported stolen in the city and one in Tyendinaga township.

Thomas Thompson, 12 Holden Street, reported that during the night his car had been stolen from in front of his house, while Jerry Hannah, 141 William St., reported that his 1951 model sedan was stolen from near the Kiwanis Centre.

In Tyendinaga township Harry Davis, 3 concession, reported to Provincial Police that his car had been taken during the night. And, worse luck, the car contained about $65 went with the wind.

11 HORSES BURNED

AURORA, Ill. (AP) — Thirteen horses were known to have perished to death Friday night in a fire at Aurora Downs, a one-mile track five miles north of Aurora. One 18-stall barn was destroyed. Cause of the fire was not determined. Loss was estimated at $80,000 to $100,000 by owners.

IN MEMORIAM

BUREAW.—In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Nelson Thomas Bureaw, who passed away April 3rd, 1954.
Lovingly remembered in all his ways,
Upright and just a life-end of his days.
Sincere and true in his heart and mind,
Beautiful memories he left behind.
—Sadly missed by wife and family.

GOYER.—In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather, Francis Augustus Goyer, who passed away April 2nd, 1952.
We have only your memory, dear father,
To treasure.
To a loving husband and father we loved,
But the sweetness will linger forever
In memories enshrined in our hearts.
—Sadly missed and never forgotten.
—Wife, Children and Grandchildren. A3

GOYER.—In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Frank Goyer, who passed away April 2nd, 1952.
Just when your life was brightest
Just when your years were best;
You were called from this world of sorrow
To a home of eternal rest.
—Sadly missed and ever remembered by his wife, and son Gerry. A3

GOYER.—In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather, Frank Goyer, who passed away April 2nd, 1952.
He had a cheery smile, a pleasant way
A helping hand for all he met.
He was so kind, so generous and true.
The best friend he had his last.
Grant him, Jesus, heavenly rest.
—Ever lovingly remembered by Bill, Bernadette, Paul and Frankie.

GOYER.—In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather, Frank Augustus Goyer, who passed away April 2nd, 1952.
His memories were sad smiling face
Are a pleasure to recall
As dearly loved by us as he was dear
And died beyond recall.
—Ever remembered by Vera, Emily, Ann and Gerald. A3

GOYER.—In loving memory of a dear father, Francis Augustus Goyer, who passed away April 2nd, 1952.
Your presence is ever near us,
Your love remains as dear as ever yet;
You were the kind of a father
The kindest ones would never forget.
—Always remembered by daughter and son-in-law, Gwen and Jack. A3

Stories of Famous Hymns

by HORACE B. POWELL

JOY TO THE WORLD!

Let every heart prepare Him room
Let earth receive her King;
Let every heart prepare him room,
And heaven and nature sing.

Joy to the world! the Saviour reigns;
Let men their songs employ;
While fields and floods, rocks, hills, and plains,
Repeat the sounding joy.

He rules the world with truth and grace,
And makes the nations prove
The glories of His righteousness
And wonders of His love.

Of all the songs of Christmas none expresses the joy of the Advent of Christ more perfectly than does this fine, old hymn.

It was written in 1719—more than two centuries ago—by Dr. Isaac Watts, author of "When I Survey The Wondrous Cross" and a host of other favorites, and is a free treatment of the last verses of Psalm 98:

"Sing unto the Lord with a harp; with the harp, and the voice of a psalm. With trumpets and sound of cornet make a joyful noise before the Lord, the King! Let the sea roar, and the fullness thereof; the world, and they that dwell therein. Let the floods clap their hands: let the hills be joyful together before the Lord: for He cometh to judge the earth: with righteousness shall He judge the world, and the people with equity".

LOOK TO PARENTS

Children look to their parents to show them the kind of voice to use. One small girl said to her mother, "I like to hear you speaking. Your voice is soft like velvet. Mary Lou's mother sounds like the noon factory whistle. She always screams at her."

No mother would feel flattered if she overheard this factory whistle judgment of her voice but how many mothers should be more careful of the tone which they use. A European visitor declared that women on this continent have the prettiest legs and the ugliest voices in the world.

Too many women use too high a pitch. They speak not only in too shrill a voice, but too rapidly. The result is indistinctness and poor enunciation. Monotony in speech comes from using one tone almost all the time with little variation, which comes from the contrast of occasional higher and lower tones.

Shakespeare wrote this description, "Her voice was very soft, gentle and low, an excellent thing in woman." How does your tone compare with this description? . . . Perhaps when you are weary or irritated or annoyed your voice reflects your emotions. But don't forget that the way you usually speak, colors the home atmosphere for every member of the family. So mother, What's Your Tone!

Voice Is Asset Or Liability

By NANCY CLEAVES

Have you ever heard a recording of your voice? It might be quite a shock to you! Almost without exception, people exclaim when they hear a record or a tape recording of their conversation, "I didn't know I sounded like that!"

The way a person speaks may be either an asset or a liability. The emphasis on a pleasant voice in various "personality" or "charm" courses which are so popular with some, prove this.

Recently an expert on voice production pointed out that a relatively small amount of attention to voice culture by parents and teachers of young children would accomplish more than a much larger amount of instruction and drill at maturity.

Helping a child speak correctly and fluently is one of the most important parts of a child's education. The tone a mother uses—the way she speaks, has a very great influence on a man or woman's speech in adult life.

Little tots learn the right pronouncation of words, their meaning, the correct order of words in a sentence by copying the adults in the home. A little child who is well usually has a delightful inflection. A whining voice does not necessarily show a spoiled child. It often indicates a youngster who is fatigued or in poor health.

TRUTH SHALL MAKE YOU FREE

If we are to keep our minds free from being victimized by false prophets, we must have a master principle by which to test our thinking. Christ gave us such a touchstone principle when He said "You shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free."

Every honest person has to ask himself two questions: "Do I really want the truth?" and "will I follow the truth when I see it?"

When Jesus stood before Pilate, the Roman governor asked Him, "Art thou a king?" Jesus answered: "To this end was I born and for this cause came I into the world, that I should bear witness unto the truth. Everyone that is of the truth heareth my voice." Pilate then asked, "What is truth?" Apparently Jesus did not deign to answer Pilate's last question. Why bother to explain truth to Pilate? He would not have followed it if he had seen it. He was simply a wily politician looking for a way out of a ticklish situation.

When we care only for truth and have the courage to follow it, then we free ourselves from so many foolish fears and futile worries. When we care for our characters more than our reputations, we are not distressed by gossip nor coscred by the crowd.

Christ frees us from bad things in order to leave us free for better things.

A Lift For Living

The King of Free Men

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

At this Palm Sunday season Christendom is hailing Christ as a King. But what does Christ's kingship mean to us who boast of ourselves as free citizens of a free land?

To many persons the kingship of Christ as king of their lives seems a limitation of liberty. I knew a man who went to church as a boy, but who quit going because he says the church was always stressing the don'ts of religion. To him, Christ seems a stern figure forbidding him to do what he likes.

I also remember...a woman who asked me how sure I was of heaven and its rewards. She claimed that surely no one would give up all the things that a Christian is supposed to renounce unless he was absolutely certain of a future heavenly compensation. To her, and to many others, Christ and His rule seemed a restriction of their liberty.

WHY WELCOME CHRIST?

Yet, here we are this Palm Sunday season, prided ourselves on our freedom while we talk about Christ the King. Why should we welcome Him as king of our lives? My answer is that Christ is the ruler of free men and the only ruler who anticipates keep men free.

First of all, Christ makes men free in body. When Jesus was on earth, He so concerned Himself with the bodies of men that He has been called the Great Physician. How many bodies He helped to free from pain and disease we cannot measure. We know only about certain of His cures and we do not know quite what the diagnosis would be in modern times. But nevertheless, He demonstrated a power of spirit over body, the principle of which is being increasingly explored with ever growing results.

Christ taught that the body is a rare instrument through which the human mind and spirit are to be expressed.

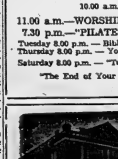
DISCIPLINE NEEDED

The human body has many impulses, many instinctive drives and a capacity for a variety of rich enjoyments. But we do not achieve a satisfying harmony by indulging one impulse after another. The body must be directed toward happiness. This requires discipline. All too few of us look beyond the restrictions to the rewards. That is why so many think the Christian life is narrow and joyless.

Some years ago a woman came up to me as I was bowling, and said, "Oh, I am so glad to see you bowling. You ministers have so few pleasures." However, after she watched me bowl awhile, I'm not sure that she thought I had any pleasure at all!

Don't conclude that Christ takes away our physical pleasures. Rather, He enhances and lengthens them by superb control. He frees us from enslavement to the body and puts the body in its proper place as a servant of our spirit.

Also, Christ serves to keep us free in mind. We Americans and Canadians take pride in our freedom of speech and press, especially when we see the tragic limitations of liberty in other lands. But let us not fool ourselves into thinking that free schools, free platforms and free papers guarantee free minds.



Many persons are free somewhat as a stray dog is free. When a dog has no master, he may follow almost any passerby, even a tramp. Likewise some people who boast of their free minds will take up with any passing prejudice, any glib de-

SPEED LIMIT REDUCTION UNWISE

The City Council is to be commended for its refusal to reduce the speed limit in the city to 25 miles per hour.

It should be added that the Council has no power to order such a reduction in the speed limit without the approval of the Minister of Highways. The Minister would almost certainly have declined to approve.

Uniformity in traffic regulations is most desirable. If every municipality could set its own speed limit, the resulting hodge-podge of regulations would be an intolerable nuisance.

The present laws give the police the right to arrest any driver who is driving in a careless manner, regardless of whether he is travelling five miles an hour or fifty miles an hour.

The police can, therefore, prevent persons from driving over 25 miles an hour if by doing so these drivers endanger the public.

Reducing the speed limit to 25 miles per hour would, therefore, not assist the police in regulating traffic. On the contrary, such a law would remove from the police this additional discretion. They would have to decide whether they intended to enforce the lower speed limit, at all hours of the day and under all conditions, or whether they would ignore the limit whenever it was seen a question in excess of 25 miles per hour was dangerous. If the new speed limit was strictly enforced, the flow of traffic through Belleville would be seriously impeded during most hours of the day.

Motorists from outside the municipality would have a legitimate grievance. If the new speed limit was enforced only on certain occasions, it would provide an additional hindrance to a practice already too common, placing in the hands of law enforcement officers the right to decide whether or not a citizen should be punished for the infraction of a law that he drafted in such a manner as to make most of us law-breakers. Generally common sense, and not arbitrary speed limits, is the key to safe streets.

We already have one example of the futility of arbitrary traffic regulations. It is illegal to cross a street intersection at a speed in excess of ten miles an hour. To enforce this rule would promote unnecessary traffic jams at a main intersection in the city during rush hours. Far from enforcing it, police officers wave to drivers to speed up when these drivers reduce the speed of their vehicles to the legal limit when they approach crossing intersections. They can, (they have in the past and they will continue to do so in the future), show similar common sense in handling drivers travelling at speed in excess of those which are safe, without the arbitrary reduction of the present speed limit of 30-miles an hour.

A COMMENDABLE EXAMPLE

On Tuesday a reception was held at the Armouries here for newcomers, all residents of Belleville just received their Canadian citizenship papers. Responsible for the reception was the Argyll Chapter of the Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire. The Regent, Mrs. Rverett Fairman, other officers and members of the Chapter are to be commended. The reception was not merely a friendly gesture toward these new citizens but a sterling example to the rest of us.

These Canadians should be made welcome, should be invited to participate with the rest of us in all community activities and should never be reminded that they are not Canadians by consent, rather than by right. Indeed, we should perhaps reflect that, while we are citizens by the accident of birth, they are citizens by choice, with all that that implies.

Canada has bestowed citizenship upon them, but it would not be correct to consider this citizenship as a gift. It is something they have earned by the completion of certain responsibilities. If these responsibilities are faithfully discharged, Canada will gain as much by the bargain as will these new citizens. The country is to receive the fullest possible benefits from the acquisition of these citizens, it is essential that they should be accepted into all phases of community life. Mere passive acceptance is not enough. Many of these newcomers will be shorn to assist them, barriers of language, of customs, of knowledge, in some cases even of religion which result in the newcomers establishing communities of their own because none of our religious groups have precisely the same doctrines as those to which the newcomers are accustomed.

The reception given the new citizens by the Argyll Chapter should be extremely satisfactory. The reception accorded these people by organizations of every type, and, perhaps more important, by individuals in their roles of fellow citizens and neighbors.

DIFFERENT TECHNIQUE

Manners, it is said, reveal the man. The same is true of the methods of governments.

Perhaps Berlin is now providing us with a hint as to the essential difference between the late Josef Stalin and Marshal Nicolai Bulganin, or whoever is now really top dog in the Kremlin kennel.

When Stalin wanted to blockade Berlin he just closed the roads into that city and that was that. It was a method in character for the revolutionary who, as a young man, once robbed bullion trucks to finance his political party.

Today another Berlin blockade is threatened, but this time the method used is not to send out soldiers with tommy-guns to halt all trucks but instead to impose an exorbitant toll on everything more typical of a bureaucrat would be difficult to imagine.

THE HARD WAY

Not the easy, but the hard way
Is the road to lasting pride,
The goal that is worth striving for,
will but little thrill provide.
The test of skill and courage is the victory that's earned and standing up to failure 'til the tide your way has turned.

There's no glory in a triumph that was easily attained, from those last few final minutes of endurance, that is gained, and the victory you'll remember,
And when there's silver in your hair,
That silver cup so proudly you display upon a shelf,
More than triumph o'er a rival means a triumph o'er yourself.
You had doubt out there to master; with fatigue you were beset,
And the thought you couldn't win it was the strongest foe you met.

Everyone who has travelled on while its partner is fishing far away. When the chick is about 60 the Atlantic recalls the shearwaters, smaller than gulls, with stiff wings, sailing low over the waves, curving down into the troughs; gray backs on top, white below. Abundant as plentiful in mid-Atlantic as they are a day out from land. The life story of shearwaters must be fascinating to students of all nature. Off the coast of Wales is the island of Skokholm, where R.M. Lockley has been devoting his life to the study of the Manx shearwater, which breeds by thousands on the island. Reviewing Lockley's book or shearwaters, The Auk, American ornithological quarterly says:

"Because of their enemies the great black-backed gulls, the shearwaters come to their burrows only during the hours of darkness. Apparently mates never see each other, but must recognize each other by voice, there being great variety in the screams and howls of different individuals. Parents never actually see their single chick, nor the chick them. Incubation lasts 51 days and fledging 73 days. Each parent incubates for three to five days at a stretch

From Dreams to Reality

(Written for Unesco by Jacques Kosard)

On a rainy day fifty years ago, a long funeral procession would slowly through the streets of a small city in Northern France. More than five thousand people from all over the country and even from abroad, had come to Amiens to accompany the "fabulous traveller" on his last journey.

Already, during his life-time, Jules Verne had become world famous, and his death, on March 28, 1905, was a severe blow to millions of readers. His most enthusiastic he was a legendary figure, almost as unreal as the adventure stories which he wrote. They identified him with their favorite heroes and would doubtless have been very surprised at discovering instead of a captain Hatteras or a Robur the Conqueror—a quiet, peace-loving man, living a respectable, hard-working life, devoted to his family and member of the local bourgeoisie.

His contemporaries have described him as a simple, friendly man, with a rather absent-minded air—rather like a "retired army officer," said Alexandre Dumas père. Yet all these weird, fantastic, sometimes strange moods of abstraction, how he would suddenly break off a conversation in the middle of a sentence, into a dream world.

His wife, Honorine, characterized by these two opposing personalities, the home-loving citizen of Amiens and the head-in-the-clouds writer, the "fabulous traveller," moving in time and space by the flight of his extraordinary imagination, far beyond the bounds of his period and of his family circle.

This dual and paradoxical personality can to some extent be explained by his origins. On October, Pierre Verne, was a solicitor in Nantes, a city of shipowners and patrons. Born in Provins, a small town to the east of Paris, he settled in Nantes, in the Loire-Inférieure, where he married Sophie Allotte de la Fuye, a descendant of a family of wealthy shipbuilders, locally known as the "Santo Domingo de la Fuyes" because of their association with the West Indies.

Young Jules grew up in a strict middle-class atmosphere, typical of lawyers' households in the 1840's. But his parents' house in the old Breton quarter of Nantes, built between two arms of the Loire, offered a boundless outlet for his vivid imagination.

Every day, from his "crow's nest" on the attic floor, he watched the sailing ships as they swept into port with the incoming tide, and when school was over, he joined his friends on the wharves to dream of adventure on pirates and buccaneers amongst the crates and bales of produce brought in from distant lands. Sent to Paris to study law, he abandoned his legal career at the first holiday period brought him back to Nantes, and he continued to row on the river amidst the blue sails of the fishing boats.

When he settled in Paris, however, Jules Verne soon found that don his legal career for finance. He worked for a time with a stockbroker, but he was attracted by the theatre and soon began his write plays which were failures too. Some of his light comedies were well received, but it was not his success did not go to his head. On the contrary he blamed himself for having taken a wrong turn, at a time when science in particular was undergoing a most striking out into new and unknown fields." In 1851 he published a fanciful account of the first ships of the Mexican navy, followed in the same year by "Martin Paz," a theme which he was to enlarge upon later. In 1863, the famous publisher Hetzel was impressed him to write a series of books for children and young people. Jules Verne set to work enthusiastically and the first two books "Five Weeks in a Balloon," and "The Adventures of Captain Hatteras" were his immediate success.

He had already married and father of a family when, in 1870, he left Paris—which his wife disliked—and settled in Amiens. But he still spent his holidays at the family home in Nantes, sailing in his motor yacht, the "Saint Michel," he went further afield, cruising round the North Sea and round the Mediterranean. In 1878 he bought a steam-yacht, was a trip to North America which he visited after crossing the Atlantic on the "Great Eastern." In 1885, for "family reasons," he sold his big house in Amiens and bought a house in Nantes.

But his true realm was his study, where, at his desk covered with world covered with notations, portraits of explorers on the walls and his bookcase filled with literature—by Walter Scott, Fenimore Cooper, Edgar Allan Poe, which he read in English—travel stories, and scientific works. In one corner stood his desk covered with green baize, his maps and notes, all neatly filed; in the other, his camp bed, where he slept a few hours every night. The whole room had the monastic, austere air of a captain's cabin.

Work was for him "a vital necessity." He rose at seven and wrote without a break until lunch time. Then he spent his afternoons reading and taking notes, either at home or in the library of the Industrial Club, which provided innumerable reference books on technical or scientific subjects.

Even his writing, say his friends, was regulated like clockwork. He first scribbled his notes in pencil, following the thread of his thought. Then he would copy over in ink the parts which he wished to keep. The voluminous manuscript material he collected enabled him to work on several books at the same time. At the end of his life, when his sight was impaired by cataracts, he dictated his stories to his daughters.

Working in this methodical fashion, his output was tremendous. His better-known works make still several hundred pages. Classed under the heading "Extraordinary Voyages" they comprise 57 titles, ranging from "Five Weeks in a Balloon", published in 1863, to the "Golden Volcano," which appeared in 1907, two months after his death. Based upon their fantastic vehicles, his novels explore the earth and the heavens from darkest Africa to the North Pole, and from America to the jungles of Asia.

Among these travels there are some which today make exceptionally interesting reading. They are those in which Jules Verne's extraordinary scientific vision, based on the facts of science, and fantasy into the field of anticipation. Robur and Nemo are more than mere names to us in this time, and the latest scientific discoveries bear the unmistakable originality and accuracy of the writer's predictions. He himself commented on it thus: "I have all that I imagine, will fall short of the reality. The time will come—and a time when the inventions of science surpass those of the imagination."

This prophet of science studied all the newspapers and collected the research workers of his time. He followed the progress of polar expeditions and described the immense possibilities of electricity. We have his "telephote" in "The Day of an American Journalist in 2889." He forecast the invention of television: Herr Schuza's cannon in "The Earth Militant and the Moon" is a forerunner of heavy artillery. He completed certain vehicles like "The Steam-House," skyscrapers in "Centropolis," while Michael Strogoff's courier is a figure from the era of inter-planetary flight.

Yet it is probably in the field of air and sea travel that Verne made his strangest predictions. The balloon, the favorite of his friend, the balloonist Nadar, his delights in describing the prodigious heaves than the air." Abandoning the spherical balloon for the "aerial ship" heavier than the airship, he conceived a helicopter in "The Clipper of the Conqueror," which in 1886 he already considered as "the shape of things to come." The "Castle Batross" was a helicopter, driven by two four-bladed propellers on horizontal shafts. It was maintained in the air by 8 auxiliary propellers mounted in pairs on 4 vertical shafts, the two propellers of each pair turning in opposite directions to one another to prevent the craft from veering from gyrating. Similar in appearance to a ship with a spur-shaped bow, it was to be driven and operated by electricity, provided by accumulator batteries. It could fly at a speed of 125 miles per hour.

Today, nearly seventy years after Jules Verne conceived Robur's aerial ship, a pamphlet entitled "Flying bedstead" in Britain, have aroused the interest of technicians the world over. Jules Verne's dream still seems to be "the shape of things to come."

Yet it was only natural that this enthusiastic prophet should be a descendant of a sea-faring family and that the sea should be the scene of his most famous flights of fancy. He had already invented a giant liner ("A Floating City"), but this greatest invention emerged from the depths of the ocean in the vessel of the "Nautilus," which he launched in 1870, eighty-five years before its American atomic brother.

Today Verne's theories of underwater navigation, described in "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea," are recognized as being accurate in most points, even in details. He forecast the use of electricity as an auto-mobile power, submersible and heating, and described in detail the mechanism of propulsion the operation of water-ballasts, the principle of driving apparatus, and the use of compressed air. Captain Nemo was a forerunner of Professor Piccard and his crew of the Bathyscaphe.

What Jules Verne went even further. In his book "The Eternal Adam" he seems to anticipate the sweeping changes brought about by the discovery and use of atomic energy. "Chemistry," he wrote, "has reached a point where matter, which pretends to disappear and merges with physics, the two branches of science tending to unite in the study of research concerned with the secrets of latent energy . . . Chemistry, Jules Verne is as popular and, the amount consumed. But that is the impending will be have individual requirements. We should learn how best to eat to live and live to eat well."

It is important to enjoy all that we eat, but only at times when there is a hunger call. We should not eat when troubled in mind or when the digestive tract tells us there is a hunger call. We should not eat when troubled in mind or when the digestive tract tells us there is a hunger call. We should not eat when troubled in mind or when we are tired, worried, ill or depressed. Eat—be happy!

NATURAL WAYWARDNESS

The Bible has a great deal to say about sheep, and, because of this continuous reference, people often get the idea that sheep are lovely, docile, and-intelligent creatures. The truth is that sheep are very stupid, dirty, and particularly prone to wander away from the fold. If it is to confront, these characteristics make sheep a particularly fitting illustration for the sin of the human race.

Stephens tell us that sheep have to be carefully herded because if they once spy a path, they will start down that path and sometimes trot along for miles just because a path. Behind this simple ability lies the parable of the lost sheep. That particular sheep found itself in a pathway and kept on going.

The Bible declares that "all we like sheep have gone astray." In the case of both sheep and humans, the disposition is to go the path-way and follow it, simply because it is a pathway. The neighbors have gone that way, the home designers, or the smart set at the country club, or fashionable industrialists—they all have path millions of people, from bobby-sockers to millionaires, from loafers to the industrial executives—little lambs and sheep wandering down the pathway just because it is a pathway.

"All we, like sheep." The Bible emphasizes the need for a Shepherd, and the Good Shepherd is one who regards our waywardness with understanding and love.

MAY I MAKE ONE MORE PLEA FOR THAT CHERISHED DEGREE?

Dr. Brady

Including less than two years of internship in the Erie County Hospital in Buffalo, I engaged in general practice for eighteen years before I turned quack—because I broke into the newspapers. I turned because I found it impossible to make a decent living for my family from honest practice.

Although I never became successful in the popular sense of the word, I do not deem the eighteen years wasted. It seems reasonable that the experience I gained in eighteen honest years may have served me well in the post-mortem years of the U. F. D. I would embrace not only prevention of disease but, what is more important, the building and maintenance of health, vite, functional efficiency.

In China, as licensed liars have been telling us since Confucius first took popular utterance, people stop paying the doctor when they become ill. In that country people have not learned, probably never will learn to pay the doctor for keeping them well. But I am still like to dream that I'm a P. H.D. (and this isn't Ph.D., we-phomerons) with a lucrative pri-vate practice.

EAT TO LIVE

I have heard it said that one's thoughts are greatly influenced by what we eat. There must be much truth to this. Most people eat far too much for their own good. As I eat in various restaurants and note the large orders of food that are consumed—often too rapidly—I associate upon the thoughts of those people, especially business men soon to go back to their offices.

Literary people, as a rule, eat lightly. They have learned that they think more clearly, as has doubtedly they do. Charles Lamb, the lovable English essayist, stated that he grew tired of so many vegetables, but added: "Only I stick to asparagus, simply that I may inspire gentle thoughts."

George Bernard Shaw lived right up to the door of a century of years. He ate only vegetables. I have known many famous athletes who were also vegetarians. Many vigorous animals eat a light diet, a combination of food values, how-

They are those in which Jules Verne's extraordinary scientific vision carried him beyond the realm of fantasy into the field of anticipation. Robur and Nemo are more alive today than they were in their time, and the latest scientific discoveries, the demonstrations of the originality and accuracy of the writer's predictions. He himself declared: "All that is possible will that I imagine, will fall short of the reality. For it will come a time when the inventions of science surpass those of the imagination."

This prophet of science studied in his "Journey to the Moon" the problem of interplanetary flight. His "Columbiad" of 1889, he foretold the invention of television. Here Schurer's cannon in "The 500 Millions of the Begum" is the forerunner of heavy artillery. He described aerial vehicles such as "The Steam-House," skyscrapers "Centropolis" while Michael Ardan's bullet still heralds the era of inter-planetary flight.

In the submarine field of air and sea travel that Verne made his strangest predictions. The first submarine of his friend, the balloonist Nadar, his "Nautilus," is already "a machine heavier than the air." Abandoning the spherical ballons of his first adventure stories, and then the airship, he conceived a helicopter in Chapter 12 of "Conqueror," which in 1886 he already considered "the vehicle of things to come" . . . Robur's "Albatross" was a helicopter, driven by two four-bladed propellers on horizontal shafts. It was maintained in the air by 4 auxiliary propellers, mounted in pairs on 2? vertical shafts. the two propellers on each pair turning in opposite directions to one another as in a pair of scissors, operated by electricity, provided by accumulators enabling it to fly at a speed of 125 miles per hour.

Today, nearly seventy years after Jules Verne conceived Robur's flying machine, the famous "flying bedstead" in Britain have aroused the interest of engineers the world over. The helicopter still seems to be "the shape of things to come."

Yet it was only natural that the masterpiece of this proud descendant of a sea-faring family should be the Nautilus. Jules Verne had already invented a giant "floating island" or City"), but his greatest success emerged from the depths of the ocean in the wake of the Nautilus. It was to be launched in 1870, eighty-five years before its American atomic brother.

Today Verne's theories of under-water navigation, described in "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea," are considered as being accurate in their main lines. He forecast the use of electricity as an autonomous source of propulsion and heating, and described with extraordinary precision the operation of water-ballast, the principle of diving apparatus, and the use of submarines in time of war. Above all, he "initiated" deep-sea research and his Captain Nemo was a forerunner of Piccard, Auguste and the crew of the French Bathyscaphe.

Jules Verne went even further. In his book "The Eternal Adam" he described and anticipate the sweeping changes brought about by the discovery and use of atomic energy. "Chemistry," he wrote, "has reached it degree of perfection that it intends to disparage and merge with physics, the latter having in turn ceased smiling as a single body of research concerned with the study of atomic energy."

Today, Jules Verne is as popular a writer as ever, and the amount consumed, and the interest shown in his work, all have individual requirements. We should learn how best to eat to live and not just live to eat.

It is important to enjoy all that we eat, and quite often times when there is a hunger call. We should not eat when tired or irritated or when ill. Animals won't eat when they are ill. The best digester of food is delightful conversation with whom to share your meal. Then all circumstances be ideal: food, well-cooked food, served in pleasant surroundings, is essential. And remember, quiet, be leisure. Eating is almost as harmful as eating the wrong food.

It is impossible to give too much attention to the kind of food each one of us should eat, how and when. Not too much of it, or in the wrong proportions. Fruit and nuts, Intelligence and food go hand in hand. Health is the objective. Nervousness and worries depressed. Eat—be happily!

general practice for eighteen years before turned quack—and I broke into the newspapers. I became famous because I found it impossible to make a decent living for my family from honest practice.

Although I never became successful in the popular sense of the word, I do not deem the eighteen years wasted. It seems reasonable that the experience I gained in eighteen honest years may have served me in good stead since I started conducting a health column — I say health, not medical column.

Health culminating might well be recognized as a specialty and the doctor who takes up the specialty should be required to have had not less than ten years of experience in general practice and perhaps that number of years many readers failed to interpret when we invited readers to write for the degree of Ph. D., Doctor of Personal Health. More than 500 answers were received, and 106 of them were correct. In view of the facts—namely, that the offi- vate practice.

I simply had a pipe dream in which a university awarded me the degree in recognition of—oh, all right, but I do seriously believe medical schools should have undergraduate departments and postgraduate' courses for physicians who intend to limit their practice to personal health.

I believe that this country people have not learned, probably never will learn to pay the price for good health. But I still like to dream that I'm a P. H.D. (and this isn't Ph.D., sophomorous) with a lucrative pri-

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

EAT TO LIVE

I have heard it said that one's thoughts are greatly influenced by what one eats. There may be some truth to this. Most people eat far too much for their own good. As I eat in various restaurants and note the large orders of food that are consumed—often too rapidly—I speculate upon the thoughts of these people, especially business men, as they order their orders.

Literary people, as a rule, eat lightly. They have learned that they think more clearly, accomplish more clearly, and, undoubtedly they do. Charles Lamb, the lovable English essayist, stated that he grew tired of so many vegetables, but added: "Only I stick to asparagus, which still seems to inspire gentle thoughts."

George Bernard Shaw lived right up to the door of a century of years. He ate only vegetables. I have known many famous athletes who were also vegetarians. Many vegetarians eat a large and varied combination of food values, however, and the amount consumed, that is the important thing. We all have individual requirements. We should learn how best to eat to live and not just live to eat.

It is important to enjoy all that we eat, and quite often times when there is a hunger call. We should not eat when tired or irritated or when ill. Animals won't eat when they are ill. The best digester of food is delightful conversation with whom to share your meal. Then all circumstances be ideal: food, well-cooked food, served in pleasant surroundings, is essential. NATURAL WAYWARDNESS

The Bible has a great deal to say about sheep, and, because of this continued reference, people often get the idea that sheep are lovely, docile, and intelligent creatures. The truth is that they are very stupid, dirty, and particularly given to straying away and lost. As it is to contrast, these characteristics make sheep particularly fitting symbol of the weak and erring children of God.

Shepherds tell us that sheep have to be carefully herded because if they are allowed to go where they start down that path and sometimes trot along for miles just because it is the path before them. Surely lies the parable of the lost sheep. That particular sheep found itself in a pathway and kept on going.

The Bible declares that "all we like sheep have gone astray." In the case of both sheep and humans, the disposition is to get into a pathway and follow it, simply because it is a pathway. The neighbors are apt to be the real trail-blazers, or the smart set at the country club, or Hollywood—and down that pathway rush millions of people, from bobby-sockers to Communists, from children to industrial executives—little lambs and old sheep alike, without the pathway just because it is a pathway.

"All we, like sheep." The Bible emphasizes the need for a Shepherd, and the only Shepherd of Cross who regards our waywardness with understanding and love.

Belgium Planning To Build Highest Tower in World

By RONALD FRASER

BRUSSELS (Reuters) — Belgium is planning to build the highest tower in the world as the main attraction for the Brussels World's Fair in 1958.

The proposed "vertical city" would be 600 feet higher than New York's Empire State building and more than twice the height of its famous predecessor, the Eiffel tower in Paris.

The plan, approved in principle by the Belgian cabinet, provides for a 1,620-foot conical skyscraper, carrying a 442-foot television mast, raising the height to 2,061 feet.

But controversy, reminiscent of that which raged around the Eiffel tower plan nearly 70 years ago, has arisen over the project. The Brussels skyscraper has been likened to the Tower of Babel, criticized from the aesthetic angle, described as a menace to aviation and called "the government's folly."

PREFABRICATED CONCRETE

The tower, estimated to cost 300,-000,000 francs ($9,000,000), would be built of prefabricated concrete resting on more than 2,000 piles sunk into the ground.

Its architect is Gustave Magnel, Belgian pioneer in prefabricated concrete work. The plans, now with a special government committee, provide for 40 floors.

The main trunk building, rising to 1,475 feet with a diameter of 262 feet at the top, will contain 3 floors housing radio and television studios, exhibition halls and a telecommunication school.

A smaller 165-foot-high section on top will contain another 10 floors an observatory, a meteorological office and other scientific-observation stations, and two for a restaurant, bar and terrace accommodating 1,500 customers.

Concrete blocks, 19 feet long, 19 inches high and 11 inches thick, will be used. The tower must be built within three years if it is to be ready for the fair. The Eiffel tower took 11 years to build.

Aviation experts say the tower will be a threat to Brussels' international airport.

International rules say civil-transport aircraft must keep more than 3½ miles away from structures higher than the altitudes at which they are flying.

Brussels airport is only six miles away from the proposed site and much of the present approach run to the airport would enter the "forbidden zone."

To avoid the zone aircraft would have to make detours of up to 20 miles, says the Belgian aeronautical magazine Air-Revue. It says the cost involved might turn airlines from the airport.

Quinte Secondary School News

OMNIBUS DISCENDO CRESCEMUS

For the past few weeks we have all been very busy studying for, and writing exams. However, that is over now and we are all back to normal. The results of the exams are now coming out.

GIRLS' SPORTS

The Grade 10 interform basketball was won by C-10-B. These girls were victorious over all the other Grade 10's and were also victorious over the champions of the Grade 11 interform playoffs. This was a great victory for C-10-B.

The girls on the winning team were: Lois Macdonald (captain), Joan Macdonald, Sharon Bump, Gail Stewart, Ada Vincent, Pat Simpson.

The Grade 9 interform was played off this week and G-8-C came out on top. The players of this team were: Betty Bates (captain), Pat Featherstone, Pat Vaughan, Carolyn Thompson, Reta Vincent, Betty Jordan, Carol Fuzzen.

KEYS vs. KEYETTES

Last week the Keyette club challenged the Key club to a volleyball game. It was quite funny to see this game because the Keyettes played with girls' rules and the Keys played with boys' rules. The score was very close but the boys managed to come through and win the game. The girls are hoping that it will be a different story next time. We are certainly looking forward to seeing that game.

DANCE

The Drama Club of Quinte Secondary School are sponsoring "The Coronation Clamor." This is a dance to celebrate the crowning of Quinte Secondary School's first king and queen. There will be a door prize and novelty dances with prizes galore. Refreshments will be sold in the cafeteria. The dance will be held on Thursday, April 7th at 8 o'clock. We hope to see a good representation from the other secondary schools.

QUINTESSENCE

As you know "Quintessence" is the name of our school paper. At the moment, Miss Shantz, Mr. Ronald, Mr. Smykalsock and their committee are working hard, making preparations for the publication of this paper. The paper is well underway now and we hope that it will soon be ready.

SCHOOL BAND

Since we now have the proper musical facilities, the band has started again. They are now practising and intend to play in the assembly next week. The band is under the direction of Mr. Wright, our music teacher.

Famous Canadian Editors, Publishers

Colonel Stretch by Robert C. Reed

George Brown

George Brown, one of the truly great Canadians of all time, was a tall, angular, intensely earnest young man of 26 when he founded The Globe in 1844. With his father, he had emigrated from Scotland to New York a few years earlier. On a visit to Toronto in 1843, he discovered promising business chances in the pioneer town and a political climate more to his liking.

A man of passionate feeling, energy and enthusiasm, the pious and God-fearing Brown was throughout his life a champion of liberty. In New York he had made himself unpopular by attacking the slave trade; as a Canadian publisher he continued to denounce this evil with unbridled fury while making himself a friend of runaway slaves.

In Canada he found a free country with the British institutions he cherished, though not yet endowed with the self-government for which he began to fight almost as soon as he set foot in Toronto. The motto from Junius which to this day stands at the masthead of The Globe and Mail, "the subject who is truly loyal to the Chief Magistrate will neither advise nor submit to arbitrary measures," appeared in The Globe's first issue. It summed up George Brown's crusading creed.

From 1844 until his untimely death in 1880, he remained owner, publisher and policy-maker of The Globe. During these years his personal career, his advocacy of great causes through his newspaper and the history of Canada merge into a single tremendous drama of controversy, struggle and progress that brought forth the Dominion of Canada.

The change in Toronto itself was equally spectacular. In 1844 an outpost which was not yet gas-lit, bought its water from door-to-door vendors and could be reached only by ship or stage-coach, Toronto by 1880 was a modern metropolis of 100,000 people. Brown and his paper were part of that story.

The Globe began as a weekly, produced by hand-press, furnished with news by a primitive postal system, sold to subscribers by personal canvass of the owner himself. Brown kept abreast of the times. He was one of the first publishers to use "the electric cable." He sent his younger brother and colleague, John Gordon, to London in 1851 to cover Britain's "Great Exhibition,"—a sign that his paper was thriving. It became a daily in 1853 and Brown himself built it into a powerful and universally respected national institution that lived after him.

It was as a campaigner in the sphere of national politics that he won fame and honor. He on the hustings and The Globe in print fought for self-government. They fought for separation of church and state. They fought against special privileges for any church or class. They fought against corruption. They fought for Confederation, of which Brown was a father. They were chiefly responsible for the new nation's acquisition of the Canadian West. Brown won all these public battles but, in a sense, lost his own. His alliance with Macdonald to bring about Canadian union cost him his political career; but he said at the end that he would rather be editor of The Globe than hold any office. Canada remembers this great man as a statesman and a publisher of the first rank.

2nd Belleville Boy Scouts L.A. Entertains

The 2nd Belleville Boy Scout Ladies' Auxiliary was hostess to the other Auxiliaries of Belleville on Thursday night at Christ Church parish hall.

Mrs. Hazel Grieve, president of the 2nd Auxiliary, introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. G. Calvin Bishop who gave an interesting talk on the highlights of the Scouts' Conference, on which a discussion was held later.

Mr. Oliver Owen, president of the local Boy Scout Association had further information regarding the World Jamboree to be held in Canada at Niagara-on-the-Lake. Mr. Owen had attended the recent Provincial Scout Leaders' Conference at Gravenhurst, and he was most enthusiastic regarding the forthcoming Jamboree. Mr. Owen hopes that a large number of Belleville boxers will be open to have them arriving in Canada prior to the Jamboree, thereby enabling them to have a taste of Canadian home life.

Archdeacon J. B. Creegan closed the meeting with prayer, refreshments were served by the hostess auxiliary.

It was also agreed by all present that the Ladies' Auxiliary should hold a joint meeting such as this at least three times a year.

"Boy With a Cart" Splendidly Presented by Theatre Guild

The play, "Boy With a Cart," by Christopher Fry, directed by Gisele Scott and Madeline Young, was presented as a Workshop Play by the Belleville Theatre Guild on Monday evening at Queen Victoria School, Pine St.

This play is the story of Cuthman, Saint of Sussex. In his Cornish home, he is a builder of God's sheep, he had a mystic sense of God's help in tending the flock. Cuthman's deep and unerring keenness deepens as he travels across Sussex seeking a place to rest. He was persuaded that God had told him to build a church on the spot where he and his family with his cart break. When human hands fail to complete the building—and they fail—Cuthman appears to Cuthman alone in the unfinished church as a Christ at whose touch the kingpost moves into place and the church is completed.

PERFECTLY PRESENTED

The play was perfectly presented, under expert direction with well-chosen actors. The story of the play was easy to follow, and most heart-warming. The son, Ken Graham, and the mother, Mrs. Ralph Morden, could hardly have been improved upon in the portrayal of their parts. While the scenery and the costumes were pure artistry.

The villagers and the mowers provided the touches of humor and the background to the two main actors, the mother and son.

The female neighbors also provided the local touch, a blend of sympathy for the newly-bereaved youth and a realization of his "high-flown" ideas.

Each changing scene of players made a perfect picture and the "Carl" was a boy to behold.

As for the chorus—the people of south England—it seemed the perfection of poetry, perfectly uttered and added greatly to the whole effect.

FINE PRODUCTION

The Belleville Theatre Guild is to be commended for this fine production, which was thoroughly received by the splendid audience. Many people expressed the wish that the "Boy With a Cart," could be produced at least once more, and also that it would be unbeatable if presented another year as a Festival play.

Cast is as follows in order of appearance:

Cuthman, Ken Graham.

Cornish neighbors: Bess, Estelle Burkett; Mildred, Helen Sullivan; Matt, Ed. Day, and Tom, Joe McKay.

Cuthman's mother, Greta Morden.

Villagers of Steyning: Twm, Bert Simpson; his daughter, Nina Gault; his son-in-law, Bill Kellett; a farmer, Ed. Day; and Mrs. Catherine Darlington; Alfred, Jack Darlington, and Demiwulf, Murray Irwin.

Mowers: Nina Gault, Murray Irwin, Bill Kellett and Joe McKay.

People of South England: Lorna Heaslip, Carol Irving, Dorothy Irwin, Helen Keeler, Anne Morrall and Mary Sills.

Cornish neighbors and Villagers of Steyning:

Decor, Mary Moult; costumes, Helen Keeler; set construction, Robert Cambridge, Ed. Day, Edward Letman; stage manager, Peggy Hawkins; make-up, Mary Doyle, Milda Underseu; lighting, Bert Simpson, Edward Letman and Stuart Robb.

The music for the Mowers' song was composed by S. Alec Gordon.

Coronation Club Holds Profitable Auction Sale

The March meeting of the Coronation Club of Bridge Street United Church was held recently in the ladies' parlor. The president, Mrs. Rex Chaplin, presided, with 36 ladies present.

Mrs. Gordon Brunt and her group were in charge of this meeting.

Following the devotionals given by Mrs. Bruce Gorrill and Mrs. Ron Cass the meeting took the form of an auction sale. The auctioneers were Mrs. E. MacPhail and Mrs. W. E. World Tour by Cargo-Liner

By Leonnia Stockelbach

Journey Through the Suez Canal

At 3 p.m. we reached Tarfuk, the port of Cairo. The flag of Egypt has been raised at the prow while the British flag waves at the stern. The Mohammedans green of the Egyptian flag is more vivid than Irish Kerry green, and with the white crescent enfolding the three white stars, it stands out in marked contrast to most of the flags on the many ships in the harbor, waiting to be conveyed down the Suez Canal.

Soon there were the inevitable small craft coming alongside to sell their wares. One watched with admiration the handling of them as they reached our cargo liner, the quick folding of the sails and the speed with which the sailors laid out their wares on the little deck space.

Boxes, trays, travelling cases and writing portfolios, for the most part quite ugly, and carelessly made, comprised the main bulk of stocks.

It is fun to listen to other people bargain. It is almost an enviable quality to be able to do that and this time it was enhanced by the colorful surroundings, the gorgeously painted decks and framework of the boat, the unrivalled blue and green water of the bay where we were anchored and the agility with which the men climbed up the rope ladders of their boats as they came alongside and on a level with our upper deck.

The tray was offered for $6.00. If anyone had accepted that offer the seller would simply have been disappointed that he had asked so little. It finally went to a passenger who was willing to give him an argument and that he very much disliked plus a carton of cigarets and a dollar bill.

All told the transaction amounted to more than the tray was worth if only there had been a psychologist present to explain how it is that the passenger and seller in an article another immediately decide what it is worth and a quite a brisk trade done in trays.

SOP UP FOOD

In the meantime I looked down at the men eating. Food is always interesting to look at. There were great platters of rice on which there were torn apart and the pieces upon which they sop up the gravy. As Muslims, the men are forbidden to have any metal touch their lips though a knife may be used to cut up the pieces of stewed meat. High above could be seen Egyptian vultures. They are so beautiful in the air and not so beautiful scavenging in the harbor.

I was not at all interested in seeing the surroundings of Ismailia. I decided that as they had been there so long they would probably be by still there on the next visit and at the moment I could not face the heat of the desert and dunes of a shared taxi drive of 30 miles into the city. Besides, the next day would bring the most marvellous Museum of Antiquities in Cairo immediately after my visit to Egypt. I thought, or guessed, that the sail through the Suez Canal could be quite interesting.

You will remember that the Suez Canal joins the Mediterranean with the Gulf of Suez and the Red Sea. It was built by the Frenchman, de Lesseps, in 1859-1869. There are no locks in its 107 miles of length and we could be sailing all night long. The British have held a controlling financial interest, an agreement arrived at by the astute Disraeli in 1875, that is to terminate in 1968. The Egyptians have abrogated that agreement as everyone knows.

RED SEA IS BLUE

On most maps the Red Sea, that bluest of seas, appears to be but a strip of water but it turns out to be 1400 miles long and up to 220 miles wide. As the average daily run is about 320 miles it took us four days to sail down the Red Sea and nearly always out of sight of land. The breeze of the moving ship somewhat tempered the tiring damp heat.

You will remember reading about the crossing of the Red Sea by the Israelites but that probably meant where it enters into the Gulf of Suez.

MT. SINAI

The captain had kindly told us one hour in the morning when we would be passing Mt. Sinai so before sunrise were up to greet that great historical range of mountains. It was chilly so early in the morning but I think it was not the temperature but the emotional excitement that made us feel shivery as we viewed the rugged outline of the hills beyond which the first rays of the rising sun could be seen.

Most of us had forgotten the exact circumstance of Moses stretching out his hand over the sea and the waters parting to go back by a strong east wind all during the night, leaving the path of salt water there was dry land. The divided waters made a wall on their right and on their left and we had heard that one time I was crossing the Atlantic in a big storm on a relief small liner and was knocked down on the deck by a huge wave. It looked as if it had been shot down by a mighty knife. I wondered if that was the way the Israelites saw the water walls.

The Israelites walked over dry land while the pursuing Egyptian horses, chariots and horsemen, in the closed puffs high above, were drowned right underneath where we were now sailing. Some of us thought of those drowned Egyptians and horses down there under us when the captain pointed out the Bible reminded us that Israel saw the Egyptians dead on the sea-shore. Very uncomfortable.

At 4.00 a.m. a wind steward brought us tea which we balanced on the teak-wood rail. As we gazed at the range of mountains we wondered which was Mt. Sinai. It was now light enough for me to sketch an outline and then guess where various guesses as to which mountain had been the delivery of the commandments.

It was then suggested that as it was Sunday someone should read the chapters of Exodus where all this story was written. So, wrapping our dressing gowns more closely around us, we sat on deck chairs while a Christian friend read the matter to us.

The first shaft of light had faded out but a second glow increased in the sky and was reflected in the still water and soon the sun cast its blinding light and we retired to our cabins, showered and went to the day's usual activities of life on board ship.

UP AT CRACK OF DAWN

I had made arrangements to be wakened early the next morning to get to the Suez Canal in time. At half past four a sharp rap at the door roused me quickly and I went out on deck. Along each side of the narrow canal there seemed to be piled long sand dunes so while did the sand look at that deserthly hour against the dark sky.

A short distance ahead in the centre of the canal I perceived a light and at an equally short distance behind it was another light and we got used to the dim light one could count six of them all keeping exactly the same distance apart except for the whole hundred miles of the trip.

We seemed to be sailing over the desert for the dredged sand was piled on each bank and the wind had blown it to the appearance of sand dunes, with their soft rolling curves and rippling sides.

Along the way, on one side, groups of Arabs were busy making their morning coffee, if such it was, in a kettle over a small fire of flaming faggots. Beside each group was a sort of shack in which it had sheltered during the night. No women were to be seen anywhere.

Every once in a while the sweet clear call of some unknown bird could be heard and high in the sky the crescent moon in its last quarter rested on the star Aldebaran Orion. It was exhilarating to recognize here in the Suez that most conspicuous of all our northern stellation in Canada. Not so very far from here also is the moon and referred to it and the Great Bear and the Pleiades. It is always good to see an old friend among strangers but all those strange unknown stars I had seen around the latitudes near the equator.

ROAD PARALLELS CANAL

At the other side of the canal was a good road along which dart, of all sorts and conditions of motor cars, trucks and buses.

Every once in a while one notices an arched guard.

Again the sun came up in blinding and beautiful splendor and it made one glad to get dressed hastily to the lounge for shade. Soon after breakfast we reached the picturesque harbor of Port Said and anchored in midstream. As we were to remain immediately surrounded by small craft whose owners were selling the usual bocus bocus.

I was uninterested so one enterprising salesman brought the tray over close to the deck chair so I could jetter out more quickly my wants. Finally he packed up and said very gaily, "No sale," and left me alone until supper came. A captain of another line once said he had had to turn the hose on them!

But we kept the doors and windows of our cabins tightly closed and locked when we were in most of these Oriental countries. Even when you were asleep in your bed and had left the window slightly open to get a breath of air a big stifling heat they had been known to put a pole in and lift everything within reach.

The harbor was of the gayest. It was filled with all sizes of small craft.

They were more splendid than the rainbow, for a rainbow is but a poor, weak affair from which one could not possibly fear all such gorgeousness as here came out of paint cans. Nor could one find in a rainbow such white as one saw in the flighty little sail boats and among the sea gulls flaunting their whiteness overhead against the little cloud puffs high above. Nor could the rainbow have such blues in greens, reds, and yellows as are found here on the sailing boats from ferry boat to launch, from row-boat to ocean liner.

Mr., Mrs. William McLaren Melrose, Married 50 Years

"Fifty years is a long time but if I had it to do over again I wouldn't have it otherwise."

It was with these words of tribute for her husband on the eve of her golden wedding anniversary that Mrs. William McLaren, of Melrose, proved the success of a marriage celebrated just half a century ago.

On April 5, back in 1905, William McLaren and Elizabeth McFarlane were married at the latter's home on the 3rd concession of Tyendinaga township. There was no wedding trip either than the bride and groom driving with horse and buggy over the field to the new home they have since made their home.

Tuesday the McLaren and McFarlane clan will gather at the McLaren homestead on the 2nd concession where the bride and groom are to "at home" to relatives and friends. Then once again the McLaren home will resound to the well wishes of close friends and to the patter of grandchildren's feet.

Mr. and Mrs. McLaren, now both 76, live alone in the farmhouse which has been their home for the past 50 years. Their family has grown around them and with the farm rented the McLaren's five retired lives, they are finding of a garden being their only outdoor activity.

It is a keen disappointment to Mr. and Mrs. McLaren that neither of their two sons has followed in the farm. Their oldest son, James, lives at Rochester, N.Y., while their second son works at Corbyville. A daughter, Mrs. Carmen (Maude) Milligan, lives on the same concession at the village of Melrose.

But the hard work of the farm has been the lot of Mr. and Mrs. McLaren since their marriage. During their active years they farmed 100 acres and milked up to a dozen cows, and all without the aid of modern farming mechanization.

SERVED AS SKEWS

And during the years when the children were small, Mrs. McLaren often milked the 12 cows alone. This was when the husband was away threshing or during the years as a reeve of his municipality when he was called upon to attend county council at Belville.

"There were no cars in those days and we used to step-over in Belleville," Mr. McLaren recalled.

Since giving up municipal life Mr. McLaren served for twelve years as president of the Melrose cheese factory and also served as president of the Belleville cheese board. Their youngest son, Edmond, made cheese for a number of years until ill-health forced him to quit.

Both Mr. and Mrs. McLaren are of Scottish ancestry and basically they are Presbyterian. Since Church Alfred, however, they have attended Melrose United Church.

But although they are alone they will continue to live at the homestead. Mr. McLaren is forced to retire from active farm life now and says, Mr. McLaren wanted to sell the farm. But not Mrs. McLaren.

"We'll keep the farm as long as our grandchildren want to spend their holidays here," she says.

Friends Honor Bride-to-Be With Many Gifts

On Tuesday evening a miscellaneous shower was held at the home of Mrs. Bernice Batchelor, 153 West Moira Street, in honor of Miss Shirley Jackson, bride-to-be, with approximately 30 girl friends present.

During the evening, a bride's scrapbook was completed, and a miscellaneous persecution with the principals being: Mrs. Shirley Morris, as Miss Shirley Lorna Hinchey, as the bridegroom; Miss Barbara Rosebush, as the attendant minister, and Miss Lih Gladney, as the father.

Following the mock wedding, the guest of honor was presented with many lovely and useful gifts and a daffodil corsage, for which she expressed her appreciation with thanks.

Later, refreshments were served by several of those present, while the bridesmaids-to-be, Miss Dorothy Dickey and Mrs. Patricia Sherrett, cut and served the tea table which was centred with a large white cake, backgrounded by a vase of golden daffodils.

Danger Factors in Travelling

BY SHIRLEY AND BOB SLOANE

Safety, like beauty, is in the eye of the beholder.

Living as we do in an age of statistics, it may seem sacrilegious to say that travel safety can be largely a matter of the mind and feelings rather than of figures. Nevertheless, it is true that most travelers let their emotions and prejudices hold sway when it comes to evaluating the extent to which their lives may be endangered on a trip.

The daily slaughter on our highways is a well-recognized problem —and a national disgrace. The increase driving common to our roads is familiar to anyone who has driven so far as the drug store. Yet we've never known many people who hesitated to make an auto trip because of the possibility of having an accident.

IT ALL DEPENDS

Depending on which chart of statistics you use, air, rail and bus travel are estimated to be from two to 15 times as safe as driving one's own car. Yet few rail or bus travelers would tell you categorically that they chose that mode of transportation for safety reasons. And still more surprisingly, few of the thousands we've spoken to over the years have felt that they were safer as safe in the air as they do in their own automobiles.

Possibly this anxiety is traceable to man's deep-rooted desire to be the master of his fate and the captain of his soul. Sitting behind the wheel of your own car, you instinctively feel that you've got some control over the situation, no matter how reckless the drivers of other cars may be. Many are nervous when they are passengers, but feel safe if they are in the driver's seat.

NO TERRA FIRMA

The feeling of helplessness is compounded in the air, where you can't ever stop in the face of danger and where there is no terra firma. Moreover, most travelers believe that in the event of an airplane accident of any magnitude, all of them are doomed, whereas on a train there may be a few survivors and hundreds of less fortunate passengers free and aft to cushion the shock, leaving you as a survivor.

Yet in two of the three (that's all there were, three) scheduled domestic American airline crashes in the safety record-breaking year of 1954, there were survivors. Only 23 persons were killed (against how many thousands on the highways?) out of a whopping total of 35,000,000 passengers flown from point to point in this country and abroad by American lines. And in Canada, that country's national airline had only the first fatal accident in its history; and Canadian Pacific had only the first fatal accident in its history.

As impressive as the statistics are, they should grow more impressive in the future. All that one, and possibly two, of last year's fatal air mishaps would have been avoided by a radar device now coming into common use. Furthermore, an unpredictable freak has been mainly responsible for almost every accident of the recent past.

Air travel accidents are invariably spectacular and no set of statistics, no matter how impressive, will convince emotion-ruled men, who have had occasion to fly, that it was anything other than luck that has spared them from a like fate, should they be there for a crash in which no one is seriously injured. It is due, not to luck, but the airline's well-practised emergency procedures.

Railroad safety has been taken for granted for so long that it is generally considered the standard for all travel safety. Thus the airlines compare their record with the more regrettable record in terms of passenger miles traveled.

PASSENGER MILES

A passenger mile is, of course, one mile over which one passenger has been transported. To begin with, we run into a problem of how long is a mile? A railroad traveler, in serious conversation, once point to another through the snowstreped pages of central Oregon will cover many more dangerous miles than an airliner lazily winging its way from the same location through clear skies.

On the other hand the airplane is cheated a little because it carries far fewer passengers than the train. If one train carries 400, it has covered thousands of passenger miles, the plane only a few hundred.

Both forms of transportation that is the newest of the century—for train its hairpin curves and traffic switching, the plane its bad-weather take-offs and let-offs. There's nothing safer than a non-stop 3,000 mile air trip, where all you do is sit up drinking coffee, waiting to get to your destination.

But many authorities have suggested that the number of take-offs and landings, or the number of hours either a train or plane is working, might be a sounder and more acceptable basis for comparison.

Beauty

By HELEN JAMESON

HATS, HAIRDOS AND FACES

Why does a woman buy hats? The answer is easy. To make her look pretty. This is the season to indulge in the exciting indoor sport of trying on spring models. And hats are hats again, thank goodness, not just little while doilies the size of saucers that the girls have been wearing for too long a time. And they feature flowers and perky bows!

Making a selection is no easy task. Almost every woman has some orphan bonnets in boxes on the closet shelves. They seemed new and sassy, cute and smart when she got them, but somehow they throw her out of beauty form. She doesn't like them and she doesn't like herself when she wears them.

To make a happy choice you should consider your features, your profile, your hair and your figure. Also, your type. If you are the tailor made type" you'll have to stick to plain effects. The fluffy girl can get away with a huge tissue rose over her rear.

The hat can probably do more to alter the contours of the face than any other item of the wardrobe. It can form a frame that flatters the features, especially if the hairdo is tremendous of line and arrangement. Lacking sufficient size it may accent features that aren't anything to be happy about, such as a nose that is larger than one would have ordered had one had anything to say about it.

A smart, becoming chapeau has a powerful influence in centering attention on the face, though it should not be so elaborate as to first attract the eye of the beholder. A hat that is too fussy attracts unfavorable attention.

A close fitting hat should be slightly wider than the widest part of the face if the features are small. The straight cross line of the sailor, that has returned this season, is becoming to the girl with the long, narrow face.

each other, to my mind it is their own fault if this occurs. For I can't see any reason why either a wife or a husband should become so dominated by the other as to feel that "will and initiative and personality" have been lost. Such a thing does not come about all at once. It can only be the result of years of knuckling under to the marital mate, and surely, somewhere along the way, there must be times in which the dominated one realizes what is going on, and so has the opportunity to put a stop to it.

Moreover, if a person has the judgment to make a suitable be on picks out the right wife or husband in the beginning, no such stalemate occurs. Then, in the properly-mated couple goes on into middle-age, they grow closer together, and become more congenial, instead of less and less so.

To translate all this into terms of this particular wife's dilemma, I would say that, first, she chose the wrong husband, and, second, that she permitted herself to become subservient to him. That is the primary part of her situation. The plus part is, that, at 47, she is still plenty young enough to correct things, and create for herself a more stimulating, independent and satisfactory life than she has ever had before.

I suggest that as a first step toward bringing this about, she go to her doctor and have a complete physical check-up. He can tell her how much of her present state of depression is due to the inevitable changes that occur in middle-age, and how much can be attributed to poor marital unhappiness. The physical aspects can be adjusted by the doctor, the marital unhappiness she can cope with herself, if she will.

Once she had got all the help to be had, in the way of correction for her physical troubles, she can then set about learning to assert herself and finding new interests outside her home. Her letter sounds to me as though she had never taken on any community activities or made any wide circle of friends. I can see nothing to prevent her from doing that, starting now. To join even one organization in which she can mingle socially opens up the way to broader horizons, for she would at once make new friends through her she would meet other new friends.

If she would stop regarding her difficulties as hopeless, and start thinking of them as curable, I am sure she would immediately feel happier and more optimistic, and begin looking eagerly for things she might do that would lead to a cure.

I wish she would make up her mind to have a try at this plan and let me know how she gets on.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DOES MARRIAGE ALWAYS GROW STALE IN MIDDLE-AGE?

A wife who, in middle-age, declares that she often finds herself "not only tired of marriage but of living itself," asks if this state of mind is not pretty common in marriage and in the middle years." She adds that she feels that, as the years go by, there is no "almost inevitable absorption of one's will and initiative and personality in the bondage to another."

"I am 47 years old and have been married 16 years," she writes. "My husband is 57 and we have no living children. He is unsociable and sleepy-headed and cranky, and only wants to stay home alone with me in all his leisure time, read his newspapers, doze and go to bed at eight o'clock every night. I stay home alone most of the time, and go through the monotonous routine of housework and laundry day in and day out, year in and year out, and I often wonder what I am becoming in such a dull and stupid existence. Out of sheer boredom and weariness and lack of a sense of fulfillment, I am actually ill a great deal of the time, and seriously considering whether marriage is worth it.

"I seem no longer able to recognize myself as the individual I once was. It is as if I had never existed at all. My whole personality, all my ambitions and ideals, and all that I ever was, seem to give been absorbed in this bondage and subordination and constant association with, and servitude to, the will and personality and depressing influence of another.

"Do you not feel that this is often the case in many marriages?"

While it is probably true that many middle-aged couples do arrive at a state of boredom with

Question—Could you please tell me what the bakers use to ice a cake so it doesn't run? Every time I ice a cake with the decorating set it stays on for about an hour then it all starts to run. Could you please send me a recipe for icing cakes and wedding cakes. Mrs. W. F.

Answer: Cakes must be thoroughly cooled—even chilled—before frosting. Then, in addition to their refrigerators before frosting and decorating them. Royal icing is used for decorating and is made with fresh egg whites and confectioners' sugar OR meringue powder (dried egg whites) and water and sifted icing sugar. Meringue powder icing gives better results. It may be purchased from bakers' supply houses or maybe from your bakery.

ROYAL ICING (Egg Whites)

¼ cup fresh egg whites, ¼ teaspoon, cream of tartar, 1 lb. sifted confectioners' sugar. Add cream temperature egg whites to half of the sugar and beat at high speed for 3 minutes. Add cream of tartar, then remaining sugar ¼ cup at a time until of piping consistency. Keep bowl covered while decorating to prevent crust forming.

ROYAL ICING (Meringue Powder)

One-quarter cup sifted meringue powder, ¼ cup cool water, 3¾ cups sifted confectioners' sugar. Combine meringue powder and cool water, mix and let stand 15 minutes. Add half of sifted sugar and beat at high speed for five minutes. Add remaining sugar ½ cup at a time, beating for ½ minute between additions, until of piping or spreading consistency.

You will very quickly learn the right consistency. This never runs if applied to cold cakes.

Question: I would appreciate a recipe for a maple flavored chiffon or sponge type cake and tart filling made with butter, cocoanut, eggs, brown sugar, water and flour. Veeda B.

Answer:

MAPLE CHIFFON CAKE

Sift together into mixing bowl two cups sifted all-purpose flour, ¾ cup white sugar, 3 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt. Add to them ¾ cup brown sugar which is free from lumps. Make a well in centre and add in order ½ cup cooking oil (salad oil), 7 unbeaten egg yolks, ¾ cup cold water, 2 teaspoons maple flavoring. Beat with a spoon until smooth. Then measure into another large mixing bowl 1 cup egg whites and ½ teaspoon cream of tartar. Whip until whites form very stiff peaks. Pour egg yolk mixture gradually over stiffly beaten whites, gently folding with rubber scraper just until blended. Pour into ungreased tube pan. Bake at 325 deg. Fahr. for 55 minutes, then at 350 deg. Fahr. for 10 or 15 minutes or until, when pressed with finger tip, surface springs back. Invert and let hang until cold.

COCOANUT TARTS

(This recipe meets all of your requirements except it calls for cornstarch instead of flour. Will that be okay?) This is for baked tart shells but I know a good cook who uses it for unbaked small tarts. Mix in saucepan 1 cup brown or white sugar, 2 tablespoons cornstarch, ½ teaspoon salt, and then stir in gradually 1 cup boiling water. Stir over low heat while it boils one minute. Stir a little of it into 3 beaten egg yolks, then return this to hot mixture in pan and cook, stirring one minute longer. Beat until very smooth. Stir in 1 tablespoon butter, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 2 teaspoons lemon juice, 1 cup moist shredded cocoanut, ¼ cup cut-up filberts (nuts are optional). Pour into baked tart shells. Sprinkle over top ¼ cup cocoanut. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 20 minutes.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

"BRIDE'S USHER" AND "GROOM'S BRIDESMAID"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

In a large wedding party (maid of honor, best man, four ushers, four bridesmaids, flower girl, ring bearer) should the bride choose a bridesmaid from the groom's family or a relative, and should the groom choose an usher from the bride's family or a relative? S.

Yes . . . with the idea of emphasizing the relationship between the two families, it is the traditional procedure for the bride to ask a sister of the groom to be a bridesmaid, or, if he has no sister, she asks a cousin; and for the groom to ask a brother of the bride, or if she has no brother, a cousin, to be an usher.

BOTH MAID OF HONOR AND MATRON OF HONOR?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it advisable to have both a maid of honor and a matron of honor? If so, should they wear the same color? How four bridesmaids are to wear? — Bride-to-be

You may, if you wish, have both a maid of honor and a matron of honor . . . today this is quite often the plan. And in today's weddings . . . in the interest of uniformity . . . the honor attendant (or attendants) and the bridesmaids wear gowns chosen as the same color and style. Usually, however, there is a difference in design and or color of the bouquets of the honor attendants and the bouquets of the bridesmaids.

Two Govt. Backbenchers Resign Seats Over Real Estate Deal

By PHIL ADLER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

EDMONTON (CP)—Two Social Credit backbenchers who resigned their seats today could lose a possible $9,000 each if it is ruled they sat illegally during the current session of the Alberta legislature.

John C. Landeryou (SC—Lethbridge) and Roy S. Lee (SC—Taber) submitted their resignations to the legislature two days after the assembly's public accounts committee was told they were part-owners of a building which the government rents.

Opposition charges of waste and extravagance resulted in the committee investigating four government real estate transactions, one of which was connected with provincial building No. 2 in Edmonton.

Evidence disclosed the building is owned by Mr. Landeryou, Mr. Lee and William McNab of Lethbridge.

Both men said they did not know they were violating the legislative assembly act which prohibits a person from sitting in the House if he holds a contract with the government or has received public money.

Members disqualified under the act must forfeit a fine of $200 for every day they sit in the House while ineligible.

No ruling has been given yet on when the two members become disqualified but a Calgary lawyer has filed a claim for the $300-a-day penalty.

The legislature had sat for 21 days when the resignations were tendered. The total fine for that period would amount to $6,300. And it is possible the two members might lose their sessional indemnity of $3,000.

FIERY SUCH CASE

The resignations, believed to be the first in the legislature to follow a committee investigation, trimmed the Social Credit representation to 49 in the 61-seat House.

The Social Credit party has been in power for 30 years.

No date has been set for the two by-elections which the resigned members said they will contest.

Mr. Landeryou, born in Harriston, Ont., was Social Credit member of Parliament for Calgary East from 1935 to 1940. He was elected to the Alberta legislature in 1944, 1948, and 1952. Mr. Lee was first elected in 1940.

Premier Manning told the legislature he "deeply regrets the unfortunate circumstances" which resulted in the resignations. He said committee and government investigation showed the members "have unwittingly disqualified themselves."

Build New Ferry Ship

COLLINGWOOD (CP)—Officials of Collingwood shipyards said Friday day the company will build a new ferry ship for the International Transit Co. at Sault Ste. Marie. It is expected the ship will be ready for service between the Canadian and American Sault cities early this summer.

The new vessel will be a double-ended automobile ferry powered by diesel engines. It will be 115 feet long and will accommodate 200 passengers and 19 automobiles.

Charge Ads False

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal trade commission Friday accused the Admiral Corp. of making claims that its 21-inch television set provides 20 per cent more screen area than other makes.

Such advertising, the commission said in its complaint, has caused trade to be "unfairly diverted to the Admiral Corp. from its competitors."

The commission gave the Chicago firm 30 days in which to answer the complaint.

Bulletins From Birdland

EARLY MALES

In spring migration, the vanguard seems to be chiefly old birds, with males in the majority. Bird banders have thus come conclusively that the usual procedure is to return to the breeding ground of the previous year, and the males of many species like to get there in good time so as to make sure of the spot for themselves.

Few females sing, therefore a staging bird can fairly safely be recorded as the male; and when the sexes are distinctly different, it is quite simple to tell which one we are looking at even though we do not hear the voice.

Therefore, we know positively that male robins, red-winged blackbirds, rose-breasted grosbeaks, and scarlet tanagers are the first to arrive from their winter quarters. Immediately they begin to look around for the most suitable spot for the future home. Having decided on a location, he attempts to protect from other males of his own kind, and the small space where the nest is to be placed, but enough surrounding territory for the needs of the whole family, a shopping district.

MUCH SCOLDING

At the same time, each announces his presence in the vicinity to all the females of his kind as soon as they come within hailing distance. No wonder there is much scolding, calling and sweet singing!

The robin is waiting for his mate that is dressed much the same as himself but with a paler head and a less vivid red breast. Both Mrs. Red-winged Blackbird and Mrs. Rose-breasted Grosbeak look more like unusually large, striped sparrows than like their husbands, and Mrs. Scarlet Tanager is not scarlet at all, but olive green.

The first song sparrows to come north are males. These birds announce their presence with sweet-piping voices, being seldom seen before they are heard. We cannot distinguish between Mr. and Mrs. by sight.

MALE NEST MAKERS

Some males not only choose the situation for a nest before the ladies arrive but actually start to build. It is a practice evidently to attract their attention. The long-billed marsh wren is undoubtedly the best example of this. He often makes several dummy nests before choosing a partner.

A few species—shore birds, ducks, and geese—have done their courting in the south, or on their journey up. Consequently, they start building operations very soon after they get to the breeding grounds. It is then a matter for conjecture which of a pair picks out the locality for the home, as one may be a native of Ontario and the other a Quebecer. Some bird watchers are sure the female always wins!

Time to Plant Sweet Peas

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

"Plant sweet peas in the fall."

"Always plant sweet peas on Saint Patrick's Day."

"Good Friday is the proper time to plant sweet peas."

These are the beliefs of different schools of gardeners. You can take your pick and come up with good blooms.

But, most of us have failed to acquire the habit of fall planting. As for the 17th of March, the ground is seldom in condition to plant anything. Of course, we could prepare the trench the fall before, and fill it with straw and cover it with boards, but we seldom get that far in our fall chores.

Good Friday may be late in March; or well along in April. The difference of three weeks will make a great deal of difference in results, since all peas, both vegetable and flowering types, grow best in cool weather.

SOIL TYPE

The first of April seems to be an ideal time for planting sweet peas in a trench outdoors. If you wish to hurry the plants start them in two inch pots, or in heavily waxed paper drinking cups, indoors.

For either method soak the seeds overnight in warm water. Many gardeners prefer to nick the hard seed case after soaking to hurry sprouting.

Use a three part mix of sand, peat moss and top soil for the potting soil. Cover the seeds with two inches of soil and set them in a flat of damp peat, or sharpnus moss. Keep the soil and moss damp and cool.

To prepare the trench dig out the soil to a depth of nine inches. Fill in three inches with a mixture of good top soil, sand and peat moss, or other good humus, and some fertilizer. The humus will hold the moisture through the summer for the thirsty roots.

With a trowel, or clothes pin, make holes two inches deep and drop in a seed. Firm the soil over the seed. As the plant grows fill in the trench to ground level.

Many gardeners advise planting the rows north and south to give the plants a minimum of sun. When setting out the potted plants make a shallow depression and set the plants in it with as much earth as possible clinging to them. If you water the plants a few hours before transplanting they will tip out of the pots readily.

SLAT CUPS

Paper cups should be slit down both sides with a sharp knife, or razor blade and the soil left undisturbed. Set each space around them with a mixture of moss, sand and soil, and water with light plant food, or one of the B1, transplanting solutions.

Feed the plants with vigour, or some complete plant food, every eight inches while in bloom. Soak the soil around them well at least once a week in dry weather. Sweet peas require plenty of water to produce abundant blooms. Keep faded blooms picked off, or the plants will stop blooming.

There is a new type sweet pea—a dwarf bush form. It is a ruffled spencer type which grows six to eight inches high and would make a handsome border or solid bed of color. The mounds are eight inches across with fairly long stems and full-sized blooms. All the best colors are in the range.

BLOOM EARLY

Cuthbertson sweet peas are heat and drought resistant and bloom early. They are hybrids developed from those old favorites, the Spencers, but they have lost most of their faults.

Another recent development is the fabulous Jetsam. Stem lengths are up to 20 inches and each stem carries up to nine blossoms.

Many growers declare this is the ultimate in sweet peas. Blossoms are strongly perfumed and colors are clear and vivid. It requires support or a trellis at a height of six feet. It starts to bloom 75 days after planting.

Unwin's Stripes are also new. No two blooms are exactly alike. The blooms are variegated, striped and spotted. The stems are long and the colors run through maroon, apricot, carnatin, lavender, and pink. This is excellent for mixed bouquets, and commercial growers are finding this very popular for cut flowers and for filling in floral pieces.

Carmel Couple Marks 35 Years of Married Life

RAWDON — On Monday evening over 50 relatives gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Fryar, Carmel community, in celebration of their 35th wedding anniversary.

The party was arranged by their family, Douglas and Shirley Fryar and Russell and Reta Fryar, and was a success despite road conditions, weather and the fact that the event had to be postponed from Saturday evening owing to the heavy snow storm.

Others who assisted with the preparations were: Mrs. Helen Neal, and her assistant, Mrs. Douglas Martin, Mrs. Harry Brown and Mrs. Don Terry.

The wedding took place March 24, 1920, in St. Paul's Methodist Church parsonage, by the late Rev. F. E. Howard, of Vera Fern Hubel, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hubel, first concession, Rawdon, and Arthur Nelson Fryar, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Richard Fryar, ninth concession of Sidney. Both families were members of Carmel Community. The bride's brother, the late Russell Hubel, was groomsman and Mrs. Ella Fitzgerald, Bonneyville, the former Alice Broad, was bridesmaid. Mrs. Fitzgerald was unable to attend this event because of illness.

CORSAGE PRESENTED

The family presented the bride of 1920 with a corsage and the groom with a boutonniere for this auspicious occasion.

Guests were in attendance from Hartington, Peterborough, Trenton, Ninth Concession Murray and Wellman's, besides the Carmel relatives.

Mr. Harry Brown was master of ceremonies and a musical evening was enjoyed which led off with a round of assembly singing. There were accordion selections, vocal solos, duets, quartets and piano numbers by various relatives.

ADDRESS READ

During the evening, Mrs. Russel Hubel read an appropriate address, and the honored couple was presented with numerous lovely gifts which included an electric table lamp in modern design from their family; for which the Arthur and Vera graciously thanked their family and relatives for the delightful evening.

Mr. Frank Terry, Murray, took several pictures with his flash camera. They also received a large array of congratulatory cards from friends.

Douglas, Russell, Shirley and Reta with several assistants, served delectable refreshments which included a decorated three - tier wedding cake, and all enjoyed a delightful evening.

Mr. Ray Mills, Trenton, proposed a toast to the bride and groom.

Mr. and Mrs. Fryar are both valued members of Carmel United Church. Mrs. Fryar has served as church organist for the past 25 years. She is also a keen worker in the Women's Association of Carmel, and is president of Hastings and Prince Edward Presbytery W.A.

Mr. Fryar served as treasurer of Carmel United Church for many years, and just retired from that office last year.

Rawdon friends extend congratulations at this time.

Igor Gouzenko Named Winner Of Literary Award for Fiction

TORONTO (CP)—Igor Gouzenko, former cipher clerk in the Soviet embassy at Ottawa, was today named winner of the governor-general's literary award for fiction.

He wins the 1954 award with "The Fall of a Titan," a story of the struggle for personal power in the Soviet Union before the great purge of the 1930s. Now 36, Gouzenko threw up his job in 1945 and risked his life to expose espionage activities in Canada.

Announcement of the prize and four other awards for 1954 was made by R. D. Hilton Smith of Toronto, chairman of the awards board of the Canadian Authors' Association.

NOTED WRITERS

Other awards:

Creative non-fiction: "Thirty and Three," Hugh MacLennan, Montreal.

Academic non-fiction: "The Most Famous Stream," Arthur R. M. Lower, Kingston, Ont.

Poetry: "The Metal and the Flower," P. K. Page, Ottawa and Canberra, Australia.

Juvenile: "The Nor'westers," Marjorie Wilkins Campbell, Toronto.

Igor Gouzenko was born in Kogodchera, near Moscow, in 1919. Until he was 14 he lived most of the time at Rostyn-on-Don, the scene of his prize-winning novel. Because of his academic record at secondary school he was sent to Kuibyshev military engineering academy from which he was posted to the cipher division of military intelligence headquarters at Moscow with the rank of lieutenant.

FLED EMBASSY

In June 1943 he was sent to Ottawa and a little more than two years later fled from the Soviet embassy with the information that resulted in the spy trials. During the 12 months when he was testifying at the trials he prepared the material for his first book, "This was My Choice," published in 1948.

He became a Canadian citizen in 1947 by special letters patent. The award-winning "The Fall of a Titan," is the result of five years of writing and re-writing. Of it he says: "This is one of my ways to strengthen democracy."

Hugh MacLennan, winner of the creative non-fiction award, is one of Canada's best-known writers. The award is his second success in the same category and he has also received two governor-general's awards for fiction.

Born in Glace Bay, N.S., 48 years ago, he is associate professor of English at McGill University. He has written four novels and won a governor-general's fiction award in 1945 with "Two Solitudes." He repeated in 1946 with "The Precipice." Mr. MacLennan first won the creative non-fiction award in 1949 with his essay collection, "Cross Country."

WON HONORS

He has received honorary degrees from the University of Western Ontario and the University of Manitoba and in 1953 was awarded the Lorne Pierce gold medal of the Royal Society of Canada for distinguished service to Canadian literature. A year later he was elected a fellow of the Royal Society.

Dr. Arthur R. M. Lower, winner of the academic non-fiction award, has been professor of Canadian history at Queen's University since 1947. He was born at Barrie, Ont., 65 years ago.

Dr. Lower won the 1946 governor-general's award in the same category for "Colony to Nation" and was also awarded the Tyrrell medal of the Royal Society of Canada. He has travelled extensively and some of his travels were the basis of his book, "Unconventional Voyages," published in 1953.

During the First World War he served for three years with the Royal Navy and took part in the blockade of Ostend.

"The Metal and the Flower," awarded the poetry prize, is the second book of poems of P. K. Page to be published. Miss Page's poetry has appeared in many Canadian and American magazines.

FIRST POEM

Born in England, she was brought to eastern Canada as a child and after obtaining her matriculation at Calgary she returned overseas. Her first poem was published by the London Observer at that time.

Back in Canada, she lived for a time in Halifax and Saint John and early in the Second World War moved to Montreal. In 1944 she won the Oscar Blumenthal award for poetry. After two years on the Pacific coast she returned east and became a writer for the National Film Board.

In 1950 she was married to W. Arthur Irwin who in 1953 was appointed Canadian high commissioner to Australia.

Marjorie Wilkins Campbell, winner of the juvenile award is well-known as a writer and women's editor. Her first book, "The Soil is Not Enough," was published in 1938 and was followed a few years later by "The Saskatchewan," which won the governor-general's award for creative non-fiction in 1950. "Ontario" was published in 1953 and last year the award-winning "Nor'westers" was written for the Great Stories of Canada series.

JUDGING PANELS

Judges for the 1954 awards were: Fiction: C. T. Bissell, vice-president, University of Toronto; W.A. Deacon, Toronto; M. E. Nichols, Vancouver.

Creative Non-Fiction: W. Graham Allen, Dalhousie University, Halifax; Maurice P. Boone, Fredericton; G. E. Reaman, Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph.

Academic Non-Fiction: R. A. Allen, vice-president, University of Western Ontario, London, Ont.; Walter H. Johns, University of Alberta, Edmonton; C. L. Bennet, Dalhousie University.

Poetry: H. G. Alexander, Queen's University, Kingston; Roy Daniells, University of British Columbia, Vancouver; Ira Dilworth, Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, Toronto.

Juvenile: Grace Crooks, Prince Albert, Sask.; John F. Hayes, Montreal; Herbert McManus, Toronto.

The governor-general's medals will be presented at the annual dinner of the Canadian Authors Association at Queen's University in June.

Mournful Irvin Moans About Weakness Of Team On Eve Of Big Series

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

NOT SO !

Cy Barriage, president of the Belleville and District Softball Association, dispelled rumors today that the entry fee for the league will be $100. "I don't know where this rumor started but it's definitely not so. The entry fee will be $35,00," he said.

President Barriage also feels that the fine spring weather during the past week will be a great boon to the meeting scheduled for Sunday afternoon at the firehall. This is the most important meeting of the year since Monday is the deadline for entries and a large turnout is expected.

All teams wishing to affiliate with the loop are asked to have a representation present. Meeting gets under way at 2.00 p.m.

BASEBALL MEETING

The annual meeting of the Lakeshore Intermediate Baseball League will be held in the St. Lawrence Hotel, Port Hope, on Wednesday, April 6th, at 8.15 p.m.

Election of officers, receiving of entries for the coming year will feature the business session. The Whitby intermediates will be presented with the league trophy as the 1954 league champions. Any clubs interested in playing in the Lakeshore League for the 1955 season are asked to be present at this meeting.

WORTH PLAYING FOR!

There is a big pot of gold at the end of the National Hockey League rainbow for youngsters who have the ability to make the big time.

A huge bucket of bucks awaits ambitious moppets, a far cry from the paltry sums given such famous names as Morenz, Stewart, Lalonde and the grand fellows of their eras.

As an incentive the League divides at the end of each season a pot of gold amounting to $133,500.

This $133,500 is split up as follows:

Each player on the team finishing first at the end of the regular schedule receives $1,000. Eighteen units of $1,000 each. Total $18,000.

Each player on the team finishing in second place at the end of the regular schedule receives $500. Eighteen units of $500 each. Total $9,000.

Each player on the team finishing third at the end of the regular schedule receives $350. Eighteen units of $350 each. Total $6,300.

Each player on the team finishing in fourth place at the end of the regular schedule receives $150. Eighteen units of $150 each. Total, $2,700.

Each member of the teams winning the Stanley Cup semi-finals receives $1,000. This means 18 units per team of $1,000 each. Total for the two teams winning the semi-final series, $36,000.

Each member of the teams losing the semi-final series receives $500. Two teams of 18 units each totals $18,000.

Each member of the team winning the Stanley Cup final receives $1,000 each. A total of 18 units and $18,000.

Each member of the team losing the Stanley Cup final receives $500. A total of 18 units and $9000.

The total amount distributed for team achievements is $117,000.

There is a total of $15,500 handed out for individual achievement through All-Star teams and winning various trophy awards. It is divided as follows:

Each player of the six voted to the First All-Star team receives $1,000. Each player of the six players named to the Second Team receives $500. Total money for All-Stars $9000.

Winner of the Art Ross Trophy, leading scorer on total points at end of regular schedule, receives $1,000. The runner-up pockets $500. Total, $1,500.

Winner of the Hart Trophy, the player voted most valuable to his team, receives $1,000.

Winner of the Lady Byng Memorial Trophy, the player combining ability and clean play, receives $1,000.

Winner of the Calder Memorial Trophy, best rookie, receives $1,000.

Winner of the James Norris Memorial Trophy, best defenceman, receives $1,000.

Winner of the Vezina Trophy, awarded to goalkeeper with fewest goals scored against, receives $1,000.

Add the $15,500 for individual achievement to the $117,000 awarded for team effort and you will now have a total of $132,500.

"Dem Bums Aint Bums at All Dey Got Sumpin Called Dignity"

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dem bums ain't bums at all. Dey has got sumpin which sigheads call "dignity."

That was the word today from Rep. Francis E. Dorn, a Republican from—of all places—Brooklyn, N.Y.

The 44-year-old Dorn is a lawyer and a baseball enthusiast.

Stirred by an editorial in a Brooklyn weekly, The Bulletin, Dorn went to bat for the Brooklyn Dodgers in a statement in the Congressional Record. He informed House Speaker Sam Rayburn (D-Tex) of "a most worthwhile campaign" started by the newspaper in an editorial headed: "Stop calling the Dodgers the 'Bums.'"

It urges all and sundry to "cease and desist from using that uncomplimentary appellation for our favorite baseball team."

Quoting from the dictionary, the newspaper says "a bum is an inebriate, a medicant, a tramp and a loafer." The Dodgers, the editorial says, are none of these "although sometimes our pitchers feel that way about their teammates."

Rising to the occasion, Dorn declared:

"Mr. Speaker, I endorse these sentiments. The Brooklyn baseball team will win the National League pennant this year, and go on to win the world championship.

"It is important that the dignity of champions be recognized."

Only 14 Players Available Sighs Tearful Hab Coach; Detroit at Full Strength

MONTREAL (CP)—Sad Dick Irvin, displaying all the confidence of a featherweight about to do battle with Rocky Marciano, moved into Detroit with his Montreal Canadiens today to prepare for the opener of the Stanley Cup final series against the Red Wings.

"We're the weakest Montreal team the Red Wings have ever met," the Canadiens coach moaned before herding his players aboard a train for Detroit Friday night. "If one of our men gets hurt, the Red Wings have a shoo-in."

"Only nine forwards and four defencemen—that's our team for the cup final," he said. "They have 17 or the 18 players they had last year when they beat us in overtime of the seventh game; the whole team stays intact."

DATES FOR GAMES

The Canadiens, who eliminated Boston Bruins in seven games in the final play the first two games of the series in Detroit Sunday and Tuesday. The teams then move back here for the next two games Thursday and Saturday. Dates for the remaining games, if necessary, will be set by the National Hockey League after the first two games.

Irvin rapped the Red Wings for failing to contribute to the strengthening of weaker teams in the league.

"Detroit didn't let players go this year, like we did, to help other clubs," he said. "We lost Eddie Litzenberger, Bucky Hollingsworth, Johnny McCormack and Lorrie Davis."

"We lost Paul Meger and Jim MacPherson through injuries, two more bad blows for us. Detroit let Metro Prystai go to Chicago, that's all."

CAN'T OBTAIN STRENGTH

Any hope of strengthening the team with recruits from farm clubs will have to wait until these clubs are eliminated from playoffs in their own leagues, he said.

"It would be a big help if we could call on Montreal Royals or Shawinigan Falls for help," he said. "But we can't. Our eligible players with those clubs are still engaged in their own playoffs."

The teams, both of the Quebec Hockey League, are still playing in the semi-finals of their playoffs. Both are leading their series and could go on playing for another two games.

Tony DeMarco TKO's Saxton For World Welterweight Title

By BOB HOOBING

BOSTON (AP)—Tony DeMarco reigns as the new world welterweight king today after turning determination, skill and a devastating punch into a 14th round technical knockout over ex-champion Johnny Saxton.

DeMarco, 23 - year - old battler from Boston's West End, knocked Saxton down for a nine count and hammered the helpless New Yorker 10 times more against the ropes before referee Mel Manning stopped it at 2:39 of the 14th round Friday night at Boston Garden.

A happy Tony was a bit bewildered by the evening room afterward but not so much as the betting underdog which had made him a 3-to-1 shortender.

FIRST DEFENCE

The scheduled 15-rounder which was not televised or broadcast was the first title defence for shortlived welter king Saxton who won it from Kid Gavilan last October. It was the first time Saxton had been stopped in his professional career.

"I knew I had him on Queen street when he went down in the 14th round," beamed Tony. "When he fell back through the ropes, I said to myself 'This is it.'"

Saxton had no alibis.

"I saw all those punches coming but I just couldn't get out of the way. He's a real strong boy. I thought the fight was going along very nicely until I ran into that left hook."

The left hook proved DeMarco's biggest weapon when he moved in to polish off the ex-champion but the 145-pounder showed a lot more than that in gaining the victory.

CUT OVER EYE

DeMarco was cut over the left eye in the second round when Saxton, 145½, connected with a right cross. His deft seconds did such a good job on it—and Tony protected it so well—that Saxton couldn't open it again.

Obviously the harder hitter of the two, Tony was an easy mark in the first six rounds though never in trouble. Suddenly, he revamped his defences and Saxton found his own effective left hook and stabbing right were being blocked.

Forced to carry the fight by the counterpunching Saxton, DeMarco did so successfully and wrecked Johnny with a body attack which rapidly his hereabled inside hitting.

ON THE ROPES

In the 12th round, DeMarco got Saxton on the ropes and gave him a series of left hooks to the chin. Saxton hadn't open up if he wanted the victory. He came out swinging in the 14th. His reckless switch from provided caution made him easy prey.

Tony's left hooks and rights to Saxton's chin hammered him a dozen times before he fell part way through the ropes. He got up but could do nothing.

The cut over DeMarco's eye is the obstacle that stands between Tony and a definite commitment for his first defence. Saxton's manager, Frank Palermo, said he would waive the 90-day return bout clause in the contract so that DeMarco could meet Carmen Basilio, No. 1 ranked challenger, in Syracuse. The winner of that fight then would fight Saxton.

Pre-fight predictions that 12,000 fans would pay close to $90,000 fell way short as 8,706 customers shelled out a gross of $68,716 and a net of $53,652. Saxton got a $40,000 guarantee and DeMarco about $30,000.

Vejar Verdicts Billy Graham

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP)—Tireless Chico Vejar, the dancing Stamford, Conn., collegian, jabbed his way to an easy 10-round decision over Billy Graham of New York Friday night—his second triumph in less than a month over the 32-year-old welterweight. Vejar weighed 154½, Graham 149½.

There were no knockdowns though Graham was staggered in the ninth with a left to the head.

Wants Marciano Or Moore To Referee Fight

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Veteran manager Jack (Doc) Kearns said Friday he will ask that either Rocky Marciano or Archie Moore be named to referee the April 13 bout between Carl (Bobo) Olson and Ray Maxim, without any judges.

Kearns, Maxim's manager, said he will make a formal request to the California state athletic commission that either one or the other of the champions be selected as the sole official for the televised bout at the Cow Palace, Both Marciano, the heavyweight titlist, and Moore, ex-king, are light-heavyweight crown, are in California.

Kearns' statement, made in an interview, followed a blast at the officiating of the Willie Pep-Gil Turcotte featherweight bout Wednesday night at nearby Parks Air Force base. Cedilli won an unpopular split decision. Both judges who voted for him were disciplined by the commission.

Sid Flaherty, who manages both Olson, the middleweight champion, and Cadilli, was criticized for being friendly with the two judges. Flaherty featherweight boxer said he would prefer to have Kearns suggest the officials for the Olson-Maxim 10-rounder.

Outstanding Athletes of Canada Will Be Honored in Hall of Fame

TORONTO (CP)—Canada's outstanding athletes—male and female, amateur and professional—will be honored in a permanent Hall of Fame here, it was announced Friday by officials of the Canadian National Exhibition.

The Hall of Fame opened this year at the CNE and the first honored "guests" will be the men and women chosen as Canada's athletes of various sports in The Canadian Press half-century poll conducted in 1950.

It isthe first time in the history of the exhibition that such a shrine has been set up to honor the country's greats.

BUILD UP EARLY

"The nucleus of the Hall of Fame will be made up of those great athletes chosen by The Canadian Press in its half-century poll," sport chairman Harry I. Price of the CNE said a press conference Friday. "We shall start from there and build it up yearly."

Mr. Price said the proposed hall of fame would not interfere with the hockey Hall of Fame to be set up at Kingston, and the Amateur Athletic Union Canadian Hall of Fame. "We'll work hand and hand with these institutions to give a place of honor to the men and women who have brought credit to Canada in athletic endeavors," he said.

HONOR ROLL

The roll of those to be honored this year:

The late Lionel Conacher, Canada's outstanding all-round male athlete and the country's football great of the half-century and Bobbie Rosenfeld of Toronto, Canada's all-round outstanding female athletes. Others are:

Track and field—Percy Williams, Vancouver.

Basketball player—Norm Baker, Nanaimo, B.C.

Golfer — Ross (Sandy) Somerville, London, Ont.

Hockey player—The late Howie Morenz, Mitchell, Ont.

Lacrosse player — Newsy Lalonde, Cornwall.

Oarsman—The late Joe Wright, Sr., Toronto.

Swimmer—George Young, Toronto.

Tennis player—Dr. Jack Wright, Vancouver.

Soccer player — Dave Turner, New Westminster, B.C.

Jack Purcell of Toronto, who dominated Canadian badminton for 15 years and scaled world heights in the game, was chosen as top man in the miscellaneous sports division in the 1950 CP poll and he also will be honored.

Britain's Adonis of The Ring Has Something Besides Looks

By JEFF RYAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — Ron Barton, Britain's latest boxing idol, is a handsome young man with the unmarred professional career of a prodigy that has the girl fans lusting at his corner.

At 22, the "Handsome Hammer" from West Ham has won 18 light-heavyweight pro fights in less than 18 months, scoring six knockouts, six technical knockouts and four wins by decision.

His latest performance in disposing of his latest victim, Spaniard Ramon Martinez, won hoots of paper plaudits all round. Barton floored the former Spanish champ in five minutes, 15 seconds—he had not been knocked out in any of his previous 61 fights—and manager Archie Boggis immediately announced a six-week holiday.

"Barton is it, all right. He's a tough job taking a boy like him to the top these days," says Boggis, "and I've had good fighters around that a boy has only to win one or three bouts and he's in the class of being rushed into a title fight."

Boggis says he will try to line up a title match with European champion Willi Besseyre of Germany in May. Ted Sarron, 6 feet, 1½ inches tall, curly-haired 173 - pound hunk of bachelorhood who has plenty of beef around the big Smithfield meat market, also has his eye on the winner-of a fight next month between Alex Buxton, the British light-heavyweight champion, meets Italy's Randy Turpin, who still holds the British Empire crown. Barton and Barton would like to take on the winner.

"But that might take months and months to arrange," said Boggis.

Heavyweight Don Cockell, who fights world champion Rocky Marciano shortly, and Welsh flyweight Dai Dower are carrying British immediate boxing hopes between them.

Accordingly, Barton's sudden rise to prominence—and the way he looks—has made him what he has aroused a lot of interest.

He's credited with a slick left and a crushing right hand. A former Amateur Boxing Association champion, he's had 126 amateur bouts and won 70 by knockouts.

Picks Indians Over New York Yankees To Win American League Pennant

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP)—Cleveland Indians are this writer's pick to capture the American League pennant for the second straight year because they have more and better pitching and greater power than any of the other seven clubs.

The runner-up spot must go to New York Yankees whose wealth of talent overwhelms all but the pitching department makes them by no means a shoo-in. Boston, with the exception of the Indians, has the uncertainty of their pitching from the Waitkus and Sisler brothers to make it a tough one for the defending champions.

MUCH TOO STRONG

The bustling, aggressive Chicago White Sox, with abundant pitching, a well-knit defense but indifferent power, don't appear to be in a class with the Indians and Yankees but they are much to strong for the others. The rest of the league can be divided into two groups, with Boston, Detroit and Washington battling for the remaining spot in the division and Baltimore, Kansas City and Kansas City struggling to stay out of the cellar.

No club in baseball can boast such a mighty big three as Bob Lemon, Early Wynn and Mike Garcia, all potential 20-game winners. If Herb Score, the young rookie sensation who struck out the phenomenal total of 330 American League batters in 221 innings last year, lives up to his billing, this will be the greatest pitching staff ever put together.

Just look at Cleveland's second line pitching . . . Art Houtteman, Bob Feller, Don Mossi and Ray Narleski. This quartet won 57 games and lost only 14 last year for a spectacular .725 percentage. On almost any other club these fellows probably would be first stringers.

Wins Fourth Skating Crown

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — Peerless Tenley Albright, flashing the form that won the 1953 world title, claimed her fourth consecutive senior women's figure title in the U.S. figure skating championships Friday night.

Tenley Albright, of Colorado Springs, Colo., running mate of the 18-year-old Boston star in world competition, seeks to match her title streak in the senior men's division tonight.

ALBERNI WINS

PORT ALBERNI, B.C. (CP)—Alberni Athletics Friday night took a 1-0 lead in their best-of-five series for the western Canada senior men's basketball championship by defeating Edmonton Towne Hallers 61-49 here.

INTER HOOP FINALS

RAYMOND, Alta. (CP) — Raymond C.I.O.G.A. advanced into the western Canada junior men's basketball finals against Winnipeg here Friday night by edging defending Dominion champs Vancouver Marpoles, 79-72 to win the best-of-three semi-finals in the eight games. They won the other Thursday night 87-78.

TORONTO WINS

TORONTO (CP)—A last-minute foul shot by Toronto West End YMCA-Friday night gave them a one-goal lead in the two-game total-point series for the Canadian juvenile basketball championship as they downed Montreal Mont Saint Louis 77-76.

Tony Wozniak scored the final point for Toronto in the last 25 seconds of the game. He scored a total of 15 points.

Meaford Whips Lindsay 6-2

LINDSAY, Ont. (CP)—The Meaford Knights moved to within one game of a birth in the Ontario Hockey Association intermediate A playoffs with a 6-2 win over Lindsay Regent Muskies here Friday night. The win gives Meaford a 3-0 lead in the best-of-seven semi-final series between Meaford and Lindsay. Both of all ten men who have been in charge of games up to date. Two from the NOHA handled the first two games in Guelph. Two from the OHA worked the three in Sault Ste. Marie and NOHA men were in charge here Thursday night.

Earnie Gomes, manager of the Dutchmen, said he would like to see two Quebec referees take the game if NHL officials are not available. The best-of-seven series is tied 3-3.

Training Camp Notes

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Cleveland Indians have had a familiar name in the box score the past few days—Wynn, 20-1. And the little guy with the big ideas about his batting ability looks like he really does intend to hit .400 this season.

He's back in early February that Bobby announced "I try for .400 this season." His tongue was not in his cheek. Avila has been talking like a hitter ever since he surprised just about everybody by batting .341 to lead the American League last season. The Mexican never had a 300-year before.

PERFECT DAY

Avila had a perfect day on 11 chances Friday, swatted two doubles and scored twice as Cleveland clobbered the New York Giants 15-3. The Tribe, now 1-6 against the world champs this spring, continued to fatten up on New York pitching with 14 hits. Larry Doby, Al Smith, Al Rosen and Bob Lemon, the winning pitcher, each bit hooters.

Elsewhere, the Chicago White Sox walloped the St. Louis Cardinals and Harvey Haddix 9-6 on a game halted in six innings by rain. Jim Wilson, Sherman Wall Dropo, one of the "ifs" in Sox pennant talk, bit his second home run in two days—a grand slam off Haddix in the first—and Chicago promptly optioned a first-base candidate, Jim Marshall, to Oakland.

Milwaukee whipped Brooklyn 9-5 to even the spring series between the National League contenders at 3-all. Joe Adcock hit a three-run homer in the first off Karl Spooner, the young Brook lefty making his first appearance since March 13 because of a sore shoulder. Adcock originally injured a thigh in a collision with Del Crandall and will be out two or three days.

ROOKIE SHINES

Pittsburgh completed a deal for two rookie Pirates Friday—including two players to New Orleans, and Preese responded with a two-run double that set off a 7-4 victory over Baltimore. Nelson King and Whitey Douglas, a rookie pair, did the pitching as the Pirates won their ninth decision in the last 10 games.

Afterward, Baltimore optioned infielder Kal Segrist; obtained in that 8-for-9 winter deal with the New York Yankees, to San Antonio.

Washington climbed a three-run rally in the ninth with Tommy Umphlett's two-run single to beat Cincinnati 5-4. Ted Kluszewski homered for the Redlegs.

Eastern Canada Junior Champions Get Trophy

QUEBEC (CP)—Winner of the eastern Canada Memorial Cup playoff between Quebec Frontenacs and Toronto Marlboros will be awarded the new Laurier Trophy, Jean Pierre, head of Quebec Hockey League president, announced Friday.

The Laurier Trophy was donated this year by Senator Donat Raymond for Canadian junior hockey supremacy. It was open to all junior teams in Canada but only the Quebec and eastern league teams took part.

Marlboros and Quebec won in their respective leagues and were to play off for the trophy in a special series.

Fleury said the move was taken because of the last schedule facing both teams and the coincidence of their meeting in the finals.

The first game of a best-of-seven series will be April 23 in Toronto.

Teams Request Neutral Refs For Big Game

KITCHENER (CP) — The Ontario Hockey Association and the Northern Ontario Hockey Association have been requested to appoint new, neutral referees for tonight's seventh and deciding game of the all-Ontario senior hockey playoffs.

Officials of Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen and Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds said Friday they favored appointment of new referees preferably experienced National Hockey League officials.

Officials of both clubs have expressed dissatisfaction with the work of all men who have been in charge of games up to date. Two from the NOHA handled the first two games in Guelph. Two from the OHA worked the three in Sault Ste. Marie and NOHA men were in charge here Thursday night.

Earnie Gomes, manager of the Dutchmen, said he would like to see two Quebec referees take the game if NHL officials are not available. The best-of-seven series is tied 3-3.

Play to Tie

TILLSONBURG, Ont. (CP)—Tillsonburg Pan-Dreids and Fort Erie Spears fought to a 5-5 overtime in Friday night in the fourth game of their best-of - seven Ontario senior intermediate hockey semi-final. Tillsonburg leads the series 3-1 with one game tied.

Pan-Dreids led 2-1 at the end of the first period but the Spears came back for a 5-4 lead in the second. Pan-Dreids tied the game in the third frame to set up a scoreless overtime session.

Robin Hewson paced Tillsonburg with two markers, including the tying goal. Earl Rose, Bruce Langton and Jack Campbell counted the others.

McCracken tallied twice for Fort Erie, one of the International League, Tuller, 56, died Wednesday.

Solmar Notes

Inside Tips on Outdoor Sport

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT,
(Noted Sportsman, Author and Creator of Solmar Tables.)

The tiny flock of whooping cranes, sole survivors of their race, now numbers 34. In 1890 there were 34 of these majestic birds but natural causes and gunfire by careless or malicious hunters cut the number back to 21 in 1938-39.

In the fall of 1953, three young sters accompanied their elders southward to the winter ing grounds, bringing the total to 36. However, for the first time since 1937 no young birds came south last fall.

United States Fish and Wildlife Service, the Audubon Society and independent groups of bird watchers have done their utmost to safeguard these big, ornamental birds, but re-establishing them seems to be an uphill battle.

ECHO PARK DAM

The Upper Colorado River Commission now puts a new saddle on an old horse. They have re-fashioned the proposal which was turned down last year by the 83rd Congress. Now they call it the Yampa-Lodore Unit.

Maybe this new handle will confuse the issue long enough for them to get the permit to build Echo Park dam. But let the name fool you—it is the same old dam that they want to build in Echo Park and which will flood partially the Dinosaur National Monument.

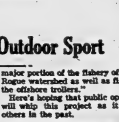
Wildlife Management Institute says, "Don't be misled, Echo Park dam and the Yampa unit are one and the same."

LIBERALIZED FISHING

Six months ago we have seen a news story from this department about Massachusetts considering the removal of the 10-inch protection on trout. A careful survey in that state shows that over 90 per cent of the trout caught are of the hatchery variety.

With natural reproduction thus reduced almost to the vanishing point in Impounded lakes in Massachusetts streams, size limits no longer have much meaning. So, the ruling has been adopted, the Sport Fishing Institute reports; now you can keep any trout you catch, not to exceed, of course, the daily creel limit.

THE ROGUE RIVER



Once again we have a serious threat which concerns one of the world-famous angling streams. This time it is the Rogue River, synonymous to all freshwater fishermen with the last word in steelhead trout fishing.

An application now is pending before the Oregon Hydro-electric Commission for permission to build a 100-foot high dam across the valley of the Illinois River, an important tributary of the Rogue. If constructed, this dam would prevent migratory steelhead, salmon and cutthroat trout from reaching and using 135 miles of spawning grounds.

The application has been made by the Coos-Curry Electric Cooperative Company. The object, of course, is hydro-electric power. Moreover, the site selected lies within the Siskiyou National Forest near Bald Mountain in southwestern Oregon.

Naturally the dam is being opposed by sportsmen's groups, the Oregon Game Commission and the Oregon Izaak Walton League. The Oregon Game Commission declares the Illinois River as a "huge natural hatchery which provides a major portion of the fishery of the Rogue watershed as well as fish for the offshore trollers."

Here's hoping that public opinion will whip this project as it has others in the past.

PRAIRIE CHICKEN

The prairie chicken or pinnated grouse of our midwestern plains has been in serious trouble of late years. Time was when this bird was plentiful—hence his name. Now, what with over-cultivation and the removal of the buffalo grass, their former habitat, (with, incidentally, the resultant "dust bowl") the birds have been hard put to it to find suitable places to live.

The stocking of the ringnecked pheasant on the midwestern plains may or may not have contributed to the decline in prairie-chicken populations. Zoologists differ on the subject. The fact remains, however, that prairie-chicken populations are down, way down, almost to the point of danger of extinction.

At long last there is a bright spot on the picture. In Wisconsin there is an experiment being conducted which is being watched and assisted by the conservation commissions of other states where the prairie chicken once flourished, such areas as Minnesota, Missouri and Illinois. The birds are being released on tracts of grass land and to keep these areas in permanent zoc—a condition that is vital, as it provides a permanent place where the prairie grouse can nest and rear its young.

Mr. Charles Callison, Director of Conservation for the National Wildlife Institute, says that the plan is being studied by the National Committee on the Prairie Chicken, an organization that was established two years ago whose purpose is to build up prairie-chicken populations.

The Wisconsin experiment was originated by a wealthy man who is a devotee of biologists, Dr. Fred and Frances Hamerstrom. It is one project we hope the experiment is a complete success.

AUTOMATIC SHOTGUN

Val Browning, third in the line of a famous gun-making family, has come out with an innovation in shotguns that must surely will take a place itself among the upland game hunters—a two-shot automatic shotgun which weighs but about six pounds.

Shortly after World War II, Val Browning picked up the idea for this gun while he was visiting the Browning plant in Liege, Belgium. Now, after eight years of hard work and revolutionary design, the gun is finished and ready for the market.

There are many shotgun fans who prefer the single barrel to the double. They feel that the latter barrels tend to throw them off-target while the gun is carefully aimed. This new gun gives them a light, fast, two-shot job that does everything that a double will do, with the added attraction of the single barrel.

The receiver, a sleek affair with grazeful lines, is shortest in automatic design. Loading is simple. Indeed, the receiver seeming to pluck the shell from your hand. The second shell remains visible so that the shooter knows at a glance that his gun is fully loaded.

Years ago I stopped using magazine guns in the field because they were heavy, awkward and also compared to a good double. This new gun may cause me to change my mind.

FISHING INSTITUTE

From April 11th to April 15th, both days inclusive, the Sport Fishing Institute once again will send New England fishermen off to an enthusiastic start. This annual event has grown tremendously in the past few years, and this affair was originated so that many anglers were turned away because of lack of space.

Tickets for the Institute will be, "How to Catch Bigger Fish," and the interested angler will be able to pick up much useful knowledge of methods, tackle and incidental equipment. There is every indication that this one day session will be even more successful than it was last year.

Britons Wager Huge Sum

LONDON (AP)—Britons poured out a total of £330,000,000 ($1,540,000,000) on gambling in 1954, the British churches' committee on gambling said in its annual report.

That total compared with £300,000,000 ($1,985,000,000) in 1953. Only in the case of football pools was there an increase in turnover.

"In these days of rising cost of living and incessant demands for more salaries and wages, it is a grave reflection both on our national common sense and morality that £2,000,000 to £4,000,000 (£20,000)," the report said.

Delhi Edged By Sundridge

SUNDRIDGE (CP) — Sundridge Beavers took a 3-1 lead in the best-of-seven Ontario Hockey Association intermediate B semi-finals Friday night when they edged Delhi Rockets 3-2 before 721 fans.

Beavers, who had taken a 1-0 lead, had to come from behind in the second period to tie the score and then on a blistering shot by defenceman Keith Anderson at the 4:09 of the final stanza, they pulled ahead to stay.

The fifth game is scheduled for tonight in Sundridge.

Other Beaver scorers were Gerry Horton and Aubie Percivil with singles. Beaver Bishop, a Dundas exchange student at the University of Michigan, was a good 40 yards behind at the finish.

Americans Win Track Events

MONTREAL (CP) — American stars led by Phil Reavis, Ronnie Ashenfelter of New York, ran off with the top four events Friday night in the eastern Canada indoor track championships at the Montreal Forum.

Ashenfelter hardly had a workout as he lapped the field twice in winning the two-mile event in 9:08.3. A field of the 'nine started' but only seven finished.

Joe Gaffney, the galloping Irishman from Philadelphia, edged Dick Maiocco of New York by five yards in the co-featured 600-yard sprint.

The two-mile event lost a lot of its color when Gordon McKenzie of New York withdrew. McKenzie was the only one expected to give Ashenfelter a battle in the race.

Harry Bright of the New York Pioneer Club finished a stride ahead of classmate Reggie Pearman to take the 1,000-yard open event. Bright's winning time was 2:23.1.

Lowell Zelbers, who formerly held the Big Ten Conference mile championship for Indiana, had no competition in winning his event in 4:17.1. Queen's Bishop, a Dundas exchange student at the University of Michigan, was a good 40 yards behind at the finish.

One reason why electricity serves us so well is that it can be delivered wherever wires will carry it.

Ontario Hydro exerts every effort to keep safe the wires that carry this important commodity, but in spite of all precautions, lines occasionally break. A fallen wire is dangerous . . . it may be a "live wire".

Never touch a fallen wire, under any circumstances!

Warn children not to go near them. If you find an electric wire on the ground, or dangerously low, please notify the nearest Hydro office and endeavour to keep others away until service men arrive. Your co-operation may be instrumental in saving a life.

Chinese Shops Closed Due To Civic Square

TORONTO (CP)—With hardly a ripple on the surface of public opinion, nearly half of Chinatown disappeared Friday.

Expropriation for eventual construction of a civic square has closed the shops and cafes on which more than 500 Chinese depended for their livelihood.

The community, in the heart of downtown Toronto, is not happy. For more than 40 years, it has been one of the few spots of color on the city's drab landscape. Chinese residents fear the entire area may be wiped out because of a proposed new city hall and civic auditorium.

Hockey Player Dies When Blood Clot Forms

OTTAWA (CP) — Don McNabb, popular 20 - year - old defenceman with Eastview St. Charles of the Ottawa Junior City Hockey League, died in hospital Friday from a thrombosis of his right leg.

McNabb underwent a critical operation last week when doctors discovered the blood clot. The doctors first believed he had contracted pleurisy.

The blood clot was believed to be the result of a hard shot which McNabb stopped in a recent playoff with Ottawa Shamrocks who went on to the eastern Canada semi-finals.

The injury was at the back of the right leg up near the thigh. Part of the blood clot moved up to his lungs, causing complications.

Mgm Hart's Pen Drips Satire In 'Prince of Players' Script

Playwright Moss Hart, noted for his sharp wit, takes an occasional jab at the acting profession with his satirical pen in his latest screenplay, "Prince of Players," which is scheduled, to open Monday at the McCarthy Theatre.

The CinemaScope production filmed in De Luxe color stars Richard Burton, Maggie McNamara, John Derek, Raymond Massey, Charles Bickford, Elizabeth Sellars and Eva Le Gallienne and is based on the best-selling biography by Eleanor Ruggles on the lives, the madness, and the loves of the fabulous Booth family, monarchs of the early nineteenth century American stage.

In such a story, Hart had ample opportunity for digs at actors. For instance, he has one scared Raymond Massey, as the unpredictable Junius Brutus Booth, tells Charles Bickford as an impresario, that he is making a mistake to put his savings into the hands of children, for "actors are childlike beings, as you will learn if you have more to do with them in the future."

In another scene, Richard Burton, playing Edwin Booth, and Maggie McNamara, as the ethereal Mary Devlin, discover that they are in love and tell Bickford that they can't act the following night because they're getting married. Hart has Bickford answer:

"Married? What in the world do you think you are? People? You're actors."

2nd feature is "14 Hours," with Paul Douglas, Richard Basehart and Barbara Bel Geddes.

Suit Launched

MONTREAL (CP)—Three Montreal builders Friday launched a $6,455,500 suit against the owners of Dominion Square Building in downtown Montreal.

The suit said Marco Leon, Charles Burns and Harry Low were partners in losses incurred when the building was sold during the depression. They claimed they were guaranteed a share of the selling price in their construction contract.

AT THE BELLE

"The Bridges at Toko-Ri" Scores Perfect Hit at Vivid Film

Filmed in color by Technicolor and starring William Holden, Grace Kelly, Fredric March and Mickey Rooney, the film relates the heart-gripping tale of men at war and the women they leave behind. Told in the broad terms of the operations performed by the naval flying arm it also focuses on the personal emotional problems that arise when men are confronted by the awful necessity of having to be killed.

This is effected by the detailed exposition, of, first, the admiral, Fredric March whose awesome duty it is to send the brave young fliers out to what might possibly be their doom. One such flier, in the person of William Holden, undergoes a smug emotional problem which involves his devotion to his wife and his loyalty to his country. Holden's wife, Grace Kelly, recently arrived in Tokyo to be stateside, forcibly brings out in him his need for survival.

However, when the most dangerous assignment of the campaign, the bombing of the almost impregnable bridges at Toko-Ri, falls on his shoulders he does not shirk his duty. It is this final climactic bombing mission that explodes the film into its soul-stirring conclusion.

The acting of the principals is consistently superb, aiding director Mark Robson and producers William Pearlberg and Geo. Seaton in achieving their aim of bringing forth a sincere human document. On a par with the general excellence of "The Bridges of Toko-Ri" is the almost fantastic aerial photography which is the best ever seen.

"The Bridges of Toko-Ri" is truly a great motion picture. It is destined to be considered one of Hollywood's major contributions in many years.

AT THE CAPITOL — Marlon Brando, Academy Award Winner for the best actor of the year who created a furore when he appeared on the Broadway Stage in "A Street Car Named Desire" and recently in the screen attraction which won him the Academy Award "On the Waterfront", is equally sensational in the Capitol Theatre's attraction "The Men", opening Monday for a three day engagement only. On the same program "Home of the Brave", featuring an all star cast.

GRAND AWARD BROADCAST
"C-I-L Singing Stars of Tomorrow" Winners—Sunday

Lesia Zubrack

Bernard Turgeon

Emily Cundari

Gaston Harnois

The four major award winners of the C-I-L Singing Stars of Tomorrow 1954-55 season will be presented in recital and receive their C-I-L music scholarships at a Grand Award broadcast Sunday evening from Massey Hall. The top scholarship of $2,000 will be awarded to Miss Lesia Zubrack, coloratura soprano, of Prince Albert, Sask. She will also receive an R.C.A. Victor Red Seal recording contract. A $1,000 award will be presented to Bernard Turgeon, baritone, of Edmonton. Miss Emily Cundari, soprano, of Windsor and Gaston Harnois, baritone, of Shawinigan Falls, Que., will receive $500 second place awards. Ed Ward Johnson, retired former general manager of the New York Metropolitan Opera Company, will make the presentations. Grey Clark will tell another of the stories he writes specially for the program. Rex Battle, conductor of the regular series, will be musical director of the Grand Award broadcast, which will be one hour, starting at 9.00 p.m. on CJBQ.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR

Monday, April 4, 1955

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Day has uncertain influences which could lead to complications, so we suggest caution, double checking in all matters. Protect money, business contracts. Investigate loans.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Use every facility at your command to get your schedule started early. Ordinary problems can be solved without much ado if you use your fine intelligence.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — It is urgent that harmony and friendliness pervade your surroundings, and it's your job to see that it does. Avoid confusion and complications.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Fine vibrations indicate excellent headway in the making for many business matters, real estate, trading, travel and merchandising. Be serious but not over-exacting.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Go all out in activities in which you have knowledge, talent. Aspects favor those who give their entire try. Intelligent thought before acting. Romance, marriage, divorce.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) — Some matters may have to be hurried if you would get in under the wire a winner. Of course, common sense and sound reasoning will better the chances for top returns. Personal affairs can be pleasant.

September 24 to October 23 — (Libra) — Facts not fancy should be accented today. Work, investments, general business all need serious consideration before action. Bolster your will to strive for the finest.

October 24 to November 22 — (Scorpio) — You are among the favored by fine configurations now. Take all matters calmly and in stride and you will come through with flying colors. Generous returns for top efforts.

November 23 to December 22— (Sagittarius) — Take the direct course; don't hedge or go the round-about way for results. Farming, industry, selling, domestic and personal affairs should go well.

December 23 to January 21 — (Capricorn) — Unusually favorable planetary influences. Should stimulate your endeavors and lead to advancement. Apply action efforts to cover all essentials, including family, home.

January 22 to February 20 — (Aquarius) — Take care of unfinished matters, immediate needs now. News of good cheer likely during the p.m.

February 21 to March 20 — (Pisces)—Step up effort to counteract possible resistance from outside sources. Unexcited opportunity possible during the p. m. Turn to conference, research to cover all phases of important activities.

You born today have an effectionate nature; are keen, a good judge of business matters and situations ni general; are fearless in defending righ and a loyal worker. You can overcome difficult conditions best when you smile and don't anticipate trouble. Active mentally, you may prefer mild physical exercise. You acquire knowledge easily. June, July and August of this year will be productive periods for new affairs most pleasantly being dispensed. You can make personal advances. You also make personal

SPRING ROUND-UP HASTINGS COUNTY FARM FORUM

FRANKFORD — About 70 people met in River Valley school house on Tuesday evening to wind up farm forum operations for another year.

All five forums: Brookdale, Foxboro, Hillcrest, Melrose and River Valley were well represented and a few visitors besides were present.

Two sessions of sing-song were enjoyed, led by Mrs. George Heasman. Hazard's entertained with the violin duet by Clifford Wannamaker, with Will Glover at the piano. Mrs. Percy Macmullen gave two readings for River Valley, Miss Helen Burditt a piano selection for Brookdale, and the singers from Melrose, Messrs. L. Lester, S. Melville, L. McLaren with Mrs. Demille at the piano were in their usual good style.

CONSERVATION SLIDES

Mr. Don Bell showed slides on conservation (Moira Watershed). This was Foxboro's number.

The reports given of year's work by each forum showed the members have been thinking on various subjects of a good deal of vital information gleaned. Besides this, the community spirit, which is in danger of dying out, has been revived.

GUEST SPEAKER

The guest speaker, Mr. Jim Bird, chairman of Ontario Farm Forum, was unable to come, so Ed. Heasman. He stated "It is easy to say, 'What we do and how we do it'". He spoke on "Why We Do It." In going back into the history of farm forum he showed it was the answer to a need. We are in a progressive group, but are out for education. This is given in three ways: (a) broadcast; (b) farm guide, and (c) discussion.

During the luncheon period the U.S., Many Other Countries Look to Canada for Newsprint

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP)—When Alexander Dumas set up shop to manufacture newsprint from maple blocks at Valleyfield, Que., in 1866, he probably little realize he was launching what has developed into Canada's most profitable industry.

Buntin, an American whose birthplace and background appear to be unknown, moved from Quebec historical records, brought to the community 25 acres of land and created a manufacturing process then in wide use throughout the United States.

Today the United States and many other countries look to Canada, and particularly Quebec, for the bulk of their newsprint requirements.

The Canadian Newsprint Association estimates the world demand of newsprint now has reached 11,700,000 tons annually. Of this total Canada produces more than half and the province of Quebec alone more than one-quarter.

Canada has 130 pulp and paper mills and 83 of them are located in Quebec. The newsprint capital of the world is located in Trois-Rivieres, Que., whose mills produce 2,400 tons a day.

This and other information was provided 75 newspaper editors in television reporters during a six-day tour of Quebec's main industrial centres. The tour was part of a campaign organized by the Montreal Board of Trade to improve tract attention to Quebec's industries and national resources.

The first stop on the tour was at Trois-Rivieres where 720,000 tons of newsprint are produced annually by the mills of Canadian International Paper Company, Belgo-Lawrence Corporation Limited and Consolidated Paper Corporation Ltd.

The Trois - Rivieres mills are spaced along the north shore of turbulent St. Maurice river which provides the power needed for production as well as a cheap transportation system for delivery of pulpwood logs. During the ice-free season, from May to November, the St. Maurice delivers a constant supply of wood—up to 100,000,000 logs—to mills along its course.

The reporters were conducted through the mill of Canadian International Paper Company to see the various processes that pulpwood goes through before it rolls out in seemingly endless sheets of paper. In the mill was a machine capable of producing newsprint at the rate of 2,000 feet a minute. Company officials said this is the fastest production rate ever maintained continuously anywhere in the world.

Ranking next to Trois-Rivieres as a newsprint production centre is the Lake St. John district of northeastern Quebec where there are four large and two small mills. How important is the newsprint industry to the province of Quebec? The Newsprint Association sums up the answer in this way:

"In the economy of Canada's national industry, Amidst all industry, it stands first in value of production, first in exports, first in wages paid and numbers employed and first in capital investment and value, the output of the pulp and paper industry is greater than the output of minerals including precious metals, base metals, iron ore and fuels, and petroleum."

Is there any danger that heavy taxation will drive newsprint mills to the point where sources of newsprint will disappear?

The answer is "no, if we are careful," said Quebec's Trade Minister Beullac.

The days of indiscriminate cutting in Quebec now have largely disappeared, he said. Timber limits on crown lands no longer were sold. They were leased and the leases could be cancelled if cutting was not carried out properly.

The aim of the provincial government, said Mr. Beaulieu, is to maintain forests as a crop.

Many companies have launched reforestation programs aimed at insuring that they will have perpetual sources of newsprint.

Northport

NORTHPORT — Mr. and Mrs. Harold Minaker and Ronald, Kingston, Mrs. A. Chaplin and Judy, Belleville, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Mills and family, on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hickerson and Diana have moved to Bethel Street. All are sorry to lose them from the community.

Glad to report Mrs. Robt. Greenwell recovering from her recent illness.

Miss Rose Marie MacDermald has returned home after a pleasant holiday in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren Clow, Bobby and Sharon were guests on Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Clow, Brookville, and Rev and Mrs. James Forrester, Iroquois, over the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Mills, Mr. and Mrs. Don Kerr, Mrs. Mowers, George Foster, H. Mallett, B. M. Giffin, William Kennedy, Mr. Walter Norton and Miss Myrla Norton attended the final hockey game in Belleville on Friday evening.

Recent guests of Mrs. Edna MacDermald and family were Mr. Creyk, Toronto, Mr. C. Rose, Miss Mary Maracle, Belleville, Miss Blanche Le Heup Luxton and Miss Carol Sullivan.

Mr. J. Miller returned home much improved after being in Kingston hospital the past week.

The C. G. I. T. met at the home of Mrs. Ken Needham on Friday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Hooke and Randy have moved to the home of his parents in Rossmore. Mr. Hooke has been stationed in Picton the past year. Sorry to lose them from the neighborhood.

The community was shocked on Monday evening when they learned of the tragic accident to Mr. Eugene Rabbie near Campbellford. He had lived here during his boyhood days and the deepest sympathy goes out to the family.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Pulver have taken up residence at her old home here. We welcome them back to the community.

Mrs. H. Barker, Mrs. W. Holechepaw and Mrs. Ed. Aldridge attended the W. M. S. rally in Picton last week.

Many from this street attended the funeral of the late Mr. Eugene Rabbie, in Picton, on Thursday.

county committee, composed of two directors from each forum, met for election of officers and other business.

OFFICERS ELECTED

Following is the slate of officers: Chairman (retiring), Bernard Hollinger; chairman (new), Sam Nicholson; secretary, (vice), Basil Kuglin; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Ken Chenoweth; press reporter, Mrs. Morley Sine.

Mr. B. Kuglin is to attend the farm forum council meeting in the Royal York Hotel on April 5 as the representative. On April 6th, a carload is to attend the annual meeting of farm forums of Ontario in Royal York Hotel. The secretary (or proxy) of each forum is to attend.

Centenary

CENTENARY — At the time of writing, the storm and digging out in the order of the day. Due to stormy weather the Sunday service was not well attended and no school children had a holiday on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Hancock attended the 5th wedding anniversary of Mr. Hilton and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Egerton Hancock, Orono, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Marlow Hancock, Centerville, Sunday.

The Sidney Teachers' Association entertained the trustees and their wives at a social evening in the Avonlea Hall on Thursday evening. Mr. and Mrs. Burton Hubble, Mr. and Mrs. Dawson Douglas, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Sutherland, and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Edmondson attended from here.

Several ladies attended a tea sponsored by Wesley W. A. at the home of Mrs. George K. Graham, Trent Road; Mrs. F. M. Nobes assisted with pouring tea.

Mrs. Elwin Hart, Mrs. Gillie Sills, and Mrs. Orville Hay, were delegates to the Presbyterial meeting of the W. M. S. on Thursday. Mrs. Hay attended the session, and enjoyed the talks of Dr. Winifred Bryce, of India.

Mr. and Mrs. Ken Chandler entertained their friends and neighbors on Saturday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Kelly Johnson spent Wednesday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Percy Sutherland.

Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Shortt; David and Mr. George Shortt, were Sunday supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Regenberg, and family, Catherine St.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Meesa spent the week-end with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Cooney, Ivanhoe.

Deepest sympathy is extended to Mrs. Bruce Chisholm in the loss of her father, Mr. J. W. Meyers, Winnipeg.

Mr. Clifford Ray, with the grain cleaner, is making his annual round of calls, in this neighborhood.

Bible Briefs
Who Was This?
By A. A. M.

Who was the King of Israel who disguised himself in order to fight against the Egyptians? He was mortally wounded in this combat by an arrow.

Under his direction, in the eighteenth year of his reign, the people of Israel had kept the passover and offered burnt offerings on the altar of the Lord. There had been no similar religious feast observed with such care by the priests and Levites, by all Judah and Israel and all the inhabitants of Jerusalem since the days of the prophet Samuel.

Shortly after this, Neco, King of Egypt, went up to fight at Carchemish on the Euphrates River. The King of Israel gathered his men of war and went out against Neco. But the Egyptian king sent envoys saying that he had not "what have we to do with each other? I am not coming to war against you this day, but against the house with which I am at war. God has commanded me to hasten. Cease opposing God, who is with me, lest He destroy you."

The King of Israel either felt he could not lose face by turning and replying that he was not going to war on a military expedition, or perhaps he misunderstood the message of the Egyptian envoys. Unfortunately he went ahead with his warlike plans. He joined battle with the Egyptians in the plain of Megiddo.

Because of his disguise, although he was in a chariot, the Egyptian who shot the fatal arrow apparently not know of his success in harming the leader of the enemy's army. But the King of Israel realized his plight. He cried to his servants, "Take me away, for I am badly wounded."

They carried him to a second chariot and brought him back to Jerusalem. There he died and was buried in the tombs of his fathers. Everyone mourned for this good king, including Jeremiah "the prophet. A great lament for the King's death was sung by the men and the women. Read the King's name and this story in Second Chronicles, Chapter 35, verses 20 to 27.

Cannifton

CANNIFTON — Mr. and Mrs. Robert Throop and Douglas, of Ottawa, spent the week-end with his mother, Mrs. Throop. The weather being so bad he had quite a time getting back home.

Mrs. Jack Lewis is home from the hospital. She had the misfortune to fall and is confined to her home for a few days.

Mrs. Peter Grass (George Lyon's mother) is still on the sick list. She is having quite a time of it. All hope she will be better soon.

The Cannifton-Corbyville Euchre club held its weekly euchre in C.O.F. cafeteria, Corbyville. Prizes were won by ladies, Mrs. Mumford, Edith Stewart and Elsie Philp; men, Garnet Latchford, Orville Hay and Mrs. Colden. The lone hand was won by Doreen Latchford and the draw by Marg. Colden. The aggregate was won by Babs Lyon. There were 24 tables playing.

Miss Nancy Doolittle is in the Belleville Hospital following an operation.

James Palmer has returned to Ottawa after spending leave with his father and mother.

Point Anne

POINT ANNE — Mr. and Mrs. Earl Veinef of Sulphide, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Reggie Cox and family.

Mr. and Mrs. William Juby, Mr. and Mrs. A. Akey, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Akey accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. John Bolting, Front Rd., and Mr. and Mrs. Percy Akey, Canniton, motored to Kingston and house party on Thursday evening last at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William and Stella Mayne, at Picton.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Bradshaw have purchased a house at Simcoenville and are moving this week.

On Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Ada Bolting, David entertained a few of his little friends, it being his seventh birthday. The afternoon was spent playing games and contests after which David opened his nice gifts, which were many, and thanked each giver. They were then served by David's mother, to sandwiches, cookies, ice cream and birthday cake, bringing a pleasant afternoon to a close and wishing David many more happy birthdays.

American Industry Joins U.S. To Develop Peaceful Atom Uses

By REUMAN MORIN

WASHINGTON (AP) — An important engagement was announced today.

It gave public notice that from now on American industry will be "going steady" with the United States government. They have been folded under the new Atomic Energy Act to develop peaceful industrial uses for the atom.

A report issued with the law says one of its aims is "encouraging flourishing research and development programs under both government and private auspices."

Whether the engagement will ripen into a happy and harmonious marriage remains to be seen. Some observers are skeptical.

Atomic energy was a government monopoly until late last year. Then the new law was written, permitting private capital to make use of atomic energy.

The Atomic Energy Commission, however, retains authority:

1. Over who gets a licence.

2. What hitherto-secret information is necessary to build and operate a reactor shall be declassified.

3. Who gets "limited-access" clearance to receive the information.

4. To release fissionable material to feel the private-owned reactors, fix the price, and fix the price of any plutonium the government later buys from private industry.

Any one of these could be a source of friction between the government and the private operator.

Sen. James Beckerley, a physicist formerly with the AEC and now with a Connecticut engineering firm, has said:

"Not only will our continued secrecy on non-weapons matters fall to affect the Russian rate of stockpiling of fissionable and fission and fusion weapons, but it will weaken our national strength by reducing our exploitation of this new source of energy."

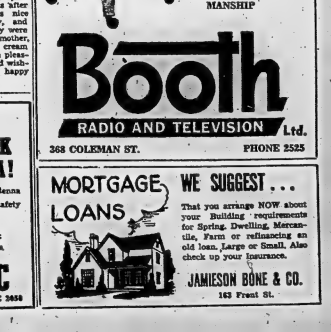
Senator Clinton Anderson (Dem. N.M.), chairman of the joint Congressional atomic energy committee, says the new law will help AEC wants to retain control over it.

He said "The situation as it stands today is one of complete confusion by the scientists."

Patents also raise problems. Companies in exchanges come up with important nuclear-reactor improvements. Can it get a patent?

Lawyers do not agree about what is patentable.

There are many other potential points of dispute.



The basic approach of government is different from private industry. Government can afford to gamble, take big risks. Industry must move more cautiously, try to get a return on the millions it must spend in this expensive field.

Girl Guides, Brownies Hold Banquet

MADOC — On Wednesday evening the Girl Guides and Brownies of Madoc held their "Mother and Daughter" banquet in the assembly hall of Trinity United Church, Madoc, with about 125 in attendance.

Visitors and local leaders were seated at the head table while mothers and daughters were seated at long tables arranged in a square.

Mrs. Orrie Reid, president of the local Guide assembly, presided. After an enjoyable meal, preceded by the singing of the blessing, Mrs. Reid opened the evening's ceremonies with a toast to "The Queen," the response to this was the singing of God Save the Queen, and the special Guide and Brownie salute.

TOAST TO MOTHERS

Caroline Reed proposed the toast to "Our Mothers." Mrs. Tom Rupert replied, expressing the spirit of the evening with a quotation from Shakespeare's Sonnett III, "Thou Art Thy Mother's Glass and She In Thee," calls back the lovely April of her prime.

The toasts continued with Barbara Bateman proposing one to the local association with a reply from Mrs. George Duffin, another to "Our Visitors" by Mrs. Wesven Hill, replied to by Mrs. Samuels; to former Guides by Mrs. C. Johnson, and replied to by Joy Ann Fox.

A highlight of the evening was the Brownie enrollment when seven Tweenies stepped over the magic stepping stones into Brownie land and were received by Madame Commissioner, Mrs. W. Bateman, and welcomed into the Brownie group.

A rousing game of "Here We Go Gathering Nuts in May," followed.

Those helping with the Brownies were Mrs. Moore, Mrs. Keene and Mrs. Anderson.

GUEST SPEAKER

Commissioner Madame Arnott of Belleville, was the guest speaker and gave a talk on "Guiding," comparing this great organization to a railroad with each company a train upon the tracks. Other visitors brought short greetings.

Mrs. Reid expressed thanks to the Guide leaders, Mrs. E. Arbic, Mrs. Warren Hill and to the Guide badge secretary, Mrs. C. R. Johnson.

Mrs. Moore reported on Brownie progress.

Patrol leaders reported from the Guides.

Mrs. Arbic and Mrs. Hill presented proficiency badges.

The Guides gathered into their patrols and closed the program with the singing of "Taps."

NORTHPORT

75 Community Friends Fete Young Couple

NORTHPORT — About seventy-five friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Mrs. Martha Reid to welcome her son, Charles and his bride, the former Barbara Welch, whose marriage took place recently at Alliston.

After a rousing charivari the bride and bridegroom were asked to sit in gaily decorated chairs, while Colin Ketchepaw read an address and Ray Mowbray and Shirley Foster presented the following gifts from Solinesville and Northport communities: a linen tablecloth and napkins, woollen blanket, pop-up toaster and a silver tea service. Numerous other gifts were received from friends from outside points.

After bounteous refreshments the guests departed, all wishing Barbara and Charles a long, happy wedded life together.

Charles, who has been stationed in North Bay with the RCAF for the past year has been transferred to Coldwater, Alberta.

Churchill To Dine With Queen; May Mean Retirement

Expected P.M. Will Hand In Resignation Tuesday

By TOM OCHILTREE

LONDON (AP) — Sir Winston Churchill made ready to entertain the Queen at dinner tonight and most Britons believed it was the last time the 80-year-old statesman would be host to his young sovereign as Britain's prime minister.

Observers and members of Parliament generally expected the veteran Conservative chief to drive to Buckingham Palace Tuesday or Wednesday and hand his resignation to the Queen. She is considered certain to summon Foreign Secretary Sir Anthony Eden to take over the top post for which he has waited so long.

Tonight the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh were to dine with Churchill and his wife at the prime minister's official residence, 10 Downing St. The rarity of the occasion was viewed as still more evidence that the old man finally was stepping down.

ELECTION SPECULATION

Anticipation of the changeover stirred a buzz of speculation about the date for the next general election, which the new government chief must decide.

Until this weekend, October had been regarded as the most likely month. But what seemed in the lobbies of Parliament today that the summer might take over May 26.

There also were conflicting reports about Churchill's plans.

He is scheduled to fly to Sicily April 12 for a British meeting that has been indicated that when he returns, he will head his membership in the House of Commons and sit on the back benches as an elder statesman.

But this would be a delicate role for a man of such great prestige. Political observers agreed it might damage the Conservatives' election chances if Churchill appeared to be steering Eden once the latter had taken over.

OTHER SPECULATION

Some members of Parliament think Churchill will make only interposed visits to the House even accept a peerage and move to the House of Lords. At a heavy political article Saturday, the Manchester Evening News said Churchill might be spared the political gamut of parliamentary experience by going to the Lords.

People who doubt this theory point out that the parliamentary veteran of 55 years' service described himself as "a child of the House of Commons."

The switch at the top of the government was expected to bring no upheaval in the cabinet or policies of the cabinet. If Eden plans an early election, he may make almost no changes and may even for a time shoulder the double load of prime minister and foreign secretary.

Chancellor of the Exchequer R.A. Butler undoubtedly will keep his key economic post, and many of the designated deputy prime ministers.

EXPEDITION LEAVES

LONDON (Reuters)—A Russian expedition which left for North Pole waters will have movies, an astronomical observatory and a library on their ice floe, Moscow said Sunday. The Moscow broadcast said the Soviet scientists, who left Leningrad Sunday for the Arctic ice, will live in model huts as they drift on ice on the top of the globe.

Mexican Train Wreck Toll Now 13 Lives

COLIMA, Mexico (AP) — The death toll of a holiday train crash that battered three passenger cars into Colima state's "Canyon of Death" rose to 13 today. Four others were reported in critical condition with injuries.

The cars fell through a bridge on a mountain line Sunday night 6 miles from the Pacific coast near the little town of Atsaba.

The Colima state governor, Jesus Gonzalez Lugo, said about 60 persons were injured slightly. Other cars of the 15-car train remained on the track, the governor said, and hundreds of the persons aboard jammed them to proceed without a scratch.

Early reports said nine of the cars plunged into the canyon.

PREVIOUS ESTIMATE

The governor's casualty report knocked down a previous unofficial estimate received by the Guadalajara newspaper El Informador that about 200 persons were believed dead. Railway officials in Mexico City said earlier they believed the toll would be lower because the train was equipped with steel cars.

The dead and injured were brought back to Colima early today by one of three relief trains sent out from Colima and Guadalajara with doctors, nurses and wrecking crews.

First reports said the ill-fated National Railways express, speeding from Guadalajara to the coastal resort of Manzanillo with a crowd of Holy Week holidayers, had just left a tunnel when it jumped the tracks and hurtled into the 600-foot abyss. It was believed most or all of the passengers aboard the train were Mexicans. Foreigners rarely use the line.

The smashed cars were reported piled up just below the canyon's rim, but the sides of the ravine were so steep that night rescue operations were impossible.

The train tracks run along a narrow ledge which skirts the "Death" canyon, known by that name because of its dangerous slopes.

Frantic relatives of persons aboard the train besieged the offices of the government - owned National Railways and airline depots in an effort to reach the scene.

Father Shoots Suitor

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—An irate father early Sunday shot and killed a 16-year-old boy who had been dating his twin daughter for three years, police reported.

The victim, Gordon Thuman, died of a shotgun wound in the neck before the eyes of his girl friend, Jean Klein, 16.

The girl's father, John J. Klein, 71, was charged with manslaughter and taken to a hospital for physical examination. He was reported suffering a heart condition.

Klein and Thuman had been dating Jean for three years and he opposed the romance.

WILL OPPOSE PREMIER

LINDSAY (CP)—John N. Neilitt, an employee of the Canadian National Railways and former policeman and deputy reeve, was named Monday as Liberal candidate for Victoria riding in the next Ontario general election. The seat now is held by Premier Leslie Frost.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) — Synopsis: This morning dawned clear and cool over all of Ontario with temperatures well below freezing in northern regions, and only a few degrees above freezing in southern sections. This fine spring weather will continue throughout the province, but cloudiness followed by scattered showers in forecast for eastern sections of the province Tuesday.

FIERCE BLIZZARD HURTLES ACROSS PLAIN STATES

Earlier Dust Storm Finishes Crop Prospects

CHICAGO (AP)—A fierce blizzard hurtled eastward across the great plains today, plummeting temperatures 30 degrees, and the northeast also lay in the grip of another surprise snowstorm.

And the western storm's dread cousin, the "black blizzard," had "not finished" crop prospects on the bone dry plains in eastern Colorado. The furious wind swirled dust 35,000 feet in the air as it stripped away the meagre remaining cover of farmers' hopes across that section and into Kansas.

For all the April 1 relief, it might as well be winter with eight to 18 inches of new snow blockading roads in Wyoming and Montana, and five to 17 inches through upstate New York parts of Massachusetts, Connecticut and Vermont.

12 DEAD

The weekend weather was blamed for at least 12 deaths, including three persons who died in the crash of a chartered small airplane in Colorado Saturday. The others were in traffic accidents.

The great storm had subsided along with wind velocity as the weather storm moved southeast, but Chadron, Neb., reported gusts up to 60 miles an hour early today as the white blizzard reached western South Dakota.

There was a continuing fall of snow in Wyoming and Montana, where drifts virtually paralyzed all traffic; closed many highways, and isolated Billings, Montana's second largest city of 30,000 people.

To the south, the dust storm had not finished, and county farm agent Bruce Young of eastern Colorado. It was the latest in a series which has caused millions of dollars of crop damage this season.

The storm pounded a small section of Oklahoma early today with hail, Tulsa, 108 miles east of Oklahoma City, reported an inch hailstones fell in downtown Tulsa.

There were scattered showers and snow flurries over the great basin. Showers and thunderstorms extended into the eastern plains from Texas to Iowa and Minnesota southward through Iowa, eastern Nebraska and Kansas.

Snow and rain continued in the mid Atlantic states and southern New England after the heavy snowstorm Sunday paralyzed traffic in Connecticut and disrupted electric power in several Connecticut and Massachusetts communities. Rain driven by a 30-mile wind whipped New York City.

Safe Blown Open

KITCHENER (CP) — Police said a safe was blown open at a grocery store here early today and $1,000 taken.

It was the second safecracking within two weeks at Heehrs Market. About $3,000 was stolen March 20.

A resident of the area heard a muffled explosion and shortly after saw two men leave the store, police said. No trace of them could be found when police arrived.

BUILDING SETTING RECORD

TORONTO (CP)—Canadian contractors covered $1,000,000,000 worth of construction projects totalled $189,029,600, up $84,160,700 over March 1953, and an all-time record, the Hugh C. MacLean Building Reporter, Awards for the month of March of the year, also a record, totalled $529,872,000, up $253,486,000.

Do Not Smoke, Drink or Drive Way To Live to Be 102 Says Milton Man

MILTON, Ont. (CP) — George Hemstreet's formula for a long life: Don't smoke, don't drink, don't drive. For him it worked—he was 102 today.

His wife's formula is happiness. She'll be 100 May 22. They are believed the oldest married couple in Canada.

Mr. Hemstreet has never driven a car. He's lived all his married life in the same house in this town 17 miles north of Hamilton.

His biggest thrill "was the biggest change I've seen in my lifetime."

"It was in 1890 when we got the waterworks installed for Milton," he said. "Before that, we'd had a dandy fight in council, too."

He served on Milton council 15 years. For 9 years he was town clerk and treasurer.

Mrs. Hemstreet says they "but unloaded cargoes of more than 3,000,000 bushels.

If Yalta Documents Released Must Be in Full--MacArthur

NEW YORK (AP)—Gen. Douglas MacArthur says he favors release and dealing with "responsibility for the Yalta decisions" only if the record is released in full.

"I would be wholeheartedly in approval . . . to have published all documents which bear upon responsibility for the Yalta decisions," he declared in a statement Sunday night. "But," he added, "I would deprecate most unequivocally a partial and selective release."

The wartime Far Eastern military chief referred to the requested release of certain army documents and messages dealing with the war against Japan.

Publication of these records was sought after Director of Intelligence Maj. Gen. Charles A. Willoughby testified that his advice had prompted concessions to the Soviet Union in order to enlist that country in the Pacific war. These concessions were made by the United States and Britain at the Yalta conference in February, 1945.

The army announced Saturday it had boosted the security classification of MacArthur's wartime message file and other documents that was leaving a decision on their release to the department of defence.

MacArthur said he wants the whole record released—if at all—because he understands that the defence department is now being asked in release only selected documents dealing with plans for implementing the Yalta decisions. He said this release would exclude "the documentation, which preceded the Yalta decisions and which alone might cast light upon the responsibilities involved."

In an editorial on March 25 the Washington Post and Times-Herald challenged MacArthur's denial of any responsibility for the Yalta concessions. The newspaper said the general was known to have pleaded "for concessions to get Russia into the Japanese war."

Similar statements were made in Congress by Senator Herbert H. Lehman (Dem., Lib., N.Y.).

MacArthur said military advice given to President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill at Yalta came from the joint chiefs of staff of the respective countries.

Pilot and Cadet Passenger Killed In Plane Crash

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — A T-33 twin jet aircraft of RCAF squadron No. 420 crashed and exploded Saturday in an abandoned golf course just east of the city limits, killing the pilot and a cadet passenger.

The victims were identified as FO. John A. Smith, 26, of London township and William H. Could, ridge, 19, flight cadet stationed at RCAF centralia, 25 miles northwest of here.

The plane came down about 300 yards from the home of the pilot's father.

BASED AT HAMILTON

The aircraft was based at RCAF station Hamilton, and on a routine training flight.

Witnesses said the plane narrowly missed scooping into a row of homes in a new subdivision. The aircraft was flying low over the ground when it suddenly dipped and crashed, left a scorched path for about 500 yards.

Wilf Keany, 34-year-old carpenter, said the explosion shot flames more than 200 feet into the air and was accompanied by billowing black smoke. The blast dug a crater 24 feet deep.

LAST SHIP UNLOADS

GODERICH (CP)—The steamship Vandoc, last of the winter fleet at this Lake Huron port, unloaded a cargo of grain Saturday at the Goderich Elevator Transit Co. The 17 ships that wintered here

432 Known Dead In Philippines Due to Quake

MANILA (AP)—The death toll from the worst quake in the country in the Philippines reached 432 Sunday, the Philippine News Service reported.

The Philippine Red Cross said 12,000 were homeless. It estimated 300 injured. But Philippine News Service said the number had risen to 2,000 as fresh reports came in from remote districts.

Hardest hit in Friday's great quake was the Lake Lanao district in northern Mindanao, second largest island in the Philippines.

Most of the casualties came from this region, as it was the area cracked open, stone buildings came crashing down and sleeping villagers were swept to their deaths by a tidal wave.

Property damage was in the millions.

The Philippine Red Cross hurried tents, medicine and blankets to the stricken areas.

BOAT BUILDER DIES,

PARRY SOUND (CP) — Alfred William Ditchburn, 75, former partner in the Ditchburn Boat Company of Gravenhurst which built many pleasure yachts and racing motor boats, died Sunday. Mr. Ditchburn had been blind for several years and spent much of his time at Rosseau, Muskoka, his birthplace. He retired in 1922 when the boat company went out of business.

TEEN-AGE GIRL LOSES LIFE SAVING OTHERS

Runs Into Blazing Movie Where 40 People Died

SCLESSIN, Belgium (Reuters)—A 13-year-old girl was hailed today as the heroine of a sudden fire which reared through a wooden theatre here Sunday night killing about 40 persons, many of them young children.

Eye - witnesses said the girl, Jeanne Hombourg, lost her own life trying to rescue other children trapped in the blaze.

They said she liked to play "mummy" in games with her friends, had three younger children to theatre to see a showing of children's shorts.

As the building suddenly burst into flames she ran out with one of the children, but her own life was lost and dragged out another.

She plunged into the flames a third time, and was not seen again.

Police were trying today to identify the bodies of victims of the fire.

They said there was doubt whether 38 or 39 persons perished in the blaze which roared through the cinema in a matter of seconds.

They had established that 22 children, 8 women and one man died but other remains were so mutilated it was impossible to say whether they were of dog or two bodies.

Several mothers perished with their young children in the flames, according to a provisional list issued by police of those reported missing by their families.

The cinema's manager died with her 10-year-old daughter, her two-year-old son and her six-month-old baby.

A police officer said "we are counting on families to help by letting us know if anyone is missing, or by giving some details which may help us to identify the bodies."

The fire was the worst of its kind in living memory in Belgium.

It swept throughout the theatre packed with workers from the nearby steel plants and their families in a matter of minutes.

The 200 people in the audience rushed panic-stricken for the only exits. It was soon blocked by flames.

Fleeing this people were injured in the blaze and rushed to nearby hospitals.

Firemen from all neighboring towns in the Liege district flocked to the blaze for more than an hour and a half.

A woman who stumbled and fell in the main aisle of the hall, failed to escape, is believed to have prevented several others from getting out of the building.

RESCUE HOPELESS

The theatre, Ideal Bio, had been open only a few days.

The interior of the exit lasted little more than 10 minutes. By then the building was a blazing inferno and hopeless to rescue more people was hopeless.

Test $2 Mask Developed by Army For Possible Radioactive Protection

By FRANK CAREY

CINCINNATI (AP) — A $2 mask developed by the army is being tested for possible use in protecting civilians against inhaling poison gas, germ weapons and radioactive dust, two army scientists announced today.

Researchers Bernard Siegel and Sam Shapiro of the Army Chemical Center, Maryland, reported that if test models meet expectations production of the masks could be quickly mass-produced. They addressed the 127th national meeting of the American Chemical Society.

The low cost of the mask, figured at as between $1.50 and $2—compares with $14 for the standard military gas mask and for a previously developed mask for civilians, they said.

Key to the cheapness of the new one, they explained, is the elimination of a relatively high cost metal "canister" for absorbing noxious gases or filtering out the tiny germs or radioactive materials.

Instead, much of the face piece of the new mask itself combines the "filter"—a fibrous mat forming a pad and containing an absorbent charcoal. The face piece is attached to a breathing plastic materials which make the mask cling to the face and bend. A harness holds it on the head. Plastic lenses are used for eyepieces. The whole device can be machine produced.

"The researchers said work is now underway looking toward the development of a new military mask that would have "major improvements in protection, vision, compactness, speech transmission, wearability and comfort."

"The need for such improvements is seriously emphasized with the advent of newer, more toxic hazards to which both the military and civilian populations may be exposed."

But they said in the development of a protective mask for civilians—"where low cost and mass producibility are of paramount importance"—some of the things required in a military mask must be compromised. These include ruggedness, long - period storability, resistance to fogging that won't cloud up at low temperatures.

Production Drop Reduced Revenue By 357 Millions

Personal Income Taxes Largest Item of Revenue

(By JOHN LeBLANC
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government today estimated a budget deficit of $148,251,000 for the 1954-55 fiscal year after eight straight surpluses.

It was the first deficit in a full year of peace since 1938-39. The last previous one was in 1945-46, for part of which Canada was at war.

The estimated deficit was reported to Parliament in a white paper tabled in the Commons by Finance Minister Harris, as background to the tax-setting budget for 1955-56 he will present Tuesday night.

In his first fiscal accounting for Parliament—he took over as finance minister from Hon. D. C. Abbott last summer—Harris' 80-page white paper disclosed that revenues slumped by about $299,000,000 during the year while expense cuts totalled $35,000,000.

SURPLUS WAS FORECAST

The deficit compared with a surplus of $45,748,000 for the 1953-54 year and with an estimated surplus of $4,000,000 which Mr. Abbott forecast in his final budget last spring before he went to the Supreme Court of Canada.

A decline in overall national production, the white paper showed, was among factors resulting in Mr. Abbott's calculation of federal revenues being off about $337,000,000.

Mr. Abbott had forecast 1954-55 revenues of $4,464,000,000.

The white paper estimated them at $4,107,135,000. Actual expenditures of $4,255,387,000. These figures are subject to revision in the final tabulation of annual accounts usually about mid-August.

"Now that the year is over, expenditures amount to a new record of $4,396,320,000 and expenditures of $4,550,522,000. The 1953-54 revenue figure was an all-time high and the spending total was exceeded only in some years of the Second World War.

NON-BUDGET TRANSACTIONS

The budget figures on revenues and expenses do not include several forms of non-budget transactions including loans and investments which there was a net credit of $196,000,000.

Starting this against the deficit, the government estimated it had to borrow $344,251,000 to cover the debt in the hands of the public. It cut this debt by $202,000,000 through reducing its cash balances by $154,000,000.

However, the net national debt went up by the amount of the deficit, being $11,284,000,000 at March 31.

A major account not reflected in the budget was payments of $333,000,000 in universal pensions to those 70 and over. This is financed 1-3 by the provinces with grants-in-aid.

Oliver Critical Of Handling By Hydro Commission

KITCHENER (CP) — Ontario Liberal Leader Farquhar Oliver said Saturday that faulty administration of Hydro affairs by the government has "thrown out the windows" any chance that existed for cheap Hydro in the province.

"It is time we took a careful look at Hydro in this province," he told delegates to the first annual convention of the Western Ontario (North) Liberal Association.

Mr. Oliver said 60 cents of every dollar paid to Hydro goes to pay off the commission's debts. In 1948 the government said cycle changeover would cost $191,000,000.

"Now it says it will cost at least 2½ times that much," Mr. Oliver said. "And it will have cost the municipalities and consumers far more millions."

EMPLOYMENT PROBLEM

The Liberal leader also touched on the unemployment problem, saying the government was shirking its duty looking after unemployed workers in the province.

Immigration Minister Pickersgill, who also addressed the delegates, said the problem of looking after unemployed employables was not a responsibility of the federal government. Federal authorities at one time offered to take the responsibility but the terms were refused.

Frank Harber of Kitchener was elected president of the association.

William P. Telford of Owen Sound and Rennie Caldwell of Fergus were chosen vice-presidents. Sidney H. Jessop of Waterloo is secretary and James Erskine of Atwood is treasurer.

Find Body Of Millbridge Man Near River Pier

Believed to have died from exposure after a night in the open air, the body of James McArvey, elderly Millbridge resident, was found Sunday afternoon near the bank of the Moira River at the south end of Millbridge. Mr. McCarvey was in his mid-70's.

The body was found by Fred Clapper, who saw the man's body floating about a pier at the water edge while he was out for an afternoon walk. He called police, believing the man to be drunk, but when officers arrived on the scene it was found the man was dead.

Coroner Dr. J. Russell Scott said there would be no inquest.

Police believe the elderly man had remained in the open all night and had become soaked from the snow and which had fallen during the early morning.

Mr. McArvey is survived by brothers in Millbridge and in Toronto.

W. O. Bailey Named Legion Zone Commander

W. O. Bailey, third-term president of Belleville branch, No. 97 of the Canadian Legion, was elected zone commander of zone F-2, at the zone's annual meeting held Sunday in Consecon.

He succeeds Jack Taylor, formerly of Tweed and now of Belleville.

Zone F-3 includes branches in Bancroft, Marmora, Madoc, Tweed, Stirling, Belleville, Deseronto, Consecon, Wellington and Picton.

Other officers elected were: — Harry Fraser, Deseronto, deputy zone commander and Rayburn McCoy, Madoc, zone sports officer.

The new executive will take office in August for a two-year term.

About 100 members of zone branches filled the Consecon meeting which was preceded by a dinner at noon in Consecon Hall. The ladies auxiliary of the Legion catered for the dinner.

Those attending the meeting included, Len Taylor, Belleville, zone commander; J. W. Broughton, Brighton district commander; J. Burnett, mayor of Cobourg, regional vice president of provincial command.

Legion business discussed at the meeting included plans to attend the district convention in Peterborough, April 17th.

CLAIMS FALSE "OSCAR"

NEW YORK (AP)—The Motion Picture Academy demanded today that the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences take back the "Oscar" given to Budd Schulberg last Wednesday for writing the movie script "Waterfront." In a letter to the Academy, the lawyer for the company said Monticello has filed suit claiming to be "the true owner of the story" that was produced by Columbia Pictures.

Increasing Nationalism in Middle East And Africa Headache for Western Powers

Asia Minor is growing up and nationalism is flaming in the dark continent of Africa.

The Middle East, sun-baked meeting ground of East and West, is burning with nationalism, new ideas of its importance, and is fizzing its muscles after centuries of slumber.

The Middle East's increasing awareness of its strategic importance at the crossroads of Europe and Asia is giving headaches to political, military, economic and social leaders in the West and behind the Iron Curtain.

Right now the powder keg will give the West relief!

Assessing conditions in the Middle East and suggesting possible remedies, if a never-ending task, the Western observers, at the present aspects of the problem and current thinking regarding their solution were outlined to members of the Belleville Club Saturday night by Air Vice Marshal Lawrence Edward "Larry" Wray, O.B.E., D.F.C., C.D.

AVM Wray, presented with an honorary life membership in the Belleville Club by President Dr. H. Willis, spent five weeks in the Middle East during June, July, August and September as part of a 15-man team of observers from the Imperial Defence College in London.

ADM OF TRIP

Their task, assigned by the Defence College was to learn as much as possible about political, economic, military and social conditions in the area, further visited and to report their findings to the college authorities.

Their trip took them to Malta, Suez, Cyprus, Turkey, Bahrein, Iraq, Jordan, Israel, Lebanon, Sudan, Nigeria, and the Gold Coast.

AVM Wray explained to members that the Imperial Defence College was established in 1928 by Winston Churchill when it became apparent that World War I had brought down old practices of diplomacy and merged them with military and political considerations.

"The Imperial Defence College is not primarily military," said AVM Wray. "Two-thirds of those attending are military personnel and two-thirds of the latter are United States while one-third are civilian experts from government."

Canada has one representative from the RCAF, one from the Navy attending each session of the college.

"The common aim of all is to solve the problems set for us by the college," said AVM Wray. "The Defence College doesn't supply the answers. They provide the speakers, including such men as Anthony Eden, R. A. B. Butler, General Montgomery and Gen. Greenther, but you have to find your own answers.

"Syndicates of eight men thrash out the problems together and present their answers. A syndicate, for instance, might have an Indian, American, Pakistani, Canadian, Australian, South African and two United Kingdom members. Each man not only has to find his own solution to the problems presented, he has to be prepared to defend it."

"It is the responsibility of the college commandant to co-ordinate the good points of the solutions presented and send them along to the government."

PROBLEM STUDIED

One of the problems set for a group including AVM Wray was a study of the military, political and economic problems of the Middle East and Africa. Present problems and possible future problems were to be studied and reports made to London.

First stop on the five-weeks trip was at Malta where Lord Louis Mountbatten delivered a forceful, dynamic lecture for the hours on the problems of the naval defence of the Mediterranean.

"He is a most remarkable man," commented AVM Wray.

The trip through the Suez canal zone, Britain's mighty military installation in the Middle East, which will cease to be a British base in a few years according to an agreement reached with Egypt last summer.

What happens to world communications when Egypt takes over?

Unless Egypt maintains constant dredging many observers believe that the canal will gradually fill with sand in a relatively few years "and an entirely new trade pattern" between Asia and Europe will evolve.

What does the shift of British military installation to Cyprus mean?

The new look emphasizes fewer troops in fewer places with more reliance on airlifts of materials and men," said AVM Wray.

"Cyprus, however, presents a very difficult and tricky situation. At the moment the cry in Cyprus is for union with Greece. Seventy-five per cent of the population is Greek, 23 per cent Turk, with only a sprinkling of Europeans.

"The Turks state flatly there will be no Turkish Cyprus and Greece. The movement for union is definitely sponsored and financed by Communists. For some reason the head of the Greek Orthodox Church on Cyprus has lent his support to the movement.

Because Cyprus is supplanting Suez as Britain's bastion in the Middle East, the whole situation is very delicate for the British."

Visits to Istanbul and Ankara convinced the party that the Turk is a proud, sensitive and very tough fellow. He faces Russia and has suffered 20 wars against her. However, you have to admire their spirit. The Russians respect them, too.

"Economically Turkey is a NATO weak link," said AVM Wray. "There is little heavy industry. Agriculture is the chief occupation and Turkey has a good country's wheat market has produced considerable inflation.

"The Turks are in an important position strategically. They are the right arm in the Middle East complex and we must give support to their country for many years to come."

In Iraq, rising nationalist sentiment has singled out the British as a punching bag.

"Unlike Iraq with Turkey and Pakistan in a mutual defence pact you have a foundation to a very difficult problem," he said.

At Bahrein, in the Persian Gulf, an oil-rich sheikdom that has so much money it is coming out of his ears," is duplicating London's Hyde Park in the midst of a desert.

"It is not in Bahrein," said AVM Wray, "that at an official reception towels are passed out for wiping away perspiration, and everyone donned bathing suits and stood in a pool of water while refreshments were served."

AVM Wray was escorted Aden, a vital and bustling seaport on the Red Sea and saw the fortifying and training of savage tribesmen for service in the native police.

"The story in Kenya is that of too little, too late," said AVM Wray.

NO SOLUTION IN SIGHT

"There are 300,000 to 400,000 whites and hundreds of natives. The natives have not been brought along. Help now is too little and too late.

"The Mau Mau problem is no closer to solution now than it was over two years ago. Some 5,000 to 8,000 natives have been killed and over 50,000 are held in confinement. These men cannot be released with any assurance that they will not take up where they left off when captured.

"The future of the white way of life in Kenya does not look good. The avowed purpose of the Mau Mau is to drive the white man out of Kenya. The struggle is costing the United Kingdom and Kenya millions of pounds and is not accomplishing very much.

"If you give land to the natives they would ruin it. They have land in Kenya but they have ruined it. They have no ability to handle land. The whole situation is a sorry and dreadful state of affairs."

Southern and northern Rhodesia and Nyasaland, recently aligned in a federation, are less of a problem with the native population "because the whites have been more progressive in teaching Africans and giving them practical ways of living."

"But numbers are bound to win this equation. Mau Mau influences are affecting Rhodesia and Sir Godfrey Huggins, the genius who conceived the federation, is very conscious of the outside pressures threatening to wreck it."

Uganda was described as a country so fertile that "it is hard to generate industry in the native."

"Britain has poured blood, sweat and tears into the Sudan," said the speaker. "It now seems to be going for naught."

"Egypt is putting a lot of pressure on the Sudan to bring about union. There is a fair chance that in a forthcoming plebiscite the Sudan will vote for union with Egypt."

HOPEFUL PICTURE

Nigeria and the Gold Coast, negro countries on the west coast of Africa, presented a hopeful picture for the future of the black man in Africa.

"In Nigeria they have the brains and the ability to govern themselves," he said. They do not have the Communist menace. There are extremely able men there."

"There is a new continent emerging in central Africa, said AVM Wray. "Rhodesia and Nyasaland are conscious of nationhood. A white black empire is emerging. There is nothing wrong with it. We have to work with it. If we do there is no danger to its emergence. If we do not help them the Reds are all too ready to help and there would be one of the nastiest racial incidents in history. We must not hinder them, we must help them."

The speaker was thanked by Hector Pringle, Belleville.

AVM Wray's father, Robert J. Wray, lives in Brother, Harley, reside in the city.

Obituary

MRS. ALEX. COCHRAN

MADOC — The funeral services for Mrs. Alex. Cochran were held on Wednesday afternoon at the home of her son-in-law, Dr. Frank Connor, with Rev. M. W. Heslip, of St. Peter's Presbyterian Church conducting services which were attended by many friends and Consecon. Interment took place in Lakeview cemetery.

Pallbearers were Harold Ney, Percy Nayler, Tom Rupert, Walter Cox, Alfred Mc Coy, Earl Armstrong and W. Hulin.

MRS. WILLIAM M. HOWIE

A lifelong resident of the city, Mrs. Martha Howie died yesterday in her 73rd. year at her home, 15 Dundas street, East. It was the house where she was born. Her death culminated a lengthy illness.

Daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Church, Mrs. Howie was a well-known figure in the community. She was a member of St. Thomas' Anglican Church, where she was baptized and confirmed. When her health permitted she was an active worker in church organizations. She also was a former member of the Order of the Eastern Star, No. 53.

Mrs. Howie is survived by her husband, William; two sons, one daughter, Mrs. Vernon (Kitty) Mallory, Belleville; two sons, Gerald and Clifford, both of Belleville and one brother, Frank Thompson, Toronto.

Resting at the Pinkston and Luscombe Funeral Home. The funeral arrangements appears elsewhere in this edition.

WILLIAM JAMES ADDISON THOMPSON

In failing health for some time, William James Addison Thompson, 200 Dundas street, died at the Belleville General Hospital on Saturday evening. He was in his 80th year.

A former Canadian National Railways engineer, Mr. Thompson was born at Moira, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Thompson. He had lived in Belleville for the past 50 years and for the past year had lived at Moira. He retired from the C.N.R. in 1937 after 39 years service in the city.

He was a member of Victoria Lodge, Bancroft Church, and belonged to Benjamin Lodge, L.O.L. No. 1625.

He is survived by his wife, the former Melissa Smith; one son, Harry Thompson, and two step-daughter, Miss Doris Smith, both of Belleville; two sisters, Mrs. Annie Dunlop and Mrs. Sanford Hubble, both of this city, and three grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Resting at the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home; the funeral announcement appears elsewhere in this edition.

MRS. LAURA A. ADAMSON

Mrs. Laura Aletha Adamson, 33 Isabel Street, died in the Belleville General Hospital, Friday, April 3rd, after being in failing health for the past four years.

The deceased was a native of Belleville, the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Gordon Bell, and lived in Belleville all her life.

She is survived by two sons, Robert and Howard, both of Belleville; a sister, Mrs. Stanley (Alice) Spafford, of Sidney township, and one grandson, Ronald Gordon Adamson, of Belleville. She was predeceased by a brother, Albert Bell, five years ago.

The deceased was a member of the Bethesda United Church and was active in church work. She organized the C.G.I.T. corps at Bethesda United Church and was active in the W.M.S. while health permitted.

Resting at the Grant Funeral Home. The funeral announcement appears elsewhere in this edition.

FERRIS McDONALD (Frankford)

Funeral services were held on Saturday from the Rowe Funeral Home, Frankford, for Ferris McDonald, life-long resident of the district. Interment was in Stockdale cemetery.

Rev. C. E. Clarke, of the United Church, officiated.

Five Teams In Softball Loop; Extend Deadline

Only one Belleville team was among those entering the Belleville District Softball League yesterday afternoon but several more are expected to beat the April 15th deadline for entries.

A good crowd turned out for the meeting, including team representatives from Point Anne, the Bobcats, Madoc, Trenton Town, and a yet unsponsored team called the Orphans. The five teams in are Bob Temple's Bobcats, Madoc, Frankford, Trenton Town and the RCAF Flyers. Point Anne will decide this coming week while Bill Spafford voiced the expected entry of the Orphans.

An amendment added to the April 13th deadline was that all teams must pay an entry fee of $10. of the $35 entry fee by the same date and must also have all over their complete fee to the treasurer by May 1st.

The big problem facing the association now is the classification of the teams to insure Belleville's eligibility in both Intermediate "A" and "AA" OASA playdowns. Don Carr, OASA Secretary, is conducting services which were attended by many friends and Consecon. Interment took place in Lakeview cemetery.

The Belleville OASA playdowns can be entered. On top of this, there must also be at least two "AA" teams before a Belleville team can participate in the "AA" playdowns. At the minute, there are no "A" and only one "AA" club which definitely qualifies for league and Robert Temple says that without the entry to play in the OASA playdowns he will withdraw his team.

An industrial league winner could challenge the Bobcats or any other team in the "AA" ranks for the right to enter the playdowns providing they affiliate with the Belleville OASA body.

This case Belleville would be classed as having two teams of "AA" status if the industrial team constituted wholly of "AA" players. The Orphans will be an "A" team if they enter.

Bob Temple, Carr, one of the three representatives from Belleville to attend the convention in Peterborough this week, felt that the matter would straighten itself out well before the time for familiar "Play Ball" echoes around the 24th of May.

Hit by Truck Woman Injured

Struck by a truck as she was crossing Pinnacle street at the Bridge street intersection, Mrs. Iris Chappell, 10 Octavia street, suffered head lacerations and a badly lacerated ankle on Saturday afternoon. The injured woman was taken to hospital by Bush ambulance.

Police said Mrs. Chappell, accompanied by Mrs. Shirley Soule, 7A Sanford Street, was crossing Pinnacle street from the corner of the Armouries Lawn when Mrs. Chappell was struck by a truck driven by Asbury Hough, Halleway, 9th concession of Thurlow. Mr. Hough was then westbound on Bridge and had turned left on to Pinnacle street and apparently failed to see the two women.

Bearers were: Clayton Rose, John Hood, Alex. Cochrane and Jack Wallis, Ed. McCumber and Percy Sickels.

Mr. McDonald died March 30, after a two-year illness. He was in his 67th year.

FUNERAL NOTICE

All members and officers of L.O.I. No. 31 Belleville are requested to meet at the residence of Brother Harold Taylor, Campbell Street to attend a funeral service for our late brother Addison Thompson. Tuesday evening at 7.30.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — Trading on the stock market today hit the fastest pace in the 103-year history of the exchange.

The ticker tape fell as much as 30 minutes behind in recording floor sales in early afternoon trade.

Exchange officials said the lag was the greatest in their memory. They attributed the delay mainly to buy-and-sell orders which had accumulated during the weekend.

Volume at noon was 4,254,000 shares, slightly less than Friday's noon volume of 4,580,000. The pace was at the rate of a 12,000,000-share day. Trading in speculative issues accounted for the big turnover.

Base metals and industrials led a general advance in all major sections of the market.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO (CP) — All classes and grades of slaughter cattle sold slowly today at the Ontario public stockyards. The few sales on good and choice steers, heifers and fed yearlings were steady. Kinds grading medium down were barely steady. A heavy run of cows and the class fully 50 cents a hundredweight lower. Bulls were steady.

Receipts: cattle 3,755 (including 281 westerns); mostly butchers' calves 380; hogs 185; sheep and lambs 290; holdover 600 cattle.

Prices: choice steers, all weights 30-32.75; good steers 19-30; medium 16-19; common 13-16; good heifers 17-18; a few choice to 18.50; medium 14-16; common 12-14; boner steers and heifers good to choice fed yearlings 30.50-31.50; a few extreme tops of 32; good fed yearlings 19-30; medium 17-19; good cows 13-13.50; tops of 14; good light heifer cows 13; canners and cutters down to 8; good heavy bologna bulls 18-20.50 with sales to 14; common and medium light bulls down to 10.

Replacement cattle: some good stock calves 30; good stockers were generally steady at 18-24.

Calves were steady at 26-28 for good and choice vealers; medium 18-25; common 12-17.

Hog prices were not established. Two deliveries of 48 weaned lambs were unsold; good spring lambs 26-27.

PRODUCE MARKET

TORONTO (CP) — Churning cream and butter print prices were unchanged here today.

The egg market was about steady with offerings in excess of a quiet demand.

Quotations provided by the Dominion department of agriculture: Eggs, graded, in fines: extra large 61-42; A medium 41; A small 39-37; B 35; C 31; Wholesale to retail: A large 46-47; A medium 45; A small 41-43; B 40; C 32.

Butter, solids: Ont., first grade 59 cents.

DOLLAR RATE

MONTREAL (CP) — The U. S. dollar was at a discount of 29-32 per cent in Bank of Canada reported at noon EST, today. Friday's noon rate was 98 7-32 cents. Pound sterling $2.74⅝ against $2.74¾.

DAVID B. THOMPSON IS TAKING COURSES

David B. Thompson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Thompson, is in Toronto taking special courses in orientation in the general directing and also will attend the Canadian School of Embalming at Bamford Institute beginning May 16. When David graduated from Belleville Collegiate and Vocational School last June he entered the business with his father at the Thompson Funeral Chapel and will return to the business when his courses are completed.

GIVEN REMAND UNTIL FRIDAY

Found guilty on a charge of breaking and entering and also on two charges of false pretences, Frank Dudley Willband, formerly of Pembroke, B.C., and now of Belleville, was remanded until Friday for sentence when he appeared in city magistrate's court before Magistrate T. Y. Wills this morning.

Willband was arrested more than a week ago by police who found him in front of the safe at the Selbering Tire Shop on Dundas St., near the rear service entry at the back of the store.

At the court hearing this morning Willband pleaded that he was drunk when apprehended by the police.

Police Blotter

Forcing a lock on the door of a C.P.R. tool shed on Foster Ave., thieves stole a quantity of tools over the week-end. Railway officials reported the two pairs of pliers, spanners, and a pair of coveralls were taken.

An Albert street resident complained of young boys with bows and arrows damaging property. One arrow had penetrated the wallboard sheathing of the garage while others had damaged the shingles on the roof.

Police reported several minor accidents in which property damage was very small.

One accident, over the week-end saw a pedestrian struck by a truck at the corner of Pinnacle and Bridge streets. Mrs. Ida Chappell, 10 Octavia Street, suffered a badly bruised ankle and head lacerations when struck by a truck driven by Embury Hough, Hallowray.

Harry Baker, CPR Employee, Receives Gifts

TRENTON — (Special)—Harry Baker, who worked for the Canadian Pacific Railroad since 1913, was honored at a surprise party on Friday night on the eve of his superannuation from the railroad.

Actually Mr. Baker finished his last shift at the shops here Saturday afternoon at 4.00 p. m., before starting holidays. Officially he leaves the employ of the railroad on Tuesday, April 12.

Some 150 friends, workers and their wives attended the party held in the C. P. R. recreation clubhouse. Addresses and music preceded the presentation of gifts and money to the retiring shopman.

Of the gifts received by Mr. Baker the one he cherishes most is the white basket by the Canada Bread company. The replica of a railroad engine covered the top of the beautifully constructed piece. It was a present from fellow workers.

On behalf of the C. P. R. flower fund, W. G. Fuller, a carman on the local division, presented Mr. Baker with a $50 bill. In addition he received a cheque from the railroad's executive for the same sum.

Mr. Baker, a native of England, started his railroading life in 1913. He moved to Trenton in 1914 when the C.P.R. shops first opened. He was a locomotive fireman until his health forced him to work in the shops. He has been employed there since and has lived in the same house on Mercia street for 39 years.

Three years ago Mrs. Baker died and since then Mr. Baker has resided with his mother-in-law, Mrs. Ed. Carr.

When Mr. Baker leaves C.P.R. shops at 14 years of age he went to live with an uncle, Ben Gibson, in Trent Port.

He has three children. A daughter, Mrs. John Hodgson (Clara), a nurse in Toronto, a younger daughter, Mrs. A. A. Ferguson (Shirley) is a nurse and has lived in Canada and Ron Baker, is employed by the Gulch Transport at Glen west in Saturday. Mr. Baker reported the accident to police who estimated the damage at $6.

SCRAPES CAR

R. Victor Howard of 18 North Murray Street, Trenton, scraped the left side of his car while driving away from pumps in front of a gas station on Front and Elgin Streets.

ROOF CATCHES FIRE

Only call firemen answered over the week-end concerned an outbreak in the roof of the veranda roof to the Fox Cartage office on Dundas Street. Quick application of the fire extinguisher prevented the flames from spreading. Damage was held down to $25.

Flood of Water Forces Family Out of Basement

Awakened in the middle of the night by the inrush of water into the hitherto dry basement being used as living quarters, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Diamond, Southview Ave., were forced out of their home early this morning.

Surface water, which broke through the concrete block basement wall in several places, flooded the basement. The set-off of water causing considerable damage to the furniture and other household effects. The six-cu.ft. refrigerator, buoyed up by the flood, overturned and caused considerable other damage was reported.

City firemen were called and pumped the basement out.

Mr. and Mrs. Diamond were using the basement as living quarters until their new home was built on the foundation. Every precaution had been taken during the construction of the wall to assure a dry basement but the pressure of surface water about the foundation forced cracks with result that the water poured in.

When the couple went to bed Sunday night the basement was completely dry but a short time later they were awakened by water pouring in and were forced to evacuate.

Customs Returns For Fiscal Year Show Increase

A decrease on the month in the amount of customs returns at the Belleville, Ont., Port Inspection on the fiscal year ending March 31st, was reported yesterday by customs collector.

Returns for the month of March totalled $780,727.73 as compared with $781,806.12 for the same period in 1954. This is a decrease of $11,088.39 for the month.

Returns for the fiscal year ending the last of March totalled $9,841,788.80 as compared with $9,732,110.94 for a year ago. The increase for the year was $109,856.78.

Chamber of Commerce Plans Annual Meeting

TRENTON (Special) — The annual meeting of the Trenton Chamber of Commerce will be held in the town hall on Wednesday night. Two speakers from Toronto, Jack Wilson, a representative of the Ontario Chamber of Commerce, and R. Mundle, representing the Canadian Chamber, will be present to express views and answer questions.

On Wednesday Chamber of Commerce President Jack Goldberg and Secretary-Manager Clarence Burley will motor to Campbellford for the regional meeting of the Planning and Development Department of the Ontario Government. Council will return in time for the meeting and election of directors at night.

Plan to Seek Source Of Radio Interference

TRENTON (Special — Department of Transport trouble shooters are coming to town in an effort to locate the source of interference that has been affecting radio reception in the west side of Trenton since the middle of last week.

The interference causes static has blotted out reception completely. In other instances listeners can only receive the broadcast faintly and most of the time static is bothering reception from there.

The meteorological section at the Trenton Air Station says the weather has not been to blame to cause complaints. The hydro office feels that a leaking transformer or a break in a power line could be responsible for the trouble.

Whatever the trouble, TV reception is very fuzzy and strong from Ontario and U.S. outlets.

HITS FENCE POST

A brilliant flash that hit him in the eye caused E. K. Baker of 15 Maccaura Street to lose temporary control of his car and drive into a fence post at the corner of Dundas and Lee streets Saturday. Mr. Baker reported the accident to police who estimated the damage at $6.

Will Control Air Travel Into Algonquin Park

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian and United States tourists who like to spend their holidays in Algonquin Park will not be able to roam the park as they did two years ago. In the past, it was reported today at Queen's Park.

The Ontario department of lands and forests, which supervises the park, is negotiating with the federal department of transport to limit the number of lakes on which aircraft may land in the park, officials said.

Landing sites would be strictly defined and all parties flying into the park would have to obtain a permit to land.

The landing limitations are a further step by the government to control exploitation of the park as a fishing, hunting and campaign paradise.

Brother and Son Of Knifed Woman Clash Again

CHATHAM, N.B. (CP) — The brother and son of a woman who was knifed to death last June remained in critical condition in hospital here today after a Sunday shooting.

Aylmer Glidden, 51-year-old woodworker, with a bullet wound near the heart, continued under police guard. His nephew, Floyd Russell, 22, suffered forehead and shoulder wounds.

Police said three shots were fired from a .38-calibre revolver they identified as having been in Glidden's possession. The shooting occurred in a shed at the home of Glidden's mother, Mrs. Louis Glidden.

Russell's mother and Glidden's sister, Mrs. Archibald Russell, 58, died of her wounds last June. She had stepped between the two men when they were fighting. Mrs. Russell was the mother of 11 children.

A charge of murder against Glidden was reduced to manslaughter and he was released. While awaiting trial he sawed through bars of the county jail and remained free for two days.

Cyprus Troops Hunt Terrorists Who Threw Bombs

NICOSIA (Reuters) — Police and troops hunted today for two bomb-throwers who caused a weekend of terror as this British Mediterranean island in the latest outbreak of violence in demands by natives for union with Greece).

Governors and Molotov cocktails were lobbed at British homes and buildings by the attackers. One woman, with 1931 wounds, was a doctor, was in hospital today with glass cuts caused by an exploding grenade near her bungalow.

The attacks, which started Thursday, coincided with demands for secrets by a new secret society calling itself D. O. K.—Greek for "national organization for Cyprus struggle." It was the worst outbreak since 1931 when Government Buildings were burned down by Government House.

Today all public buildings were under strong guard and RAF bases were patrolled by special police dogs flown in from Iraq and Britain, reports said.

BRITAIN BLAMED

The Cyprus government today released a list of the "oath" which certain Greek students in the island recently took in Liberate Cyprus from the British yoke, even sacrificing my life if necessary."

And the right-wing Cypriot newspaper Kypriaki today said the recent bomb outrages in several cities "is British self-determination. Responsibility for these violent manifestations rests entirely on those who ignore and defy the rights and sentiments of the over-whelmingly Greek majority in Cyprus."

Israel Wants UN Meeting On New Gaza Battle

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israel announced today she will ask for a special session of the UN Security Council to complain about "recent Egyptian acts" which violate the Israeli-Egyptian border.

The announcement from a foreign office spokesman followed renewed fighting on the Gaza strip frontier between the two countries Sunday in which the UN truce supervisor Canadian Major-Gen. Burns said two Egyptian soldiers were killed.

The Egyptian nation blamed the other for starting the latest Gaza skirmish, which developed into a 90-minute mortar-machine-gun battle.

Safecrackers Get Haul of $3,000 In Madoc Grocery Store Robbery

MADOC (Special) — Safebreak-ers who raided the door of the safe in Kincaid Bros. grocery store here early Sunday morning and made off with week-end receipts of approximately $3,000, left no thieves, working with a CNR spike crowbar, a wrecking bar and two screw drivers, gaining entrance to the safe by way of the door.

"There must have been four or five of them," said Chief Rankin. "They likely had a scout in the back and one at the front of the store and it certainly took more than one man to move that safe."

The bandits missed a few cheques and some small change which was stored over the floor at the rear of the store. Apparently they left in a hurry.

They opened all three doors in the store," said Chief Rankin. "They left the front door and a second rear door open. They were trying to make a getaway."

"They knew what they were doing, too," he added. "They didn't make a false move."

Chief Rankin said that the unopened safe would probably not make much noise.

Police believe the men parked a getaway car in the parking lot at the rear of the store. The lot, which can accommodate between 25 and 30 cars, is partially lighted by two lights on Bridge St.

Chief Rankin saw no car when he was at the store about 3.40 a.m.

"The street was dead. There wasn't a thing moving," he said this morning.

Obituary

HAROLD E. RICHARDSON

TRENTON (Special) — The funeral was held this afternoon at 1.30 p.m. Congreve Funeral Home for Harold E. Richardson, a well known Trenton resident, who died in Trenton Memorial Hospital on Friday following an illness of four years' standing. Rev. Canon Lawrence officiated.

The service was conducted at the Weaver Funeral Home by Trenton Lodge No. 249, of the Canadian Army. Interment was made in Mount Evergreen cemetery.

Mr. Richardson was a former employee of the Hinde and Dauch Company and later was with the Salvation Army.

Born at Campbellford, Mr. Richardson was the son of the late Ethel Richardson and the late Harry Richardson.

He leaves to mourn his loss his wife, the former Zelma McEwen, and two sons at home.

Bearers were: Jack and Clarke Richardson, Robert Johnson, Arthur Raynsford, Wally Bellamy and Willis Cronkwright.

ACCIDENT FATAL

PORT ARTHUR (CP)—Paul Lemieux, 45, of Geraldton, was killed this morning when his car sideswiped a new car transport two miles east of the city limits. The transport driver, not identified by police, was driving west and escaped the collision of the road.

Predicts Merger Of Labor Groups

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Claude Jodoin, president of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, predicted Sunday his organization will merge with the Canadian Congress of Labor by the first of next year.

Committees of both organizations are studying the proposed merger and are to report to their respective conventions in May. The TLC will be held this spring and the CCL next fall.

Mr. Jodoin said the main advantage of such a merger would be to free personnel now engaged in duplicative administrative roles for "more useful and effective—to organize the unorganized."

QUADS FOR TB PATIENT

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP)—Quadruplets were born Sunday to a patient of the government tuberculosis sanatorium. Mrs. Maria Eugenia Rivera gave birth to three boys and a girl at the Rio Piedras district hospital, to which she had been transferred from the sanatorium. The quads weighed from 2½ to five pounds. Both mother and children are doing well, doctors said.

11,463 Books In Circulation During March

Circulation of 11,463 books during the month of March was recorded at the Corby Public Library and its two branch libraries.

At the main library adult fiction circulation totalled 4,685; non-fiction, 2,331, and juvenile books, 2,250.

At the East Hill branch library in Queen Elizabeth school, adult circulation totalled 260 books and juvenile, 786. At the King George branch juveniles borrowed 841 books.

During March 109 new members were added to the library's registration.

A film on dial system operation was conveyed by the library for 16 Bell Telephone Co. employees.

The report on book circulation was presented at the monthly meeting of the Library Board held Friday evening.

Hockey Wager Winner Rides In Wheelbarrow

MARMORA — Quite a diversion was created for shoppers and others on Forsyth Street, Marmora on Saturday afternoon as a sequel to Marmora's win over Campbellford in Belleville, on Wednesday evening, Feb. 23rd.

It appears that Crawford Dey of this village, a strong fan for the boys of his former town, Campbellford had a wager with Freddie Stewart, of Nelson, former player with the Millionaires, that Campbellford would be defeated it up by offering to wheel Stewart the length of Forsyth street from the Canadian Legion Hall in a wheelbarrow, should the lucrets go to the loser.

Marmora won, so from Walker's South End Motors at 4.45 p.m. the wager was carried out. Stewart, attired in a tall black hat took his seat in the barrow in which also a black dog had been placed.

Amid the hilarity of the many spectators, who lined the street, and followed by a truck in which rode supporters of both men Dey trundled his load to the Legion Hall and capped the incident, by treating the other to refreshments.

The followers of both men tiding the truck brandished placards in support of the men of their choice, and cameras clicked freely during the portrayal of this amusing episode.

VACCINE SUPPLY THREATENED

Just when it appears possible that a preventive for crippling polio may have been discovered, the supply of the new vaccine is threatened by the death of 400 monkeys. These monkeys were flown from India to London and were found smothered to death at the London airport. The Indian government now refuses to ship more monkeys. The kidneys of the monkeys are used to manufacture the Salk polio vaccine and it is said that if the supply of monkeys is cut off U.S. and Canadian drug houses may be unable to continue manufacture of the vaccine after the present season.

The Indian government's attitude is probably based on the fact that monkeys are worshipped in India. The government, alarmed at the heavy losses inflicted on standing crops by 50,000,000 monkeys, has started a campaign to persuade the peasants to cease worshipping the mischievous creatures. But the habits of many generations die slowly. News that the government is shipping monkeys to the West to be killed for vaccine obtained from their kidneys may embarrass the government in its campaign. It is probably for this reason, rather than indignation at what was evidently a most unfortunate accident, which has led to a ban on further shipments of monkeys.

By a curious coincidence, the Hamilton Spectator recently published an absorbing editorial on monkey worship in India. The Spectator editorial refers to the "Hunaman monkey," while the monkeys which died at London are described as rhesus variety." The Encyclopedia Americana does not list any "Hunaman monkey," but the description which the Spectator gives of this variety corresponds closely to that which the encyclopedia gives of the rhesus monkey and the encyclopedia also says that the rhesus monkey is venerated in India, so that it is probable that the two names refer to the same monkey. Here is a new interest to the Spectator's editorial, which follows:

"Westerners are often puzzled by the Hindu cult of monkey-worship. This form of veneration is so ancient that some thinkers have speculated on whether Darwin's theory about man's monkey ancestors is not so new after all but was known long ago. The more modern form of monkey-worship is also probably dates back about 1,200 years and is inspired by events described in the Hindu poem Ramayana. This tells how Sita, the beautiful wife of the warrior god Rama, was captured by the demon king of Ceylon, Ravana. Rama, with his brother Lachman and Hunaman, the monkey general, went to Ceylon to rescue Sita.

"Lachman was wounded by the demon king and only the essence of leaves from a tree growing on a mountain in the Himalayas would cure him. The monkey general went to fetch the leaves but forgot the description of the tree and so, in the story, picked up the whole mountain. To the dark two of Rama's brothers, unable to recognize him, who had been wounded him in the leg. It is because of this, say devout Hindus, that all the Hunaman monkeys in India have a halting gait.

"Hunaman, the monkey general, is particularly revered because it was he that eventually rescued the beautiful Sita. She, being the wife of Rama, whom Hindus believe to be the sixth incarnation of Vishnu, one of the three aspects of the Hindu trinity, is also worshipped.

"Worship of Rama is widespread throughout Southern and Central India and so long as it persists it is difficult to see how the government will be able to persuade the people to destroy the 'descendants' of the monkey general.

"The Hunaman monkey is one of the biggest pests in Central India. It has a long tail, powerful muscles and a grey jacket. It is insolent, amusing, cunning and destructive. Peasants consider it a religious duty to feed these creatures which constantly raid orchard, field and bazaar. They are a menace also at railway stations where large bands of them 'live off' the trains. Many a passenger has turned his head for a moment and on turning back finds that his luggage has vanished—monkey, hanging from the coach roof, has reached a paw through the open window and smartly whipped the meal away. These monkeys will also steal any small items lying about, or snatch a fountain pen from a breast pocket when passing. They revel in their immunity from chastisement and in consequence are extremely bold and insolent.

"Custom has always ruled India. The story of Hunaman and his monkey army is much beloved, particularly by the peasantry. It is deeply embedded in their religious belief, which is also their life. The monkeys are not likely to be punished much in the foreseeable future."

BEST LOVED DOG

It always pleases me to read
About the dog that's "best of breed."
The "best of terriers" trained with care
Is known a champion everywhere,
The judges take the greatest pains
To choose the "best" of chows and canes,
But there's one "best" that's never named
And that's the dog the children own.

It may be one turned out to roam,
An alley stray a boy brought home,
And since opposed some mothers are,
He pleaded: "Let me keep it, ma."
His breed is difficult to trace,
No kennel show would give him space,
But, lacking ribbons for a stall,
He is the best-loved dog of all.

His coat is poor, his tail too long;
He's fed at table, which is wrong;
He likes to share a cozy chair;
He leaves the cushions strewn with hairs.
A nuisance he will often be,
And yet without a pedigree
The children, knowing well his worth,
Call him the finest dog on earth.

Extensive alterations and improvements are being carried at the Roy-Wolfe Brewery on Front Street. The large gang men is at work on the job.

Limited quantities of maple syrup and maple sugar are on the market this morning and buyers crowded around the syrup cans like people at a bargain counter. The low price was fifty cents per quart and at the gallon the price varied from $2 to $2.25 and some sold at $2.50 per gallon. The supply was exhausted by ten o'clock.

The Rev. J. Allen Petrie, a native son of this city, who has been minister of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church at Queensel, B.C., has accepted a call to be the minister of the new Presbyterian Church in Kamloops, B.C.

Old Farmers Plan to Retire

(Wisconsin Agriculturist)

Wisconsin farms will see some big changes about two years from now. That is when the oldsters may start drawing social security benefits. Grandpa sells out and leave the farm to the next generation.

There are more than 30,000 active farmers in this state who are more than 65 years old. A big percentage of those will be ready to call it quits.

Why are so many older folks still keeping their noses to the grindstone? Mainly because they can't afford to retire.

Retirement of more older couples will be good for Wisconsin farming. It will open up farms for younger families who want to get a place of their own.

TV Claims Debunked

(The Financial Post Toronto)

The Research Department of the Chicago Tribune has come up with some observations on what it feel could happen for some time —television advertising.

The Tribune research is a sharp attack on the claims made about the effectiveness of television advertising and the size of the audience it reaches.

For example, "Except for the top 20 programs, the average advertiser will miss at least 40 per cent of the people in Chicago no matter what time or what channel he uses."

The report also cites American Research Bureau figures to show that children rarely make up 21 per cent of the audience of adult programs, not to mention children's shows.

This Chicago research will open some eyes very wide.

Ben Lucky In Birth Date

(Hartford Courant)

It is a titillating thought that if Ben Franklin were living today he would likely be spotted as a juvenile delinquent. A profound Philadelphia of Boston university said so the other day, on Franklin's anniversary. Fortunately for Ben he lived in a simpler culture. He had no child labor laws to restrict him, no social agencies to pick him up as a wandering urchin. And as he had no educational system to mold him into a gray fossil of Brahminism he became a printer, author, publisher, inventor, statesman, businessman, statesman and diplomat.

Viennese Magic Gone

(Baltimore Sun)

From Vienna comes the report that 1,500 Viennese waltz fans voted on the characteristics that make a waltz great. Rhythm efficiency in his job won the most votes. Following efficiency were such homely wholesome virtues as faithfulness, being a good provider, cheerfulness, having a sense of humor, strength, sobriety and so on. Nowhere a word for the waltz's place in the waltz. Nowhere the requirement of appearing in the finished uniform of the Hussars. These, we would have imagined, were the prerequisites of any desirable man in Vienna. Could there be better evidence that romance is dead and that the job of being a husband is as prosaic there as in other parts of the world?

This Oil Costs $60 an Ounce

(Cornwall Standard-Freeholder)

From time to time we have been intrigued with stories of perfumes costing quite large sums per ounce. It is curious to discover that a motor oil has been produced at a higher cost than any perfume we have yet heard of—about $60 per ounce.

This is for automobiles, but it has some special properties for small machinery. Watches, especially, which take about one five-hundredth of a drop each, use the very best lubricant. So can cameras, navigational instruments and a good many similar delicate mechanisms.

The oil was perfected by the Mallon Institute in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. It will lubricate the most intricate type of machine at 100 degrees below zero. This is doubly important when instruments are used in the Arctic or at high altitudes.

At present the total output is only four gallons per year, and use is restricted to military purposes. It may be that later civilian uses for such a lubricant to create a demand for it. Expanded output will probably result in a lower price, but even if it does not, the high quality oil will have its use where cost does not matter.

Male Outposts Infiltrated

(Chicago Daily News)

Not content with suffrage, cigarets and slacks, the ladies are currently infiltrating the male final outposts of man's individuality—his choice of the very tires on his automobile and the trench coat with which he fights the March winds.

It was bad enough when color-conscious automobile designers dictated a male preference for new models to match the little woman's handbag. Now the manufacturer has announced a new tire with a choice of bands of color to match both the English between white sidewall and tread. Soon women will be the simple matter of shopping for a spark plug will have to have the style-conscious in mind.

As for coats, one store offers a special "Private Eye Trench Coat," to be worn by the ladies with "the air of a handsome sleuth."

Maybe yet, men, we'll have to go back to beards.

Lynchings Thing of Past

(St. Louis Post-Dispatch)

Tuskegee Institute has dropped its annual report on lynchings and submitted a new report on public executions. For example, the Institute studied 140 newspaper editorials on the Supreme Court's ruling against public school segregation, and found 46 per cent favorable, 39 per cent unfavorable and 30 per cent amused. The results of the survey are a good deal less important than the reasons for such a survey. The annual report on lynchings that Tuskegee has published since the days of the progress of our civilization.

'Carrier Boy' Retires at 85

(Sudbury Star)

The dean of newspaper carrier boys in Canada, 85-year-old Tom Williams, of Little Current, has decided that the time has come to give up his route. A slight stroke forced the decision, and it was with reluctance he ended a family connection that goes more than 60 years.

Tom said he said in all sincerity that the Sudbury Star has never been served by a more faithful carrier. Up until a year ago he was still carrying the daily newspapers on a paper route that was more than one mile in length. It was a task that would challenge young men but carrier boy.

The family tradition had its origin when Tom Williams' brother-in-law, Ken McKenzie delivered the old Toronto News on Manitoulin Island. Tom picked up the route when his brother-in-law was unable to carry on. His load averaged 95 papers daily, and sometimes went as high as 123 papers.

Secret of Slimness

State Funeral Is Given Poet

(Ottawa Journal)

France had just emerged from one of its political upheavals, when there was bitter controversy over German rearmament, taxes, other things, which perhaps explains why we had to wait for English exchanges to tell us of a happening in Paris which probably reveals more of France than a whole chain of her political crises.

The happening was that the French poet, Paul Claudel, having died, they gave him a state funeral at Notre Dame with almost the whole of Premier Faure's Government present, and with flags at half mast on all state buildings. "An irreparable loss" lamented the state-owned radio.

Where else in the world could this have happened? Perhaps in London, but hardly in Ottawa or Washington. We keep our state funerals for the best of our politicians.

They Took a Hint

(Charlottetown Guardian)

Some animals, like some humans, have sense enough to know when quarrelling is both foolish and dangerous. A game warden, coming on two bucks who had locked horns in fierce combat for ten hours, fired a shot over their heads whereupon the animals stopped their nonsense and ran off into the woods.

Personal Health Talks

By DR. WM. BRADY

PYORRHEA AND RHEUMATIC

This is the third of a series of talks about chronic joint disability, the first two of which were printed here last Monday and Thursday's page referred to physical degeneration affecting teeth, gums and jaws. The old-timers regarded this as a natural ease, and they call it "pyorrhea alveolaris" or "Rigg's disease" and subjected victims to a good deal of expensive but, of course, ineffectual treatment. Remember, this applies to any remedy or special treatment that purports to cure or arrest pyorrhea. I still maintain that the services of a dentist are indispensable for anyone who wishes to save his teeth or his health and youth, maintain functional efficiency, good digestion and vim, and attain longevity.

In cases of physical degeneration of teeth, gums and jaws, some physicians and dentists with limited knowledge of pathology base their practice on the assumption that the general mental health of such patients is due to absorption of septic poisons from suppurative inflammation of the membrane lining tooth sockets, or to swallowing pus.

Both of these assumptions are —well, they're just nineteenth-century assumptions. The truth is that more or less impairment of general health is the inevitable consequence of physical degeneration, whether the change is primarily in the heart and arteries (cardio-vascular degeneration), in the joints (rheumatic) or in the teeth, gums and jaws (pyorrhea). Remember the medical definition of disease: "Disease" —changes in tissues or cells in consequence of which functioning organs are impaired. If functioning power is not impaired or lost, general health is just fine and dandy.

You see, folks, it all goes back to nutrition. As I have tried to explain, the chief cause of physical degeneration, whether it manifests itself as "pyorrhea", as hardening of the arteries or as chronic rheumatism, is nutritional deficiency, from childhood thru' life.

Up to this point I'm pretty confident, or, you might fairly say, cocky. Confident that I'm right, I mean. I say this only after many consultations with Hippocrates.

Although I am so confident that nutritional deficiency is the chief cause of physical degeneration, I am prepared to explain why physical degeneration in one person manifests itself as "pyorrhea," in another as arteriosclerosis, and in still another as chronic rheumatism. In another fifty years of study maybe I can find the answer.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

SPRING'S SOUNDS AND SONGS

One of the very first things that whisper the oncoming springtime is that of sounds in the air, and the sounds I refer to are those of birds. As I write here in the southland I glory in the songs of the mocking bird. It's near lovetime for them and they lavish the air with their happiness.

And now, in a very short time, I shall welcome our beautiful robin and other harbingers of another springtime, with all its newness of life, its budding and its hope, and its opening up of life all about our northern states. There will be many new visitors, and the fragrance in the air will stimulate our senses. We'll welcome as much all the sounds that form the orchestra of nature. The rivers and streams will give out a freshness and the rains will quench the thirst of the soil.

There is a great stir to every springtime. I love to watch the groups of birds returning to their northern habitations. All of them so welcomed to their former haunts. How good it is that there will be more beautiful, useful birds that throw out such exquisite songs all through the morning hours of each day of this great continent.

These birds are such brave creatures. They endure hardship without any of us knowing about it. They are busy creatures, too. They ask nothing of anyone. They build their nests—and some are works of art—and then raise their young, knowing just what to feed the open, hungry mouths of all the wonderful. How many great truths are revealed to us as we learn more and more about the world of nature!

Soon all remembrances of March will be forgotten, as we shall be absorbed in the celebration of April and May, with contributing to the joy of the summer time. How happy we should all be. How very grateful to God for every blessing that we have.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

OUR PRESENT JOB

A witness is a person who relates something that he has actually experienced or seen or heard. Hearsay evidence is not testimony. Sometimes a man who sits on his feet in the courtroom in snarling dissent so quickly as to have a will-less height in the air, he knows about some subject but what he thinks about it. Under such circumstances the judge brings down the gavel sharply and tells the witness to confine himself to facts.

Jesus sent out his disciples into the world to be witnesses. They were not to tell what they thought about Him or about the religious movement He had started, but about what He and the religious movement He had started and actually done for them. Spiritual life reaches a very low point when we get to the place where we believe that the only valid witness to religious truth is a preacher standing in a pulpit. Preachers are mighty important people in both the world's economy and in the heavenly economy, but they are not the only witnesses to truth. Nor is the pulpit the only place that Christian truth can be preached.

Whether we like it or not, we are all of us living witnesses—and what is even more striking—living sermons—either testifying joyfully to Christ or testifying against Him.

"Ye shall be my witnesses." With these simple words of Jesus, I go out into bed and left the job of transforming the life of the world in our hands.

Marmora Defeats Point Anne 9-5 In Trent Valley Finals Opener

By GARRY ALEXANDER

The Marmora Millionaires, flashing unexpected scoring power in the third period with seven goals, upset Point Anne 9-5 here on Saturday night in the first game in a best-of-seven TVL finals for the Thomas Bata trophy. The Cementmen won it last year over the Marmora crew, four games to two.

Saturday night's fixture was one of the best games in the loop this year despite the fact that Point Anne had only ten players. Pat Gilmour out from an injury in O.H.A. play and Duke Doran and Bobby Hunter also absent. Playing coach Tim Williams was hurt when he crashed into the end boards near the end of the first period but he returned later while a misconduct to Jud Semark in the third weakened the club all the more.

The Millionaires were at full value for their win though, bolding the Pointers to a 2-2 tie in the first period. Point Anne notched the only goal of the middle session but Marmora roared to the attack in the third and could not be denied the victory, outscoring their opponents 7-2 with apparent ease. The second game will be played in Marmora tonight.

Ken Trumble was the big point man for the winners, firing home two goals and as many assists while Lavender and Jones each had one goal and two assists. Gerry and Leo Goyer went well for the losers, each getting two goals while Williams claimed one and one, Point Anne had three minor penalties and the ten minute sentence while Marmora drew one minor in the clean battle.

Williams put his team ahead at 8.00 of the first period, circling the defence before blasting the disc to the far corner but Trumble grabbed an attempted passout 40 seconds later to tie the score with a screen shot. Gerry Goyer scored a beauty at 10.58, going in alone with a great deliberateness before deking Killian but Blute made it 2-2 near the end of the period.

Both goalies were good in the second but Leo Goyer fired a short drive at 8.14 after taking a pass from Strahan to give Point Anne a 3-2 lead.

Marmora tied the count after 28 seconds of the third, Trumble taking Lavender's long pass and lacing it past Don Bates. Killian then outguessed Leo Goyer on a breakaway and the same player missed the open corner on the next rush. Earl Leonard put Marmora in front with a fluke goal at 5.55, shooting from along the side boards parallel to the net, the rubber skidding in off Bates' skates.

Leo Goyer made it 4-4 at 10.40 going in with Williams on one defenceman, and Leo using Tim as a decoy on a beautiful play but Marmora then took over to fire four goals in six minutes, Paramuik at 11.00 putting them in front to stay. Lavender sank a ten-footer at 13.40 and Mantle made it 7-4 on a breakaway at 15.06 with Brown from Mantle at 15.52. Gerry Goyer cut the margin on a three-way passing play at 16.55 but Jones completed the scoring on another breakaway at the 19.00 minute mark.

The teams:

Marmora — Killian, Darrah, Leonard, Maynes, Lavender, Trumble, Jones, Mantle, Blute, Naylor, Doyle, Brown, Sweet and Paramuik.

Point Anne—Bates, Semark, G. Goyer, Hurst, L. Goyer, Williams, Strahan, Stewart, P. Maracle, Graham.

The referees: Don Barrett and Bill Holway of Belleville.

25TH ANNIVERSARY

Last Saturday evening friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. Cathcart, 47 Bay Drive, in honor of their 25th wedding anniversary.

The evening was spent in cards, dancing and the singing of old time favorites, after which Mr. and Mrs. Cathcart were presented with numerous lovely gifts; for which they expressed their appreciation as well as for the kindly wishes which accompanied them.

Refreshments concluded a most happy occasion

Mr. Mrs. George A. Reid Celebrate Golden Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. George A. Reid, of R.R. 1, Frankford, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary on Tuesday.

Mrs. Reid was the former Rebecca Sine, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Sine, of Frankford, and Mr. Reid is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Reid of Ivanhoe.

They were married at the Methodist Church parsonage in Frankford by the late Rev. J. Craig, on March 29th, 1905. Mr. and Mrs. Reid then went to live on the farm where they now reside.

The couple have two sons: Leonard Nelson, of Frankford, and George Harold of R.R. 1, Frankford, and seven daughters: the late Mrs. Kenneth McGowan, of Rochester, N.Y.; Mrs. Grant Phillips of Morganston; Mrs. Harold Wiley, of Frankford; Mrs. John Wickens, of Frankford; Mrs. Gordon Vandewater of Belleville; Mrs. Lyle Smith, Brighton, and Mrs. Les Poole, Hastings. They have 18 grandchildren.

FAMILY DINNER

On the Sunday previous the family and immediate relatives gathered at their home for a sumptuous dinner. The three-tier wedding cake, which had been beautifully decorated to suit the occasion, was cut by the bride and bridegroom.

Mrs. R. Rife (nee Gwendolyn Carter), a granddaughter, who lives in Ohio, was present at the dinner.

At the conclusion of the dinner, Mr. and Mrs. Reid were presented with a china cabinet and a lounge chair. They were also recipients of many other lovely gifts.

On Tuesday, Mr. and Mrs. Reid were "at home" to relatives and friends who called to extend best wishes and congratulations.

In the afternoon, Mrs. Herb Smith, of Wooler; Mrs. Harold Wiley, Frankford, and Mrs. Ellery of Brighton, poured tea. In the evening, Mrs. Vandewater of Belleville and Mrs. J. Wickens, Frankford, poured tea. Mrs. R. Wiley, Mrs. Lyle Smith and Mrs. Les Poole acted as hostesses during the afternoon and evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Reid received over 50 cards. Also a telephone call from a grandson, James McGowan, Spencerport, N.Y., and a telegram from a granddaughter, Margaret Phillips, of Montreal.

Mrs. Willard Reid and family from Belleville presented them with a basket of white and gold chrysanthemums and their grandchildren gave them a basket of white and gold tulips.

Their family and friends wish for them many more years of health and happiness.

35 Received As Members

The Holloway Street United Church was taxed to capacity on Sunday morning when the minister, Rev. Sidney E. Larman, received 35 new members and dedicated the new communion table. The clerk of Session, Mr. J. D. Robertson and Mr. C. I. Frederick assisted the minister at the communion table and Mr. Frederick assisted in extending a welcome to the new members.

NEW MEMBERS

The following members were received: Mr. and Mrs. Clifford White; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cox and William Cox; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Walton; Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Elliott; Mr. and Mrs. Peter Scott; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wannamaker; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hosking; Mr. and Mrs. Gwyn Thomas; Mr. and Mrs. Donald Porritt; Mrs. Doris Ruttan and Charles Ruttan; Mrs. Irene Rainey; Mrs. Geo. Youker; Misses Brenda Joyce Geddes; Caroline Harwood; Penny Cavers; Roberta McDonald; Betty Hansbottom; Barbara Smith; Mr. Kenneth Cannon; Barry and Brent Daniels.

Mr. and Mrs. Leo Vickers and Mrs. Hattie Vickers were replaced upon the membership roll. Mr. Clifford Templer, presided at the organ and the senior and intermediate choirs provided helpful music for the service.

Women's Institute

REDNERSVILLE W.I.

The March meeting of the Redneerville Women's Institute was held on Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. Clarence Van-Luven with over 40 in attendance.

The meeting was opened by the president, Mrs. Benford Peck.

Community singing was enjoyed.

The president welcomed members and visitors.

It was decided to donate money to the Picton hospital. Mrs. H. Weese, district director, reported on the recent executive meeting in Picton. It was also decided to have another euchre on April 16 at Mr. Dawson Hall's. Business was discussed.

Mrs. Elenor Young was convener for the program. Miss Joan Wood told of her trip to Rochester to be on TV and favored with several numbers. Mrs. D. Redner gave a reading and Mrs. Allan Weese showed pictures and told of her trip to California, which was most interesting.

A vote of thanks was extended to all on the program and to the lunch committee and hostess.

Refreshments were served.

Women's Activities

C. W. L.

MARMORA — The regular monthly meeting of the Marmora sub-division of the Catholic Women's League was held recently in the Sacred Heart parish hall, with a good attendance of members. They were welcomed by the president, Mrs. A. M. Jones, who opened the meeting.

Correspondence and thank-you cards were read by the secretary, Mrs. J. L. Shannon. The satisfactory financial report was given by the treasurer, Mrs. J. H. English.

A letter was read concerning a Lay Retreat to be held from July 1 to 3rd, at Notre Dame Convent, Kingston. Any member wishing to attend was asked to contact the president.

EASTER DANCE

Plans were next discussed for the Easter dance which is to be held later this month. Groups 9 and 10 are to be in charge of decorating the hall and providing refreshments; also the catering to a wedding on June 4 received discussion.

The nominating committee for the coming elections was announced to be: chairman, Mrs. K. Donaldson; assistants, Mrs. J. A. Keeley and Mrs. Marie O'Neill.

Mrs. G. Forestell and Mrs. E. D. O'Connor were appointed to visit the sick for the ensuing month.

FILMS SHOWN

Two films were shown to the interest of all present.

Mrs. Bart Gaffney, who was celebrating her birthday, was honored with the presentation of a bouquet of roses by Mrs. H. Brady on behalf of the league. Mrs. Gaffney has been a faithful member for many years.

GIRL DIES

TORONTO (CP)—A 11-year-old girl died Saturday, victim of a mysterious blood ailment which kept her bleeding continuously for six days from tiny cuts on her body. Lillian Taylor of nearby Wexford, suffered from a rare disease, thrombocytopenic purpura. It is similar to hemophilia, a condition where the blood won't clot and a person can bleed to death from the smallest cut.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

HOW TO SAVE EMOTIONAL WEAR AND TEAR

If it were only possible to make people who are struggling in a state of indecision realize that, strageley enough, their greatest chance of happiness might be to decide on the course that, at the moment, seems to them the way of certain unhappiness, they could save themselves a vast amount of emotional wear and tear. For the chief reason, of course, why people remain in a state of indecision, day after day and, even, year after year, is because they are afraid of making a decision which may mean unhappiness for them.

Here, for example, is a woman who has been married for ten years to a man she says she has never loved, and who has a problem which she is alloving to keep her in just such a state of paralyzing confusion. For a few months, she met a man with whom she feels she is deeply in love for the first time in her life, and he has told her he loves her and wants to marry her. Her problem, naturally, is whether or not she shall break up her own marriage—he is unmarried—which she hesitates to do because she has three children.

"This man knows I am married," she writes, "and while we have gone out together on the sly quite a bit, he is the one who keeps saying it is wrong. For this reason, he is apparently trying to break up our friendship, because he quit his job in our town and moved elsewhere. For awhile, he called me up fairly frequently. Then there were longer and longer intervals between the calls, and now it is five weeks since I have heard from him.

"What I am wondering is if he is trying to break up because he thinks that is the right thing, and if I would come back to me if I left my husband, or if he is tired of our friendship and trying to break it up for that reason."

Whether this man is, as this woman wonders, trying to break off with her because he has tired of their relationship, or making an honest and sincere effort to break it up because he feels it is wrong, I would not attempt to say. Either could be true.

I think, however, that the wisdom of the course he is pursuing has already become apparent. The fact that she hears from him less and less frequently would seem to indicate that his new surroundings, which no doubt have resulted in new friendships, have broken his concentration on the past romance, and it may even be that he has already ceased to think of her as the woman he loves.

If this is true, it is all to the good. For, as I have said, the chief reason for his present behavior is probably the fact that he feels it is wrong, and that he is trying to break up because he feels it is the right thing to do. If he were not trying to do what he feels is right, he

FAREWELL TO MARCH

Good-bye, old March, we're glad to see you go,
You brought us cold and wind and winter snow,
With now and then a sunny day thrown in.
To soothe for us the March
wind's direful din;
But we forgive your tempest's cruel blow
For you were waking us, before you go.
To rouse our sleeping souls
from winter sleep,
That we might meet with joy the wonder deep
Of April grass and birds and woodland flowers—
Those emblems of the spring-
times' waking hours,
That in the song your wild winds
croon and sing
We, too, may catch the summons of the spring.

— Helen B. Anderson.

WELLINGTON — Although March brought many days of storm and wind, we endured it all, stirred by the joy and anticipation of a coming spring. It seems to me were it not for the blessing of recurring spring, we people of the Northland would grow old very quickly, for with each returning Spring is our youth renewed. With the rebirth of the world of nature there are born within us new impulses, new desires, new hopes and dreams. New roads beckon and allure until our spirits are filled with a new joy of living. Truly one must be old indeed whose spirit is not stirred by earth's rebirth. At this season all living creatures of the wild evidently feel the thrill of returning life.

"In all the waking lands,
There's not a wilding thing
But knows and understands
The burden of the Spring."

— Helen B. Anderson.

Rev. J. F. Lane, of Madoc, will conduct church service in Wellington United Church on Sunday.

GUESTS HONORED

The members of the Wellington Board of Trade enjoyed a banquet at Grahamanor. It was Citizen Honor Night. After dinner, the president, Mr. J. A. Gale, explained it was so called to honor some senior citizens who had done much for the town of Wellington. Among those honored were J. N. Sword, proposed by Dr. Thompson; Harry D. Cleminson, proposed by R. G. Fluge-ald; Frank Harris, proposed by Gerald Stoneburg; I. L. Burd, proposed by L. J. Greer, and Ralph MacDonald, proposed by James Clemineau. Each honored guest was presented with a rose. Mrs. Graham was also honored in appreciation of her wonderful hospitality. At the close the guest speaker, Mr. L. Murphy, a former lieutenant in the RCAF, was heard with much interest.

IRISH PROGRAM

Miss Helen Arthur, B.A., of Belleville, who is spending the winter in the South, writes as follows from St. Petersburg: "There was a St. Patrick entertainment in the Florida theatre. There were Irish jigs, clog-dancing and Irish songs and violin music playing the Irish square dances. Mrs. (Dr.) O'Brien played on the grand organ many of Irish tunes and as she played 'The Wearing of the Green' the audience clapped spontaneously. She played the harp and the violin later and sang 'The Harp That Once Through Tara's Hall.' It was a happy time for anyone with Irish blood in their veins."

Miss Arthur also writes of enjoying Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet."

GEISHA STRIKE ENDS

KANAZAWA, Japan (AP)—The Geishas came back to work Friday night after a four-day strike ended in total victory, Japan News said. The dispute was over tax collectors who wanted a bigger bite of the entertainers' earnings.

77 million bags of Canada Cement every year!

Canada Cement maintains stockhouses, with a joint storage capacity of almost a million bags at Halifax, N.S., Chatham, N.B., Quebec City, Toronto and Windsor, Ont.

Two specially built vessels ply the St. Lawrence waterway and the Great Lakes to maintain supplies in the Company's stockhouses.

This production—more than five bags for every man, woman and child in Canada—has been achieved by increasing the overall capacity of seven plants by 91% since 1945.

Canada Cement has made the necessary investment for this increase because it accepts its responsibility as this country's largest supplier of cement. Incidentally, it is one of the largest in North America.

The Company's seven plants are located at key points across Canada. This makes for rapid delivery and reduced freight costs. It also spreads the Company's payroll—and its huge purchases—across the country.

It is a wholly Canadian organization, producing in Canada, from Canadian raw materials, for Canada's development.

The Company's product, cement, is in ever-increasing demand because concrete is a product of a thousand uses. It is adaptable, strong, durable, fire-safe and speedy in construction.

For these reasons, cement is in growing demand for all sorts and sizes of buildings—agricultural, commercial, industrial, residential, religious . . . and for roads, sidewalks, bridges, airfields, dams.

Its use is increasing also in the more recently developed field of precast and prestressed concrete—beams, joists, wall panels, roof and floor slabs—in many cases taking the place of less durable materials.

Canada Cement makes good cement—the best which can be made. Please contact your nearest local office of the Company for information on the many services available from Canada Cement.

Defence Costs Decline During Last Fiscal Year

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal defence bill dropped by an estimated $156,950,000 in the last fiscal year to a two-year low of $1,696,300,000.

Finance Minister Harris reported this in the Commons today in a white paper which showed the air force and mutual aid contributions to overseas NATO partners absorbed the sharpest cuts.

The portion of government spending allocated for defence dropped to 39.9 per cent in 1954-55 from 42.8 per cent in the previous fiscal year.

The bill to taxpayers dropped from $1,853,800,000 in 1953-54 and the peacetime high of $1,971,800,000 in 1952-53.

1955-6 ESTIMATE

Federal estimates for the fiscal year 1955-56, already tabled in the Commons, predict expenditures of $1,783,000,000.

In the last fiscal year, spending for the air force dropped by $87,700,000 to $845,000,000 and for the army by $18,800,000 to $322,000,000. Navy expenditures increased by $17,800,000 to $284,100,000.

Outlays for defence research and development rose by $3,000,000 to $44,400,000 but contributions to NATO mutual aid were chopped by $32,800,000 to $257,400,000.

In the defence production department, capital assistance for defence industry expected to be paid out with outlays dropping by $27,700,000 to $10,100,000.

the take from corporation levies dropped more sharply.

Personal taxes—not including about $161,000,000 ticketed for the old age pensions fund—totalled $1,276,000,000 against $1,187,700,000 for the year before. Corporation taxes—excluding $46,000,000 for the old age fund—dropped to $1,608,-000,000 from $1,191,200,000.

Most other major categories of tax revenues decreased during the year, though the excise office of department increased its revenue by $19,100,000, which also can come under the heading of taxes.

On the spending side, defence remained the largest item but the proportion of the national expenditure went down to 40 per cent from 42.6.

DEFENCE SPENDING DOWN

Defence expenditures totalled $1,696,300,000, down $156,900,000.

In the government's annual economic review accompanying the budget figures, the white paper estimated the 1954 gross national product—value of all goods and services produced in the country—at $23,500,000,000.

This was a reduction of $431,-000,000 from 1953 after a series of large gains between 1950 and 1953. The drop of roughly two per cent in value probably was exceeded by the volume decrease, the white paper said.

Net farm income dropped by almost one-third, to $1,114,000,000, but a several years' trend was reversed through a small increase in the farm labor force.

EARNINGS UP SLIGHTLY

For the first time since the Second World War, there was only a small increase in total personal earnings, which went to $18,144,-000,000 from $18,088,000,000. Consumer spending climbed to $15,-581,000,000 from 15,115,000,000.

The white paper estimated the average number of persons employed during 1954 was 5,194,000, compared with 5,248,000 in 1953.

Capital investment was estimated at $4,546,000,000, a decrease of $294,000,000.

Revenue-expenditure accounts of the various governments in Canada were estimated at about balanced during 1954, whereas in 1953 there was an average surplus of about three per cent.

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—U. S. Army Secretary Robert Stevens inspected Chiang Kai-shek's Chinese Nationalist forces in southern Formosa today. He returned to Taipei to confer with the president tonight.

Production Drop

In 1954-55, there was a deficit of $62,000,000 in this account, covered by a special treasury loan not appearing in the current accounts. The total of this running deficit now totals $168,000,000.

TURNING POINT

The white paper showed 1954-55 was a turning point in Canadian taxation history. For the first time, personal income taxes topped corporation taxes as the largest—item of federal revenue.

Personal and corporation taxes fell from the previous year, but

Highlights of White Paper

OTTAWA (CP)—Highlights of the white paper tabled today in the Commons by Finance Minister Harris preliminary to his Tuesday night budget:

Budget deficit of $148,351,000 estimated in 1954-55 fiscal year ended March 31, first in nine years. Previous year's surplus was $45,798,000.

United Kingdom Reduces Amount Owed to Canada

OTTAWA (CP) — The United Kingdom has cut $40,800,000 from its debt to Canada under two big wartime and post - war loans, Czechoslovakia and the Republic of China, however, continued to default on their debt.

In the fiscal year ended March 31, Britain paid $30,000,000 on the $700,000,000 interest - free loan made in 1942, cutting them to $117,-300,000. It reduced by $14,800,000 the amount owing on a 1946 loans of $1,250,000,000, leaving $1,127,-300,000.

Details of the loans were outlined in a white paper table today in the Commons.

Of seven countries owing money under post-war loans, Communist Czechoslovakia and Nationalist China were the only ones not meeting obligations by payments due during the year. They also defaulted in 1953-54.

China, which borrowed $51,000,-000 after the war, still owes $42,-400,000 and Czechoslovakia, which borrowed $18,400,000, owes $9,900,-000.

France, largest debtor, cut its debt by $8,200,000 to $182,500,000. Britain paid $1,800,000 on another loan, reducing its debt to $3,600,-000.

Unfavorable Trade Balance Of $427,000,000 Reported

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada had an unfavorable net balance of $427,-000,000 in 1954 international trade.

A report while paper tabled today in the Commons reported a $289,000,000 surplus in merchandise trade, against a $57,000,000 deficit in 1953.

Other transactions, however, such as travel, interest and dividends, freight and shipping, produced the net deficit on all international transactions. In 1953 there was a $429,000,000 net deficit.

The surplus on merchandise trade resulted from exports of $3,-929,000,000 and imports of $3,920,-000,000. Exports declined five per cent from $4,152,000,000 in 1953. Imports dropped seven per cent from $4,209,000,000.

The export decline was concentrated in wheat and other grains, motor vehicles, primary iron and steel and defence materials. Grain exports fell almost $300,000,000—even greater than the total exports decline of $223,000,000. Exports of other products made substantial gains.

The $289,000,000 drop in imported goods was fairly general over the whole range of outside purchases. Only significant increase in imports was in agricultural products.

The report credited the over-all decline to lower economic activity in Canada, poor spring weather which cut building programs and a more cautious inventory policy by businessmen.

Canada had a deficit of $818,-000,000 in transactions with the United States but surpluses in dealings with all others, including $230,000,000 with the United Kingdom.

Farm Income, Firms' Profits Took Biggest Beatings in '54

OTTAWA (CP) — Farmers and factories took the biggest beating last year in Canada's economic developments. Farmers' net earnings dropped by 30 per cent, corporation profits by seven per cent.

But consumers came to the economy's rescue by boosting spending to an all-time high in cash and credit deals.

Worker's pay loomed larger than ever as a major factor in the country's economic health, labor income growing from 58 per cent of the country's total income in 1951 to 65 per cent in 1954—highest in 20 years.

Unemployment increased. Persons without jobs and seeking work rose to an average of 222,000 in 1954 from 137,000 in 1953.

This sum-up of the state of Canada's progress in 1954 was outlined in Finance Minister Harris' white paper tabled in the Commons today.

Mostly because of the prairie crop failure and production declines in some factories, the gross national product — value of all goods and services produced—fell to $23,985,000,000, down $431,000,-000 from the 1953 peak of $24,416,-000,000.

Labor income rose to a record $11,900,000,000 from $11,661,000,000 in 1953, but farmers' net income—hit badly by smaller grain output —fell by $535,000,000 to $1,114,000,-000. Farmers' net earnings were down for the third straight year, to almost one-half the record $2,-073,000,000 in 1951.

Investment income dropped two per cent to $3,702,000,000 from $3,775,000,000. Mr. Harris estimated the major cause was a reduction of seven per cent in corporation profits.

Corporation profits left after taxes dropped to $1,246,000,000 from $1,361,000,000 in 1953. The decline in corporation income taxes was one cause of the government's budgetary deficit of $148,251,000 in the 1954-55 fiscal year.

On the brighter side, consumers —boosted spending to a record $15,581,000,000, up three per cent from $15,115,000,000 in 1953.

Government spending at $4,-360,000,000 in 1954, was virtually unchanged from 1953. Federal defence spending fell by $158,900,000 but this was offset by increases in non-defence spending.

Mr. Harris said the drop in defence expenditures had some impact on the economy.

He observed that the rate of growth in consumer spending was slower in 1954 than in 1953. He estimated the total debt increased by $168,000,000 with a resultant rise of $314,000,000 in 1953. But the mortgage debt was greater.

The country's savings as a whole dropped by $255,000,000 to $4,044,-000,000. Biggest drop was in personal savings, down to $1,187,000,-000 from $1,529,000,000.

The country's money supply increased. At the end of 1954 the total supply in the hands of the public in the form of cash, bank deposits and government securities rose to a record $18,800,000,-000, up $222,000,000 from 1953. Main cause of the increase, said the white paper was that the government paid out about $227,000,000 more in cash than it received.

Detroit Scores Three In Last Minutes To Snatch 4-2 Win From Canadiens

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

THE WAGER WAS PAID

Speaking with oldtime residents of Kingston Saturday afternoon, we learned that the main thoroughfares of the Limestone City have not been jammed with such a mass of humanity since victorious Canadian troops returned home from two World Wars.

It was estimated that over 20,000 laughing, cheering, good-natured Roddenvillers packed the streets as Mayor John Beth of Belleville, and Mayor George Wright of Kingston, squared a "bet" account with the Kingston chief magistrate proudly astride a handsome stallion, with his Belleville counterpart, clad in western garb, just as proudly leading the spirited steed.

There were brief speeches, a couple of presentations, a glittering cavalcade of cars, floats, bands, hockey teams with perfect spring weather backgrounding the colorful spectacle.

There were no casualties. Slight physical effects were noted by the two main actors in this Princess Street drama with the Belleville mayor stating that his "dogs" were slightly flatter while Mayor Wright viewed with slight alarm the fact that he may be forced to eat his meals the next day or so in a standing position.

Despite the unqualified success of the parade, it was, literally speaking, strictly a "one-horse" affair. As Mayor Wright put it, "the oscar for the best of the three male actors, would go to "Mr. Tripe." The latter is a handsome nine-year-old bay pacing stallion owned by Charles Golsby, Kingston business man. "Mr. Tripe" slipped into his act like a veteran performer. His especially brave crowds were not perturbed by the oomph of brass bands and the packed streets, applause was music to his equine ears. . He even whinnied his appreciation after the speech-making festivities.

The good-natured Kingston crowd echoed the streets with plaudits for the victorious Goodyears, who travelled in a capacitated truck. Some of them rode the poop-decks of a 1922 Ford.

They indulged in good-natured raillery as the handful of Belleville representatives passed in parade but the two, they were generous with their applause.

It was a good show, one that exceeded by far the anticipated reception. And, as Mayor Both said: "this has been a happy occasion, one that will make for greater social and sportsmanlike relations between the two cities than has been evident in the past."

PONTIACS TWO UP

But dulling the exciting events of the afternoon was the 5-4 victory eked out by the Orillia Pontiacs over the Goodyears which gives them a two-game lead in the best-of-seven senior "B" semi-finals. The win was a gallant effort by the Pontiacs for the third game is slated for their arena—and their record shows they are well-nigh invincible in their own ballwick. And as important as the win was to the Pontiacs, it was equally disastrous to the Casterton crew. "A loss on home ice creates a stiff barrier for any club, especially in a edge-down series like this. The Goodyears must needs take their hockey breeches for a third game defeat will put them on the well-known spot, and facing the huge task of winning four in a row.

MARMORA TAKES FIRST

The Point Anne club, fresh from their conquest over Bobcaygeon in the OHA intermediate "C" playdowns, ran into a snag Saturday night when they bowed to the Marmora Millionaires 8-5 in their best-of-seven series for the Trent Valley Hockey League title and the Thomas Bata trophy. The teams clash in the second game in Marmora tonight. The Millionaires drew a 3-2 goal lead in the third period caught fire and flamed into a seven-goal effort with the Ox Pointers valnly trying to quell the rising.

It was the Millionaires first victory over Point Anne this season in five starts, and from their performance Saturday night, the visitors have to oust Joe Dy for honest come whit may. They showed they have the power and Earl Anderson's crew will have to come up with the best they have if they want to repeat their last season's achievement.

Incidentally the Boston team won its intermediate "C" series and will furnish the next opposition for the Painters. The playing dates will likely be ordered by the OHA and until these dates are known no arrangement for the continuance of the Trent Valley Intake series will be made.

Representatives of the seven member clubs of the senior "B" group of Eastern Ontario were present at a special meeting held in Kingston on Sunday. Cornwall and Brockville representatives told the meeting they will be back next year with the permission of Ottawa Valley District League. The Climax coach was told they would have to relinquish their United States league activities if they want to play in the Canadian group. They will give a final decision at a meeting called for Peterborough June 12. Oshawa, Peterborough, Whitby, Kingston and Belleville said they would enter teams.

Bruce Smith, manager of the Belleville Memos, was the unanimous selection of the other six delegates as a nominee for the executive of the Ontario Hockey Association. Vice-president Frank Buckland, Peterborough and third-vice Lorne Cook, Kingston, convened the meeting.

Pavelich Gets Payoff Goal And Lindsay Clinches It In Bitterly-Fought Struggle

By W. R. WHEATLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

DETROIT (CP)—Three goals in the last seven minutes of play, the final one a lift into the net, carried the hard-driving Detroit Red Wings to a 4-2 victory over Montreal Canadiens Sunday night and launched the Detroiters along the road to their seventh straight Stanley Cup.

The big payoff goal for Red Wings was scored by Marty Pavelich, a seven-year man with the Detroit club and one of its unsung heroes.

The hard-working winger, a native of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., broke it up with a breakaway at 17:07 of the third period, while his team was shorthanded. Ted Lindsay's drive into the open net with 18 seconds left merely added a little icing to the Detroit cake.

HARD-FOUGHT GAME

The valiant Canadiens, underdogs in this first game of the best-of-seven city series final, made it a bitterly-fought struggle and surrendered the lead only after 57 minutes and seven seconds of play.

Floyd Curry, the man known as a plugger and a "meat-and-potatoes" for Canadiens, scored both of Montreal's goals only to see them wiped out by Red Wings' captain Ric Vic Stasiuk before the final Red Wing uprising of the game.

The two clubs, which battled it out in seven games last year before Red Wings won it, played a scoreless first period and each counted in the second before again put his team in the lead in the third period but the lead lasted little more than two minutes.

While the acclaim goes to Pavelich, in the final analysis it was the terrific power play of Red Wings that finally won through that downed the Canadiens. It was a play they worked to perfection if they could have, it might have been a different story.

WERE SHORT-HANDED

Each time Red Wings tied the score, Canadiens were playing short-handed. The Montrealers had as many chances as the Wings—five in all—to do something when they had the extra man but they failed. They didn't have the drive and the ability to finish off the play that Red Wings had.

They were trying it late in the third period when Lindsay picked them and away went the game. Gordie Howe was serving a De-foit penalty when the big break came.

Canadiens were bustling about inside the Detroit blue line trying to set up the tie-breaker. Playing on the points to the power play, Doug Harvey of Montreal whipped a pass towards Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion.

Pavelich reached out with his stick, turned the pass aside off the boards, then regained the puck and went racing down the ice clear. From about 15 feet out from goalie Jacques Plante he let drive and the puck caught the opening on Plante's left side.

TOOK OUT GOALIE

With a minute left in the game Plante was taken out for an extra forward and Ted Lindsay sailed the puck into the open cage.

For Montreal, Curry was easily the outstanding star and possibly the best man on the ice at his line, with Ken Mosdell at centre and Calum (Rocket) MacKay on left wing was the strongest for Canadiens, both offensively and defensively.

Jean Beliveau, high - scoring Montreal centre, played below form. The big fellow was suffering from an infection inside and outside the mouth, causing his face to swell. It was believed caused by a sleeping pill he took during the train trip to Detroit from Montreal.

Curry snapped in Mosdell's pass-out at 5:09 of the second period to put Montreal in front and Canadiens were hanging on to the precious goal until the Detroit power play broke into action. Leo Bouchard was serving a Montreal penalty when Delvecchio blasted an angle shot past Plante, finishing off a power play at 16:00 in which Howe and Lindsay supplied the passes.

SECOND GOAL

Mosdell's lob toss to Curry brought Montreal's second goal at 8:57 of the third period, Curry steering the lift from the corner past Terry Sawchuk in the Detroit nets.

Then came the tying goal by Stasiuk, again on the killing power drive started by Jean Beliveau and again with Howe and Lindsay on the feeding end.

Coach Dick Irvin of Canadiens downhearted over the loss of the opening game, called a practice for 10 a.m. today. The veteran Montreal coach stalked from the dressing room after the game without saying a word.

The jubilant Red Wings back slapped each other and howled "only three more to go."

Lacrosse Moguls Blame Hockey For Financial Loss

TORONTO (CP)—Hockey is to blame for a $2,000 deficit recorded by the Canadian Lacrosse Association last year, delegates at the annual meeting were told Saturday.

W. J. Scott, making the annual report for the auditors, said the ice sport is responsible for the decline of every other sport in Canada.

"Hockey is responsible because of its long season, high-powered publicity campaigns and the amount of money it pays to kids as young as 15," Mr. Scott said.

He said that in order to meet its obligations, the OLA last year was forced to cash two bonds.

CONSIDER AMENDMENTS

Delegates considered 36 amendments to the OLA constitution and several recommendations to be placed before the annual meeting of the national association.

One amendment made provision for the appointment of a committee by the OLA executive to operate, organize and promote minor lacrosse in the province. The committee will consist of at least three members of the committee and any number of other members of the association they wish to appoint. The personnel and responsibilities of this committee will eventually result in the formation of an Ontario minor lacrosse association and leagues.

TO CONTROL CLUBS

The meeting also approved a move to place professional soccer clubs under a commissioner or a trio of executive members. The OLA last year signed L. M. Mackenzie as commissioner.

Other amendments include the fee for clubs from $15 to $25 for senior teams and proportionate amounts for intermediate, junior, juvenile, midget, bantam and pee wee groups, the latter permitting such teams to complete their signing of players by July 15 instead of Aug. 15 as was passed.

The president and secretary-treasurer were elected to office by acclamation. They are Wallace Cattel of Dundas and Charles W. Bowan of Milton. Other officers include: Joseph Baker, Port Dalhousie, and Fred Cosentino, St. Catharines, vice-presidents; executive council: Walter Murphy, Peterborough; Lyle Stevenson, Brooklin.

Beavers Edge Vernon 2-1

FORT WILLIAM (CP) — Two first-period goals one minute apart gave Fort William Beavers a 2-1 decision over Vernon Canadians in the first game of the western Canada Allan Cup finals here Saturday.

Second game of the best-of-seven set will be played here tonight. Two games of the series will advance into the Allan Cup championships against either Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen or Moncton Hawks.

Saturday's game, watched by 4,703 fans, was fast and rugged but only nine minor penalties were handed out—five to Vernon.

Morris Hamilton and Lou Milani scored the first-period markers that gave Fort William the edge. Brian Rocke scored the only goal for Vernon, British Columbia champions.

Hornets Take Game Lead Over Bisons

BUFFALO (CP) — Willie Marshall's first and third period goals paced Pittsburgh to a 4-3 win over Buffalo Sunday night to give the Hornets a 2-1 lead in the American Hockey League's best-of-seven Calder Cup finals.

Pittsburgh, playing without right winger Eric Bailey, who came up early Buffalo lead to score twice in the first period, once in the second and once in the final frame. Bailey was fined $50 and suspended indefinitely after striking referee Jerry Olinski in Saturday's game, when the Bisons carved a 5-1 victory.

Sam Bettio scored for Buffalo after 29 seconds while Bill Burege set out an interference penalty. Marshall fired a shot that went clean through the Bison defence to tie the game at 14:44. A minute later Jack Caffery put the Hornets out front 2-1.

Bettio equalized with his second goal of the night midway in the second frame but Earl Balfour tallied 37 seconds later unassisted to give Pittsburgh the lead once more. Ed Slowinski netted Buffalo's third goal in the final period.

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — The Arroyo Seco team of the Southern California Lawn Bowling Association Saturday defeated the Ontario provincial touring team here with a 26-19 decision to take the lead. Each side won four games.

Frontenacs Defeat Marlboros 4-1 In Eastern Canada Junior Opener

TORONTO (CP)—Billy O'Ree, 18-year-old goal - scoring sensation, turned playmaker Saturday to lead a dazzling play to set up Quebec's Quebec Frontenacs to a 4-1 victory first "legitimate" goal. He stole over Toronto Marlboros in the first the puck from a Marlboro player game of the eastern Canada Memorial Cup finals.

The 175-pound leftwinger, a native of Fredericton and a good bet to become the first Negro player in the National Hockey League, amazed 5,653 fans with his speed and heady playing as he assisted on three of the four Quebec markers.

Junior hockey observers, who predicted a short series in favor of Marlboros, altered their views after watching the much smaller and faster Quebecers baffle the Dukes with the near - perfect passing plays. Second game of the best-of-seven series will be played here Tuesday. The set then moves to Quebec.

The Frontenacs, who won the Quebec Junior Hockey League championship before breezing through the rest of the playoffs, forged into a 3-0 lead in the first period and increased it to 4-0 in the second before allowing Marlboros their only goal.

Sixteen - year - old rightwinger Michel Lagace and centre Walt Bradley each fired two goals for the Frontenacs.

The fight" got only two minutes and 29 seconds after the start of the game started Quebec on their way. Lagace sent a shot in front of the Toronto net and Marlboro captain Mike Pyrkola, trying to clear the puck, batted it past Johnny Aiban.

Seven minutes later O'Ree made a dazzling play to set up Quebec's first "legitimate" goal. He stole over Toronto Marlboro in the first game of the eastern Canada Memorial Cup finals.

Woodstock Trims Seaforth 5-3

WOODSTOCK (CP) — Woodstock Warriors defeated Seaforth Baldwins 5-3 Saturday night to take the lead in their Ontario Hockey Association junior B semi - finals. Woodstock leads the best-of-seven series 3-2 with one game tied.

Ericson, Thompson, McDonnell, Hatt and Coletti counted Woodstock's markers. Lachelle, Chalk and McPherson scored for Seaforth.

The seventh game will be played Tuesday in Seaforth.

Dutchmen Win Ontario Finals With 6-1 Win Over Soo Hounds; Next Barrier Moncton Hawks

KITCHENER (CP) — Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen have established all the way in the all-Ontario senior A hockey finals, came through in the must game.

Their 6-1 victory over Sault Ste. Marie Thursday before 7,500 fans here Saturday gave them the championship and the right to meet Moncton Hawks in the Eastern Canada Allan Cup Final. The best-of-seven series starts here Tuesday.

Kitchener's victory Saturday gave them the best-of-seven all-Ontario title 4-3 and they had to come from behind all the way through the series to force a seventh game. The Greyhounds took the opener 5-4 but Kitchener squared it with a 2-0 victory in the second game. Sault Ste. Marie again went ahead, squeezing out a 3-1 win in the third game but the Dutchmen bounced back with a 4-1 decision in the fourth.

TO THE LIMIT

The Greyhounds appeared to be in the catbird seat when they won the fifth game 5-3 but a 2-1 Kitchener victory in the sixth game forced the series the limit.

Saturday's victory by far the most decisive of the series, was never in doubt. Kitchener went ahead 1-0 in the first period and increased it to 3-0 in the second before the Greyhounds scored their only goal. Three goals by the Dutchmen in the final period sewed it up.

Defenceman Joe Schertzl led the victors by scoring the winning goal and a pair of assists. George Scholes, Gerry Ettenberger, Buddy Horne, Ken Martin and Jack McKenzie also notched single counters. Matt Mesich scored Sault's goal of the series and the last for Sault Ste. Marie.

Defensive play by the Greyhounds aided Kitchener greatly. Three of the Dutchmen goals were scored by Sault Ste. Marie players, another while a Greyhound was in the penalty box.

OPENED SCORING

Martin opened the scoring for Kitchener at 7:23 of the first period, picking up a loose puck in the corner and passing across the front of the Sault Ste. Marie goal. Greyhound defenceman Joe Bumbacco, turning to cover, deflected the puck past Ed Chadwick, netminder for the Northern Ontario Hockey Association champions.

Schertzl took a pass from Ken Lechner as the leading scorer of the series, and made it 2-0 at 5:43 of the second. The winning goal was scored while Harry Taylor was serving a charging penalty. Four minutes later Horne made it 3-0. The Greyhounds notched their only goal at 15:43 of the second when Mesich took Tom Smellie's pass and beat Keith Woodall on a long shot.

Sault Ste. Marie presented Kitchener with another gift in the third period. With the Greyhounds playing one man short, Scholes centred the puck in front of the Sault Ste. Marie goal. Mesich, trying to clear the puck, slapped it into his own net.

TWO FIGHTS IN FINALE

McKenzie's goal at 12:41 and Ettenberg's counter at 15:10 wrapped up the scoring and left the way open for two brawls in the last two minutes of the game.

'Jackie' Unhappy Over Prospects

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Jack Robinson still hasn't won the Brooklyn third-base job and he indicated today he's far from happy over the prospect of warming the bench.

In discussing his probable opening day lineup, manager Walt Alston said that he was set every where except left field and third base. In Sunday's 5-1 loss to Milwaukee Braves, Robinson watched from the bench while Don Hoak held down third.

"If he's not going to play me," complained Robinson, "let him get rid of me. When I'm fit, I've got as much right to be playing as any man on this team and Alston knows it. Or maybe he doesn't know it."

Robbie, one of Brooks' big offensive weapons in past years, thinks he'd be playing now if the manager intended to open the season with him in the lineup.

"I'm 36 years old," said Robinson, "and I can't play one day and sit down for two or three. I've got to play to stay in shape and if he's not playing me now, he's not figuring on playing me opening day."

Hoak is Robbie's main competition for the job and Alston likes the way he handles himself.

Nortowns Take Junior Crown

MONTREAL (CP) — Toronto Nortown, sparked by six-foot Doug Caldy, Sunday won the Eastern Canada junior basketball championship by defeating Montreal YMHA Blue in the first two games of a best-of-three final.

The Nortown squad, coached by Dave Sherman shaded the Blues 84-83 Saturday and routed them 72-67 in the second game.

Toronto now enters the Dominion final against either Raymond Comets of Alberta or Winnipeg Light Infantry, now playing off for the Western crown. The best-of-five Canadian final is scheduled for Toronto April 12-16.

Dundas Takes Sarnia 2-0

DUNDAS, Ont. (CP) — Dundas downed Sarnia Sailors 2-0 Saturday night in the first game of their best-of-seven Ontario Hockey Association senior B semi-final playoff.

Dundas scored both goals in the first period and battled through a scoreless second and third periods for the win.

Alec Leslie starred for the winners, scoring both of their goals. Fourteen minor penalties were handed out, seven to each team.

Wes Santee Runs Mile In 4:00.5

DAY LEAD SANTEE NEWSIE

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—Cocky Wes Santee broke his record-the-four-minute mile within the next two months.

The angular Kansan with the chop stride came closer than ever before Saturday with an American record 4:00.5 at the Texas relays.

Santee complained that he was tired and that a brisk north wind might hamper his bid for the glory that has gone to Roger Bannister and John Landy. But he showed no signs of weariness as he breezed around Memorial Stadium to finish a half-lap ahead of Henri Geiler of Oklahoma A. and M.

Santee said he will rest three weeks before competing in the Kansas relays and hopes to be in top shape for May and June meets in California, where he believes his chances are best to crack the barrier on a dirt track.

Santee was magnificent despite a tiring three-months running and travel schedule that had seen him in meets all over the U.S. and in Mexico.

A crowd of 14,000 cheered him on every step of the last lap. It was the fifth fastest mile in history.

Team mate Art Daizell paced Santee, who had 29.0 flat for the first quarter, 1:59.0 at the half, and 3:01.0 at the three-quarter mark.

Argos Sure Of Swiacki

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto Argonauts of the Big Four are so sure of getting Bill Swiacki of Southbridge, Mass., as coach this year they have announced his signing to subscribers.

In a letter to subscribers, Argonauts announce "Bill Swiacki of the New York Giants has been appointed coach."

Argonaut president Bill Ross said Sunday night that Swiacki "hasn't been signed yet because we didn't have a contract drawn up. He's our man though. There's no doubt about it."

Ross said that team director Jeff Gonsalkne now is "somewhere around Boston" to talk with Swiacki. Former coach for Detroit Lions and the Giants in the National Football League.

Pontiacs Edge Goodyears 5-4

KINGSTON (CP) — Orillia defeated Kingston 5-4 Saturday night to take a 2-0 lead in their best-of-seven Ontario Hockey Association senior B semi-final playoff here.

The Kingston team led 3-2 at the end of the first period but faded in the second when Orillia scored two unanswered goals. Orillia had a 2-1 margin in the final 20 minutes.

Bowen, Shewchuk, MacDonald, Wood and Favero shared the Orillia scoring with a goal apiece. MacGregor, Bellringer, Douglas and Irvine were Kingston marksmen.

Crowd-Packed Kingston Sees Mayors Settle Sports Wager

By GEORGE H. CARVER
Sports Editor

KINGSTON — A good-natured sports wager culminated in a colorful spectacle here Saturday afternoon with three male actors in the starring roles.

Two mayors and a horse headed a glittering cavalcade on parade that had crowd-packed streets cheering from the Community Centre starting point to the city hall where it was estimated that some 20,000 people lined the thoroughfares and packed into a mass of humanity at the finish point where speeches and presentations were made.

Mayor George Clarke Wright, Kingston, Mayor John Both of Belleville and "Mr. Tripp", a handsome nine-year-old bay pacing stallion, were the chief actors in the Princess Street sports drama.

The wager originated at the Belleville Chamber of Commerce members of which hurried the deff that should the Belleville Mentos win the senior O.H.A. hockey group title, the Kingston mayor must lead a horse ridden by Mayor Both along six city blocks to the city hall. In the event the Kingston Greenshirts won the title the positions would be reversed with the venue in Kingston. That is the way it ended.

HORSE UNWORRIED

"Mr. Tripp", a sleek, spirited standard-bred, who won 12 of his 14 races last season on various tracks, was not the least perturbed by his novel role. He strode proudly along the blocks of Princess Street, bearing the Kingston chief magistrate on his back with Mayor Both leading him.

The Belleville mayor was attired in western garb, sporting a gally colored cowboy shirt, tengallon hat and high-heeled cowboy boots. Mayor Wright was more conservative. He favored a blue business suit with a black derby hat in which he wore a card "Belleville Mentos", but he too wears long leather boots.

Television cameras focused on the "mob scene" at the Kingston city hall where a battery of radio microphones Mayor Both lived up to the wager by making a brief address. Mayor Wright, not to be outdone also addressed the large crowd. At the end of the speeches, Mayor Wright presented his Belleville counterpart with a miniature cannon as a souvenir of the occasion with Mayor Both in turn presenting the Kingston official with a handsome gold trophy, his personal gift. On it was engraved "To Mayor Jesse Wright, Kingston's champion broncho-buster".

Mayor Wright jokingly referred to the "three males" in the "show" and paid tribute to the Goodyears. He urged all to get out 100 per cent and encourage the club to return to Orillia.

SPIRIT OF SPORTSMANSHIP

Mayor Both said it had been a memorable occasion when two old rivals mingled together in a fine spirit of sportsmanship. He added that it made for greater social and sportsmanlike relations between two fine cities than has been evident in the past.

Max Jackson, well-known Kingston sports figure introduced other notables who gave brief addresses. Included were Mr. W. J. Henderson, M.P., Magistrate J. E. Gervin, president of the International Hockey Hall of Fame; Rex Walton, president of the Goodyears Hockey Club, and Alderman Bruce Smith, manager of the Belleville Mentos hockey club. Captain Jim Sutherland, "Mr. Hockey" and Mr. W. H. Nichls, M.L.A. were also among the dignitaries.

The colorful parade which proved a veritable "show case" for city automobile dealers, moved off from the community centre shortly after two o'clock, headed by the PWOR military band. A police squad car and motorcycle patrol were in the van. Officials cars followed the band then came the two mayors riding in an open car. They were followed by Mrs. Wright and Mrs. Both.

The Goodyears team rode in a fire department truck with some mounted on a 1922 Model T Ford. Colorful floats interspersed the many new model cars while Kingston's minor hockey clubs rode triumphantly in smaller trucks.

The streets were packed with a laughing cheering crowd which became denser as the parade neared the city hall. Six blocks from the finish point, the mayors and "Mr. Tripp" took over with Mayor Wright climbing in the saddle and Mayor Both taking over the steering duties. There was a continuous round of applause as the parade moved along Princess Street.

It was a fine cross section of Kingston's population, business, industrial and sports life. Service clubs, sports, organizations and many other city associations were represented in the motorcade. City police did a splendid job in handling the traffic and parade in general.

The Goodyears hockey club was cheered to the echo as they moved along the route. The small delegation from Belleville riding in cars that bore signs "Belleville Mentos" came in for some good

Beeton Wins Over Powassan; Pt. Anne Next

BEETON, Ont. (CP) — Beeton came up with a 12-9 win over Powassan Saturday night to win their best-of-five Ontario Hockey Association intermediate C quarter-final in three straight games.

Beeton now plays Point Ann in the semi-final.

Wallace and Holancin scored three goals apiece for Beeton. McLean and D. Kearns scored twice each and Kelly and Porter added singles.

For Powassan, Wolfe and Hookson each got three goals, Crotsu scored twice and C. Hamilton once.

Andy's Win Over Woodstock

WOODSTOCK, N.B. (CP) — Toronto Andy's outclassed Woodstock Merchants 86-70 here last night, thus qualifying to play Studley Grads at Halifax for the Canadian senior basketball championship.

A previous 74-62 win gave Toronto the two-game, total-point series final round 160-132. The best-of-three final, with all games at Halifax Tuesday.

Toronto's Jack Gerbutt paced the scorers with 24 points.

Ottawa Shaffers Rated Dark Horse In Canadian Senior Basketball

By ART WILKES
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — Ottawa Shaffers, a high-scoring but comparatively small-sized basketball team, may be the dark horse in this year's Canadian senior basketball playoffs.

They meet Sault Ste. Marie Greens in the best-of-seven eastern Canada finals starting at Sault Ste. Marie tonight. The winner will represent eastern Canada in the Dominion final slated to start April 16 in either Edmonton or Port Alberni, B.C.

The Ottawa club, averaging about five feet 10 inches in height, went through their regular league season without a loss and have dropped only two games including playoffs and exhibitions. Shaffers have a record of 15 victories and one loss in league and playoff games this year.

BEAT MONTREAL

Shaffers entered the eastern Canada finals against the Gunners by virtue of their semi-final victory over the high - flying Montreal YMHA.

Shaffers downed YMHA 3-1 in their best-of-three series, taking the first game 81-70, losing the second 91-59 and bouncing the Montrealers 70-55 in the final game.

The Ottawa team captured two of three exhibition games with United States teams. They downed Pittsburg, N.Y., Jenneys 88-63 and Elmira, N.Y., Esquires 87-56 while losing to Amsterdam, N.Y., 76-65.

Shaffers are coached by Ottawa-born Joe Bland who starred with Queen's University in the early 1940s. At Queen's he won the most valuable player award as the university basketball team.

Captain of the team is Glen Pettinger, five-foot-10-inch Canadian Olympic star in 1952 and a standout performer two years ago with the Dominion finalist Toronto Tri-Bells.

Pettinger is one of the team's most consistent scorers. He averaged 17 points a game in league and playoffs.

Tallest man on the team is Tom Holmes at six feet three inches. His average score is 18 points a game.

Ottawa Rough Rider football stars Avatus Stone and Bob Simpson are two other mainstays of the team. Stone, from Syracuse University, is better known for his playmaking ability but also is a consistent scorer. He scored 32 points in the series against Montreal.

Simpson, the football end from Windsor, Ont., was out most of the season with a gimpy knee. But he was operated on near the first of the year and came back strongly to lead the team in the playoffs.

The other team members are from Ottawa except Bob Taylor, a promising junior from Carswall, Ont. He played most of the regular season but has not seen much playoff action.

Others on the team are Jim MacNiven, former Queen's University star, Bob Abelson, Lou Besserer, Mark Zunder and Ross Robertson, all of Ottawa.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

A good bridge system can give the most information with the least number of bids. To do so it must employ the bidding words economically in combinations that will tell all it can.

You have the south hand shown here:

♠ A Q J 5
♥ 9
♦ A K Q 8 5
♣ K Q T

The bidding starts off like this:

South	North
2 Diamonds	2 Hearts

What is north showing in his first response? What is such a bid asking you to do? What should you do about it with your hand?

Your opening two bid guarantees nine tricks or more. A first response of anything other than two no-trump guarantees a sure trick; either an ace or a combination of K-Q in some good suit.

With a sure trick in the hand of responder an opening two bid is usually able to make a slam of some kind. The main thing from there on is to find a satisfactory trump suit and enough controls.

Controls in the form of aces and kings you can learn about in later rounds of bidding. Midway you must try to find the trump suit that will best accommodate your combined pair.

So, partner is asking you to world toward that end. If his suit is not the one to decide on, tell him what suits of yours he may be able to choose from. So, now show your best suit.

You can do this with a bid of two spades. You will still get a chance to show your diamond suit is rebiddable. This you can do if he does not show you support for spades.

These are things a player would naturally know without rules. So, what is all this talk about? Mostly, good rules are not different than what you would naturally do.

"SIGN!"

"No."

"Well, I know there's interest there. And I'm sure it would help you if you appeared before our theatre men's convention. You know, just bring along your guitar and sing a few songs. You haven't got to do your act."

Says George now: "That was my act—my guitar and songs. That clown controlled 104 theatres, but he didn't want to pay me for appearing. About that time I was making $150 a week and could have used the money. I got that routine all the time—if I'd just entertain the theatre convention, they'd put in a good word with the studio."

I am happy to report that the situation is different now. George is the star of a Saturday night TV show aptly titled the George Gobel Show. His weekly salary is probably close to 100 times $150. And the studios, which ignored him so intently for many years, now are clamoring for his services.

Paramount is the victor. This summer George will appear in a remake of Preston Sturges' classic, "The Lady Eve," which starred Henry Fonda and Barbara Stanwyck in 1941. The script is being written by Sidney Sheldon, who wrote "The Bachelor and The Bobbysoxer," and will be directed by Norman Taurog, veteran pilot for Martin and Lewis. You can see George is in good hands.

Consumer Price Index Drops Result of Lower Food Costs

OTTAWA (CP)—The consumer price index dropped three-tenths of a point during February to 116.0 from 116.3 as lower food prices reduced living costs for the fourth consecutive month.

The bureau of statistics said today that the drop in the index was due largely to lower food prices. The index declined to 110.7 from 111.3 on Feb. 1.

Decreases in the price of coffee and all cuts of meat except veal outweighed increases in the cost of tea, eggs and potatoes. Coffee prices declined 10 cents a pound in February.

The food index was at its lowest point since May of 1954 when it stood at 110.2. It now is at the same level as a year ago.

The only group in the index to advance was shelter which rose to 128.6 from 128.5, a new high.

Clothing and household operation indexes each decreased 0.1 points, the former moving from 106.1 to 106.0 and the latter from 117.1 to 117.0. Price changes within these groups were small and scattered.

The index of other commodities and services remained unchanged at 118.3.

The cost-of-living yardstick is based on 1949 prices equalling 100.

WINS GOLF AND $2,500

WILMINGTON, N.C. (CP)—Billy Maxwell rallied on the last nine holes Sunday after losing his three-day grip on the lead to win the $12,500 Azalea open golf tournament by one stroke over Mike Souchak. Maxwell shot 69, giving him a 276 tournament record total and $2,500 first money. This was the first major victory as a professional for the stocky little 25-year-old from Odessa, Tex., who won the 1951 U.S. amateur championship.

Point Anne Meets Beeton Here Thursday

Earle Anderson's Point Anne Cementmen were notified this morning that they will meet Beeton in the O.H.A. intermediate "C" semi-finals with the first game of the series in Beeton on Thursday night and the second fixture back in Beeton on Saturday.

At present it is not known if the series is a best-of-three or three-of-five affair. Beeton, about 200 miles from here, won their quarter finals over Powassan three games to none while Point Anne downed Bobcaygeon by the same margin.

No date has been set for the third game but the Point Anne club is hoping for neutral ice, probably Bobcaygeon which is about half way between the two participating centres. The winners of this series will clash with either Lucan or Elmira for the all Ontario championship.

The Cementmen are also in the midst of a hot battle with the Marmora Millionaires for the Trent Valley League title, behind one game to none in the four-of-seven set. The second game is scheduled for tonight in Marmora with the third fixture here on Tuesday or Wednesday night.

AT THE BELLE — Lovely Grace Kelly, acclaimed the Year's Best Actress, stars with William Holden, Frederic March and Mickey Rooney in Paramount's Technicolor war film, "The Bridges at Toko-Ri," continuing at the Belleville Theatre with Michener's best selling novel. It is considered one of Hollywood's major contributions in many years.

Northern Electric Defeats Montreal

The Belleville Northern Electric hockey club were guests of their Montreal company "brothers" on Saturday afternoon at the Verdun arena with the Belleville team taking a 9-6 win.

The locals built up a 3-0 lead in the first period and were never behind as the teams traded three goals each in the last two periods. Jackie Wardhaugh led the Belleville attack with four goals and one assist. Doug Day had the hat-trick while Semark and Dave Jones got the odd marker. St. Amand fired half of the loser's goals with Rochfort, Lamont and Laberge also scoring.

The teams — Belleville: Barclay, Creegan, Whalen, Bone, Day, James, Green, Pucanski, Hatfield, D. Jones, Philp, York, Hurst, H. Wardhaugh, Semark, J. Wardhaugh.

Montreal: Wright, Lamont, Todd, Crawley, Ferguson, McLean, St. Amand, Beauchamp, Rochfort, Thibeault, McQuattie, Haineault, McRary, Laberge.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR TUESDAY, APRIL 5, 1955

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — No day to penny-pinch. Expand your ideas, activities these generous days. But common sense should accompany all efforts, especially those involving financial or business ventures.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — A very special period for quality and feature work, for matters which are out of the ordinary. Take advantage of every opportunity and you will win unusual returns.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — A highly productive day for those of you who will make a super estimate of what is possible, what you really can handle. Those who use foresight and intelligence should attain fine results.

June 22 to July 22 (Cancer) — There may be some contention from unexpected competitors — possibly two or more times during the work-day. Organize your resources to combat sensibly and you can still win appreciable benefits.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — You should find little to complain of on this generous day. Exhibit your best, put forward smart and worthy effort, and the reward will be satisfying. Romance, marriage highly favored now.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) — A straightforward and clear-cut stand in all things that concern your advancement can bring most gains. Benefits can often be obscured by lack of proper decision, right attitude.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Your goals can be reached through proper perception of all facts concerned. Concentrate on worthwhile activities and put forth your best efforts. Benefits highly probable.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — "Scrumptious" is the word to define advantages now. A big day, if rightly handled. Scrutinize matters minutely to eliminate miscalculation, overconfidence. Then you can profit.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — Have you taken advantage of opportunities offered you recently? Shown proper interest in civic matters? Gains cannot be expected without investment, whether it's in time, thought or material.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn) — A promising outlook. Initiative and enthusiasm beget stalwart achievement. Change things when needed; refrain the old to give an improved touch—which is sometimes better than the completely new.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius) — You may experience some repercussions resulting from past mistakes. Take them in stride, doubling your efforts and the will to show your true mettle. Don't become involved in others' squabbles.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces) — Move into high gear briskly but carefully; don't lag or be indecisive. Aim to get value for effort. A sincere, unselfish course and co-operation with the right forces will produce results.

YOU BORN TODAY: Natives of Aries are usually keen mentally, are always thinking progressively; have remarkable perception, are seldom fooled by sales talks or schemers. However, at times they lack the urge to carry plans to successful completion. Eliminate anxiety over "how things will be taken" and watch how progress speeds up. You can be influenced, but seldom driven or forced; may show quick temper when aroused. Many noted writers, promoters, inventors and military men were born in this Sign. Overcome restlessness and curb tendency toward jealousy. Birthdate of: Algernon Swinburne, English poet; Joseph Baron Lister, English surgeon.

Niagara River Ice Jam Has Quiet End

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y. (AP) The historic 1955 Niagara river ice jam has come to an anticlimactic end.

There was no thunderous crack sidings, bulkheads, docks, trees, wood, mud, doors, furniture, boats, and the like. Not, 370 Front Street. Phone 1853.

of water as the freed Niagara rushed into Lake Ontario.

A massive floe of slush ice, about 300 feet wide and half a mile long, broke off in midstream near the mouth of the river at Youngstown Sunday and flowed quietly out into the lake.

For all practical purposes, that was the breakup of the ice jam that clogged the river from shore to shore in the last two weeks and imperiled thousands of dollars in property.

All that remains now are huge piles of slush ice hugging each shore. The main channel from the Falls to Lake Ontario is a distance of 12 miles, is wide open.

U. S. PUBLISHER DIES

ABILENE, Kan. (AP)—Charles M. Harger, newspaper publisher and founder of the Eisenhower Foundation, died Sunday. He was 82. Harger had known the president since Eisenhower's boyhood days in Abilene and was instrumental in getting him an appointment to the West Point Military Academy. Kansas' oldest active newspaper man, Harger was president of the corporation operating the Abilene Reflector-Chronicle.

POPE LOOKS FIT

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Pope, appearing fit and vigorous after last winter's illness, made his first Palm Sunday appearance in two years Sunday. The pontiff, 79, took part in ceremonies opening Holy Week, held an audience for 1,000 persons and made a long address.

Sixteen Persons Die Violently

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Two men killed in the crash of a T-33 jet trainer were among 16 persons who died violently in east-ern Canada during the week-end.

The aircraft buried itself in a split second Saturday about one mile east of London. The pilot was FO. J. A. Smith of London, a mem-ber of No. 420 reserve squadron. His passenger was W. H. Coold-ridge, a flight cadet stationed at Centralia.

A Canadian Press survey showed 13 deaths in Ontario and one each in New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Newfoundland. No deaths were reported in Quebec.

Traffic accidents took 10 lives, eight of them in Ontario.

KILLED BY TRUCK

Fifteen-months-old Philip - Bour-bon was killed when he was run over by a milk truck on Toronto Island Sunday. Dorothy Smith, 15, was killed when the car in which she was riding flipped end-over-end off a highway near Perth.

Mrs. Cecilia Dow, 49, died be-neath the rear wheels of a car from which she was thrown as it skidded off a highway and dropped down a 25-foot embankment near Brantford.

John Paul McCuaig, 21, died be-neath a burning truck as flames forced back would-be rescuers. He was a passenger in the truck, which was in collision with a car near Renfrew.

Arthur G. Slater, 47, died near Haliburton when his car went out of control, crashed into a ditch and rolled on top of him. Henry E. Mulligan, 36, was killed when his half-ton pickup crashed into a tractor trailer near Burks Falls.

HOSPITAL HEADING

Three men died in hospital of injuries suffered earlier in acci-dents. Harvey Smith, 29, died at Renfrew; Harvey Duncan, 33, died at Port Arthur and Antti Niemi, 62, died at South Porcupine.

Eric Clayton, 13, was drowned when he plunged into a river near Larkmoor. He went to recover his father's watch. He was hiking with a friend when he dropped the watch.

James McGarvey, about 70, died from exposure near Belleville. His body was discovered by a mad out for a Sunday walk.

BELL MANY FETE

JORDAN, Ont. (CP) — Nearly 5,000 pelts were sold Saturday at the southern Ontario fur auction established by the East Lincoln Area Trappers' Association. The majority of furs offered were muskrat although there were a number of mink and raccon skins.

KILLED BY HARPOON

NUMAZU, Japan (AP) — Fum-taro Goto, 47, boated a 4½-foot, 300-pound Sowbrodd Sunday in Suruga bay and drove in a har-poon for the kill. The mackerel-like fish jerked in a death flip. The harpoon struck Goto on the forehead; fatally.

Dulles Declines Japanese Request For Policy Talks

TOKYO (AP)—U.S. State Secretary Dulles today declined an abrupt Japanese request for immediate top level policy talks in Washington.

Opposition politicians here pounced on the turndown as a slap at the conservative government of Prime Minister Ichiro Hatoyama.

Newspapers talked of a possible political crisis. Government leaders discussed this and admitted they had not given the United States enough notice.

Only Friday, Japan had proposed sending Foreign Minister Mamoru Shigemitsu to Washington this week to try to iron out growing differences between the United States and Japan, especially on rearming the former axis partner.

HASN'T THE TIME

Dulles said today his schedule would not permit adequate time to prepare for talks now but suggested a later date.

Authoritative sources said leaders of Hatoyama's Democratic party had decided on a political gamble—to try on short notice to send a special envoy to Washington. They wanted him (1) to "sell" the new prime minister to the United States, (2) to get America to temporarily let up on its pressure for Japan to rearm faster and (3) to try to get America to "understand" Japan's need to resume relations with her Communist neighbors, Russia and Red China.

The government felt a new approach on the defence issue was urgent. U.S. officials in Tokyo have refused to grant a cut in Japan's share of the cost of stationing U.S. troops here. Japan's proposed budget is based on a cut.

NEWS LEAKS OUT

The projected visit leaked to Tokyo newspapers before it could be cleared with the United States.

Hatoyama told reporters he was disappointed at Washington's reaction but he acknowledged Japan should have consulted the United States earlier.

A government source said "the prime minister does not consider Mr. Dulles' reply an affront."

Socialist party leaders called the Washington reply a "disgrace and a death blow" to the Hatoyama cabinet.

No Hope British Newspaper Strike Will End Quickly

LONDON (Reuters)—Britain today faced the prospect of going without her national press for at least another week and missing out on newspaper reports about the greatest domestic story in years—Sir Winston Churchill's expected resignation as prime minister Tuesday.

There was no hope this morning that the 11-day-old strike of 60 maintenance men for higher pay would be settled before the coming Easter weekend. The stoppage has halted publication of all London's daily and Sunday newspapers which circulate through Britain.

So far, the two unions concerned have not decided whether to participate in a government fact-finding probe of the stoppage expected to start Tuesday. The Newspaper Proprietors Association has already announced its intention to co-operate to the "fullest extent" with the three-member inquiry court.

The court has no power to enforce a settlement but will make recommendations to the government. The strikers are demanding a weekly wage increase equivalent to $8.13 above their present average pay of $22 a week. They have rejected an offer of $1.96.

SIR WINSTON CHURCHILL RESIGNS

Time Conquers the Unconquerable

Time, stealthy thief, has conquered the world's bravest soul. At eighty, Sir Winston Churchill has bowed to the universal enemy of all mankind, accepting the inevitable defeat and making the necessary preparations to place the fate of his beloved country in the hands of a trusted colleague, Sir Anthony Eden. The indifference of his countrymen through years of misunderstanding, the enmity of Hitler during the years of war, the dangers of the dawn of the atomic age, all in their turn, failed to shake his spirit or dim his hopes. But Time, the stealthy thief, triumphs at last, after eighty years of tireless stalking.

RED MASTERS CRACK DOWN ON PARTY DISCIPLINE

"Manchurian Stalin" Purged Says Radio

TOKYO (AP) — China's Communist masters have cracked down with harsh new discipline in party ranks in the wake of their first purge of top men since they won control of 600,000,000 Chinese in 1949.

Peiping radio, announcing the startling story to the world today, said the Communist party had purged Kao Kang, the "Manchurian Stalin" who bossed Red China's faltering five-year plan, and Jao Shushih, a Shanghai stalwart who ruled six big eastern provinces in the early days of the Red regime.

Kao "committed suicide," Peiping said, but Jao, former party secretary for east China, "has never shown any signs of repentence and now persists in an attitude of attacking the party."

MAY BE ALIVE

That seemed to indicate that Jao is alive.

Peiping charged the two with conspiring to seize "leadership of the party and the state" with army help.

The broadcast announced immediate creation of "control committees" at all levels to "strengthen discipline and prevent a recurrence of so serious a case as the Kao Kang—Jao Shu-shih anti party alliance."

The Patient Eden Gets Reward

Sir Anthony Eden, one-time "boy wonder" of British politics, now a suave and experienced statesman with years of devoted service to his Queen and country behind him, will at last become Prime Minister of Great Britain, now that Sir Winston Churchill has resigned.

Sir Anthony Eden Will Succeed Him As Prime Minister

Churchill Drives to Palace To Hand Queen Resignation

(By FRASER WIGHTON)

LONDON (Reuters) — Sir Winston Churchill today surrendered to the command of his 80 years and resigned as prime minister in a 43-minute audience with Queen Elizabeth II at Buckingham Palace.

Dapper in top hat and cutaway coat, and clutching a cigar, the great statesman drove past huge crowds from 10 Downing Street to the palace. He returned to Downing Street, again puffing at a cigar.

An official announcement of his resignation was issued shortly after his historic meeting with his 28-year-old sovereign under whose great-great grandmother, Queen Victoria, Churchill began his long public career as a cavalry officer.

The Palace announcement said:

"The Right Honorable Sir Winston Churchill had an audience of the Queen this evening and tendered his resignation as prime minister and as first lord of the treasury which Her Majesty was graciously pleased to accept."

Foreign Secretary Sir Anthony Eden, Churchill's righthand man in the years of war and peace, will succeed him.

Sir Winston Churchill has been prime minister for a total of eight years, seven months and 25 days, including five years as the nation's great leader in the Second World War.

His retirement ends more than 50 years in the political limelight but he will remain in the House of Commons as an ordinary member of Parliament and his voice may still be heard on the great issues of the day.

Eden is expected to call a general election to obtain national approval of his succession, probably May 26. An announcement of Eden's appointment is expected Wednesday after he also has seen the Queen.

Ironically, there were no shoutING newsboys in the streets of London or special editions of the papers to herald the departure of the man who for years has made headline news.

Finance Minister Ready to Give First Budget

OTTAWA (CP)—Tax rates and charting of the federal government's financial course for the 1955-56 fiscal year started April 1 will be disclosed tonight in the Commons.

Finance Minister Harris will present his first budget since succeeding Hon. D. C. Abbott last summer.

Any proposed tax changes will not be known until after 8 p.m. EST.

Mr. Harris already has announced, however, that the government accepts an estimated $148,000,000 deficit of $148,251,000 in the fiscal year ended last March 31.

In a white paper tabled in the House Monday he reported budget revenues during 1954-55 hit $5,289,000,000 to an estimated $4,107,135,000. Expenditures fell by $85,000 to $4,255,387,000.

HINGES ON SLOWDOWN

The fall in government tax income from a slowdown in the economy which sent the gross production of goods and services down by $431,000,000 last year to $23,985,000,000.

The deficit, the first after eight straight surpluses, compared with a $1,248,000,000 surplus in 1953-54.

Mr. Abbott, now a justice of the supreme Court of Canada, forecast last spring a $4,000,000 surplus for 1954-55. His prediction of $4,464,000,000 in revenues, based on expectations that national productivity would match record 1953 levels, was short by about $357,000,000.

The white paper's estimates of income and expenditure, subject to revision later when accounts are settled, compare with record income and a peacetime high in expenditures in 1953-54. That year's budget revenues were $4,396,320,000 and expenditures $4,350,522,000.

Bill Will Give Unemployed Higher Benefits, Up to $30

OTTAWA (CP) — Overshadowed by tonight's budget, a Commons debate on unemployment insurance will continue today.

The government hopes to have the insurance debate and a resumed external affairs debate completed before the House rises Wednesday for its Easter recess.

Labor Minister Gregg introduced Monday a resolution proposing legislation to overhaul the Unemployment Insurance Act. He outlined three main provisions of the coming bill:

1. Maximum benefits of $30 a week for married jobless and $25 for single unemployed compared with present ceilings of $24 and $17.10.

2. Those earning up to $57 a week will participate in the higher benefits. Insurable persons making $48 or more now are at the $24-17.10 top.

3. Maximum time in which workers may collect regular benefits will be cut to 30 weeks in a year compared with 52 now. This could be supplemented by an additional 15 weeks in winter. Workers will be credited with more benefit days for the time they work.

4. Three new weekly wage categories will be added to the present seven for calculation of contributions and benefits and one will be eliminated, making nine altogether.

Building Holds Woman Captive For 40 Minutes

ROCHESTER, N. Y. (AP)— Mrs. Anna F. Gorteau, 70, just wanted to pay her telephone bill. But the building grabbed hold of her finger and wouldn't let go for more than 40 minutes.

It happened Monday night when Mrs. Gorteau gave the envelope an extra little push into the inner slot of the telephone company's night depository. The little finger of her right hand became stuck.

Police, firemen and the company service manager managed to wriggle it free. Mrs. Gorteau escaped intact — except for her nerves.

BATTLE GIANT FIRE

RALEIGH, N. C. (AP)—Firefighters, augmented by military personnel, battled today to halt a giant forest fire in North Carolina history, which has destroyed more than 250,000 acres of timberland. The forest fire, possibly the largest ever to occur in the southern states, swept past the tiny village of Ponzer Monday, but no homes were lost.

Rocky Mountain Storm Maroons Many Motorists

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP)—Hundreds of motorists were marooned in Wyoming and Montana today as one of the worst storms in the Rocky mountain history piled up 16-foot drifts.

Sheridan, Wyo., in the heart of the storm-area, reported 36 inches of snowfall since Saturday night. Of this amount, 24 inches fell during a 24-hour period, establishing a record for the community.

Virtually all highways in the two states were closed, and air and bus schedules were cancelled. Highway department crews struggled through the drifts to rescue a number of stranded motorists Monday.

Sir Anthony Eden, one-time "boy wonder" of British politics, now a suave and experienced statesman with years of devoted service to his Queen and country behind him, will at last become Prime Minister of Great Britain, now that Sir Winston Churchill has resigned.

War Hero Given 15-Year Term As Bank Robber

VANCOUVER (CP) — Daniel Haddon, 40-year-old war hero, Monday was sentenced to 15 years in prison when convicted of a $10,000 bank robbery.

"You must be quietly saying to yourself 'what a damn fool I've been,'" said Mr. Justice A. M. Manson when he sentenced Haddon to a suite court.

Haddon was awarded the Distinguished Conduct Medal in Italy in the Second World War. Col. J. D. Forin, a character witness, who was Haddon's battalion commander, said Haddon had been considered for the Victoria Cross.

Haddon was convicted of the June 3 holdup of a Royal Bank of Canada branch in west Vancouver last Dec. 3.

IS REMANDED

NORTH BAY (CP) — Joseph P. Roy, 31, Monday was remanded two weeks on a charge of murder laid following the strangling of his wife, Cecile, 34, and their year-old son, Joseph, Jr., March 31, in their Widdifield township home.

X-Rays Blasting Brain's Switchboard Of Emotions Seem to Slow Cancers

CHICAGO (AP)—X-rays blasting the brain's switchboard of human emotions seem to be slowing some lethal cancers and easing cancer pain.

This switchboard is the hypothalamus—the size of a prune—located right under the brain.

Dr. Arnold and associates are hitting at the hypothalamus to the benefit of some cancer patients. They are using x-rays to short-circuit some of the activity of this emotional switchboard.

Of 15 hopeless patients given this new treatment half seem to have had benefits, from effects on the hypothalamus, of easing pain and slowing cancer growth.

Time, Stealthy Thief, has conquered the world's bravest soul.

History's Hand Lies Heavily on Banquet As Sir Winston Is Host to His Queen

LEEDS, England (CP) — The Yorkshire Post says the hand of history lay heavily on Monday night's banquet held by Sir Winston Churchill for the Queen.

"It was not an occasion for the pathetic note but rather for a brilliant social gathering of the sort which was at its most splendid in the year 1732, when King George II gave number 10 Downing St.) to Sir Robert Walpole, the first—as he was one of the greatest—of British prime ministers," the paper's report says.

"We may imagine Sir Winston savoring the continuity of British history as embodied in this house, and squaring his shoulders at the thought of the mighty part he has played in it.

"And if he looked ahead, to the resignation he may be offering today, we may be sure that he did so, not in the spirit of one about to write finis below the story of his career, but in the spirit of one looking forward to another exciting instalment."

The Yorkshire Post and the Manchester Guardian are the only two major newspapers in England publishing today. London's papers have been closed down for 12 days by a maintenance workers' strike.

Wounded Thief Is Hunted By Toronto Police

TORONTO (CP)—A man who may have been struck by a police bullet during a wild chase was sought today by police in connection with a $25,000 robbery.

The man escaped on foot Monday after his car was forced to the curb by a police cruiser. In the excitement, the fugitive dropped loot.

Bloodstains in an alley near the wrecked car indicated the man was either injured in the crash or struck by a bullet police said.

The robbery occurred at the Bruce Dougall paint store after it was locked up for the night. A cash register belonging to the paint store and a strongbox in a sub post office were looted. Most of the $25,000 was in stamps, money orders and unemployment insurance books.

Eldon Jones, an employee of the paint store, told police he was in the washroom when the store was entered. He called police while the robbery was in progress.

A cruiser answered the call. One constable went into the store while the other remained in the car.

Constable Donald Bell, in the cruiser said a late-model car pulled out of the lane behind the store and he gave chase.

The fleeing car slammed on its brakes to avoid hitting a truck and the cruiser crashed into its rear end. Both cars were wrecked.

The constable chased the man through streets and alleys. Six shots were fired during the chase.

'Any Big News Today, Sir Anthony?' 'Really! Good Morning', Gasps Eden

By EDDY GILMORE

LONDON (AP)—Traffic tangled itself into an historic jam today in a dead-end thoroughfare named Downing Street.

The cause? A cabinet meeting at No. 10, the grim three-story-plus-attic residence of British prime ministers. And no one needed to be reminded how it involved the present holder of that office.

Ministers dashed hatless into the street looking for their cars . . . chauffeurs shrieked at one another . . . some automobiles blocked others . . . Albert Roach, 60, fell to his knees and began to pray on the pavement . . . and in the midst of the confusion Sir Anthony Eden was breaking through occasionally to meet regions once again.

The foreign secretary looked as startled at the question as if he'd been hit over his handsome head with Big Ben.

"Really!" he fairly gasped. "Really! Good morning."

At this point, Lord Woolton, chairman of the Conservative party, strode into the street.

"Lord Woolton, are we in for big news today?" asked a reporter.

"How's that?"

"Big news. Is there going to be any big news today?"

"Now, how would I of all people know?" he said with a laugh and then added, winking his right eye, "but I wouldn't go fishing if I were you."

"Will there be any big news today, Sir Anthony?"

"Really!" he fairly gasped, "Really! Good morning."

Wished Bon Voyage

OTTAWA (CP) — All parties joined with Speaker Rene Beaudoin of the Commons Monday to wish Trade Minister Howe bon voyage on his scheduled three-week tour of Australia and New Zealand.

Mr. Howe was honored at a parliamentary reception tendered by Mr. Beaudoin. Representatives of all parties attended.

Mr. Howe planned to fly Thursday, accompanied by his deputy, Fred Bull.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) — Synopsis: A band of high cloud has marched into Ontario from the west, and sunny skies have retreated into eastern counties this Tuesday morning. However, the cloud deck is thin, and sunshine may break through during the day. A few showers with risk of a thunderstorm or two are forecast for tonight, but Wednesday will see the sun breaking through occasionally in most regions once again.

Lonsdale Home Burns to Ground

Fire believed to have started from a defective chimney razed the frame farm home of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Sweet of Lonsdale, shortly after nine o'clock this morning.

The blaze had gained too great a start for the volunteer bucket brigade to save the old frame structure, but neighbors were able to carry most of the household effects to safety before they were forced back by the flames. The Sweet barn was threatened by flying sparks but fortunately did not catch fire. A metal roof on the house held in flying embers but as a precautionary measure Belleville firemen were called.

No estimate of the loss as result of the blaze was obtained.

Mr. and Mrs. Sweet have several small children of school age.

Three Toronto Gas Companies Discuss Question With Council

Three Toronto companies organized for the distribution of gas are investigating the possibility of bringing American gas to Belleville until such times as natural gas from Western Canada is available.

This was indicated at a special meeting of council Monday evening when representatives of three gas distribution firms, Merchants' and Consumers' Gas Co., and the Lakeland Gas, spoke to city fathers seeking gas distribution franchises for this city.

Without exception all companies asserted they had the engineering and administrative ability, and the financial resources to build a gas distribution plant at Belleville.

It will be up to city council or the ratepayers to choose the company which they want to distribute gas in this city.

SEEKING RENEWAL

Council already has given non-exclusive franchises to the Merchants' Gas Company, formerly known as Eastern Gas, and Lakeland Gas. Merchants' Gas is seeking a renewal of their five - year franchise which runs out this December, while Lakeland is seeking the passing of a by-law approving their franchise. Intercounty has no franchise but is seeking such agreements in municipalities all across the province.

None of the three companies whose representatives attended council was able to give any idea of the cost of natural gas laid down in Belleville other than to say that it would be competitive with other classes of fuel.

The actual cost of gas would be dependent upon the number of customers and the volume of gas sold. They agreed there was a minimum number of users which could be served for economical distribution and it was also generally agreed that any specific company would have to have franchises in more than one municipality before economical gas distribution was possible. Two of the firms, Intercounty and Lakeland, set 40,000 as a minimum number of customers for profitable operation.

ALL ASKED QUESTION

Alderman Ben Safe was interested to know what tax concession the gas companies would be prepared to give the city and the same question was asked of all three company representatives.

Without exception company representatives said their organizations would be prepared to pay the normal business and assessed taxes of the community. Council was concerned, however, that gas costs would be passed along to the consumer.

Another question asked was the distance which "free" installation would be granted from the main to the property line. Here again it appeared the various firms were in general agreement with a certain reservation. Intercounty said they would provide service up to 75 feet; Lakeland intimated they were willing to match the Intercounty offer while Consumers' Gas was prepared to do what was necessary to provide service but apparently gave "free" service anywhere from 50 to 75 feet.

DIFFERENCE IN COST

There was some difference of opinion as to whether the Ontario Fuel Board Act under which company was given the right to distribute gas in any one community should be the same as firm have franchises. Both views were entertained though it was the general feeling of councillors that only one firm would be allowed to distribute gas in any group of municipalities along the pipeline.

John Fitzpatrick, representing Lakeland Gas, said the sooner municipalities close the firm they wished to distribute gas, the sooner gas would be available. Availability of natural gas for industrial use was an attraction for potential industry, he said.

D. E. Maxwell represented Merchants' Gas, while J. H. Winders appeared on behalf of Intercounty Gas.

TOOK NO ACTION

Other than hear the various gas company representatives and to ask questions, council took no action with respect to franchises.

However Alderman Jane Forrester wondered why reports from the Ontario Fuel Board on the various gas distribution companies had not been received by council prior to the meeting. She said the reports were mailed January 12th, and asked Mayor Both why they had not been received by council.

"You better ask someone else. I don't know anything about them," returned the mayor.

Alderman Forrester replied that she deemed strange the mail would go astray and noted the reports had been mailed to an "appropriate" city official. Both Mayor Both and City Clerk H. D. Bateman said they knew nothing of them.

"Are you insinuating that I would withhold anything from this council?" asked the mayor. "If so you are acting very unladylike."

"I still think it strange that the mails would go astray," replied Alderman Forrester.

Obituary

HARRY FITZGIBBON (Stoenburg)

MADOC (Special) — Harry Fitzgibbon, Stoenburg, died suddenly in Belleville General Hospital, Monday, April 4th. He was in his 73rd year.

The deceased was born in Stoenburg, a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Fitzgibbon, and lived in Stoenburg all his life except for a 17-year span when he operated garages in Cobourg and Trenton.

He is survived by four sons — Robert of Stoenburg; George of Montreal; Curtis and Bruce, of Stoenburg, and five grandchildren. Also surviving him are a sister, Mrs. Earl (Ethel) Landon, Oshawa, and four brothers, Howard of Toronto; Goldie of Trenton; Ernest and Perrett of Belleville. He was predeceased by his wife, the former Ethel Maude Mellroy.

He attended the Presbyterian Church and was a member of A.F. and A.M., No. 17, Cobourg.

His body is resting at his late residence, Stoenburg. The funeral notice appears elsewhere in this edition.

JAMES BRIER McGARVEY

James Brier McGarvey, Bloomfield, died in Belleville on Sunday, April 3rd. He was in his 69th year.

The deceased was born in Cloyne and had lived in Millbridge prior to moving to Bloomfield eight years ago. He was a laborer.

He is survived by two sisters, Mrs. C. (Margaret) Baker, of Newburgh; Mrs. E. (Eva) Sallisbury, of Belleville, and three brothers, Allan of Toronto, and William, of Millbridge.

He attended the Anglican Church. He was a member of Point Anne Lodge, No. 666, Belleville I.O.O.F. During World War I he served with the Infantry for one year.

His body is resting at the MacKenzie Funeral Home, Bloomfield. The funeral announcement appears elsewhere in this edition.

"BERTIE" WAITE

The funeral of "Bertie" Waite was held Saturday, April 2nd, from the Grant Funeral Home, 93 N. Front Street. Rev. Everett Smith conducted the last service.

Bearers were Walter Waite, John Rothwell, Norman McDonald, Ray Dafoe, Harry Edmondson and George Edmondson.

Interment took place in Belleville cemetery.

MRS. BARTLEY WALSH (Tyendinaga)

Mrs. Agnes Walsh, 5th Concession of Tyendinaga, died at home, Tuesday, April 5th, after having been in failing health for some time. She was in her 68th year.

The deceased was born in Tyendinaga, the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Timothy Murphy, and had spent her life in that district.

She is survived by her husband, Bartley Walsh; five sons: Leonard and John of Reed, Leo at home, Bartley of Belleville and Harold at home.

Also surviving her are two sisters: Mrs. John Cullen of Lonsdale and Mrs. J. J. Brennan of Napanee and two brothers, Dennis of Shannonville and Patrick of Napanee.

The deceased was a member of St. Charles' Church, Reed, and was a member of the Catholic Women's League and the Altar Society.

Her body is resting at her late residence, 5th Concession of Tyendinaga township.

The funeral is under the direction of the Funeral Residence of George F. O'Brien.

The funeral announcement appears elsewhere in this edition.

WILLIAM JOHN PRESTON (Roslin)

William John Preston, 9th Concession of Tyendinaga township, R. R. 1, Roslin, died suddenly at his home, Monday, April 4th. He was in his 81st year.

The deceased was born in Carnarvon, Manitoba, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Preston. He lived at Plainfield and at Rawdon prior to moving to Roslin three years ago.

He is survived by his wife, the former Inez Maybee; two daughters, Sheila and Jacqueline, of Toronto; and two sons, Robert of Toronto and Richard of Coldwater.

Also surviving him are three sisters: Mrs. R. (Ann) Nichols, Meeker, Col.; Miss Jean Preston and Miss Isabel Preston, both of Peterborough, and two brothers, Harry of Crookston and Ernest of Rawdon.

The deceased was a member of St. Thomas' Anglican Church, Rawdon. He joined the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment in 1939 and served overseas until he was discharged in April 1945 with the rank of sergeant.

His body is resting at his late residence. The funeral is under the direction of the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home.

The funeral announcement appears elsewhere in this edition.

ACTRESS SIGNS FOR TV

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Jane Wyman, acting as both star and producer, Monday signed a television deal that will gross her $4,500,000 over the next three years

Trophies Awarded

Shown above, third from left, is Douglas Mills, Trenton High School student, who won the Industrial Accident Prevention Associations' oratorical trophy for an address on "Safety."

Stamp Club Now Affiliate Of Society

"That was a grand meeting," was the comment of every member present at the close of the semi-monthly meeting of the Quinte Stamp Club which was held in the board room of The Corby Public Library.

The president, Keith Day, and the secretary, Claude Hunt, had prepared an interesting agenda. An important act was the news that The Quinte Stamp Club has been accepted into The Canadian Philatelic Society as Chapter No. 37. The Canadian Philatelic Society Incorporated is the top organization in Canada for stamp clubs and individual collectors. The society issues its own monthly magazine — "The Canadian Philatelist." Affiliation with The Canadian Philatelic Society gives the local club a standing in any philatelic society the world over.

The interesting event of the evening was an auction sale. The items offered were all Canadian stamps, being from a collection consisting of older issues which are becoming scarcer each year. Several items saw spirited bidding before the auctioneer, Cam Wallbridge, finally said "once, twice, spin."

"I believe this. By the standards we raise we will be able to preserve the finest thing we enjoy and that is freedom."

Mr. Day saw consumer credit as a mainstay of Canadian economy ... a boon for lending Canadians and as "keeping production high."

"Without it we cannot stay in business," he said.

Mr. Day was introduced by Gil Scott and thanked by Les Grills.

Speaker Defends Credit Practice At Rotary Club

Consumer credit was underlined here yesterday as a main prop of the nation's economy and as a means of helping in raising the standard of living by Robert E. Day, president of the Bulova Watch Company, addressing the Belleville Rotary Club.

Defending the practice of credit, Mr. Day told the club's weekly luncheon at the Hotel Quinte that restriction of credit buying would halt production.

"We don't like anything to stymie production", he said.

Controlling credit would also be restricting the right of the working man to buy as he thinks fit," Mr. Day told the club.

"In Canada we have a high standard of living and we should do everything to keep it that way."

Competition for the consumer's dollar is going to be keener this year and this must be offset by, among other things, increased efficiency, stepped - sales campaigns and knowledge on the part of salesmen of the products they are offering on the market.

But "without the use of consumer credit ... the economy would be in a spin."

Battle of Vimy To Be Observed By Banquet

The Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans' Association will celebrate the Battle of Vimy Ridge with a banquet on Saturday night. This will be the 38th anniversary of one of the greatest battles that Canadians took part in. In the First War and preparations are being made for a gala night. It is the intention of the Association that as many of the "Old Sweats" as possible be found for the banquet and each veteran of the Second World War is requested to bring along a First World War veteran as his guest.

Among the invited guests will be Archdeacon J. B. Creeggan, Lt.-Col. F. R. Wills, Lieut.-Col. Everett Fairman, Mayor Wm. Good, O. Tics and Mayor Jack Both. Captain J. H. "Bert" Wells will be the principal speaker and his remarks will be confined exclusively to the First World War. It is to be hoped that all the boys will be out for "Their Night." A social hour will conclude the commemoration of a wonderful day for Canadians.

ANNOUNCE PC MEET

TORONTO (CP) — The annual meeting of the Western Ontario Progressive Conservative Association will be held in London April 30, it was announced Monday. Premier Frost and Progressive Conservative members in the House of Commons are expected to speak.

LARVNE LAYS LANEA LOW

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — The nightclub debut of Mario Lanza fizzled out Monday night when a doctor decreed he was too ill to open the $50,000-a-week engagement. Dr. J. R. McDaniel of Las Vegas examined the tenor and said that his singing voice was too impaired by laryngitis for him to perform. [illegible]

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO (CP) — All classes and grades of slaughter cattle met a very narrow demand today at the Ontario Public Stockyards. Good and choice steers were barely steady to 25 cents lower. Steers grading medium down were 50 cents lower. Heifers, bulls and good and choice fed yearlings were steady with medium-fed yearlings 50 cents lower. Good cows sold 50 cents lower for the week with meddiums down 50 cents to 81.

Receipts: cattle 900; calves 275; hogs 620; sheep and lambs nil; holdover from Monday 1,950 cattle.

Prices: choice steers, all weights 30-20.50; good steers 19-20; medums 18-19; common 12-16; choice heifers 18-18.50; good heifers 17-18; mediums 14-16; common 12-14; bone steers and heifers 10-12; choice fed yearlings 20.50-21.50; good fed yearlings 19-20; mediums 17-19; good cows generally 13-13.50; with a few tops of 14; good light heifer cows to 15; canners and cutters down to 7; good heavy bologna bulls 13-13.50; good light butchers to 15; common and medium bulls down to 10.

Replacement cattle: good stockers generally 19; mediums 16-18. Calves: vealers steady at 25-28 for good and choice vealers; mediums slow at 18-25; commons 12-17.

Hogs: untried at 24.50 for grade A; sows 19; stags 14.

PRODUCE MARKET

TORONTO (CP) — Churning cream and butter print prices were unchanged here today.

Centre Chairman Is Improving After Operation

TRENTON (Special) — Stricken suddenly yesterday Cliff Baker, hard-working chairman of the Trenton Community Centre drive, was moved to Trenton Memorial Hospital for an emergency operation.

Today the hospital reported Mr. Baker's condition had improved and he would be allowed out of bed for a short period on Wednesday. Mr. Baker is manager of the Trent Cotton Co. Ltd.

MAYOR CONTRACTS COLD

Mayor Ross Burt contracted a stubborn head cold yesterday and although Lent citizens look for a weji today plans to be present for the first of the month council meeting in the town office tonight.

The Chief Magistrate's recommended cure for a cold is an onion sandwich which he ate before retiring last night. He does not recommend this particular treatment however for husbands whose families are allergic to the proud smelling vegetable. "The pain might be worse than the cure," he mused.

MARTINSDALE, Mont. (AP)—This central Montana community was snowbound without snow today. Officials reported no snow on the ground within 10 miles of the community, but after the worst snow storm in years all roads leading to Martinsdale are drifted.

Commons Heard Geo. White On War Veterans Allowances

(Following is the text of a speech delivered in the House of Commons, March 31st, by George White, M.P. for Hastings-Frontenac. Mr. White made his remarks during debate on the War Veterans Allowance Act. He spoke during the House's discussion of amendments to increase allowances and permissible income. The following address has been copied from Hansard.)

Mr. Chairman, I wish to speak only briefly, and to concur in the remarks of the hon. member for Royal and other hon. members of the opposition groups who have spoken. The hon. member who has just taken his seat has stated the responsibility is that of the government, I do not altogether agree with him. The fact is that the great majority of members who have served on veterans affairs committees have been veterans who have actually seen war service, men who understood and appreciated the debt Canada owes to the veterans, par-ticularly those of World War I.

PEOPLE WILL NOT OBJECT

It is true that the government must find the money to meet any increase in the allowances. I do feel, however, that the citizens of Canada will never object to any grant or allowance or pension paid by the country to Canadians who have served as well in two World Wars. The hon. member who just took his seat also referred to what appears in the brief with reference to service in England in World War I. I was not exactly clear as to what he said, but I would point out that at page 5 of the brief I find the following which is the recommendation:

That veterans of World War I who saw service in England only be granted war veterans allowance.

That is certainly plain enough. I hear from this recommendation that the Legion wishes to have veterans allowances granted only in England made eligible for the allowance. The comment in the brief is as follows:

The veterans of World War II have served in England only are act

A DISTINGUISHED CAREER

During the past week-end a distinguished RCAF officer visited the city to spend a couple of days with relatives and also for an informal talk to the Belleville Club. We refer to Air Vice Marshal L. E. Wray, O.B.E., A.F.C., C.D., son of Mr. Robert J. Wray of this city. Prior to his address to the Club, Air Vice Marshal Wray was presented with a life membership in the Belleville Club by President Lt.-Col. P. H. Wills in recognition of the part Larry has played in the defence of his home city, and for the prominent part he is taking in Canada's new defence plans. Included in the tribute, too, is the fact that he is a Belleville boy who has brought great honor to his native city.

A brief review of the Air Vice Marshal's noted career reveals the fact that his high place in the offices of the Air Force has been due to great ability and devotion to duty. In the latter case we would like to cite the circumstances which won for him the Order of the British Empire and Air Force Cross . . . it was in March, 1944, while on a bombing raid over Frankfurt, Germany, that he and his crew were forced to bail out after being hit by enemy fire. Taken prisoner, he was sent to Stalag Luft III. At the end of January, 1945, when the Russian advance neared the camp, Air Vice Marshal Wray (then Group Captain) and his companions were marched from the camp on an hour's notice. Many men were left on the first march in bitter weather. The survivors ended up in another camp near Bremen and were later marched to a camp in the Lubeck area.

As an senior Allied officer on this march, Larry Wray worked tirelessly to aid his companions, showing, according to official reports, "utter disregard for his own safety." His splendid work in this period of imprisonment, and particularly during the forced marches, won for him the OBE.

The other decoration was won when he was stationed at Ottawa in 1941. The occasion was when he plunged from a rescue launch in the St. Lawrence River during the violent storm to attach a line to an overturned aircraft. He remained with the plane for many hours until it could be towed to safety. For this he was awarded the Air Force Cross.

Air Vice Marshal Wray joined the RCAF in 1930 after his graduation from Royal Military College in Kingston. He was posted overseas in 1943 and was appointed to command RCAF Station Skipton in No. 6 RCAF Bomber Group and it was when he was there that he participated in the bombing raid which he was shot down.

Following his return to Canada in 1945 he was given command of 9 Transport Group and this was followed by a tour as commandant of the RCAF Staff College in Toronto. Later he was appointed Deputy Air Member for Personnel at Air Force Headquarters. In 1953 he was posted to the United Kingdom to attend the Imperial Defence College. He returned to Canada last winter to take over the position of Air Officer Commanding the RCAF's Air Defence Command with headquarters at St. Hubert, Quebec, and promoted to the rank of Air Vice Marshal.

Air Vice Marshal Wray has one of the most responsible tasks in Canada's defence set-up which in itself is a great tribute to his ability. He has achieved this position at a comparatively youthful age and his vast experience in air force and military matters will contribute greatly to the cause of freedom against the threat of tyranny.

We in Belleville are honored to number Air Vice Wray and the magnificent career he has made for himself while serving in Canada's behalf.

WHO RULES?

People in western nations sometimes find it difficult to decide who rules Russia.

Perhaps it is important that we should know. More important, though, is that we should know who rules us—and who rules our allies.

Some of the reports from Washington are as confusing as those from Moscow.

President Eisenhower said on Wednesday that too much speculation about war does not serve the cause of peace.

Earlier last week Admiral Robert B. Carney, chief of U.S. naval operations, predicted that the Chinese Communists would strike at Quemoy and the Matsus about April 15.

Eisenhower was asked if Carney would be reprimanded.

The president said not by him.

If this does not seem rather strange, picture Churchill publicly deploring the type of statement made by a British admiral and then stating that he would not reprimand this admiral.

BLOW THE FOAM OFF THIS!

No change is planned in the present system of beer order forms in Ontario.

Liquor Commissioner William Collings said last Thursday to do away with the present beer order forms the Ontario Liquor Control Act would have to be amended, since the Act says a "written order" must precede the purchase of beer.

Obviously that must be an order form which one signs when a telephone call has brought the beer truck to one's door. This, though, will be news to most folks who shop for beer by phone. It might even be so inconsiderate as to ask Mr. Collings why, if the order can be drafted in advance by the home delivery service, a similarly simple form could not be used in the beer stores.

KIBITZER

I sit and watch them when they bid
And when their cards they play,
But then of what they said and did
No word have I to say.

Three hands are nice to look upon,
Since bridge that simplifies.
It's easier than playing one
And easier to be wise.

Kibitzers are a vocal lot.
If you have led a spade,
They'll loudly tell you on the spot
The lead you should have made.

A good kibitzer's hard to be,
Since silence is preferred.
But few a friend's mistakes can see
And never say a word.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

WORDS, WORDS, WORDS

Among other conquests of science in recent decades is the scientific study of words. There was a time in history when language was considered the special possession of the poet, philosopher, and the story-teller.

But today's specialists in speech can analyze words in great detail. They can tell us how each of the component sounds is formed in the throat, mouth, or nose. They can measure the time required to utter a word. They can even measure, in decibels of sound, the amount of noise made by a given word at a given pitch.

Yet the most important thing about language is not measurable at all: its meaning. We can define individual words, but the total effect of a particular combination of words uttered by a particular person at a particular time is beyond the power of instruments to record. Who would attempt to analyze, in scientific terms, the effect of a human life on a decoration of love, a proposal of marriage, a timely promise, a heartfelt prayer?

The most important things in life are never measurable. The devices by which we walk, hope, and love have not yet been devised by man. We live in the world, and so we must keep track of money and miles and months, too, while we are here—but we must not forget the infinite and the Eternal.

Less Risk From Surgery

(Stratford Beacon-Herald)

The risk you run from major surgery today — even the most hazardous operations — has been cut by at least half in just the last 10 years. For some operations, the risk is only one-fifth as great. Much credit is due to major life insurance company from a study of hospital records. It gives credit to the improvement to better surgical anaesthetic techniques, new infection - controlling drugs, blood transfusions, and getting patients out of bed earlier.

Missing Sleep

Lots of sleep is lost by parents because they wait up to hear the kids goodnight.

Not Obliged To Tell Truth

(Sudbury Star)

A somewhat unusual court case in Germany has resulted in a most unusual decision by which the court held that public officials were not obliged to tell the truth. Maybe it is only Germany that it could happen.

A German reporter wrote that a loan of public money to a major factory had never been repaid. When the state appointed auditor lately denied the story the reporter sued the delinquent and withdrawal of an accusation that he had lied. He lost on the "don't have to tell the truth" ruling.

Under similar circumstances in Canada the newspapers would likely expose the truth with proof to show that a public official was lying. The almost inevitable result would be resignation or dismissal from public office.

In the case of an elected representative, he is deliberately strayed from the paths of truth, the public would have the remedy in its own hands through the ballot box.

Sound and trustworthy government is founded on truth. Its destruction by lying officials will not be tolerated for long. Even would Canadian courts, we are sure, uphold the right of public officials to lie to the people they represent.

Pearson's View Praised

(New York Times)

Canada's Secretary of State for External Affair's Lester B. Pearson has made a notable contribution of the relationship of his country to ours in exactly the right perspective in addressing the House of Commons. If the United States, he asserted, becomes involved in some sort of minor or "peripheral" conflict such as could arise in the area of the Caribbean Islands, there is no sense of obligation on the part of Canada, Canada is to be a "neutral" it either views the issues or acts differently.

Canada recognizes that the United States wants peace, and that while there may be minor differences in tactics at given points in the world, agreement will be on major policy objective. Beyond that, he said Canada is concerned with anything that would weaken the strength and unity of the Western coalition.

This is plain speaking and it is the ultimate in good sense. It is refreshing to hear from abroad American would expect Canada to be anything but a loyal supporter of Quemoy and Matsu. This is still a local and "peripheral" problem which does not involved the right of freedom of action. We have not committed other nations, even one as close as Canada, need be bound by the tactical decisions which the people and course of action that we might deem expedient in the light of events.

Furthermore, a division of opinion as to what is expedient or necessary at a given point is a tender certain conditions does not mean a division in essential purpose, or a weakening of essential ties. There is apprehension in Canada lest the Conservative victory a local action may lead to a general war. That is natural. There is a similar apprehension in the United States, and it suggests both that Canada is not weakening and for a more stable basis for peace.

This does not mean, however, that we propose to surrender what Mr. Pearson called "everything that makes for free and decent existence". When the challenge to that fundamental comes Canada will be as ready as the United States to defend the heritage of freedom we hold in common.

This nation has been blessed with many gifts. Few, indeed, could be so important, valuable and permanent as the gift of a good neighbor on our northern border. Our unity with Canada is not accidental. It is the product of a long and honorable association between two peoples who have been geared to radar development since early in the Second World War.

Radar has never been foolproof. Pilots have frequently confused German radar by dropping strips of tin-foil which looked like aircraft on radar screens. Fast lowflying airplanes are able to hide from radar pulse beams. Canada's National Research Council has already developed a method of countering the radar waves, but none which could be used as yet.

The new coating, as long as it remains a Western secret, adds enormously to Canada's air power. Unfortunately, such things do not remain secret for long, especially in a shooting war when spectators fall into enemy hands.

So Western researchers are already preparing for the logical next step, the development of a method of counteracting the new coating, as soon as samples of it are available for study.

Court Ruling Misunderstood

(Victoria Times)

The settlement of the Blair Fraser libel case out of court apparently has satisfied both sides. The editors of Maclean's magazine have stated in their statement that they never intended any reflection on Mr. Gordon Wismer's personal honor or administrative conduct. Mr. Wismer, accordingly, withdrawn his charges of libel against the magazine and, against Mr. Fraser.

If this settlement satisfies Mr. Wismer and Maclean's, it has left a deal of confusion in the public mind and much misunderstanding of certain highly important points of law.

From the beginning of the long and complex litigation, it has been generally assumed that British Columbia courts have laid down an extraordinary new principle—that if any publication is sued for libel it must name the sources of its information.

If that were so the freedom of the press would be severely restricted. For if the press may be compelled at any time to reveal the sources of information it must dry up. Or if a journalist must betray sources that are in confidences — as he must — then he is in danger of being penalized for doing what he considers he believes to be true and important to the public.

But as we understand the complex decisions of the courts, this is not the case in the Blair Fraser case.

It is true that Mr. Fraser was ordered by the courts to produce the sources of his information. He refused. Whereupon, having defied the courts, he found himself in contempts stricken out, according to the court's well-established rules. But the judges of the High Court of Commons. Prophecies Fulfilled

Seven-league boots and cloaks of invisibility have been the stuff of legend and fairy tale for generations. But when H. G. Wells brought the fable up to date with scientific fact and prophecy few, if any, believed he was being fulfilled.

Jet and rocket propulsion have given man the seven-league (21 miles) boots. A new, secret coating for aircraft, announced yesterday, is said to make them invisible to the radar-eye. The details of the coating are to remain secret, but it was declared that the United States has already bought the patented process through which Canadian researchers developed its Swiss discoverers, and that it is to be made available to the Can-

Personal Health Talks

PLIGHT OF A MAN WITHOUT AVOCATION

Dr. Brady

A man aged 72, recently retired on pension and social security amounting to bare subsistence. He complains of several things, as I see them:

(1) The dollars he receives are the same these days but only half as many of the groceries the dollars be paid for them would have bought.

(2) He had received no raise in pay in the last twenty-five years—in fact, employers made it plain they were keeping a man over fifty on the payroll only out of kindness.

(3) He has few close friends, merely casual acquaintances, and so he feels isolated.

(4) Now he is becoming depressed and worries a great deal about hardening of the arteries, a stroke, cancer.

The first and second complaints are beyond my province, although I may say I have a great deal to do with what sells the man.

The second complaint, implying that a man over fifty doesn't rate a raise in pay and ought to be thankful he is kept on at the same pay he received twenty-five years ago, is reasonable enough. How come we don't fire, retire or carry on the payroll as a kindness business executives, government officials, congressmen, judges, army and navy officers, doctors, lawyers, editors, or preachers because they are past fifty.

The third and fourth complaints I consider the first in half an hour I must shut down for the day and his away to the bowling alley or lawn bowls, that is, an ancient game played on a plot of ground known as a lawn or a billiard table. Description of the game of bowls in the 8 volume of Encyclopaedia Britannica.

It's just too bad, I think, that this poor soul who retired with a dull, sickening thud, never had the good fortune to become addicted to bowling on the green or some similar game, avocation, hobby, or extracurricular activity when he was thirty, forty, fifty, sixty, or seventy. It would take the shock and keep him from feeling isolated, out of it, friendless, and depressed now that there's nothing interesting to do. Having such an outside interest makes for contentment easy. I have many a man from rapid decline in health and spirits.

The diseases this poor soul worries about will come if he is fated, and if I can offer him some advice, I'll say he might profitably worry about how he can get by St. Peter in the hereafter. If I find this quite sufficient to worry about.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

FOR THE FUN OF IT

I have never known anyone who confessed that he or she got no thrilling fun out of his or her work who wasn't an unusual worker. I can remember as well as I recall last year graduating from college. The days were small—not a lot of them but every day brought fun to me, for I felt that I was a small, and perhaps valuable, cog in the wheel business machine. I could hardly wait for morning to come and then, after a long day of work, I was not anxious to quit, many times working at midnight because I was so keen about the business. And it all paid! The fun finally led me to buy my own boss and start a business of my own, which all these years has been prolonged fun!

There is nothing that gives any of us such satisfaction as to work at something that interests us a great deal and which we love. That's partly why I have spent my free time amateur paintings and sculpture work, and I have watched these workers on the job. You passed their pieces by and got the joy they took in thus creating.

I believe that if all of us did more fun things in our spare time we'd be very much happier, more creative, and inspired every hour the last die of today, whose beloved daddy rolls about the carpet with them, and then riding on his back, and who performs other "unconventional" antics, will never forget that father and they will long live the discipline exempted into them by those precious days.

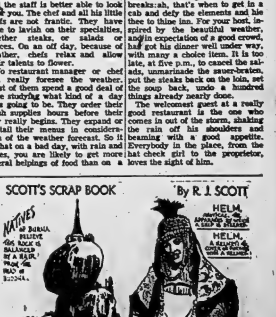
I knew the late George Grey Barnard, the sculptor, and spent many long evenings at his New York studio listening to his absorbing tales. He could be necessary to actually sculpture in the air! But with dramatic voice and boyish enthusiasm, he made the very air alive and you knew he experienced fun! I have also met, from time on the part of people has an immortal touch to it!

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

A good day to go to a good restaurant is on a bad day. When the weather is bad I like to stay at home instead of coming down town. People who are not hungry at all normally might seek out the good restaurant, decide, in view of the weather, just to pick up a sandwich at the handiest spot around the corner.

As a result, the restaurant is not crowded, and the staff is better able to look after those few people and all his little chefs are not crowded, and the staff is better able to look after those few people and all his little chefs are not crowded, and the staff is better able to look after you. The chef and all his little chefs are not frantic. They have time to lavish on your problem, whether steaks, or salads or sauces. On a dull day, because of weather, chefs relax and allow their talents to flower.



No restaurant manager or chef can really foresee the weather. But one can spend a good deal of time studying what kind of a day it is going to be. They order their fresh supplies hours before their day really begins. They expand or curtail their menus in consideration of the weather forecast. So it is that on a bad day, with rain and fog, you are likely to get some very liberal helpings of food than on a fine day, when supplies might run short.

The ideal time to visit a famous restaurant is on a day when the weather man predicts a heavy storm. Suppose it is a perfectly beautiful morning up until nearly eleven o'clock, and then a thunder storm brews up, and by noon the city is in the grip of it. You decide to go for lunch to the ritziest place in town. Or, after a beautiful day up until midnight, a fog or a thunder way, with many a choice item. It is too late, at five p.m., to cancel the salad chefs get to work, and nourishment, put the steaks back on the loin, set the soup back to simmer a hundred things already nearly done.

The welcomest guest at a really fine restaurant is the one who comes in out of the storm, shaking the rain off his hat and coat and beaming with a good appetite. Everybody in the place, from the hat check girl to the proprietor, loves the sight of him.

RESPECTABLE SOCIETY OR GIRLS RUTH REPEAT FROM WHAT IS PERHAPS? PLEASED OR ON MATTER OF HONOUR?

More than 300 service clubs in Ontario combine to form the Ontario Society for Crippled Children now in its last week of conducting its annual Easter Seals campaign. Above are shown service club members visiting one of their crippled patients in hospital.

Easter Seal Now Is Banner Of Many Ontario Service Clubs

Because voluntary and willing desire to help others has been found the most effective and economical method of helping handicapped children, there has been established all across Ontario a program of teamwork which today is serving nearly 9,000 crippled children.

Linked by the Ontario Society for Crippled Children into a smoothly functioning system are more than two hundred service clubs, which annually finance the program by the sale of Easter Seals. Working with these clubs locally are 21 public nurses under the leadership of the Society's nursing director. The district nurses in turn collaborate with local public health nurses and doctors, and with the family doctors of the handicapped children.

Each year at various strategic points, teams of specialists from the major hospitals of the province donate their services and travel to clinics organized by the local clubs and the district nurses. Here are assembled children who need special attention: the specialists diagnose conditions, suggest treatment and discuss methods of providing the treatment with local doctors. If special surgery is required, arrangements are made for the children to enter hospital and if special appliances are needed, these are provided.

All year round after that, in constant collaboration with the local doctors, the district nurses of the Society follow up each case, helping parents to learn what can be done at home for their child, suggesting recreation each child can enjoy, and providing therapy if necessary. In this way, children who live even in remote northern outports or in rural areas are able to benefit from the best skills and the latest known treatment methods—and are helped to live normal or far more nearly-normal lives than would have been possible otherwise.

The Easter Seals drive sponsored locally by the Belleville Rotary club, closes April 8, when it is hoped to have attained its province-wide goal of $550,000. To date contributions in Belleville have netted $2,456.

Funds Will Be Used to Assist Disabled Members

Members of the Belleville and District Handicapped and Disabled Club expressed their appreciation today to the citizens of Belleville and area for their generous response to their tag day Friday afternoon and Saturday, during which $450.80 was contributed.

The money donated will be used to assist the disabled and handicapped members in supporting themselves. Material will be purchased to make wall brackets, and ladies, magazine racks, ottomans, toys and children's clothing. Profits from the sale of the articles will go to help members to be self-supporting.

It was pointed out that many of these people can work only short periods at a time and of necessity do the club handicraft work at home.

REVOLVING FUND

Money raised through the generosity of the citizens will make a revolving fund to purchase new materials as articles are sold and will also assist in setting up a small workshop with hobbycraft machinery to do more professional type job on articles manufactured. Articles made will be sold privately in the market building on Saturdays.

"Help the Handicapped Help Themselves," is the motto of the club. Money raised is held in trust by an advisory committee of three businessmen and may be spent only with the approval of these men and for the sole purposes of purchase of materials or equipment.

A large double garage has been made available rent free for use as a workshop and will also be used for the display of finished articles. The public will be invited to visit the workshop to meet the handicapped and see the display of their work.

Hobbycraft will also be taught to the handicapped children in the city.

District Student Wins Honors At Kemptville

G. D. Taylor of Trenton was highest in milk and cream testing and stood second in the first class honors group in final examinations in the dairy division at the Kemptville Agricultural School. Results released by the school show that Mr. Taylor had a total of 1016 points out of a possible 1200 for a percentage of 84.8.

Receiving second class honors were H. J. Snarr of Campbellford, and T. V. Brennan of Marysville. Mr. Snarr received 65.8 per cent, and Mr. Brennan 63.5 per cent.

A fourth Bay of Quinte District student who received a pass standing was D. G. Wynn of Hastings with 51.7 per cent.

BLOCK STREET

TORONTO (CP)—Parents, fearful for the safety of their children, blocked a street with their parked cars in suburban North York Monday to keep buses off the street. The street is used by Toronto Transit Commission for turning of Bathurst street buses. Traffic was held up for about an hour before police forced the parents to move their cars.

Juniors Win Panel Discussion

The junior year in agriculture at R.A.S. won the annual panel discussion held on April 1st, 1955 by their chairman, Donald Menzies of Ottawa, with the topic "Capital Punishment." It was the first time that the juniors have won the new Year 34 trophy.

Other members of the junior panel were Lillies Turcotte, Colin's Bay; Harvey Graham, Nestleton; Harvey Wright, Chapman, and Ted Gillies, Tamworth.

The senior panel, chaired by Robert Leask of Trenton, comprised of Ross Moorcroft, Madoc; Richard Foster, Hillier; Jean Campbell, Joyceville, and Donald Henry, Berwick, gave strong competition dealing with the subject, "Should the School Term at R.A.S. be Longer?"

A. M. Batty, principal, congratulated the winners before calling on John Stewart, a graduate of '54 to present the trophy. The judges' decision was given by H. E. Gardiner of the R.A.S. staff, who was assisted by L. A. Donoghue and L. H. Kobelka.

Gymnastic Titles Decided At 'Y' Competitions

Close to 90 boys, members of the Y.M.C.A. participated in the 2nd Annual Y.M.C.A. Intermural Boys Gymnastic Championship, held in the "Y" Gym on Saturday.

The contest included compulsory and optional exercises in tumbling, springboard and box horse and in the parallel bars. The performance of each boy was judged by general secretary Dr. Diamantides and instructors Don Cherry and Bob Wesley. Judging was based on form execution and the degree of difficulty of each exercise.

Winners in the various divisions were as follows:

A. Preps Division

Tumbling — David Short, 38 points; Robert Whitfield, 32; Allan Hitchon 28; Carl McLean 24; Allan Barkley 24.

B. Juvenile Division

Tumbling, Robert Blakely 48 1/2 points; Robert Blakely, 48 1/2 points; Stuart Muirhead 44; John Peoples, 40 1/2.

Box Jumping — Stuart Muirhead, 48 1/2 points; Robert Blakely 48 1/2; Donald Skinner 46; Harry McOutre 36.

C. Junior Division

Tumbling — Don Whitfield 48 1/2 points; Brian Valcamp 48 1/2; Larry Regenaburg 48 1/2.

Box Horse — Brian Valcamp 48 1/2 points; Larry Regenaburg, 46; Don Whitfield 45 1/2.

D Junior Division

Parallel Bars — Brian Valcamp, 46 1/2 points; Dave Valcamp 46; Ronald Poste 45 1/2.

Community Honors Former Residents

On a recent Saturday evening a surprise party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Beatty prior to their leaving the community of Halloway, Mr. and Mrs. Beatty have lived in the community for the past 32 years.

The chairman for the occasion was Mr. Cecil Ketcheson.

During the evening, an address was read by Mrs. Clifford Ray to Mr. and Mrs. Beatty, Phyllis and Mrs. Harry Sloan and on behalf of the community they were presented with an occasional chair, musical powder box and a necklace. The gifts and good wishes were deeply appreciated by the family.

A short social program followed with a sing-song led by Mrs. Walter Morrow of Frankford and Mrs. Floyd Ray of Halloway.

The party was brought to a close with refreshments. Mr. and Mrs. Beatty will reside in Foxboro.

Queen Elizabeth School Pupils Display Art at McCarthy Theatre

School art is taking a prominent place these days when, after school displaying its handicraft at the McCarthy Theatre. This week and the next pupils of the art exhibit is that by the students of Queen Elizabeth school, and includes crayon, water color and pencil drawings all of which demonstrated an eye for detail, and a certain amount of color appreciation, as well as imagination.

There were several dark background pictures, highlighted by pleasing colors; a three - masted schooner at sea; the rising sun casting its golden path across the placid water; a lone wolf baying the moon; squirrels; a forest fire; a spirited horse in motion, and the lordly parrot, with his peacock green coloring.

DAFFODILS

Some eye-catching cutouts were of daffodils in pots, looking most realistic, and portraying the care of workmanship.

The finger paintings were both intricate and pretty in mauves and blues, as were the various oil cloth and wall paper designs. The oil cloth of same design were represented in color instead of ink, and resembled specimens of fossils of by-gone ages.

Other handwork showed designs of Christmas cards; some of the "Good Shepherd"; holly and bells; and others in colorful geometrical shapes.

CRAYON DRAWINGS

The crayon drawings depicted the home of "Laddie," the Scotch collie; the Nativity scene with the Babe of Bethlehem and His mother, and nearby the camel leading an eastern accent. The travel posters depicted the old and new methods of travel — the horseback way, contrasted with the aeroplane and the old steam engine as contrasted with the streamlined diesel engine.

An interesting display was that of the "Spring Fashions." These showed heads and faces in a three - dimension effect, each with a chic little hat in different styles, one a tiny head-hugger; another in sailor fashion, and one wreathed in flowers.

NICE WORK

A nice piece of school work was that of the rocky wilds showing a "V" formation of wild geese winging their way into the northlands over a spread of water from which a wild duck was rising, watched by a stealthy wild cat from the rocky bank.

Another tasteful piece of drawing was that of the "Wild Horses," one black and one white, standing neck and neck on a slight knoll. Mist of the wold head with horses in the background was also well expressed.

Other exhibits shown were "sliding" underwater scenery showing a turtle, shark, and various fishes; a well-drawn piece of work: "Day is Done," showing the sunset across the water, and another, a skeleton tree prone beside the sea.

LITTLE SKATING GIRL

A colorful piece was that of the little skating girl in red with white trim, and several Polar Bear "sugaring off" showing the maple trees, the sugar shanty, the basin of sap being drawn by horses to the cauldron to be made into syrup.

"Spring Time", was rich in redbreasted robins about a house with holly-edged path. "Kite time," "The Eskimos", and "Bicycling" were full of imagination, as was "Recess Time" and the "Wiseman and His Camel" was both dignified and full of eastern color. "Wintertime" depicted a church and home with dark sky and falling snow.

In all an interesting collection, exhibiting care in execution and a love of color, and the use of imagination.

Victoria Baptist M.C. Holds Meeting

The March meeting of the Women's Mission Circle of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church was held in the church on Tuesday evening, with 32 members present.

The president, Miss E. Nurse, presided. After the call to worship and a hymn, Mrs. W. Neal read a poem, "My Psalm," and led in prayer.

The "Watch Tower" was given by Mrs. C. Campbell, who read brief items of interest from various fields of missionary endeavor.

A portion of Scripture was read by Miss V. Handley, and the meditation was given by Mrs. A. E. Berry on the subject of "Windows" — in particular "The Window of Faith."

The topic for the evening was presented by Mrs. Robert Orr, who introduced the new study book "The Church in India", by R. M. Bennett. Mrs. Orr dealt with chapter 1 in an interesting way, being assisted in her presentation of the wealth of facts and information by questions from three 'reporters', Mrs. W. Neal, Mrs. H. Thompson, and Mrs. A. Wells.

In all an Interesting collection, exhibiting care in execution and a love of color, and the use of imagination.

Lady Churchill Has Been Perfect Helpmate to Noted Husband

LONDON (Reuters) — A warm-hearted love story runs not far beneath the surface of the dazzling political career of Sir Winston Churchill.

Churchill once wrote in an autobiography: "My marriage was much the most fortunate and joyous event which happened to me in the whole of my life, for what can be more glorious than to be united in one's walk through life with a being incapable of an ignoble thought."

Now 79 years old, Lady Churchill has been the perfect helpmate. All through the ups and downs of Churchill's life, his "Clemmie," as he calls her, has been a tower of strength beside him.

CHIEF CONCERN

His faith in her as a critic has been unbounded. On days of tough debates in the House of Commons, he liked to see her in the ladies' gallery. He would look up at her as he rose to speak. She would answer with a discreet wave of the hand.

Lady Churchill's chief concern has been his comfort. It is no secret that in recent years she constantly has urged him to conserve himself. She once said she had drawn up a list of rules to be followed by whoever might have to look after her husband, should she die first.

When Churchill assumed the burden of war leadership in 1940, she took with her to 10 Downing street years of experience as a hostess, a serene charm, a sharp wit and the cool courage which enabled her to remark to a friend when German bombs were falling on London: "I have made up my mind to ignore all this completely."

Although Lady Churchill's story has merged with that of her husband, her personality never has sunk into his. She has views of her own and holds to them quietly but firmly.

MET AT DINNER

Born Clementine Hozier April 1, 1885, she is the second daughter of Col. Sir Henry Hozier, a Scotsman. Through her mother, Lady Blanche Ogilvy, daughter of the ninth Earl of Airlie, she inherited the blood of an old and famous Scottish family.

In 1908, at an ash-blonde beauty of Edwardian days, she met Winston, already a cabinet minister as president of the board of trade. It was at a dinner party given by her great-aunt Lady St. Helier, in the same year they were married at the fashionable church of St. Margaret's, Westminster. She was 23 and he was 10 years older.

Despite her crowded private life, Lady Churchill has always found time to undertake many public duties. During the Second World War, she raised nearly £8,000,000 for the Red Cross Aid to Russia Fund and in 1945 she visited Russia to receive the official thanks of the Soviet government. She met Marshal Stalin and was presented with a diamond ring by Madame Molotov.

In 1946, the late King George VI created her a Dame Commander of the Order of the British Empire.

Tall and slender, discreetly elegant and perfectly groomed, Lady Churchill has kept a remarkably youthful appearance with a touch of athletic grace recalling that in years past she was a first-class tennis player and a good skier. She speaks perfect French, and radio experts give her broadcasting voice top marks.

Fifth Birthday Marked By Party, Gifts

Monday was a happy time for little Freddie Thompson, five-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. F. Thompson, of Shannonville, when several guests were entertained at the home of his grandmother, Mrs W. Bartly, Shannonville, on the occasion of his birthday on Sunday.

Among those present were: Mr. Sid Silver, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kerby and family, all of Belleville, and little friends, Gordon and Douglas Fuller, and his aunt and uncle from Toronto, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Bartly.

Refreshments were served including a lovely birthday cake with five candles, ice cream and sandwiches.

Freddie was the recipient of nice presents, which he appreciated greatly.

Honored Resident Commended As Valued Helper

On Friday afternoon about 30 neighbors and friends of Halloway and Zion Community gathered at the home of Mrs. Fred Wellman, to bid her mother, Mrs. Arthur Sine, au revoir as she is leaving the community for a month's visit to her mother and sister in New York.

Mrs. Roscoe Robson, as chairlady, called the gathering to attention and in a brief address of kindly references to the valued helper which Mrs. Sine has been in the community, the church, the Women's Missionary Society, as well as The Women's Institute.

Mrs. Robson, then asked Mrs. Elmer Tufts to present, on behalf of the community, a wrist watch to Mrs. Sine after which Mrs. Sine expressed her thanks and appreciation for the gift.

Refreshments were served by the ladies and an hour of fellowship enjoyed. All departed with best wishes to Mrs. Sine for a happy visit and safe return to her home community.

HOW TO ADDRESS YOUR EASTER CARDS TO THE CLERGY

When you address your Easter cards to a minister or priest, the one word The is the big word to remember. The should always be used before Reverend. Why? Because the word Reverend is not a title . . . not a title like "Mr." for example, or "Dr.". It is an adjective, an adjective of courtesy used to addresscleric from in the spiritual profession. You address your card:

To a Protestant minister without degree:

The Reverend John Ely Brown

To a Protestant minister with degree: (for example, D.D. or LL.D):

The Reverend Dr. (or The Rev. Dr.) Paul Robbins

Or The Rev. Paul Robbins, D.D.

To a minister and his wife:

The Rev. (or The Rev. Dr.) and Mrs. John Sargent

To a Roman Catholic priest:

The Right Reverend Monsignor Joseph Murray

(or "The Very Reverend Monsignor—", depending on his rank.)

WHITE DINNER JACKETS . . . WHAT HOUR?

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

The wedding is to be in September—either on September 3rd or on September 17th. They haven't decided which date. The prospective bride and groom want the men in the wedding party to wear white dinner jackets. Would they be correct in September? They are having a late-afternoon wedding and an evening reception.—C.S.

If the date chosen for the wedding is September 3rd, or anytime day before Labor Day, white dinner jackets would be appropriate for the men in the wedding party. But in your part of the country, September 17th would be considered too late in the season.

However, white dinner jackets are evening wear . . . and they should not be worn before 6 o'clock in the evening at the very earliest. You didn't tell me what the hour of the ceremony is to be . . . and it is the hour of the ceremony, not the hour of the reception, which determines the correct attire.

HOUSE WEDDING PLANS

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

1. My daughter is to be married in a few weeks. We are having a buffet at home; afterward we will go on for a luncheon. The ceremony will be at one o'clock, and the reception about two. We are sending announcements after the wedding. But there are a few relatives and very close friends we would like to attend the wedding. Will you please give me an example for the proper wording of this written invitation?

2. I understand that the guests are supposed to stand during the ceremony. True?

3. Should the ladies wear hats and gloves?—Mrs. A.

1. For your daughter's small, informal house wedding, it is entirely proper for you, the hostess, to telephone the invitations. Or, if you prefer (or to cut-down guests) your notes might read:

Dear Katherine,

Beatrice and John Hall are being married here at home on Saturday May 14th, at one o'Clock. We all hope that you and Jim will be with us for the ceremony, and will plan to come with us to the luncheon afterward.

Dearest love to you both, from all of us.,

Affectionately,

2. True.

3. Yes . . . the women guests wear hats and gloves. You, the hostess, would not wear a hat in your own house.

Question: As I know no one else to turn to, I hope you can give me some advice. I would like to bake our income along by doing some baking . . . problem is how does one start? What would be most in demand? . . . cakes, pies, tarts, squares, coffee cakes . . . can one buy large quantities of shortening in bulk for home use . . . also cherries, nuts, dates in large bulk . . . have you recipes for strawberries, fruit rolls, fruit meringues, chocolate mandarins, cherry dreams, filbert drops or other cookies that do not require baking . . . we are trying to finish our home and have two small girls . . . Answer: You add "If this is too much trouble disregard this letter." I never disregard a letter—nothing you ask is too much trouble — my only trouble is that I am often overcome by modesty and hope you will bear with me.

5 IN 1 REFRIGERATOR COOKIES

This will yield 5 or 6 dozen—cookies of 6 different varieties from 1 basic dough. Keeps very well, if chilled.

One cup butter, ½ cup brown sugar, ½ cup white sugar, 1 beaten egg, ½ teaspoon vanilla, 2 cups all-purpose flour, ½ teaspoon soda, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ square unsweetened chocolate, melted, ¾ cup each shredded cocoanut, chopped raisins, chopped pecans, ¼ teaspoon cinnamon, ¼ teaspoon nutmeg. Cream butter well and gradually cream sugars into it. Continue creaming until mixture is light and fluffy. Add egg and vanilla. Mix well, sift together flour, soda and salt and gradually add to mixture. Beat well after each addition. Divide dough into 5 parts. To one part add chocolate. To another, raisins to another, pecans to another, cinnamon and nutmeg to another and leave the last portion plain. Shape each portion into a roll 1¼ inches in diameter. Wrap in waxed paper. Chill 2 hours. Cut into ¼ inch slices and bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for 10 to 12 minutes.

MARZIPAN STRAWBERRIES (70 or 80 strawberries)

To 1 can sweetened condensed milk add 1 lb. fresh desiccated cocoanut, 1 tablespoon fruit sugar, ¼ lb. very finely chopped almonds, and 1½ packages strawberry jelly dessert. (Buy 2 packages — see below). Add 1 teaspoon each vanilla and red coloring. Mix well .Chill 1 hour. In bare hand roll 1 teaspoonful into a ball. Flatter; top and pull out point in strawberry shape. Roll in the extra strawberry jelly you bought to give a pebbled effect. Pay hull and stem make Green Icing: 1 cup icing sugar, ¼ cup butter (2 tablespoons), ½ teaspoons vanilla 1 tablespoon cream, green coloring to make dark green. Pipe through icing tube onto each individual berry and in your hand. Let dry and harden at room temperature.

CHERRY CREAM SQUARES
(Courtesy Mrs. F. C. K.)

Cream together ½ cup butter, ½ cup brown sugar, 1 cup flour (or work together as for pastry). Place in 8 x 8" pan and bake 10 minutes at 350 deg. Fahr. Cool slightly and place over it the following mixture: 2/3 cup sweetened condensed milk, 1/3 teaspoon vanilla, 1¼ cups cocoanut, 1/3 cup nuts (almonds or Brazils), ¼ cup glace or maraschino cherries. Bake 20 minutes. Cut when cool. Do not overbake.

FRENCH FRUIT ROLL OR BALLS

Beat 4 eggs until thick; add gradually 1 cup sugar, beating between additions. Beat until thick and light. Stir in 1 cup pitted mesta ground finely, and 3 dozen dates which have been stoned and put through grinder. Sift ¾ cup flour with a shake of salt and 1 teaspoon baking powder and add with 1 teaspoon vanilla to the fruit mixture. Mix well. Spread mixture thinly on an ungreased baking sheet. Bake in moderate oven 350 deg. Fahr. until mixture puffs. Remove from oven before it hardens one bit at the edges. Scrape the batter off tin, form small spoonfuls in smooth balls. Dip in mix of icing sugar and lemon juice to barely coat, then roll in shredded cocoanut or nuts Store in covered box to develop flavor. This makes about 46 balls.

Note: Mix may be made into 3 long rolls on wax paper then rolled in icing, then in cocoanut. Then chilled, then cut with sharp knife. This is a popular delicacy.

There is another reader who lives near you Mrs. K. H. who is doing the same thing. Her initials are M. A. M. — same as mine. I think she will see this and write letting you know what sells best.

Friends — I hope your thoughts are with me for this is the day of the wedding you know.

Beach Coat in Lace

By ALICE ALDEN

It's lace across the board this year, for a real winner. Why, it is even used for beach clothes as witness this new and most interesting beach jacket which is fashioned of pink cotton lace over brown cotton. The coat has a low belted back and closes in front with pearl buttons. There are matching rompers.

Beauty

By HELEN JAMIESON

FACIAL MASSAGE

For a quick refresher and glowing uplift, nothing is more satisfactory than a facial treatment by a skilful, conscientious operator in a beauty shop. It is a well-planned process, designed to revitalize tissues, delicate fibers and glands. During this pleasant and relaxing period the customer can pick up ideas which will help her to keep her skin in good condition with home treatments.

Here is the routine as pursued by most beauty specialists. They have their own variations, of course, but all work to the same ends— a thorough cleansing, tissue-toning, speeding up circulation. When you are doing your cosmetic homework, keep the following suggestions in mind.

Remove make-up with a cleansing oil. Use soap and warm water freely. Creams work best when the skin is warm. Rinse with warm water, dry with gentle pats.

Have at hand a heavy emollient that offers resistance to the movements of your fingers. Start at the collar bones, stroking upward over the neck and along the jawlines. If there are signs of a double chin, do a little patching over that area.

Do small circles from the lip corners up over the cheeks, being careful not to force the flesh up under the eyes. Circle out toward the ears, up to the temples.

Place the fingers of both hands in groups in the center of the forehead. As one group moves upward, the other one down, both travel from one side of the forehead to the other. For frown lines: place the thumb at lower end, first finger at the upward; from upward on the thumb. This lifts the skin out of the grooves. Now begin a brisk hammering, as if you were doing a five finger exercise on the piano keys. Let the cream remain on over night.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

KEEP THINGS ON JUST A FRIENDLY BASIS, KATHY YOU?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a senior in high school, and until recently was engaged to a very nice fellow with whom I had been going about nine months. We had planned to get married as soon as I graduate in June, but he is in the army and unfortunately got shipped to Germany. He was home last New Year's, and then he told me that I should go on with my plans to take training as a nurse, as I had intended to do before I met him.

Since he left for overseas, I have received only t w o letters from him, and they were of a kind that hurt me very much. I know he has time to write, because he has written to his mother every day. Should I keep writing to him on a strictly friendly basis, or should I stop writing altogether? — Kathy

Dear Kathy:

You say you were engaged to this fellow "until recently." Does that mean that you have definitely broken up with him, or that you feel your engagement no longer holds because he has taken to neglecting you?

In any case, what I would advise is that you express no concern about this boy's failure to write; that you send him letters only in answer to any he may write you, and that you keep everything you say on a cheerful, light heart or, on the other hand, his new experiences may be absorbing so much of his attention that he has temporarily become careless about writing you. Either way, if you treat him as a friend instead of as a fiance, you will be doing the wise thing.

Anthony Eden Personifies 'Public School' Politician

LONDON (Reuters) — Sir Anthony Eden personifies to many people the English "public school" type of diplomat and politician—suave, elegant, immaculately groomed.

He is also the most experienced of Britain's post-war foreign secretaries with nearly a quarter of a century of service as a minister.

Tall and slim, with a military mustache, he has an engaging smile and still looks rather youthful despite grey hair and liberal complexion. His appearance and careful taste in clothes have combined to build him up over the years as a political "prince charming." But friends and opponents alike say this tends to obscure the qualities which have brought him to the front.

PHYSICAL BRAVERY

Eden's strength, supporters claim, lies in his patience, clarity of thought and cool judgment.

One of the great landmarks of his political career was an act of moral courage — his resignation from the foreign secretaryship in 1938 because he disagreed with the "appeasement" policy of Neville Chamberlain, then prime minister, toward Fascist Italy.

This gesture, born of a conviction that Britain's duty was to stand up to the dictators, confirmed his personal reputation with the British and the world.

Unlike Sir Winston Churchill, he is no great orator, but he is skilled in parliamentary technique.

Sometimes accused by critics of lacking drive, his diplomatic moves during 1954 did much to belie the charge and have greatly increased his stature.

NEGOTIATING SKILL

It was partly due to his negotiating skill at the Geneva conference last year that an armistice was concluded in Indochina. In the summer the Anglo - Egyptian agreement on the Suez canal zone settled a long-standing and bitter problem. A solution to Britain's oil dispute with Iran was also reached.

In the autumn, after France's rejection of the European Defence Community treaty, he initiated a solution of the problem of bringing Germany into Western defence and changed the whole atmosphere of the London nine-power conference by pledging Britain to leave troops and planes on the Continent until the end of the century.

Soon after his services were rewarded by the Queen. She made him a Knight Companion of the Garter and he became Sir Anthony.

Christened Robert Anthony Eden, he comes from a well-known political family. In the 18th century the family included four Eden brothers. One was a member of Parliament, two were ambassadors. The fourth was governor of Maryland during the American War of Independence.

He was born at Windleston Hall, near Bishop Auckland, County Durham, on June 12, 1897, the younger son of Sir William Eden, baronet, a somewhat eccentric country squire whose bad temper was notorious.

RAPID RISE

It is said by some that young Anthony inherited some of that temper and that it is his efforts to keep a tight rein on himself that have made him somewhat shy and self-effacing.

He was educated at Eton College and after the First World War, in which he served in France, winning the Military Cross and ending up a brigade major, he went to Oxford University, where he was a brilliant scholar in oriental languages.

He entered Parliament in 1923 as Conservative member for Warwick and Leamington, which he still represents.

His qualities soon attracted the attention of Stanley Baldwin, then prime minister, and of Sir Austen Chamberlain, then foreign secretary. Chamberlain made him his parliamentary private secretary in 1926. His rise was rapid. In 1931, he was under-secretary for foreign affairs and in 1934 he was in charge of League of Nations affairs with full ministerial rank. He became a leading personality at Geneva.

OUT OF OFFICE

It surprised few people when in 1935 Eden became Britain's youngest foreign secretary in nearly a century, succeeding Sir Samuel Hoare, whose policy of compromise with Mussolini over the Italo-Ethiopian conflict had aroused a storm in Britain.

Eden's decision to resign rather than be a party to renewed compromise efforts over Ethiopia followed in 1938. He was in office during the Neville Chamberlain era of appeasement of Nazi Germany, but on the outbreak of war he was brought back with the Conservative government of the country for dominions.

When Winston Churchill took over leadership of the Conservative-Labor-Liberal coalition formed after the early wartime disaster in Norway, he became foreign secretary, his old post almost automatically when the Conservatives won the 1951 election after five years in opposition.

Eden has a love of gracious living and is a collector of fine pictures. From his father he inherited sensibility and a taste for art. He has written books of impressionist painters and is himself a talented painter in water-colors.

His first marriage was dissolved. His second marriage in August, 1952, was to Clarissa Churchill, a niece of Sir Winston Churchill.

Rednersville

REDNERSVILLE — The "Re-Ale" doubles group entertained the "Two-by-Two Club of Mount Pleasant on Wednesday evening in the church hall. The visitors had charge of the worship service, led by Orno Sharp and F. Richardson, with a solo by Mary Hoard with Mrs. M. Sharp at the piano.

In the second part, Muriel Ward had charge of the business session with the minutes being read by Eleanor Weese.

Mrs. T. F. Townsend was heard in two readings "The Morning Rush," and "My Pa."

The "Re-Ale" presented a skit and a buffet luncheon was enjoyed by all.

The girls of the C.G.I.T. group attended the concert in the Albury Church, presented by the students of Albert College, Belleville, on Friday evening. The members will take part in the Easter service on April the tenth, giving an Easter message, "The King of Glory."

The members of the Woman's Missionary Society will have charge of a combined service at 11 o'clock Easter Sunday in the Centre Church.

FRENCH SCRAP SHIPS

PARIS (Reuters) — The French navy condemned and broke up for scrap 20,450 tons of ships, including submarines, destroyers and small escort and patrol vessels, during 1954, the navy ministry announced. Most of these ships already had been withdrawn from active service and their destruction does not affect the tonnage of the active French navy.

STIRLING

Odd Fellows Presented With 25 Year Jewels

STIRLING — On Wednesday evening a presentation of 25-year jewels took place at the annual Odd Fellows "At Home" in Stirling community hall.

The presentation was made by District Deputy Grand Master J. Poulton, of Campbellford.

Those eligible to receive the jewels were Mowat Sine, Ernest Broadworth, Wilfred Sine and Earl Fox.

The film entitled, "The Century of Progress," was shown. A varied program of musical selections was presented by Rawdon male quartet and the Junior Farmers' mixed quartet. Vocal selections were contributed by Misses Heather Rodgers and Cheryl Utman. Misses Marion and Shirley Broadworth sang, with Mrs K. P. Mayhew as accompanist. Mr. Gerald Taylor favored with accordion selections and Miss Barbara Woodcock tap danced. Mr. R. A. Patterson led in assembly singing.

ODD FELLOWSHIP

Dr. A. Packman spoke on Odd Fellowship, which was first established in Manchester, England.

At the close of the program refreshments were served after which Bill Moynes and his Marlboro provided dance music. The annual "Wildey Night" was largely attended.

$1585 GRANT RECEIVED

STIRLING — Mr. Fred Malloy, clerk of Stirling municipality, has received a communication from provincial treasurer Leslie M. Frost, that a grant of $1585 will be received and of this amount $780 will go to the Stirling public school and the council will decide where the balance is to be spent.

Stirling Rotary Club presented a Marionette show from Toronto on Tuesday evening, followed by a bingo. Keith Merrick was mixmaster and Carolyn Rollins won a $50 prize. Several folks won cash prizes.

NATO Has Cost Canada About Billion Dollars in Six Years

OTTAWA (CP)—Six years ago today the North Atlantic treaty was signed, setting up an organization of Western nations with the hope of maintaining peace and freedom in the world.

The North Atlantic Treaty Organization has had its price in men and money. It has cost Canada about $1,000,000,000 for mutual aid in the form of arms and equipment to European partners in the defence pact.

The RCAF has sent an air division to Europe and is training NATO fliers in Canada. The Canadian army has an infantry brigade in Germany.

The end is not in sight. But External Affairs Minister Pearson, who signed the treaty for Canada, says the NATO contribution is a price that must be paid for freedom.

Writing on NATO's sixth anniversary in the current issue of the external department's monthly bulletin, he says:

"It is good at this time to remind ourselves that NATO has meant for the security of our land, for the solidarity of the whole community of nations and for the peace of the world.

"With our partners in NATO we have built forces designed to make war unprofitable to any aggressor, we have developed invaluable habits of inter-governmental consultation and co-operation, and we have strengthened Canadian defences against the increasing dangers of direct attack."

The treaty was signed in Washington April 4, 1949, by Canada, Belgium, Denmark, France, Iceland, Italy, Luxembourg, the Netherlands, Norway, Portugal, the United Kingdom and the United States. Turkey and Greece joined the alliance in 1952. West Germany will become a member if the London-Paris agreement on rearming her is approved by all NATO countries.

As part of the task that is "never done once and for all," the, 1st Canadian Infantry Brigade in the Soest area of Germany is now completing two years of overseas service. The 2nd Brigade, with headquarters in Edmonton, will replace the 1st when it sails for home this fall.

MARMORA

Bride-to-Be Honored By China Shower

MARMORA — A surprise china shower was held last Sunday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. Meiklejohn for Miss Margaret Rouseborn, teacher of the Marmora Public School staff, whose wedding shortly takes place. The bride-to-be received many beautiful and useful gifts for which she expressed her thanks.

The RCAF wings, in Marville, Metz and Gros Tenquin, France, and Zweibrucken, Germany, are equipped with Mark V Sabre jet fighters powered by Canadian-designed and built Orenda engines.

The hostesses, Barbara and Mary Meiklejohn, Eileen Young and Margaret Empey served refreshments including a bride's cake surmounted by a miniature bride.

Successful 'Arabian Fantasy' Marked by Thunderous Applause

MIDDLETON PARK—Thunderous applause marked the final curtain of another successful presentation by the Women's Auxiliary of the Trenton R.C.A.F. Station. "Arabian Fantasy" which ran three nights was the product of the versatile minds of Flight Lieutenant J. F. Radcliffe, who devised the theme and Lieutenant-Colonel W. M. Sinclair, who wrote the dialogue. The show which ran about two and a half hours consisted of two-three-scene acts.

The story started with Sheik Ali Ben Jork wondering why his resources, which was in the trust of his Grand Vizier, Suleiman, was in a state of "Pecuniary Embarrassment."

Suleiman, it seemed had acquired a personal an interest in the treasury, leaving All at the mercy of ten clothes-conscious harem dancers, who threatened dire results if the sheik couldn't provide for them in a manner to which they'd like to become accustomed.

DEAL SUGGESTED

Suleiman suggested a deal with the Canadian Oil Delegation, which provided continuity for the rest of the story, and narrowly missed losing his head to Ben Ezra's swinging scimitar. "You insult me!" raged the sheik, "Why they allow their women to wantonly display their 'faces' in public. However, All proved to be merciful, and the Grand Vizier was allowed to keep his head, and left, with Ali easier Ben Ezra, the sheik's bodyguard, to devise some means of replenishing the treasury.

All, tired from discussing affairs of state, had his chief wife, Fatima, sing to him and his harem danced, but, when he left Fatima to tell the harem girls they had to wear "cheesecloth", a rebellion was planned.

SHADOW SCREEN

Presented by shadow screen, this scene showed the sheik being put through his paces by the harem. Oh dear! Itching powder sprinkled on him — his wine was doped — bells rang in his ears from unknown sources — strange apparitions floated through the air — he was mimicked and bedroom doors were locked.

In scene three of act one, the harem danced in fun of All as, disheveled and spirit broken, on his royal dais.

Still short on funds, the sheik informed them "I'm sorry my dears, but cheese cloth it is." This brought on their final act of rebellion, and a break for the tearing Suleiman The girls removed their veils in protest, and stood coy and giggling while the sheik ogled.

Finally convinced that he can't see the Canadian women unless the Oil delegates are accepted, All allowed Suleiman to call the victory in.

Angus McTavis, bachelor of the group, introduced the business executive Mr. Trent, his wife, coy and flirtatious Mr. Xavier Bellis, intoxicated, inhibited, and interested in the harem, and his wife, vivacious and overwhelming to the sheik. The ladies left with the dancers to look over the palace while the men had a smoke. The "hooka" mistaken for bagpipes, by Trent, snakes by Bellis, behaved only for the orientals.

Discussion of an oil contract was broken up by the roar of beggars who sang to All of their poverty, and hunger. The act ended with the delegates seen bribing the overseerly Suleiman to inveigle All to sign a contract.

ACT TWO

Act two opened with a hands and arms dance to entertain the ladies of the visit. The harem girls, anxious to see the styles worn by western women introduced the modelling scene. When Suleiman informed the ladies that their husbands were looking for them, he was cautioned by Fatima, that these wonderful styles were what the harem wished, and unless they were provided, there would be more trouble.

Suleiman, while musing over methods of making money is interrupted by the chief beggar, with a promise of peace provided their properties, which had been confiscated by the sheik, were returned to them.

At last Suleiman is able to convince All that an oil contract would be the means of replenishing the treasury and All's promise to sign ends the scene.

EVENING STYLES

The final scene showed the court in a state of gaiety and feasting. The evening styles were modelled and variety acts to entertain the sheik were introduced by Mr. Trent.

In thanks, All had the snake dance performed, and presented the chief beggar with the deeds to the lands which were no longer needed. The beggars sang praises to their sheik, and the court, once more in a state of wealth and happiness breaks into dancing to the westerners style of music.

An appreciative audience held the cast for two curtain calls on closing night, proving once more that R.C.A.F. Trenton's Women's Auxiliary had excelled themselves.

Crop Prospects Look Good This Year Across Country

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Crop prospects look good this year for Canadian farmers.

A Canadian Press survey shows soil conditions favorable all across the country. And farmers are planning to plant an even greater acreage than last year.

Grain plantings on the Prairies are expected to be up more than 2,500,000 acres over last year when 54,000,000 acres were planted. Saskatchewan farmers will sow less wheat, but as in other provinces will increase their plantings of oats, barley and flax.

IT'S EARLY YET

— A wet fall and damp winter on the Prairies and in Ontario and Quebec left the land with plenty of moisture. Farmers say that with a favorable run-off and light rains, seeding conditions should be just about perfect.

However, most farmers say it's a little too early to get optimistic. Seeding is another month away for much of the country and there is always the danger of spring frosts.

British Columbia officials report severe frost in the Okanagan fruit belt, but not as heavy as last year when crop losses were heavy. Some farmers in the Fraser valley are out sowing potatoes already. General seeding will get under way near the end of the month and continue into May.

INCREASE IN ALBERTA

Seeding in Alberta is expected to start by the first or second week in May. The department of agriculture reports seeding intentions as follows (last year's acreage in brackets):

Wheat, 6,005,000 (5,826,000); oats, 2,039,000 (2,354,000); barley, 3,578,000 (3,053,000); rye, 374,000 (215,000); mixed grains, 144,000 (120,000); flax, 271,000 (215,000).

In Saskatchewan, where the bulk of Canada's grain is grown, seeding is expected to be general by May 15, if not a bit earlier. Wheat planting will be down about five per cent, but oats, barley and flax plantings will be up, flax by 64 per cent.

The department of agriculture lists acreage intentions as follows:

Wheat, 14,700,000 (15,540,000); oats, 3,300,000 (2,851,000); barley, 3,600,000 (2,313,000); flax 850,000 (518,000); summer fallow, 13,570,000 (14,670,000).

DAMP IN MANITOBA

Farmers in Manitoba aren't too optimistic about an early start at seeding.

"There is a little too much moisture in some districts," an agricultural department official reported.

"We will be fortunate if we have a normal seeding season. It is likely to start in the middle of April or even later."

However, there was little frost in the ground because of heavy snows during the winter. As a result a better run-off is expected and soil conditions should be excellent for growing, the official said.

Acreage forecasts this year are: Wheat, 2,200,000 (2,025,000); oats, 1,700,000 (1,510,000); barley, 2,250,000 (2,202,000); mixed grain 73,000 (58,000); flax, 350,000 (444,000).

EASTERN WINTER KIND

In the East, heavy snow kept frost to a minimum and farmers are looking for good soil conditions.

Ontario farmers reported the winter has been kind and winter crop progress good. Yields will be down from last year however, because of poor plowing conditions last fall.

Department of agriculture officials predict a slight increase in soy bean and corn crops. The rest will be about the same as last year.

A large part of Holland marsh, flooded last fall by hurricane Hazel, has been reclaimed and will be ready for planting in a few weeks.

The wet fall may reduce planting in Quebec this year. Fall plowing was hampered by the rains and only farmers with tractors will be able to bring their land up to the usual acreage.

Andre Augre, chief of the field husbandry branch of the Quebec department of agriculture, said hay and pasture usually take up about three-quarters of Quebec's 8,000,000 farming acres. The remainder is seeded with mixed grains.

MARITIMES PROSPECTS

Little frost and "abundant moisture" is reported from the Maritimes. Potato and oat acreage may be increased slightly in New Brunswick. Potatoes and blueberries will continue as chief export items for the province. Other plantings are expected to be about the same as last year.

In Nova Scotia, the department of agriculture expects a continued trend toward increased production of grass, something it has been boasting for years. Hog and dairy production are expected to be higher because of this.

Acreages expected are: Oats, 56,000; barley 4,000; hay, 350,000 and potatoes, 12,000.

No change in planting is forecast in Prince Edward Island, the potato province. Planting last year covered 30,000 acres.

Agriculture officials in Newfoundland expect an "average" acreage after a "fair" winter. About 40,000 acres will be planted, half of it with hay. Potatoes and root vegetables take about 4,000 acres.

MOTHER, FATHER, BROTHER WATCH AS RCAF PILOT THEIR SON TO DEATH IN JET FLAME

Two Trinidad Natives Lose Appeal Against Deportation On Ground They Are 'Asians'

Dr. T. T. Shields, Fiery Baptist Minister, Dies

TORONTO (CP) — Rev. T. T. Shields, a Baptist minister who generated religious controversies with his relentless battles against the Roman Catholic Church, modernism and liquor, died Monday night at the age of 81.

Death of the tall, lean minister of Jarvis street Baptist church reversed a long period of ill health and opposition. He lived most of his life advocating a code of behavior with a rigidity of purpose that split the Baptist Convention of Quebec and Ontario and even his own church.

Opponents accused him of spreading disunity, prejudice and bigotry. His expressions against the Roman Catholic Church and French Canada were attacked in the House of Commons. He once told his congregation he turned aside to attack the Catholic Church "as long as there is a Catholic in my body."

Dr. Shields won national prominence in 1943 for his fight against the Catholic Church and the conscription problem.

DEMANDED ACTION

Quebec members brought the issue to the House with a demand for action against the Province of Canada Regulations. Prime Minister Mackenzie King squelched the demand by voicing "profound abhorrence" for Dr. Shields. He said, too, that his views did not entitle him a "martyr."

For more than 40 years Dr. Shields was pastor of the outstanding Baptist church on the corner of Jarvis and Gerrard streets and amid the beer halls of once-fashionable downtown Toronto.

Thomas Todhunter Shields was born in Bristol, England, in 1873. To carry on his religious campaigns against Catholicism he founded the Canadian Protestant League in 1941 and installed himself as president.

His powerful voice filled churches in Toronto, Winnipeg, in New York and California and from Montreal to Victoria, Ontario cities, Oshawa and Guelph, refused to hear him. A stench bomb was once thrown in his own church hall.

CRITICIZED PREMIER

Dr. Shields' campaign against the Catholic Church stemmed from his belief that Canada should be divorced from state. He coupled church and state in the 1935 Ontario election campaign, criticizing Premier Mitchell Hepburn's liquor policy by coining the phrase "Hepburn's alliance with rum and Rome."

He treated the modernists of his own church the same way.

Over the line of unquestioned acceptance of Biblical teachings, he precipitated two splits in his church congregation. He led his followers out of the Baptist Convention of Quebec and Ontario in 1926 to organize the Union of Regular Baptists and sought unsuccessfully to operate a Baptist university at Des Moines, Iowa.

A year later Dr. Shields was ousted as president of the Union of Regular Baptists. He broke all severed connections with the union because of "reckless leadership."

Another controversy in Dr. Shields' career came last December. The pastor fired Rev. W. S. Whitcombe, who had been associated with the Toronto Baptist Seminary, which Dr. Shields founded, for 27 years.

Dr. Shields censured community and individual morals, and denounced paganism in Ottawa, moral deterioration in Toronto, the sinfulness of wicked Montreal and the lack of morals in Vancouver. He also fought against Sunday sport.

Twice married, he was childless. His second wife survives.

Dr. Shields' body will lie in state at his Jarvis street residence on Thursday. Memorial service will be in his church at 1 a.m. EST Thursday.

DISCOVER LAND MINE

SEOUL (AP) — An unexploded land mine was unearthed today less than an arm's length from an American diplomat's wife and close to other guests and Korean officials at a tree-planting ceremony. Mrs. Marian Link, wife of a United States embassy official, South Korean vice-president Ham Tai Yung, cabinet ministers and several foreign diplomats were near the mine.

OTTAWA (CP) —The Supreme Court of Canada today dismissed the appeal of two British subjects from Trinidad designated "Asians" by immigration authorities and ordered deported to their homeland.

The judgment, announced from the bench by Chief Justice Patrick Kerwin Monday, is the last court test by Harry Narine-Singh, 26-year-old draftsman, and his 27-year-old wife, Mearl Indra Narine-Singh.

Both had lived in Trinidad all their lives and claim their forebears have lived there for 150 years, but an immigration officer at a special inquiry in Toronto early last year found them to be "Asians" under the Immigration Act and ordered them deported. The only Asians permitted as immigrants are close relatives of Canadian citizens living in Canada.

TRIED TO JOIN ARMY

The immigration inquiry followed an attempt by Narine-Singh to join the Canadian Army while in Canada with his wife on a visit to relatives in late 1953.

They took their case first to the Ontario High Court which dismissed it on the ground it had no jurisdiction over the case. The Ontario Court of Appeal upheld the decision.

With dismissal by Canada's highest court, the cases face deportation. They have been living in Toronto, awaiting word on how, whether the court cases proceeded.

Chief Justice Kerwin told F. A. Brewin, of Toronto, counsel for the Narine-Singhs, that he and the four other justices who heard the appeal "are all against you." He announced the decision without hearing the government's defence and no additional reason for the judgment will be given later.

Blueberries Are Big Business In New Brunswick

FREDERICTON (CP) — Outlook for New Brunswick blueberry producers "is quite good," says an expert in the provincial agriculture department.

Blueberries are big business in New Brunswick. They have a wider potential market in many untapped areas of Canada and the United States, says A. Leslie Harrison, field man in the small fruits and vegetables division of the department.

High returns from blueberry production have led to considerable speculation in land purchase, much of it carried on by syndicates and individuals not versed in farming. This trend is likely to continue, as the enterprise lends itself to large-scale operation, Mr. Harrison said.

MAIN DISTRICTS

Charlotte county centres the blueberry industry in New Brunswick. Last year it produced 2,134,000 pounds valued at $241,000.

From 7,000 to 10,000 acres of private land are used for growing blueberries. The province's annual harvest ranges from 1,500,000 to 5,000,000 pounds. Last year's yield was estimated at 3,500,000 pounds valued at 11 cents a pound for a total of about $385,000.

Mr. Harrison said the average acre produces about 800 pounds.

Expect Enough Salk Vaccine To Immunize Thirty Million

NEW YORK (AP)—A polio authority expects drug firms to make enough Salk vaccine before June 30 to immunize 30,000,000 persons, nearly twice as many as earlier estimates.

Dr. Hari Van Riper, medical director for the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, said Monday that pharmaceutical companies have produced enough polio above the 18,000,000 immunizations originally planned.

He said this additional production should satisfy the demand for vaccine before shortages begin to developing.

"Unfortunately there has been a tendency recently to build up scares about shortages that I don't believe are justified," Van Riper said, when he commented.

The official report on whether the vaccine is effective is to be made April 12 on the basis of last year's test inoculations on nearly 2,000,000 children.

If this report indicates that the vaccine provides protection against crippling polio, Van Riper said, "there might be a day or two" of rush on supplies, "but the situation will adjust quickly."

The foundation has ordered enough vaccine for 9,000,000 persons and will use it to inoculate mostly first- and second-grade children throughout the country. Remaining supplies will be distributed through drug stores to doctors and hospitals.

Van Riper said polio authorities hope special consideration will be given to children in age groups most likely to be stricken.

Polio foundation officials believe that doctors, through informal discussions, already have come to see to it that "those who are most needful of the vaccine get it."

An example of such self-policing is a priority system set up Monday by the American Academy of Pediatrics in Detroit.

While the national foundation taking care of highly susceptible first- and second-graders, the AAP designated three other groups as deserving the highest priority from private doctors. These are pregnant first-graders over one yra rof age, children in Grades 3 through 8, and pregnant women.

Navigation Will Open Earlier Than Expected

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Great Lakes navigation, well underway at Soo locks, likely points, reached toward Lake Superior today.

Favorable weather conditions advanced the official opening date of the Canadian ship canal at Sault Ste. Marie from April 11 to today. For at least a week, however, nothing but ice will be locked through.

Although the harbor at the Soo is ice free, the rest of the St. Mary's river is covered from shore to shore with ice. A meeting of the ice committee of the Lake Carriers' Association will determine in Cleveland today when the Poe class icebreaker Mackinaw will assault this ice.

HURON ICE BOTHERS

Ice is also bothersome in Lake Huron. At Southampton the fishing tug Jackson Brothers was back in port after being stuck for a week in an icefield a mile off shore. A tug Monday opened a channel to the Jackson Brothers Monday after two days of bucking heavy ice floes.

The trapped vessel's five-man crew were supplied during the week by provisions dragged over the ice in a lifeboat.

At Owen Sound the 1955 navigation season was opened Monday when the lake freighter Wilfreda, owned by Roch Transports Ltd., of Montreal, cleared for Detroit.

The season also got under way at Port Stanley on Lake Erie when the Canadian tanker John Irwin docked with fuel oil from Toledo, O.

INVITE EISENHOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower has been asked to attend on May 22 the annual Canadian-American ceremony at the Peace Arch on the United States - British Columbia border near Blaine, Wash. Representative Jack Westland (Rep. Wash.) extended the invitation on Monday through Sherman Adams, presidential assistant. Adams said presidential consideration will be given "every consideration."

Federal Government Tries To Make Cod More Attractive

By CHARLES MORROW
Canadian Press Staff Writer

HALIFAX (CP) — Since John Cabot's men first dipped cod fish from Newfoundland waters, only limited advances have been made in popularizing dry salt cod.

Now the federal government plans a research station at Valleyfield, Nfld., in an attempt to do for the salt fish industry what the newly-developed frozen fish fillets known as "fish sticks" have accomplished for the frozen fish trade.

Increased competition and world monetary problems have cut down Canada's overseas salt fish markets. At Valleyfield, on Newfoundland's northeast coast, scientists will attempt to make the salt cod more attractive both to overseas buyers and the Canadian housewife.

Domestic markets now form a relatively unimportant part of the salt fish trade. Canadians eat about two pounds of cured fish a year, compared to six pounds of fresh fish.

Canada's salt fish exports now total $29,000,000 annually, most of it in salt cod or other groundfish. Much of it is shipped to the Caribbean where Canadian producers have been cash in recent years by Britain's monetary problems and increased competition from Portuguese and Scandinavians.

The loss of markets led many fishermen to switch to fresh fish production. But many cannot afford the capital outlays required or are too far from frozen fish plants.

These factors have meant a steady decline in salt fish production. Output in 1954 was 640,700,000 pounds, compared to 875,494,000 in 1950.

To reverse the trend, a team of three fisheries experts will seek new types of salted fish products in addition to improving the dry-salted cod. New developments will be carried into the pilot plant scale so that such factors as production, storage and transportation can be reliably assessed.

Tenders for the plant will be called shortly by the federal fisheries department.

NEW LAKER READY

MANITOWOC, Wis. (AP)—The Detroit-Edison, a $7,000,000 vessel, will join the Great Lakes fleet of the American Steamship Co. of Buffalo, N.Y., April 15. The 630-foot, self-loading coal and limestone carrier was built at Manitowoc Shipbuilding, Inc., and made her trial runs April 12-on Lake Michigan. The Detroit-Edison has a capacity of 17,500 tons and carries a crew of 40.

Air Force Men Happiest When It's Coldest

By JAMES PEACHELL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NAMAO, Alta. (CP)—Air force men here are happiest when it's coldest.

They are the climatic detachment of the century, experimenting and proving establishment which tests aircraft and air force equipment in cold weather.

Only such group in Canada, the detachment marks its year only for the RCAF and the Royal Canadian Navy, but also for the Royal Air Force and Royal Navy.

All types of aircraft, from helicopters to multi-engined bombers, jet fighters and transport craft, are put through rigorous cold-weather experiments. Survival kits and flying clothes come under scrutiny.

The unit is made up of officers and men from the RCAF, RCN, RAF and Royal Navy.

One officer said:

"We endeavor to make up a crew, from ground crew to test pilot, that has the best knowledge for the tests to be undertaken. We do not necessarily choose navy men if the aircraft is a naval plane."

Formed in 1946, the group has frequently been shifted in a search for cold weather. The unit was moved from Kapuskasing, Ont., to Uranli, Man., before its present site here, 10 miles north of Edmonton.

Mild weather the last two winters has disturbed the unit's senior officers. Some tests have had to be made at Churchill, Man. This means that a completely self-sufficient unit must be transported to the cold-weather area.

The men seek to find and eliminate faults in an aircraft before it goes into service. Friendly rivalry exists among the test crews. One ground crew wore red and white caps to let it be known that they were the ground crew.

Many of the senior officers are aeronautical engineers, as are some of the pilots.

In testing a plane, a crew places instruments throughout the craft to record temperatures and pressures at various degrees of coldness. If a part shows a defect, the instruments, which are photographed continuously throughout a running test, show when, how and possibly why the fault occurred.

The unit does not make the necessary changes. Reports thereof are forwarded to air materiel command. Its engineers then is advised of the fault.

To Cover All Phases

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario department of lands and forests has added 12 films to set up a library of photographs covering all phases of the province's history.

The library is to include photographs of townsites, mills, industries, communications, methods of working, period clothing, housing, recreation and other subjects.

Department officials asked that individuals, churches, schools, libraries, municipal offices and other institutions assist in the collection.

Photographs or negatives submitted to the department will be copied, and the originals returned to the owners, by registered mail if necessary, they said.

Heroic efforts of the pilot of a T-33 jet plane prevented a crash into the residential section of London, Ont., but proved fatal to him in the end. Unable to bail out, he died after making this huge pit. The plane, upside down, skimmed houses and telegraph poles in the city before plunging to earth and exploding with a force that shook houses half a mile away. Firemen and policemen found the plane had exploded into barely recognizable fragments.

Disabled Workers Share Percentage Shows

TORONTO (CP)—The percentage of workmen permanently disabled in Ontario has decreased during the last 30 years despite the province's tremendous industrial growth the Industrial Accident Prevention Association's convention was told Monday.

E. E. Sparrow, chairman of the workmen's compensation board of Ontario, divided the credit for improvement between accident prevention organization and the improved skill of the modern mechanic.

More than 3,500 representatives of Ontario manufacturers are attending the two-day conference.

Canadian General Electric Co. Ltd., won the R. B. Morley safety award for 1954, The company had 2,152,896 accident-free work hours in seven months.

R. S. Bridge of Windsor was elected president of the association.

Other officers elected included: Murray Smith, Chatham, vice-president; administrative committee: A. L. Bennett, Galt; L. H. Ingram, Peterborough; D. Renton, Hartford; E. H. Walker, St. Catharines.

Coming Home On Submarine

HALIFAX (CP) — A Canadian sailor aboard a Royal Navy submarine, an route home on compassionate leave.

Able Seaman Herbert Easterbrook of Kingston was granted leave because his father is ill. In training in England at the time, his leave coincided with the submarine Astute's trip to Halifax, so he made the trip with her.

Easterbrook is one of the Canadian group taking submarine training in England. They eventually will provide a large percentage of the crews in the navy's British subs on loan to Canada for training purposes.

Canadians Write Success Story Based on Faith

By CHARLES MORROW
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) — Four Canadians have written a success story based on faith in their own capabilities and those of other Canadians.

Ten years ago the Sklar brothers — Sam, Joe, Harry and Lou — started manufacturing furniture from scratch in a backyard factory on garage. Today the Sklar Furniture Company, a family affair with its plant here, has grown to a business of more than $2,000,000 a year.

Sam, 36, president of the firm, is a believer in the genius of Canada. His company specializes in living-room furniture designed and produced by Canadians.

Joe, 38, is a vice-president and has charge of design, research and plant layout. Harry, 29, is secretary-treasurer in charge of purchasing, and Lou, 30, a lawyer and engineer, is head of production.

IN ARMED FORCES

Harry and Sam served with the RCAF during the Second World War and Joe was in the navy. Lou, studying engineering at that time, was asked to stay at university.

The brothers set up the Sklar Company in 1945 when they had little capital and no experience in furniture manufacturing. In 1946 they moved the business to Oshawa where production was started on three floors of an old warehouse. In the plant, in three cramped quarters, a staff of 200 is working.

Products include standard living-room equipment—chesterfields and easy chairs. The Sklars also design and produce bed-chesterfields, their all-Canadian items.

Their first dual-purpose sleeping unit, a bed-chesterfield, was the company the top design award in its division from the National Industrial Design Council in 1954.

Now the Sklars are developing another dual-purpose unit which, Sam said, will "revolutionize the bed-chesterfield industry." It is expected to go on the market some time this year.

The Sklars are planning to expand. Construction is to begin soon on a 50-acre industrial park in nearby Whitby, replacing the present location.

In the United States the Sklars are locating in a 20,000-square-foot plant at Canton, Miss. They will manufacture only their two dual-purpose units there and already the pattern for production and sales is set out.

SIGNALS FOR BLIND

PARIS (Reuters) — A special traffic light for blind persons which sounds when the light is red or green will be installed soon near Paris for the blind in a Paris suburb.

H-Bomb Made Cincinnati's Water Radioactive But Not Dangerously So

CINCINNATI (AP) — Radioactivity that got into drinking water in this Ohio city following the April hydrogen bomb tests in the Pacific was "much less than you'd find in a glass of table radioactive spring water," a public health service researcher says.

But Dr. L. H. Setter declares that this situation could change for the worse in the future in any area where there might be "greatly increased" radioactivity in the atmosphere as a result of any "grandiose scale" explosions.

He added, though, that government radioactivity sleuths now have developed quick techniques for figuring radioactivity in surface waters by spot-checking the amount of such activity in rainfall. "Rainfall comes in a big gulp in monitoring drinking-water supplies in the city."

Setter made the comments in an interview preceding a report today to the American Chemical Society's national meeting in which he described periodic analyses of both rainfall and the water of a cistern and an impounded pond in the Cincinnati area—in the heart of the United States—over a period of eight months following the Pacific tests.

SIR ANTHONY

The resignation fell on the 12th day at a strike of mechanics and electricians which has left the capital without newspapers.

Mussolini's withdrawal in front of the prime minister's car as it moved slowly past 1,000 cheering people lining the sidewalks to the palace.

POKER READILY

At 35 minutes past four the black door at Number 10 Downing street opened and Sir Winston in top hat and tail ballustrade emerged with a large cigar appeared.

He dashed his lapper, stood, and for several seconds posed in response to shouts from photographers "this way, Winston."

The prime minister were clipper-flatted shoes and a blue tie.

He drove through the wrought-iron gates of Buckingham Palace at 4:38 p.m. Fifteen minutes after the Queen had returned from a visit to the oil refinery 40 miles outside London.

The prime minister leaned back in his limousine, smoking the cigar as he drove to the palace.

Once inside he went almost immediately by officials of the royal household to a room where the young monarch awaited him.

NAMES EDEN

With portraits of past kings and queens staring down from the walls the old statesman and the girl sovereign kissed the Queen's hand. He then formally presented to her the new holder of the burdens of his office.

The Queen then asked him to recommend a successor. He named Mr. Eden, his dapper foreign secretary who has been the prime minister's man and "heir" for many years.

As the historic meeting went on crowds wailed outside the palace forecourt as they always do on state occasions.

Friends say it is only with great reluctance that Churchill has been persuaded by his wife, doctors and close colleagues to cast off his burdens. He still has vigorously mentally as many a man much younger and in recent weeks has scored several parliamentary triumphs both as orator and quick-witted politician.

FAILED IN BID

He quits office with his greatest ambition unfulfilled — to meet the leaders of Russia in a bid to bring peace to the world. Political quarters predict that, from behind the scenes, he will still go on working to make his dream of a top-level conference a reality, even though he himself will not be present.

This morning, Churchill presided at the head of the cabinet table at 10 Downing street for the last time. He took the chair at the table which helped him guide Britain through war and peace.

The House of Commons was disappointed to learn this morning that Churchill had decided not to make a last appearance there today as prime minister. He evidently decided the emotional strain might be too great.

Earlier it had been thought that he could not pass up the opportunity of making one final appearance as head of the government. There were a number of parliamentary questions scheduled for him to answer.

SENSE OF HISTORY

A quiet tension, a kind of sentimental sense of history, hung over Britain today. Then imminent retirement of the greatest Englishman of the century was the only subject of conversation.

To understand how the British people feel about Churchill, even most of those who oppose him politically, it was only necessary to take a walk through Downing street, the narrow little street that runs through the blackened brick of Westminster in the shadow of Parliament.

There, in front of a plain, square-fronted grey brick house at No. 10 —the official residence of prime ministers for ages past and the scene of today's cabinet meeting—stood a quiet crowd of citizens keeping vigil.

The crowd grew to 1,000 Monday night, started off again early this morning at 10 and grew steadily as the day wore on.

There were tears in many eyes.

Extra police were drafted into the area to control the crowd thronging the narrow street.

As cabinet ministers arrived for the meeting, the crowd swelled to more than 500.

Suddenly Eden appeared from the St. James Park entrance to Downing street. He was hatless and wore a wide-collared overcoat. He hastily cleared a way as he strode with a preoccupied air into No. 12.

Eden has stood by Churchill in war and peace. Together the two statesmen raised a cry against the 1938 Munich pact. Together they led Britain through the war years.

Both were idolized by the Labor triumph at the polls at the end of the war, but in October, 1951, they moved back together to their former cabinet posts.

Churchill has made it clear through his latest term of office that Eden was to be his heir to the premiership.

URGENT DECISION

Now Eden is prepared for his difficult new role as successor to Britain's greatest living statesman. He has conferred with a number of key Conservatives in the last 24 hours to make the necessary arrangements.

One of his most immediate decisions is to set the date for par-

Five Thousand Pairs of Shoes Are Worn Out

LIVERPOOL, England (CP)—Work for pretty Peggy Robertshaw means walking—and walking—and walking.

She's a shoe tester and she has piled up a mileage equal to three times around the world and worn out more than 5,000 pairs of shoes.

She applied for the job at a boot-testing laboratory almost 20 years ago. They fitted her with a new pair of size-six flat heels, strapped a pedometer to her leg and sent her off with instructions to walk 12 miles a day, five days a week.

"It was murder the first month," the fair haired lither recalls. "Every night I sat with my poor swollen feet in hot water. I ate aspirin as elephant and slept like the dead."

Miss Robertshaw's day starts at 9 a.m. when she leaves the factory and comes rain, snow or heat she must keep persevering until p.m. In winter, she spent most days window-shopping.

KNOWS BARGAINS

"You'd think I'd be sick of it after 20 years," she smiled. "But no woman gets fed up with stockings at wholesale. I can buy at every bargain to be had in Liverpool."

In summer, she walks mostly along beaches or country lanes.

Heavy walking duty for refitted boots are punished for 500 miles, summer shoes and sandals for 100 miles. After each pair has been discarded, it is discarded and examined by the factory for durability.

Robertshaw, now middle-aged, slim and bright-eyed, finds herself still full of energy at the end of day's marching.

"The big treat is changing into high heels, because all the shoes I test are flat-backed."

Saskatchewan Is Digging Out After Big Gale

REGINA (CP) —Work crews battled today to restore communication lines and highways through snow-blocked highways following a three-day storm which heaped snow as much as 40 inches deep in Saskatchewan.

Crews were mending communication lines which snapped under the weight of ice. Snow plows faced a task of clearing many secondary road and highway west of Swift Current to the Alberta border.

The storm erupted Saturday and blew out Monday afternoon. Rain turned to sleet and wind-driven snow, peppered with the grit of dry prairie fields piled into huge drifts.

No casualties were reported although reports reaching Regina Monday night indicated the storm was the heaviest of the year over an area stretching from South Carnerst as far north as North Battleford with some regions reporting as much as 24 inches of snow.

At least 100 and probably many more motorists were marooned on highways and roads. Many travellers were storm-bound in hotels liamentary elections—some say he has already decided on May 26. The rightist swing in current county elections favors both Eden and Wales is said to have convinced the Conservatives that they should hasten national elections.

Churchill, despite his retirement, is expected to stay on in the House of Commons as an elder statesman, bound to sustain authoritative voice in world affairs. He has been a member since 1900.

The Queen rose early today after a glittering banquet given by Churchill at Downing street Monday night for her and for his many friends through his long public career. The prime minister, wearing black velvet breeches, was reported in "great form" for the banquet which he himself had staged—managed, using his sense of history and drama.

NO GOODBYE

The banquet, at which Sir Winston and Lady Churchill were hosts to 35 guests, was the first such affair for the Queen since the Duke of Edinburgh—had attended at the prime minister's residence.

The guests included Churchill's closest associates—Eden and other cabinet ministers, leaders of the Opposition Labor party, members of Churchill's wartime cabinet and others of his family. They were the guests the veteran statesman could have chosen from the ten years in the last party he gave in the plain Georgian house across the street from the foreign office.

In his speech at the table in the oak-panelled dining room Churchill did not say "goodbye"—the word traditionally left to the monarch's ears alone. He proposed as the Queen's health and praised the monarchy. The Queen in a brief speech proposed the health of her host and hostess.

The Queen and her husband left the party 13 minutes before midnight. As a crowd of 300 cheered, Churchill and his 76-year-old wife waved goodbye.

Churchill's Praise of Boers In Maiden Speech to House Typical of His Long Career

LONDON (AP)—Winston Churchill's maiden speech in the House of Commons in 1900 was a bit of a shock to some of his Conservative colleagues.

A young hero of the Boer war, he spoke in tribute to the gallantry of the vanquished Boers.

His pat on the back for the losers in South African war is bracketed with the makeup of the man who, through a full life in the service of crown and country, has come to symbolize many British qualities the world over.

A host of such incidents, both bright spots and dark, are in the background as Churchill conveys his resignation as prime minister, today.

BILL WILL GIVE

5. Benefits will be brought into closer percentage ratio to earnings, instead of ranging between 30 and 86 per cent of weekly earnings as now, the range will be confined to about 60 per cent.

No types of workers not now covered by the act will be brought within its provisions. The government will continue to put up one-fifth of the combined unemployer-employee contributions and meet administration costs.

After Mr. Gregg's 40-minute outline, the opposition spent the rest of the day-long session criticizing the proposed changes and the unemployment insurance act in general.

Some of the opposition came from Liberal, Elmore Philpott, Vancouver South.

He said the greatest weakness in the act is that those who need the benefits most are not covered. The Liberal-labor committee meeting here April 26 should decide the sharing of costs for unemployment benefits—that is, relief for those not covered by the act.

Mrs. Ellen Fairclough, Labor spokesman for the Progressive Conservatives, protested that some classes of workers, including fishermen, will still be left without unemployment protection.

She said she will oppose the provision reducing the maximum period for drawing regular benefits to 30 from 51 weeks. This reduction would mean that many persons who had worked steadily, becoming eligible for the 51-week payment, would lose what they had paid for. It would especially affect those forced to retire at 65 and who had to wait five years for the old age pension.

W. H. McMillan (L—Welland) said he would like to see the cabinet receive the power to extend seasonal unemployment benefits whenever conditions warrant it. Seasonal benefits, paid out to jobless in the winter months, are scheduled to end April 15.

RED MASTERS

"The remnants of counter-revolutionary and reactionary bourgeois elements," it added, "are accelerating their conspiracy to restore their power over the country.

"The enemy will use a thousand tricks to try to destroy our party. Its greatest hope is that the Communist party of China might be split and degenerate.

FIGHT FRAGMENTATION

"Party organizations at all levels must continue to fight against the tendency toward personal dictatorship and fragmentation which undermines the principle of collective leadership.

"The party absolutely cannot allow these vicious tendencies to remain anywhere in the party."

The broadcast said the action was taken last, Thursday at the close of an 11-day party conference in Peiping, Mao Tse-tung, party chairman and ruler of China, presided.

The new control committees replace "discipline inspection committees" which the party said "are no longer suited to the task of strengthening party discipline."

The latter would control the membership and work of the new discipline committees at every level. And party members would be obligated to report "all suspected violations of party law and discipline to party control committees."

Col. McCormick Buried

CHICAGO (AP)—Col. Robert R. McCormick, 74, crusading publisher of the Chicago Tribune, was buried Monday in a specially constructed cemetery at the edge of the flower garden on Cantigny Farm, his home in suburban Wheaton.

The flag-draped casket was lowered into the grave with full military honors provided by veterans of the 1st Division, in which he fought in the First World War.

Economic Plan For Nova Scotia Is Presented

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

A report suggesting ways to put Nova Scotia on an even "economic basis" with the rest of Canada was placed in the N.S. legislature Monday by Industries Minister Douglas.

The economic survey of the province's industrial needs by the Arthur D. Little Corporation of Cambridge, Mass., urged the government to study "specific and general inducements" to attract new industries.

Premier Hicks said he hopes the report will precipate such a study day. The session opened Feb. 22 and now is handling estimates.

In the Alberta legislature, Premier Manning said the current session will be adjourned this week, probably Wednesday, and he resumes his duties.

Premier Manning has held several meetings with officials of Trans-Canada Pipe Lines, Ltd., after the company failed to get federal financial backing for the gas pipeline to eastern Canada.

The meetings would follow the April 26 federal-provincial fiscal conference in Ottawa. It is expected that Premier Manning will discuss the gas problem with federal officials.

Democrats Lead In Michigan Vote

DETROIT (AP) — Democratic Governor G. Mennen Williams' loyal legions in Wayne (Detroit) county appeared today to have swept almost complete control of Michigan's state government.

Returns from 3,086 of the state's 4,782 precincts in Monday's state election showed the state Democratic ticket leading by more than 30,000 votes.

This included 1,830 of Wayne county's 1,936 precincts. There still were more than 1,000 precincts missing in normally Republican territory, but the bulk of them appeared to be in scattered rural areas lacking sufficient votes to overcome the Detroit outpouring in behalf of the Democrats.

Thus Williams seemed well on his way to complete victory over the Michigan Republican party, and fall he won the state's first consecutive fourth term as governor and captured the bulk of administrative offices.

Hawkesbury Fire Damage Placed At $400,000

HAWKESBURY, Ont. (CP) — A five-hour fire blazed through a business block in the heart of this Ottawa river town for miles east of Montreal tonight, gutted most of the town's leading business establishments and for a time threatening to explode nearby gasoline storage tanks.

No one was injured. Damage was tentatively set at between $350,000 and $400,000.

Thousands of gallons of gasoline, stored by three oil companies in tanks less than 1,000 feet north of the blazing block, created a serious threat. Firemen played a steady stream of water on the tanks.

The blaze started in the basement of a general store in the centre of the two-storey frame business block which housed a music store, a funeral home, a ladies wear shop, a jewelry store and several other establishments but firemen were able to keep the conflagration from spreading.

Eight persons living in apartments above the business establishments were evacuated without mishap.

General Air of Confidence That Salk Vaccine Works; Results Will Be Known Apr. 12

Editor's Note: For years crippling polio has struck children without warning. Today, it can be prevented. Yet a young Pittsburgh doctor developed a vaccine that was given widespread testing last summer. Since that time parents the world over have been waiting and wondering—does it work? The answer is almost ...

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

NEW YORK (AP) — Victory over polio should come April 12.

That's the hopeful guess, at least, of some persons close to the Salk polio vaccine. There's a general air of confidence that the vaccine works. There has been no hint of anything amiss with it.

Dit it prove completely free from paralytic polio, and how well? Or was it ineffective? Do we start a huge vaccination program to end polio? Or must vaccine research work go back to the laboratory?

Those answers will come in 10 days, when results are announced of last summer's wide tests of the vaccine developed by Dr. Jonas Salk.

SIGNS OF CONFIDENCE

There has been no official tip or leak about the verdict on the vaccine. Officials of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis say they don't know it themselves. But you can interpret some things as signs of confidence.

The announcement will be made on the 10th anniversary of the death of President Franklin D. Roosevelt, who inspired the foundation. A fitting date to announce a successful vaccine.

Top-flight scientists are being invited to the conference at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, where results will be disclosed.

Here are some questions answerable now:

Q: What results will be announced?

A: The Salk vaccine was given to 440,000 children. Records have been kept on them. Did they get less, or no, paralytic polio compared with 210,000 children who received harmless dummy shots, and compared with 1,180,000 youngsters who had no shots at all? Blood-test studies of some 40,000 children will be involved, to learn how much protective antibodies were produced by use of the vaccine.

HOW MUCH?

Q: Will it be a clear-cut answer?

A: Yes, it should be, if enough children were actually exposed to polio last year. The test is whether vaccination prevents development of paralytic polio from natural exposure, and how well it does this. If there was little polio in the test communities, the answer might be equivocal.

Q: Would the vaccine have to be 100 per cent effective?

A: No. Probably no vaccine is 100 per cent effective.

Q: If it works for children, would it work for adults too?

A: Yes.

Q: If the vaccine is found to work, how much vaccine will be available?

A: Probably enough to vaccinate 18,000,000 or more. The polio foundation has contracted for enough vaccine for 9,000,000 children. Six pharmaceutical firms are making it. These same firms are expected to supply, commercially, as much or more for use by private physicians.

FREE AT FIRST

Q: How will the vaccine be distributed?

A: The polio foundation will supply, free of charge, enough to vaccinate this year first every child in the first and second grades of all public, parochial and private schools in the United States, Hawaii and Alaska, if parents request it. These children were chosen because there is a high incidence of polio at those ages. On their own, the pharmaceutical firms will sell vaccine to druggists and doctors for use on private patients.

Q: What will this vaccine cost if your doctor gives it?

A: The cost will vary. One pharmaceutical firm has set a list price of $4.30 for the three shots constituting one course of vaccination for one person. There could be mark-ups on top of that. Two others say their price will be $5 to $6 a person.

The three injections in the arm are given within five weeks: the second shot is given a week after the first one, the third one a month later.

This cost does not include the physician's fee for services in giving the vaccine during the three visits.

Q: How, long will the vaccine protect a person?

A: Time will answer that. One vaccination might protect for years or even a lifetime. Or booster shots might be needed at intervals.

MAY BE REACTION

Q: Is the vaccine safe?

A: Yes, for it is made of killed polio virus, and repeatedly tested for safety. There have been no reports of hazards, but some persons might get reactions, as people do with any drug or vaccine. The April 12 report on safety will tell whether some children had reactions, such as soreness of arm, slight upset, or other.

CONSERVATION

Ketch's Korner

by the ROVING SECRETARY of the CARLING CONSERVATION CLUB

Each year, the week from April 3 to 10 is set aside to honor the memory of the father of wildlife conservation in Canada. We refer, of course, to the late Jack Miner, whose farm is a conservationist has spread to almost every civilized country in the world. Now we are quite aware that there are those people who will scoff — outwardly — at the Q: Will parents of children receiving shots in last year's test learn if they got the Salk vaccine, or the dummy shots?

A: Yes, records will be opened to answer that. Children who received the real vaccine will not be given the vaccine again. But those who received the dummy-shots will be offered the real vaccine.

thought that any man should devote his whole life to protecting and caring for wild creatures. These people think it strange that a man should wish to make all wild things his friends—that a man should desire to overcome the instinctive fear of man ingrained in the wild geese. But that's exactly what Jack Miner did. Somehow the geese on their migratory routes knew that Jack Miner's small patch of earth represented safety and protection.

But the scoffers stop and take time to consider that the greatest heritage any man can leave behind him is love and respect among his fellows. Nowhere in the civilized world is there any greater fondness and regard than there is for the name "Jack Miner." Ever since his death, this Korner has annually felt the urge to refresh the memories of our readers concerning the sacrifices and devotion of Jack Miner.

This year, we expect to journey to the Miner sanctuary at Kingsville, there to pay our own respects before the marble sarcophagus which contains the earthly remains of this man and his beloved wife. We'll see, too, the living symbols of his work in the form of Canada geese wheeling and banking over the Miner resting place. The geese confident that their haven of security is still present.

It's no overstatement that men are prone to forget the greatest deeds of their fellows. The pages of history may completely overlook Jack Miner's most glorious accomplishments. All his works may be ignored by men, but no man can leave a finer tribute to the cause of his entire life than the complete faith of these magnificent birds which return season after season. These are the memorials which never forget.

Each year, Wildlife Week is celebrated on the anniversary of Jack Miner's birth. And there's something about that week in April which is almost prophetic. The whole world of nature is awakening to new growth, new strength, new beauty. Jack Miner knew that whatever evil may befall the world through the fault of mankind, there is yet something fine and mysteriously .revealing in the promise of eternal spring.

As you stand on the ground and watch the geese coming overhead, hesitating, and then pitching in to the sanctuary with fearless confidence, you begin to realize what National Wildlife Week is all about.

BLOCK APARTMENTS

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario municipal board Monday granted Toronto permission to expropriate 9½ acres of Rosedale ravine. The action blocked construction of a multi-million-dollar apartment project. The site at McKenzie and Dale avenues has been the core of controversy since residents of the north-central Rosedale district started a battle to "save the ravines" for parkland.

Knowles Says Annual Wage Sure to Come

OTTAWA (CP)—A CCF member told the Commons Monday that the guaranteed annual wage for industrial workers has to come just as surely as night follows day.

"The worker has just as much right to year-round maintenance as has equipment," said Stanley Knowles, Winnipeg North Centre, who spoke during a debate on unemployment insurance.

Social Credit Leader Lowe said he does not know how it could be paid without a serious increase in production costs.

The cost would be carried by the consumer. The guaranteed annual wage would do nothing but redistribute wealth and would reduce everybody to the same level of poverty.

Mrs. Ellen Fairclough (PC—Hamilton West) said the employer who guaranteed an annual wage would place himself in a position where he could not compete with a competitor who did not.

"We Took the Atom Sub to Sea"

At last man has harnessed the atoms as fuel for transportation. $55 million went into the building of our first atomic-powered submarine, the Nautilus. What's it like to ride a "controlled atomic bomb" under the sea? How did the sub behave when things went wrong? How will this revolutionary ship strengthen our nation's defenses? 'Richard Incident' Still Rankles Irvin; His Blasts Highlight Series

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

OX POINTERS BUSY

Point Anne meets Beeton here Thursday night in the first game of the OHA intermediate "C" semi-finals with the second game slated for Beeton Saturday night.

The Ox Pointers play Marmora here tonight instead of Wednesday night. The change was made due to the Beeton date Thursday. Marmora are tied with Pointers in the TVL finals—and tonight's clash should be a thriller. Game at 8.30.

• • •

COULD BE!

One never knows, especially a sports columnist, one's feeling regarding what might be impending tragedy until it happens to one.

During the senior "B" season recently concluded—(this can be written now that "pesce" has been declared)—this department was subjected, along with the Memos club, to all kinds of good-natured criticism (some of it with the tongue not in cheek) by one Michael J. Rodden.

Being a loyal son of the Old Lady of the Moira, we stood stoutly by our columnar guns and picked the Memos to not only win a playoff berth (which they did); defeat Cornwall (which they did), and to defeat the Kingston Goodyears in the group finals (which they didn't.)

We even ventured out on the well-known limb so far as to predict the winner of this group would grab the provincial bauble. Could it be we "goofed" a second time?

We took the good-natured columnar constructive of Mr. Redden in stride, especially after that first three-game debacle. Hopes flared anew when the Memos hung a heaveto-collar on the Goodyears in that memorable fourth game—but were doubled to earth for the last time when the Goodies blasted our side 4-1 to take the title.

Now it seems the shoe is on the other foot.

This is being written prior to the Goodyears-Orillia game last night. Up to this writing the Goodies are two games down to the Orillia club—and it looks from here as though the Casterton crew has been caught with its "Pesce" down. Orillia has scored eleven goals in two games on the Redden-declared invincible Ken Johnson, as many as the Memos scored on him over the five-game series.

What's the answer? As we said before we do not know at this writing the score of last night's game. We'll have comment on that at the end of the pillar.

It would appear that hockey players, like turkeys, improve with age. The Orillia Packers have the same lineup that barely got into the playoffs last year, then took a new lease of life and gave the Peterborough Petes the scare of their life before bowing to the Littlest Soldiertown in the semi-finals. The Goodyears definitely are a stronger club than last year—and could it be they were playing a mite over their heads against our side—or has Orillia, as was said before, improved with age.

Personally, we are of the opinion that the deadly Orillia shooting is the answer—plus an iron-clad defence that knows a lot of the answers—plus more than an ordinary share of pro-Jeminded wisdom. Yet, they had the same power last year.

The Memos, if we remember correctly, like a lot of other clubs favored the style of wilty-nilty-shooting into the corner, racing in after the puck and passing out for a close-in drive at the nets. The ability of one, Ken Johnson in the Kingston nets was good enough to keep our side scoreless while at close range, but if we remember correctly that two-nothing shutout we hung on the Goodyears came from shots well out.

The Pontiacs, apparently, believe in shooting on the goal instead of the corner with the hope that one might get by. It's a helluva good system. You can't score goals by shooting at the blocker in the third row, ten feet east or west of the nets. On the other hand a puck might sneak through the pads for a score, as happened here against the Goodyears—and in a closely-fought battle, that goal may be the difference between victory and defeat.

But, hold it, what's this? The score of the third game has just come in—and it looks like these Goodyears may have been fooling. In any event Orillia was caught with its "Pestico" down last night. Nine goals down, while the best the Indian Heads could muster was a measly pair. What goes on? And it happened in the Pontiacs' own "regular size" ice garage. H-mmm, this hockey is a strange pastime. It looked, as was said before, as though these Pontiacs had, for some strange reason, hung a big Indian sign on the Goodies, and the next game or so would be "Casterton's last stand."

• • •

Now the picture is changed. The walkins ring in Rodenville. And with renewed hope in their manly and other bosoms, likely some 4,000 of the Kingston faithful will view the fourth fray Thursday night—in Kingston—that is.

Puts Ear-Shrivelling Tirade On Linesman in Hotel Lobby; Campbell Ignores Outburst

By W. R. WHEATLEY

DETROIT (CP) — The Stanley Cup final, sidetracked into a maze of name calling and sizzling cuswords, gets back on the hockey rails tonight. The terminus is still a long way off.

Detroit Red Wings, winners 4-2 Sunday in the first game of the best-of-seven series, are favorites to repeat on home ice over Montreal Canadiens before the series shifts to Montreal Thursday.

The man who, threw the derail switch is Referee Frank Udvari, and he did it with embellishments to the word "liar."

Detroit Coach Dickie Irvin, and he did it with embellishments to the word "liar."

Detroit Red Wings, winners 4-2 Sunday in the first game of the best-of-seven series, are favorites to repeat on home ice over Montreal Canadiens before the series shifts to Montreal Thursday.

The man who, threw the derail switch is Referee Frank Udvari, and he did it with embellishments to the word "liar."

Detroit Coach Dickie Irvin put an ear-shrivelling tirade, aimed at Sammy Babcock—a public castigation of an official believed to be without precedent in Stanley Cup history.

WILL DO NOTHING

President Clarence Campbell of the National Hockey League, here for the series, said he will do nothing about the incident. "We don't like to get involved in activities already," said Campbell.

It was in the first game that this rankled Irvin. It was the bloodletting March 23 game in Boston when Canadiens' Doug Harvey was bleeding from a cut head, swung his stick repeatedly on Gus Mayer of the Bruins and bopped linesman Cliff Thompson in the eye with the stick.

Campbell ruled Richard out for the three remaining games on the regular schedule and all Saturday Cup play.

Babcock, referee Frank Udvari and linesman Thompson were the officials in that game. Only Babcock has worked so far in the cup final Referee Red Storey and linesman Doug Davies are here for the second game. Bill Chadwick has the Sunday game, with Babcock and Davies.

FOR EMPHASIS

Spotting Babcock sitting in the lobby, near Storey and Davies, Irvin strode over to the linesman and began hammering the air with his hands to emphasize what he was saying.

"And what did you do?" said Irvin, his voice rising. "All three of you said Richard was carrying the puck at the time. What did Laycoe himself say at the hearing before Campbell? He said: 'I was in possession of the puck.' So all three of you are a bunch of blankety blank liars."

Babcock, flushing, started to say something. Irvin strode off.

Still steaming two hours later, Irvin said "That's the first time I've caught up with that lying blankety blank since Boston. I wanted to tell him what I thought of him."

RELATES INCIDENT

Irvin related an incident of three years ago, also during the Stanley Cup series. He said Dollard St. Laurent, Montreal defenceman, was butt-ended in the eye by Gord Howe of the Red Wings and there was no penalty.

On the train that night Irvin saw the game officials sitting with Carl Voss, NHL referee-in-chief.

"I asked them right there if it was true there were special rules for Canadiens and special rules for Detroit," Voss said. "They have to think of their jobs, too."

Neither Babcock nor his working mates are staying at the Leland Hotel. Voss said they went there to talk with him and Campbell, Babcock especially to cool down. He's heavily bruised leg suffered Sunday when struck by a puck during Howe's has been named to take Babcock's place for tonight's game, with Davies again a linesman and Storey replacing Chadwick as referee.

RICHARD AGAIN

The lobby affair today recalled an incident involving Richard a few seasons ago. The Rocket, incensed over a misconduct penalty called against him in Montreal by referee Hugh McLean, spotted McLean in a New York hotel lobby the following day. Richard throttled the referee and gave him a thorough shaking. That affair cost the Rocket $500.

Later Monday night, Irvin announced lineup switches for tonight's game. Boom Boom Geoffrion will be taken off Leo Lalande and will be replaced by Dickie Moore.

Geoffrion will go with the Jackie Leclair and Don Marshall line.

Sports Leaders Cannot Agree On Stadium Site

TORONTO (CP) — Football and baseball leaders ca n a n't agree where a proposed new civic sports stadium for Toronto should be located. But both groups want the new stadium suitable for major sports spectacles.

The major league baseball committee Monday submitted a proposal for a $1,750,000, 42,000-seat addition to Maple Leaf Baseball Stadium. It would accommodate major league baseball, Big Four football and soccer.

But Toronto Argonaut and Balmy Beach football representatives told the baseball group they would have nothing to do with such a proposal.

Joe Keenan, chairman of a new sports stadium in the eastern Riverdale Park area, opposed the addition to Maple Leaf Stadium on the grounds it would not be suitable for football. He said he urg shortly be able to outline plans to city council for a stadium suitable for both.

Marlies May Be Minus Ace Billy Harris

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto Marlboros, who already have their troubles in the eastern Canada Memorial Cup finals, may be without their top player when they meet Quebec Frontenacs in the second game of the series here tonight.

Quebec won the first game of the best-of-seven final 4-1 Saturday. Marlboro center Billy Harris, the team's leading scorer during the season and in the Ontario Hockey Association junior A finals against Ted Catharines, suffered a charley horse four minutes before Saturday's game ended and is a doubtful starter for tonight's game.

Harris had 27 goals and 29 assists for 56 points during the season. In the six-game series against St. Catharines he had 14 points, eight goals and six assists.

EXPECTS IMPROVEMENT

Quebec coach Phil Watson, delighted at his team's showing in the opener, expects his team to improve.

"That was their first tough game in quite a while," he said after Saturday's victory. "We can play better. Wait until our big line (Guy Rousseau-Jean Rousseau - Richard Bouchard) gets going. They didn't get a point still we won 4-1."

It will be an uphill climb for Marlboros for the first time in the playoffs this season. In three OHA rounds they were never behind in games.

Manager Stafford Smythe expects his team to display a more aggressive style tonight.

"Most of the players who were hit by the 'flu are on the mend," he said. "And maybe the team won't be so confident.

"Most of our guys weren't expecting the Frontenacs to be so powerful. They were beaten by a better team Saturday and they should know now they'll have to fight to take this series."

Pro Tennis Strictly 'For the Birds' Says Shapely Gus of Panties Fame

NEW YORK (AP) — Gussie Moran said today the life of the tennis amateur is softer—and frequently more lucrative—than that of the tennis professional.

Gussie should know. As the widely publicized previewer Gussie of lace panties fame, she turned pro in 1950 and joined the Jack Kramer troupe in a tour which was supposed to net her $75,000.

"I was lucky to wind up with a tennis racquet," the green-eyed, shapely miss from Santa Monica, Calif., said. "It was an ill-fated venture, due partly to my own inexperience in business matters.

"I allowed my contract to be bought by a syndicate. So on the tour I found I was playing virtually for peanuts—$150 a week.

"I could have done better as an amateur and had much more fun. It's a pleasant life—Monte Carlo, Rome, Paris, all over the world, living well and all expenses paid.

"Some of the amateurs would be foolish to turn pro. There have been instances of top players getting $700 a week. You can't beat that."

Gussie is in New York as a radio commentator for the Brooklyn Dodger baseball games. She appears on a panel each day before and after the Dodgers' performances.

"I'm having to do a lot of cramming, getting acquainted with Brooklyn players and brushing up on my baseball," she said.

Alberni Leads Hoop Series

PORT ALBERNI, B. C. (CP)—The Alberni Athletics whipped the Edmonton Towne Hallers 76-51 Monday night to move back into a one-game lead in the western Canada senior men's basketball finals.

Athletics lead the best-of-five series 3-1. The fourth game will be played here tonight.

Playing-coach Elmer Spaidel led Alberni scoring with 18 points.

There's a new liquid fertilizer going on the market a bit later this year. It's so fast acting that the manufacturer has had to water it down for general use. They say that in one of the early tests they treated a plot of ground and told a man to plant a row of corn to see what would happen. Half way along the row he took off his coat and laid it over some of the seeds. When he reached the end of the row he had to go off and find a ladder to get his coat down.

Kitchener-Dutchies, Moncton Hawks Open Eastern Cup Finals Tonight

KITCHENER (CP) — Playing coach Dugger McNeil of Moncton Hawks figures the eastern Canada Allan Cup finals which open with Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen here tonight will be a higher-scoring series than the all-Ontario senior A set.

McNeil, who watched the Dutchmen wipe out Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds for the Ontario title Thursday and Saturday, says his Hawks don't play defensive hockey like the Greyhounds. The Moncton coach, who once played with Montreal Royals in the Quebec Hockey League, wouldn't go out on a limb as to the outcome of the series.

He wasn't dismayed, however, with the prospect of having to play all the games of the best-of-seven eastern final on Kitchener ice.

"We've been a good road team all year," he said.

If McNeil has any worries, it's the expectation of meeting stiff competition again after having won 13 of 21 playoff games so far this season. The Hawks dashed through playoff rounds with New Glasgow, N.S., and Ottawa RCAF Flyers without losing a game.

The Dutchmen have suffered five losses in their 17 playoff encounters, two of them in Ontario Hockey Association senior A post-schedule play. They won the all-Ontario title edging the Grey-hounds, Northern Ontario Hockey Association champions, 4-3 in two-out-of-seven series after trailing in games throughout the set.

The Hawks have a solid club from goal out and their roster is sprinkled with many players who have had professional experience, a couple having played in the National Hockey League.

Moncton goaltender Rick Pidoudecy should be familiar with Kitchener's style of play. Pidoudecy played against the Dutchmen when he was netminding for Windsor Bulldogs in 1953-54.

Ted Campeau, who centers the first line for the Hawks, played with the NHL Montreal Canadiens two seasons. His linemate Bert Hirschfeld also saw action with the Canadiens.

Besides Campeau, Hirschfeld and McNeil, the Hawks have several other former professionals in their lineup. Defencemen Joe Lepine was once with Ottawa Senators of the NHL. Dewar Thompson and Roy Lacroix, both centres, have seen action with Valleyfield Braves of the same league. Rightwinger Lorne Watters was with Hershey Bears in the American Hockey League.

Tennis Brass Disdains New Scoring System

NEW YORK (AP)—The simplified tennis scoring system, tried out by the pros in Cleveland last week-end, met mixed reaction in court circles Monday but got a frigid shoulder from the high brass.

"It seems cockeyed to me," commented Renville McMeen, vice president of the U.S. Lawn Tennis Association. "If the present scoring system in tennis is screwy—this is screwier."

Don Budge, Jack Kramer, Frank Parker and most of the other pros found some merit in the new formula, with the eradication of a few flaws.

LIKE TABLE TENNIS

In the world professional championships last week-end in Cleveland scoring was set up in table tennis. Points counted 1-2-3-5, etc., instead of the usual 15, 30, 40, "love," "deuce" and "advantage."

The first player to get 21 points won the game. Best three-out-of-five games won the match. There were no sets.

Pancho Gonzales of Los Angeles retained his world championship by beating Pancho Segura in the finals, 21-15, 19-21, 21-6, 20-22, 21-18. Budge, who attended the tournament, said the main objection he pros had to the new system was the allowance of only one serve, instead of two.

Major League Players Discuss 'Working Hours'

CINCINNATI (AP) — Like baseball fans throughout the nation, 16 major league players sat down today to discuss spring training.

However, their conversation concerned working hours. Specifically, the players as representatives of all major leaguers debated the March 1 deadline for the spring training.

The clubs instituted the March 1 starting time at the request of the players. Commissioner Ford Frick also reported but when he observed the rule was being evaded, he fined the Milwaukee Braves and the Kansas City Athletics.

Ted Kluszewski, home run leader and Cincinnati players representative, was reportedly ready to ditch the March 1 date but anxious to keep the March 10 mark which permits the beginning of exhibition contests.

Under this compromise, players of the clubs wishing to get into condition early would be permitted to do so. Rookies in particular would benefit from February workouts.

Big Kluszewski was asked if any specific gripes would be taken up.

"None whatsoever that I know of," he replied.

Tony DeMarco Fights Basilio On June 10

NEW YORK (AP) — Newly crowned welterweight champion Tony DeMarco of Boston will defend his title against top-ranking challenger Carmen Basilio in the Syracuse, N.Y., Memorial Auditorium June 10.

The 15-round bout will be broadcast and telecast (NBC), said Harry Markson, managing director of the International Boxing Club.

DeMarco won the crown last Friday night by stopping Johnny Saxton in the 14th round in the Boston Garden. The dark-haired, New York-born Italian will be asked to meet Basilio, of Canastota, N.Y., on April 29 but the date was put back because of minor injuries suffered by Tony in the Saxton clash.

Two Mayors, Horse, Settle Wager

Escorted by two of Kingston's firefighting "finest," Mayor George Clarke Wright, of the Limestone City, rides his "Mr. Tripp," a spirited pacing stallion along Princess Street, for six blocks, with Mayor Jack Both of Belleville, leading the handsome standard-bred. The Kingston chief magistrate was "taken for a ride" as a result of a wager between the two cities. Mayor Both lost when the Belleville Memos were defeated by the Kingston Goodyears for the senior "B" group title. Upwards of 25,000 viewed the "ride" and parade last Saturday. (Picture by George Lilley Photography, Kingston, Ont.)

Richard Stars With Old Linemates In Ottawa Oldtimers' Exhibition

OTTAWA (CP)—The Auditorium hasn't been so packed in years as it was Monday night for an old timers' charity hockey game, but the crowd saved most of its cheering for a fellow who's still pretty active—Maurice (Rocket) Richard.

The Rocket was reunited with his old pals from the once-great punch line of Montreal Canadiens, Elmer Lach and Toe Blake. With Lach assisting, he scored twice for the Montreal - Toronto team but it wasn't enough to bring the visitors victory.

The Ottawa veterans won 7-5, coming from behind with four goals in the final period.

Syd Howe, one-time Detroit Red Wings star, blinked the light three times to lead the Ottawa menagerie of superannuated, active and semi-active players to victory. Another former Detroit man, Cully Simon, former Detroit Senator Dec Smith, Rip Riopelle, ex-Montrealer, and Lode Cloutier with Chicago Black Hawks, accounted for the other Ottawa goals.

A 6,000 fans, a standing-room only crowd, packed the Auditorium for the game, a fund-raising affair for the Ottawa Boys Club. The last time that happened here was back in the 1949-50 Quebec Hockey League season when Montreal's Jean Beliveau used to appear here against the Senators with Quebec Aces.

Jimmy Orlando, former Red Wing, Jerry Heffernan, ex-Montrealer, and former Toronto Maple Leaf Hank Goldup fired the other goals for the Montreal - Toronto group.

The only penalties in the game were called on Orlando and Ed Gorman of the Ottawa crew in the last period.

Gerry McNeil, who retired from the Canadiens' net last year, spent the game in the visitors' goal. Ottawa net activities were divided among Bill Durnan, another former Montrealer, Bill Beveridge, former Montreal Maroon, and Ben MacDonnell, an ex-Senators player.

There were other names from the past there, too—Ike Ken Reardon, Murph Chamberlain, Busher Jackson, and Wally Stanowski. Bucko McDonald and Roy Conacher joined from the crowd and old-pro Newsy Lalonde did the coaching for the visitors.

Eddie Mathews Hits Three Homers In Reduced Area of Home Stadium

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Now that Milwaukee's County Stadium is within hailing distance, Eddie Mathews, the Braves' muscular young man with the powerful wrists, is warning up for a robust introduction to the park's reduced confines.

With opening day just a week away, Mathews didn't have a home run to his credit until Monday. Then the 23 - year - old third baseman, who led the National League with 47 homers a '54, cut loose for three, although the Braves lost to Brooklyn, 10-8. County Stadium last season was the second toughest home run park in the league.

A mere 78 home runs were hit there last season, 40 by Pittsburgh's Forbes Field had fewer, 64. But most disheartening to the management was the fact that the Braves, who hit 86 home runs on the road, were able to rent only 42 out of their own backyard.

SHORTEN FIELDS

With those facts in hand and a pennant in mind, the Braves' owners hauled in the property line in left centre and right field, lopping off 15 feet. A 10-foot extension was added on top of the fence as token resistance.

Baltimore's Orioles out-homered Pittsburgh 6 - 3 Monday, but the Pirates won their exhibition 8-4.

Mickey Vernon's two-run homer carried a five-run Washington rally in the seventh but the Senators nailed 8-5.

Two three - run innings gave Boston a 9-7 victory over Philadelphia. Jackie Jensen hit the New York Giants 9-5 as Wally Westlake and Vic Wertz homered.

BOX, CUBS WIN

Chicago's White Sox paired Sandy Consuegra and Mike Fornieles, who relieved in the eighth, to beat the St. Louis Cardinals 4-3.

Chicago Cubs made three of their four hits good for a 3-1 triumph and over Beaumont of the Texas League, and Gus Zernial hit his fifth home run in as many days as Kansas City defeated Columbia, its Sally League farm club, 7-5.

Detroit whipped Atlanta of the Southern Association 9-3, with home runs by Ferris Fain and Fred Hatfield. Mickey Mantle and Hank Bauer paced the New York Yankees in their 11-8 decision over Chattanooga of the Southern Association.

Many Czechs Would Flee, Says Skate Star

GARMISCH - PARTENKIRCHEN (AP) — Czech skating star Miroslava Nachodaka, who fled to the West last February, said Monday in this West German centre that 90 per cent of the Czech people would follow suit if they had a chance.

Miss Nachodaka jumped her team while attending the Garmisch world championships in Vienna and asked American authorities for political asylum.

She told a press conference that she had planned for her escape for years but that she did not tell even her parents about her plans. She said she intended to emigrate to the United States.

Lindsay Ties Meaford 6-6

MEAFORD, Ont. (CP)—Lindsay Muskies and Meaford Knights fought to a 6-6 overtime tie in an Ontario Hockey Association intermediate A semi-final game here Monday night.

Meaford leads the best-of-seven series 3-0 with one game tied.

Harney Lindsay scored two goals for the Knights with singles going to Frank Wheeler, Ray McCallum, Charlie Macdonald and John Macdonald.

Ottie Crawford notched two for Lindsay, Bob Growden, Bill Parker, Jim Graham and Bruce Wellchup got the others.

Fifth game will be in Lindsay Wednesday.

Goodyears Blast Orillia 9-2

ORILLIA (CP) — Kingston walloped Orillia 9-2 Monday night for its first victory of the Ontario Hockey Association senior B semi-finals. Orillia leads the best-of-seven set 2-1.

Willie Pawchuk and Don Murray each scored two goals for Kingston. Singles went to Jack White, Les Douglas, Don Bellringer, Don Senior and George MacGregor. Ab Hall and Clare Payne were the Orillia marksmen.

Kingston jumped into a 3-1 lead in the first period and increased it to 4-2 going into his third.

Fourth game of the series will be in Kingston Thursday.

Queen Requested To Invest Charles Prince of Wales

CARDIFF, Wales (Reuters)—The Queen has been asked to invest her sixty-year-old son as Prince of Wales in time for a proposed festival of Wales in 1958, it was learned Monday.

Although Prince Charles is in fact due to be invested as Prince of Wales.

This tradition dates back to 1301 when Edward I gave the title to his eldest son to placate Welsh feelings after his wars of conquest. The last Prince of Wales was the Duke of Windsor before he became King Edward VIII.

Manager Has Eleven Sons On Ball Club

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Manager Joe Orlando Sr., is like a father to his baseball teams. In fact, the 11 players are his sons.

The one-family team, averaging nearly 300 pounds a man, will play in a St. Louis area public parks baseball league.

Papa Joe has his boys working out three times a week. First baseman Bonnie, the dean of the squad at 25, already has melted from 232 to 185 pounds. Dominic, the youngest is 13 and weighs 130.

Two of the leading hitters, catcher John and second baseman Pete, are 19-year-old twins. The brothers had played a few games on a unit in previous years but had been waiting on the younger boys to grow up.

PROWSE TO TICATS

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Don Prowse, centre linebacker with the University of Western Ontario Mustangs in the senior Intercollegiate Football League, has signed a contract to play for Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Big Four.

Prowse signed the contract here Saturday in the presence of Ralph Sazio, Tiger-Cat line coach.

All honor to the Penticton Vs. In the face of trying circumstances, they recovered the distinction of Canada, the hockey championship of the world, thus throwing sand into gear wheels of the pagoda machine that must have been hopefully poised to grind out praise for the athletic superiority of the stark and sere Russians.

And now that we have won back what was really ours, triumph in our own national game, should we call it a day? Should we retrain from our own brand of the annual orgy of insults, mis-statements and accusations which are invariable when one of the participants is seeking to use a sport for national propaganda purposes?

There is the thought that Canada should continue to participate, first, in the interest of friendly relations with countries outside the iron curtain; second, for the international good of hockey, to help spread the gospel of our excelling winter sport.

But as to the overall lesson as the world championships, we believe it is nile-nanned. Everybody knows that no real world championship, meaning world superiority in hockey, is seriously involved unless the champions of the National Hockey League, or the Stanley Cup holders, are participants.

Of course, there can be produced that over-ripe red herring to indicate that this is the "world amateur championship." But that isn't going to deceive anybody, because everybody knows that in hockey at that level, almost-pure amateurism is as scarce as the dodo-bird. And everybody knows, too, that Russia's athletes are part of the propaganda machine, stall-fed, government sponsored, government-controlled, their activities suitably recompensed. Russia has its own brand of amateurism, something contrived to suit the circumstances.

And now that the fight has been won, and Canada's hockey superiority re-established to the embarrassment of the Kremlin's propaganda machine, is there any virtue in carrying on with a pointless chore? Everybody in sport is fully aware that Canada is supreme in hockey.

Our victories in this tournament, over teams that in some cases could hardly make a respectable showing in Canada's toughest hockey leagues, prove nothing new. Or should we continue so that hockey shall become a more universal winter sport?

Archie Moore's Heart Normal

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Archie Moore, light heavyweight boxing champion, has "as normal a cardio vascular system as anybody could wish," it was stated in an examination physician's report released Monday.

Dr. Robert Haddon, physician for the California state athletic commission, said the examination was made by Dr. Meyer Friedman.

Moore, who attended the conference, had been declared physically unfit to box in California because of a heart condition. Dr. Haddon said he wouldn't hesitate to recommend that Moore's licence be restored. Commissioner Joseph Phillips said he would take the matter up at once with other members of the commission.

Tillsonburg Ties With Fort Erie

TILLSONBURG, Ont. (CP)—Tillsonburg Pan-Dreds and Fort Erie Spears fought to a 1-1 overtime tie Monday night in the fifth game of their best-of-seven Ontario Hockey Association intermediate A semi-final. Tillsonburg leads the series 3-1 with two games tied.

Fort Erie held on to a 1-0 lead until the last two minutes of the third period when Jack Campbell tipped in a hard drive from Tillsonburg coach Bill Simpell. Tommy Bell notched the Fort Erie marker early in the second frame.

Next game will be played in Fort Erie Thursday night.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

You must not believe everything you hear about bridge bids. In too many cases the quoters announce only part of a rule. As when you hear somebody say: "An immediate jump takeout by responder guarantees that he also has a fit in your suit."

The immediate jump takeout response is a promise that game of some kind is in the pair; that the responder also has two sure tricks which may help make a slam if opener has something additional.

Take the case of a pair of partnership hands like these.

SOUTH	NORTH
♠J 9 3	♠A 5
♥A 8	♥K Q 10 5 4 3
♦K 6 4 3	♦—
♣A K J 9	♣K 8 4 2

The bidding should start off like this:

South	North
1 Diamond	2 Hearts

The fact that north has a void in diamonds should not keep him from giving the information he can about his strength. Somewhere along the line they can start using the best bid in slam, if any.

North is jolly well able to insist on hearts being the final trump suit, if necessary. So, it matters not that he has no fit in the suit his partner has mentioned so far.

It so happens that they could get together on a satisfactory club suit finally. But even if this were not so, north would not be doing his correct duty if he hid the power of his hand.

An immediate takeout to one heart by north would be a very weak showing of the values he can promise. Nor could this be considered a any later jump which would be possible with much more stuff.

First aim of a jump takeout is only to promise game, of course, not to promise slam. But it does promise material for slam in case the opener has slightly more than his first bid announced.

A responder cannot always give his partner a complete picture of his hand. But there is no excuse for making it too blurred.

SCORES COMEBACK WIN

NEW YORK (AP) — Tommy (Hurricane) Jackson scored his fifth straight victory on the comeback trail Monday night when he won a 10-round unanimous decision over Archie McBride of Trenton, N.J., at St. Nicholas Arena. Jackson weighed 168, McBride 167½.

Since being stopped by Nino Valdes in two rounds last year, Jackson has raced along the comeback road, knocking out four other opponents.

GIL TURNER WINS

BROOKLYN (AP) — Gil Turner unleashed a blistering body assault Monday night to hand Gene (Cyclone) Fullmer the first defeat of the Utah scrapper's pro career at Eastern Parkway Arena. Turner decked Fullmer in the sixth round en route to a unanimous 10-round decision. Fullmer weighed 154, Turner 151.

The 27-year-old Fullmer had won 28 straight and was a 13-to-10 favorite. Turner, in the greatest shape he has been in close to a year, clashed up his fifth straight triumph since he was bayoed by Al Andrews last September.

Versatility Steven Allen's Formula for Late TV Show

By WAYNE OLIVER

NEW YORK (AP) — What's Steven Allen's formula for keeping people in front of their television sets at an hour when they should be in bed?

The sloopy-eyed, lanky star of NBC's Tonight telecasts says he tries to maintain a feeling of anticipation so the viewer never knows what's coming next.

"Sometimes even I don't know what's coming next," he adds.

That's where Allen's versatility made it a case of the man for the job and the job for the man when NBC decided to pioneer after-midnight network TV last fall at hours previously relegated to local showings of ancient movies.

You name it and Allen can do it. Or he'll try it, and in failing he sometimes is more entertaining than if he succeeded.

He's no Jack Benny or Groucho Marx, but he can snap a fast quip. Hardly an hour he pounds the piano more than passably well. He'll never be a threat to Perry Como or Eddie Fisher, but he can and does sing, even his own compositions.

Steve has also help on ideas, but he may stings on his show have the Allen stamp.

Born in New York City 33 years ago, Allen got his start on the air in Los Angeles a little more than 11 years ago as a late night disc jockey. Between records he started interjecting single gossip. The reaction from listeners was fast and favorable, and Allen became a local fixture.

CBS officials soon tapped Allen to return to New York to try TV. He was a short-lived sensation on a local program but subsequent efforts by find the right format for a network show never clicked.

Finally Allen switched to NBC and in a good bit of casting was assigned to Tonight.

The program itself, only network TV on the air at that hour, has gained slowly but steadily in audience and sponsorship. It still has nip and tuck battles in various cities with showings of old movies but has proved to NBC's satisfaction that network TV after midnight can be practicable and profitable.

AT THE BELLE — One of the screen's most dramatic moments is enacted by Grace Kelly and William Holden in this scene from Paramount's stirring film of war and love, "The Bridges of Toko-Ri", showing today, Wednesday and Thursday at the Belle Theatre. Frederic March and Mickey Rooney are also starred in this Technicolor film.

AT THE CAPITOL — Comedy favorite Barry Fitzgerald co-stars with David Niven and Tyvonne De Carlo in Alfred Arteis' comedy hit, in color, "Tonight's the Night," opening Thursday at the Capitol Theatre.

AT THE McCARTHY

For the first time noted character star Raymond Massey protects a Canadian portrayal focused through eyes other than those of Honest Abe in his first CinemaScope vehicle, "Prince of Players," now at the McCarthy Theatre.

Not only is this Twentieth Century-Fox production the first in which there is a Lincoln part and Massey is not playing the man, but in this film he plays the father of John Wilkes Booth, the man who murdered Lincoln. It is to this end the world-famed star has been associated in the minds of the public as Lincoln, ever since he first appeared, Robert Sherwood's Pulitzer Prize-winning Broadway play, "Abe Lincoln in Illinois," back in 1938.

The current $3,000,000 production in De Luxe color is based on Eleanor Ruggles' best-selling novel about the theatrical Booths and centers Mr. Massey with Richard Burton, Maggie McNamara, John Derek, Charles Bickford, Elizabeth Sellars and Eva Le Gallienne, in this tale of genius, madness and unbounding love. Massey portrays the sire of the "Mad Booths" whose genius paraded before the footlights from New York to the Gold Coast in the turbulent days before the Civil War. For him as Junius Brutus Booth, the "great ham" before the episode in the Ford Theatre when his son plays his infamous role in America history.

Another paradox for Massey the actor, is that although his most recent stage appearance was in "John Brown's Body," and after "Prince of Players," his next screen appearance will be in "The Story of John Brown," Mr. Massey has no part in the scene which takes place at Harper's Ferry on the night of Brown's lynching.

Homely, according to Massey, these oddities took none of the pleasure out of his playing of the sometimes mad, often drunk, but nevertheless inspired Junius Booth, forerunner of America's golden age of theatre.

Rod Taylor stars Paul Douglas and Debra Paget in "14 Hours."

Forts Defeat Vernon 7-1

FORT WILLIAM (CP) — Morris Sedjwy, scoring champion of the Thunder Bay Senior A Hockey League, scored two goals Monday night to pave the way for a 3-1 victory by Fort William Beavers over Vernon Canadians.

The win, watched by 3,881 spectators, gave Beavers a 2-0 jump in the best-of-seven series Canada senior A hockey championship. Third game of the series will be played here Thursday. The winner will go east to meet either Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen or Moncton Hawks for the Allan Cup.

Monday night's victory followed Fort William's pattern in the first game when the Beavers struck early to chalk up a 2-1 victory.

Tom Kompton gave the Beavers a 1-0 lead in the first period and Sedjwy scored one in the second and another in the third to wrap it up. Sherman Blair notched Vernon's only goal less than three minutes from the end of the game and two minutes before Sedjwy's second goal clinched the victory.

BRANDON WINS

BRANDON, Man. (CP)—Brandon Wheat Kings came up with a strong offensive and defensive game Monday night to blank Kenora Thistles 3-0 and tie the best-of-five western Canada intermediate hockey semi-final series 1-1.

Sarnia Defeats Dundas 6-2

SARNIA (CP) — Sarnia Sailors outpowered Dundas Merchants 6-2 Monday night to even up their Ontario Hockey Association senior B best-of-seven semi-final at a game apiece.

Sarnia was in control all the way, leading 2-1 at the end of the first period and 3-1 at the end of the second.

Charlie Glash, Rollie Beauchamp Stu Cousins, Clark Horner, Martin Zorics and Don Savage counted one apiece for Sailors. Team captain Hal Hornby and Arch Williams scored for Merchants.

WINS DECISION

MONTREAL (CP)—Paolo Melis of Montreal, an expert at infighting, Monday night pounded out a unanimous decision over Chet Vinci of Rome, N.Y., in the 10-round main event before 1,200 boxing fans at the Mont St. Louis Auditorium.

The victory was the 19th straight here for Melis, who learned his fighting in his native Italy. He scaled 130½, 6½ pounds lighter than his more experienced opponent.

APPOINT ALDERMAN

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Stanley H. Lee, ward three runner-up in the 1953 municipal election, Monday was appointed to fill the unexpired aldermanic term of the city's new mayor, George E. Beedle.

Dear Reader,

"They say everyone has two fanciers:" his own and show business. That makes you and me partners in a way; and believe me, partner, I've got some real terrific news for you. It's about "Tonight's the Night", that wonderful Technicolor movie they're all talking about. It's screamingly funny, daringly romantic... and it'll keep you in gales of laughter.

There's just one thing I ask of you after you see it. Please do not reveal the surprise ending, the chuckling beginning or the breezy middle.

Thanks, partner.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Wednesday, April 6, 1955

March 22 to April 20 (Aries) — Influences today are partly restrictive in tendency and warn against undue extravagance, extremes in any undertaking, investments, etc. An evenly balanced schedule will be best.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Less irritating in your particular sector, perhaps, but most planets are not in the best positions for speedy results or quick gains, so plan carefully and maintain a sensible pace in order to attain.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Self-restraint in all directions will aid your efforts and speed the program to happy conclusion. Make time for a visit to church when possible; prayer important.

June 22 to July 22 (Cancer) — Inexplicable lunar aspects now suggest a serene mind and no unnecessary anxiety in daily tasks or responsibilities. Familiar matters can run smoothly, even profitably.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — Your Sun stresses temperance in all matters. Trades, travel, building, farming and gardening are sponsored, but sensible management and forethought are urged.

August 23 to September 22 — (Virgo) — While the planetary aspects are not wholly unfriendly, extra care will be needed, however, in making peoncies, signing documents, agreements, estimates, in all matters where tact and delicate handling are required.

(ADVT.)

Worry of FALSE TEETH
Slipping or Irritating?

Don't be embarrassed by loose, ill-fitting plates, slipping or wobbling when you eat, talk or laugh. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH on your plates. Holds them firmer and gives a feeling of more confidence. Helps you enjoy the comforts by holding plates more firmly, so you can't slip, wobble or rock, or feeling, it's chalkie (non-acid). Get FASTEETH at any drug counter.

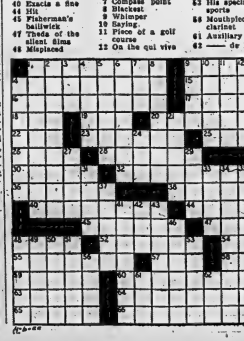
September 24 to October 23 — (Libra) — A few sensible pointers for today; pay particular attention to tricky details, work, problems that may need personal forethought. Some new methods, latest devices will enhance values.

October 24 to November 22 — (Scorpio) — Irritability, impatience must be controlled, and it may not be easy since other people and certain situations may be troublesome. Calm judgment, kindliness, understanding will further good will.

November 23 to December 22 — (Sagittarius) — A rather restricting day, but this should only serve to inspire you to meet competition with fresh courage and an eye to improve your own methods, ideas, and to take advantage of any honest opportunities.

December 23 to January 21 — (Capricorn) — Make no rash promises and do not undertake more than can be sensibly handled. You will probably do better if you keep a reasonable schedule that permits finishing tasks at proper time, and without worry.

January 22 to February 20 — (Aquarius) — Your planet Uranus, not favorably aspected now, warns against extremes, extravagance, loosely managed affairs. Be strict about attention to duties.



February 21 to March 20 — (Pisces) — A day for sane middle-of-road action. You should be able to get along well with routine affairs, handling the urgent and difficult tasks first. Minor duties will then seem easier.

You born today have priceless advantages for achievement in this world — great talent, leadership qualities, stamina, the ability to gather knowledge and use it opportunely. You are generous, usually tactful and above pettiness; may have to guard against being too demanding, dictatorial at times. You are impulsive, make taining, regarded with esteem by brilliant advertisers, actors, and friends, associates. Cultivate patcan impart knowledge in a most tience and a desire for spiritual useful way; are interesting, enter- attainment.

Mr. and Mrs. George Whalen, Belleville, spent the supper hour on Thursday with Mr. and Mrs. Dan Whalen.

Miss Dorothy Jordan, Kingston, spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. Jordan.

Point Anne Defeats Marmora 7-4, To Even Trent Valley League Finals

MARMORA — Point Anne drew on even terms in their best-of-seven finals series for the Trent Valley Hockey League championship last night, defeating the Marmora Millionaires 7-4 here to square the series at one victory each.

The teams clash again tonight in Memorial Arena here in the third game of the finals. Tonight's game was brought forward from tomorrow as originally scheduled due to the fact the Point Anne team played in the finals of the OHA Intermediate "C" semi-finals against Exeter here Thursday night. The second game is scheduled for Beeton on Saturday.

L. Goyer opened the scoring on Williams' assist and Semark scored unassisted within the first three minutes of play while Leonard was serving a two-minute penalty. Williams notched the second on G. Goyer's pass.

Before the period ended, however, persistent efforts on the part of the homesters were rewarded by Mantle scoring on Hayes' pass and man assisted by Brown and Smith. G. Goyer however put his team two more goals up, his brother L. Goyer helping on both and Williams also assisting on his second goal.

In the second period a brilliant goal was scored by Gilmour unassisted and Graham added another on Hurst's assist at 6.34.

From then on, the efforts of the visitors to score were fruitless, Killian making save after save of the spectacular type, Marmora on the other hand narrowed the formidable 7-1 margin.

K. Trumble scored without assistance and Leonard set Blute up to register a neat goal. Another counter came to Marmora after a minute of play in the third, K. Trumble again being successful this time on Maynes' assist.

Nine penalties were given out, with six going to the winners. A crowd of over 300 took in the game.

Point Anne — Goal, Letcan; defence, Stewart, Hurst; centre, Gilmour; wings, Graham, Doran; reserves, L. Goyer, Goyer, Williams, Semark, Hunter, Marshall; coach, Leslie Bailey.

Marmora — Goal, Killian; defence, Darrah, Leonard; centre, Maynes; defence, Lavender, K. Trumble; alternates, Jones, Blute, Mantle, Brown, Doyle, Paranik, Gray, Smith, Gregory, Sweet.

Referees: W. Holway, D. Barrett.

Little Benny's Notebook

I was walking along with Fuds Skinks last week when along, and a red cat walked in front of us on its way to some place, and I said, Oh boy, it's a good day for me to kick that cat wasn't black.

Aw, who believes anything like that? Fuds said. I wouldn't care a darn if 10 black cats with gall bob walked in front of me, I'd be carrying black umbrellas, he said, and I said, I wouldn't carry one if it did I? Heck, It wouldn't of made a bit of personal difference to me whether it was a black cat or a sky blue pink cat with a skull and cross bones tattooed on its ear. That's how superstitious I dont happen to be, I said.

Okay, if you're so unsuperstitious why dont you go back and walk under that ladder we just passed leaning against the wall? Fuds said, and I said, Okay, I will.

Okay, I'll walk under you, Fuds said, and I said, Well, the only superstition you might see me do it, and he'd be so scared he might step right out in the street and get hit by a truck on my account. But I'll go back with you if you want to walk under it, I said.

I wouldn't give a darn, but my mother is very superstitious as anything, and she's libel to ruddinly ask me if I've walked under any ladders lately, and I never tell her lies, and it would make her so nervous she would lay awake nights worrying, and she dont sleep very good anyways, so that would be a heck of trick for me to do to her, I said.

The result being we both just kept on going.

Talks Postpone General Electric Strike at Guelph

TORONTO (CP) — A threatened strike today by workers at the Canadian General Electric Co. Ltd. plant in Guelph was averted Monday night when union and company negotiators agreed to continue meetings with Louis Fine, Ontario's chief conciliation officer.

Mr. Fine held a four-hour meeting with company representatives and officers of the United Electrical Workers Union (Ind.) Monday night. It was agreed the parties would meet again today.

There was no information on how the talks progressed. The union president Clarence Jackson said: "We will be in strike unless the company comes up with something."

The union had said earlier its members would not report for work today.

MARMORA

Mrs. H. Bateman Re-Elected Head Of Glee Club

MARMORA — At the recently held meeting of St. Andrew's Glee Club Mrs. H. Bateman was re-elected president. Mrs. W. Lawrence was elected vice-president and Mrs. Charles Sopha was re-elected secretary.

Members provided some humorous readings for the program which also included a couple of recitations by Mrs. W. Davidson and Mrs. G. Sopha, learned by them in their childhood days.

The hostess, Mrs. F. B. Wells, served refreshments which included a birthday cake lit with nine candles.

The oldest member of the club, Mrs. Annie Grant, extinguished them with one effort.

The meeting was closed by the Rev. K. J. Crawford.

Kokanee Upsets Experiment Of Game Commission

CRANBROOK, B.C. (CP) — Kokanee, a hearty species of landlocked sockeye salmon, have upset an experiment of the British Columbia game commission in nearby Premier lake.

The commission will issue the last word, however, and the kokanee face eradication under present plans.

Premier lake, located in southeastern B.C., was stocked with kokanee 10 years ago to provide food for the Kamloops trout population.

The experiment backfired when the kokanee, which usually thrive sparingly, grew beyond expectations and replaced the trout.

INTENDED FOR FEED

The kokanee had been considered ideal feed for the Kamloops in the lake which produced a record fish weighing 35½ pounds in 1929.

The Kimberley Rod and Gun Club will co-operate with the game commission in poisoning spawning beds, as well as seine-dotting and live-trapping in creek mouths to rout the kokanee.

The club obtained permission to net fish taken in seine nets during the summer, while fish trapped during the fall spawning period will be transplanted in Slocan lakes.

The commission will restock the lake with fingerling and adult Kamloops.

MADOC JUNCTION

Madoc Junction

WITH BIRTHDAY

MADOC JUNCTION — On Tuesday, March 29th, Mr. Peter Reids celebrated his 85th birthday.

During the afternoon a pleasant time was enjoyed when the superintendent of Eggleton Sunday School, Mrs. Warren Harlow, and teachers, Mrs. Carl Bridges, Mrs. Maurice Clancy and Mrs. Clarence Pitchett, Mrs. Harold Reids and little son, Clarence, and Mr. Carl Reids, visited Mr. Reids at his home and extended birthday greetings and congratulations.

Favorite hymns were sung with Mrs. Clancy playing the accompaniment on her guitar. Mrs. Harlow read part of the 37th Psalm after which Mrs. Bridges led in prayer.

Mr. Reids, a member of the Over-80 Club, who are remembered by Eggleton Sunday School on their birthdays, was presented with a box of fruit.

Mr. Reids expressed his thanks for the gift, birthday cards and the good wishes of his friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Clancy were guests at the annual "At Home" sponsored by the members of Stirling Lodge No. 239, I.O.O.F. in the Community Hall on Wednesday night.

Mr. Kenneth Stewart of Lakefield, spent a few days this week visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Harlow.

Mrs. Clarence Pitchett, Mrs. Maurice Clancy attended a demonstration party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Wannamaker, Stirling, on Thursday night.

Due to road conditions there was no Sunday School or church service at Eggleton United Church last Sunday.

The next church service will be held on Easter Sunday at 2.30 p.m. with special music by the Junior Choir.

Mrs. S. Danford has been spending some time with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Danford and family.

MADOC JUNCTION—Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bridges and Bruce of Oshawa spent the week-end with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Bridges.

Glad to report that Mrs. John Gallivan has returned home, much improved in health, after spending some time at the home of her daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Smith of Spencerville.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Roth, Bruce and Holly; Mrs. Monk, were Sunday dinner guests at Mr. and Mrs. George Jervis'.

Several ladies of the Eggleton W.M.S. and W.A. gathered at the home of Mrs. Carl Bridges on Wednesday afternoon and quilt out and pieced a quilt-top for the Missionary sale.

The hostess served refreshments.

MARMORA

'Rink Round-up' Presented At Memorial Arena

MARMORA — Marmora Figure Skating Club, consisting of 35 members including nine from Madoc and four from Deloro, under its instructor, Frank Theodosen of the Cobourg and Port Hope clubs, is completing its first season presented "Rink Round-Up" at the Dr. Hamilton Crawford Memorial Arena before a goodly sized and appreciative audience on Friday evening.

The members of the club went through a routine on skates, Judy Fraser, one of its members, then gave a solo performance.

Four girl members of the Cobourg club executed the number, "Irish Washerwoman." Comedy was next provided by two members of the Port Hope club, succeeded by a solo by Joan Roberts of the Cobourg club.

As an intermission, four racing events were run off, winners being: junior girls, Helen Walsh and Linda Middlejohn; junior boys, Sandy Fraser and Harold Acorn; senior girls, Vivian Hamelius and Pearl McCaw; senior boys, Beverly Osborne and Harold Mahoney.

The next number was a Dutch waltz in which the Marmora club took part.

Occasion was taken to present Mrs. A. F. Fraser with a bouquet in appreciation of her work for the carnival.

Gwen Butler and Helen Weight of the Port Hope club, paired for a skating duo.

Bonnie Wallace of the Cobourg club was the next participant, supplying a solo number.

Hockey was also indulged in with picked teams of Pee Wees playing the first game and picked teams of Squirts engaged in the second game.

To close the event, patrons and patronesses followed the closing injunction on the program, "Put on your skates or get ready to dance."

H. R. Pearce, as holder of the lucky program, received the pair of C.C.M. figure skates.

Peron Is Engaged in Battle To Reduce Power of Church

By FRED L. STROBEL

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — For nearly five months President Juan D. Peron has been fighting to trim the power of the Roman Catholic church in Argentina. He has loosened its influence in several aspects, but the church remains strong.

The country recognizes Catholicism as the official state religion. Peron and the big majority of his supporters are communicants. In the only election held since the church-state controversy started, Peron's ticket got 72 per cent of the votes in the new province of Misiones. The men's and women's Peronista parties and the General Labor Confederation, chief bastions of his power, still function as well-oiled political machines.

If these soldiers in Peron's political army are disturbed by the religious dispute, they give no open evidence of it.

NEW PARTY

The difficulties with the church were touched off last fall when Peron discovered some religious groups, apparently counting on support from the Catholic Church, were organizing a new Christian Democratic party. He feared such a party, if tolerated, might one day gain power like similar parties in Europe and become a threat to his regime.

In a speech Nov. 10 he charged some clergymen were "open cosmies" of his administration. His government proceeded to aim a series of blows at the church.

Over clerical protests divorce was legalized, houses of prostitution were authorized and illegitimate children were given the same legal rights as legitimate children. Religious processions were prohibited, Catholic newspapers were forced to suspend and three Catholic schools were closed.

Fifteen priests were arrested for causing disturbances or for disrespect of the president. Scores of laymen were arrested. Priests were arrested. Priests were dismissed from teaching posts and the church's authority over education was sharply restricted.

The president signed a decree eliminating five religious dates from Argentina's list of national holidays.

On its side the church took a firm but calm position in a series of protests in open letters to Peron and in three pastoral letters read in all churches.

LIST ACTIONS

A pastoral letter 10 days ago listed these actions:

1. A police rullag prohibiting religious processions and meetings in public places used by Catholics.

2. A resolution permitting other religious liberty to preach their doctrines in hospitals and other public establishments.

3. A decision barring Catholic prelates from radio stations but permitting other religions to broadcast their programs.

4. Dismissal of public employees because of their Catholic faith.

Eden Has Accepted Prime Minister's Post

Walks To Palace Where He Receives Seals Of Office

Harold Macmillan Expected To Be New Foreign Secretary

LONDON (CP) — Sir Anthony Eden walked out of Buckingham Palace today as the new prime minister of Great Britain.

The 57-year-old diplomat, who once quit the government rather than appease dictators, had been summoned by the Queen to take over the high office which Sir Winston Churchill vacated Tuesday.

An official announcement of Eden's acceptance was made at 11.35 a.m. (6.35 a.m. E.S.T.)

Nervously fidgeting with his tie and smoothing his grey hair, Churchill's political aide arrived 12 minutes early for his 11 a. m. appointment to kiss the Queen's hand and bear her historic letter.

The former foreign secretary's interview with the young sovereign followed the pattern by which England has named her prime ministers for centuries past.

GIVEN SEALS

Elegant—as usual for Eden—in immaculate morning coat and top hat, he was escorted by officials of the royal household to a room where the Queen awaited him.

He bowed low and then the Queen formally asked him if he would serve her as her "first lord of the treasury"—the nominal post which makes him her first minister.

Eden said he would be pleased to accept. Then, in accordance with tradition, he kissed the Queen's hand and accepted from her the seals of office which she received Tuesday from Churchill.

After the short ceremony the Queen and her new prime minister stayed talking on some of the problems he now has to solve, including the date of a national election and formation of a new government.

HONOR TO CHURCHILL

Churchill, in giving his resignation to the Queen, presumably "advised" her to appoint Eden to succeed him. Breaking with tradition to keep the day of resignation entirely Sir Winston's, the monarch waited overnight instead of calling her new first minister at once.

Following tradition, all Churchill's cabinet resigned along with him. Eden probably will ask them to recall most ministers, postponing any major reshuffle until after the voting.

Slight Mistake, Cadi Convicts Crown Witness

TORONTO (CP)—Magistrate Norman A. Gianelli got mixed up Tuesday.

He convicted a man for impaired driving.

"But, your worship," blurted crown attorney W. Herbert Lafoglen, "You have convicted the one crown witness, constable George Malberman."

There was a ruffle of papers as magistrate Gianelli consulted his notes.

He withdrew the conviction and $60 fine against the police officer and transferred them to John Host, 32.

Recounts Likely In Several Michigan Votes

DETROIT (AP) — Michigan's ballot boxes and voting machines were ordered safeguarded today as recounts appeared likely in several of Monday's election contests.

All the returns are in from heavily Democratic Wayne (Detroit) county, but early Democratic leads in virtually all races were shaved as laggard outstate counties reported.

This dampened Democratic hopes of a sweep that would oust Republicans from every major office outside the Michigan legislature except that of state highway commissioner. Republicans still hold that, and substantial control of the legislature.

Governor G. Mennen Williams, often mentioned as a Democratic presidential candidate in 1956, campaigned vigorously for his party slate and was given strong backing from his Democratic-labor coalition.

Iran's Premier To Be Replaced

TEHRAN (AP)—A source at the shah of Iran's court said today Court Minister Hussein Ala has agreed to take over the Iranian premiership from Gen. Fazollah Zahedi.

Zahedi, strong man who destroyed the Mossadegh dictatorship and restored the shah to his peacock throne in 1953, was reported Tuesday to have resigned on account of ill health.

Ala's appointment will keep the government firmly in the hands of the court group who helped engineer Mossadegh's overthrow and put Iran back on the path of co-operation with the West.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) — Synopsis: A westerly flow of warm dry air will give southern Ontario sunny skies most of today with afternoon temperatures in the 60s. However, cold air which covers the prairies has invaded southern Ontario, and its advance southward will bring some cloudiness in the lower lakes Thursday with temperatures 10 to 15 degrees lower than today's readings.

SUPERSONIC WIND TUNNEL WILL BE BUILT AT UPLANDS

Howe Says Cost Will Be $3,500,000

OTTAWA (CP) — A supersonic tunnel is to be built at Uplands airport at a cost of about $3,500,000. It is apparently part of a growing government program in aviation research.

Construction of the tunnel was announced today in a joint statement by Defence Production Minister Howe and Defence Minister Campney that said this "may well mark a new and exciting era in Canadian aviation research."

The statement outlined the work so far of the National Aeronautical Establishment, created in 1951 to provide aviation research and development facilities, and plans for its future. NAE, at present run by the National Research Council, will handle the new wind tunnel.

Construction on the tunnel will start this summer and is expected to take three years. It will have a speed range of 200 to 3,000 miles an hour with which to test this speed, manoeuvrability, controllability and other performance qualities of new aircraft and missile developments.

The statement added:

"Installation of this versatile, all-purpose tunnel is considered a necessity to support current and future Canadian development of military aircraft and supersonic air-defence guided weapons.

"Existing wind tunnels in Canada lack the variety of facilities necessary for jet and missile-aged aerodynamics. . . ."

The Aeronautical Establishment at present consists of several small research wind tunnels with varying speeds and engine, structural and aerodynamics laboratories located at the Research Council.

When the new wind tunnel is available, the statement said, NAE will move from the Research Council buildings to Uplands and be taken over by the defence research board.

Abandon Ships In Heavy Ice Off Cape Breton

GLACE BAY, N. S. (CP)—Owners prepared today to determine the fate of 10 fishing vessels trapped off this Cape Breton port Tuesday after becoming jammed in heavy ice.

The six crew members of the Lady Sarah Bernard and her sister-ship Nelson Miles joined forces and walked and rowed the two vessels through the ice with only minor injury to one man.

Owner Donald Cadegan who operates a fish business here said at first he believed the Sarah Horton could be saved but later said it was possible she was being held up by the heavy ice and being swept seaward.

Snow Is 16 Feet Deep in Wyoming, Fear Livestock Losses to Be Heavy

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP) — Extraordinarily heavy livestock losses were feared today in the wake of a fierce storm whose 16-foot snowdrifts have paralyzed parts of Wyoming and Montana.

Hundreds of motorists and rural residents stranded by the weekend storm are believed safe and in no danger.

Entire cities in northeast Wyoming still are isolated from highway and air travel, however. Some trains resumed their schedules with difficulty early today as winds continued to drift snow everywhere in the stricken area.

Passenger trains stalled along a 47-mile stretch between Lusk and Lingle, along the Wyoming-Nebraska border, were brought to safety late Tuesday. Some were marooned in their cars for two days.

William Chapman, Wyoming agriculture commissioner, estimated that 90 per cent of cattle and sheep herds in the snowbound area have been wiped out during the early Saturday, when the storm struck. There was serious danger, too, that many sheep were buried alive.

Fair weather prevailed today over the blizzard area of the northern Rockies states, but high snow and rain fell from Lake Superior southwestward into central South Dakota and northern Nebraska. There were some snow flurries along the eastern slopes of the central Rockies.

Highlights of Budget

OTTAWA (CP) — Highlights of Finance Minister Harris' budget speech:

Personal income tax reduced by average 10 per cent, effective July 1; 13 to 13 per cent for 55 per cent of taxpayers.

Half of personal income tax cut applies on 1955 income; full in 1956.

Special 15-per-cent excise tax on new automobiles reduced to 10 per cent, effective immediately.

Special 10-per-cent excise tax on tires and tubes repealed immediately.

Corporation tax on large company incomes reduced to 45 per cent from 47, effective January 1, 1955; small company —under $20,000 income—tax unchanged.

Incentive tax concessions for oil, gas and mining industries, now temporary, made permanent.

Tax cuts total $168,000,000 for the current 1955-56 fiscal year or an estimated $207,000,000 for a full year.

Government to set up royal commission to survey Canada's economic prospects.

Government forecasts $150,000,000 budget deficit in 1955-56.

Budget revenue forecast at $4,202,000,000; expenditure, $4,352,000,000.

Earlier estimate of 1954-55 budget deficit of $148,231,000 revised to $154,000,000.

Minor exemptions to general sales tax provided, totalling about $1,000,000 a year, effective immediately.

Tariff of 7½ per cent imposed for first time on polyethylene resins, widely used in plastic industry, effective immediately.

Tariff board to inquire into tariffs on chemicals, polatoes and primary iron and steel.

Canadian civilians abroad for a year or more may bring in household and personal effects duty-free if they have owned the articles for at least six months. The change, similar to a concession already given soldiers and government employees, is effective immediately.

Current taxes on liquor, beer, wines, cigarets, tobacco, soft drinks and candies unchanged.

No change in current 10-per-cent sales tax and 15-per-cent excise tax on television and radio sets.

No change in old age security tax—two per cent sales tax, corporation tax and income tax.

Canadians Generally Welcome Tax Reductions in Budget

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canadians today gave general welcome to tax reductions announced in the federal budget and labbed them as a stimulant to business.

The welcome, however, was mixed with criticisms, especially from sections of the economy which felt their needs had been overlooked.

J. A. Calder, president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, said Finance Minister Harris had recognized that business and employment both needed a shot in the arm, and described Mr. Harris' approach as "realistic."

The two-per-cent reduction in corporate income tax would encourage manufacturers, though the remaining 45-per-cent remained "unduly high." Reduction in personal income rates should give a fillip to purchasing power generally. He regretted that the minister did not go further to provide safeguards for Canadian industries whose products were being replaced by "record-breaking low-priced imports."

James Muir, president and chairman of the Royal Bank of Canada, said Mr. Harris had made "a strategically correct approach to his problem," and added:

"If successful, his policy will promote an increase in the national product to the point where his yield of taxation could achieve the results he desires."

A different view came from George Burt, Canadian director of the United Automobile Workers (CIO-CCL), who said the budget is opposed to "the basic economic purposes of organized labor."

The reduction in personal income taxes, he stated, did not put enough purchasing power in the hands of the people who most need it, and his union was opposed to reduction in corporation taxes.

Among the most disappointed were the woolens and tobacco industries.

Francis E. Cleyn of Huntington, Que., chairman of the wool cloth section of the Primary Textiles institute, said the announcement that there would be no tariff increase on imports from Britain "had disappointed many thousands of Canadians who rely on the industry for their livelihood."

Ruinous competition from abroad he said, had caused more than 30 Canadian woolcloth mills to close down in recent years.

Ralph Bowman, chairman of the Ontario Flue-Cured Tobacco Marketing Association, said present high taxes on cigarets and tobacco, unchanged by the budget, are "unrealistic discrimination against tobacco products."

Manufacturers described as a bitter blow the decision to retain the special 15-per-cent excise tax on radio and television sets.

"We thought Ottawa could at least have reduced it by five per cent," said Stuart D. Brownlee, manager of the Radio and Television Manufacturers Association of Canada. "That would still have meant quite a sizeable source of revenue."

William A. Wecker, president of General Motors of Canada, said the reduction in excise tax on automobiles from 15 per cent to 10 per cent "is certainly welcome" but regretted that the government could not see its way clear to remove the tax entirely.

He expected, too, that some relief was not given to dealers who had already paid the old tax on new cars.

LOGICAL STEP

E. C. Row, president of Chrysler Corporation of Canada, thought the excise-tax reduction was a logical step if the industry was to be expected to maintain a high level of employment.

WORLD LEADERS LAVISH TRIBUTES ON CHURCHILL

Even Pro-Red Paper Gives Him Pat on Back

LONDON (CP)—Political leaders and the press of the Western democracies lavished tributes today on Sir Winston Churchill. He even got a pat on the back from a pro-Communist paper.

In general, the 80-year-old British statesman's departure from the prime ministry was recognized as an historic moment in history. He was lauded far and wide as a leading architect of victory in the Second World War.

"More than any other single person he deserves honor for organizing the free people's fight against nazism and fascism," said Norway's Foreign Minister Halvard Lange.

Many agreed that Churchill's career is not over. President Eisenhower appeared before television and newsreel cameras in Washington to address this message to his old associate in hot and cold war:

". . . We shall never accept the fact that we are to be denied your counsel, your advice. Out of your great experience, your great wisdom and your great courage, the free world yet has much to gain. And we hope that you will never be backward in bringing those qualities forward when you speak to you for help, as all of us are bound to do."

Beloved Elm Tree Retained For Time Being

BRIER HILL, N.Y. (AP)—Outraged townspeople, armed with an unloaded First World War machine-gun and barricaded by parked cars, have won a temporary stay of execute for a beloved elm tree.

The state public works department had ordered the tree removed on the theory that it was diseased and likely to blow across a street.

A score of partisans stood guard in this St. Lawrence county community Monday and while a tree surgeon examined the elm, he said it could be saved with treatment.

Personal Levy Will Not Change Until After July 1

Reduced Tax on Cars Is Effective Immediately

By ALAN DONNELLY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

OTTAWA (CP) — A delayed action tax cut aimed at eliminating $128,000,000 a year from the personal tax load of 3,000,000 Canadians has been proposed by Finance Minister Harris. Taxpayers won't start to notice the difference until July 1.

Mr. Harris, forecasting a $150,000,000 deficit for 1955-56 Tuesday night in his first budget, handed the lion's share of $148,000,000 in tax reductions for the year to individual payers of income tax.

The personal levy will be cut an average 10 per cent. But the effective date—July 1—means that for 1955 only half the benefit will be felt. Until then, taxpayers will go on paying at the old rate.

AUTO TAX CUT

Mr. Harris also wielded his tax knife, but less vigorously, for motorists and corporations.

He announced:

1. An immediate reduction to 10 per cent from 15 in the special excise tax on new automobiles.

2. Immediate lifting of the 10-per-cent excise tax on tires and tubes.

3. A cut of about four per cent in the income tax on corporations with incomes over $20,000, leaving the tax on smaller company incomes unchanged. The reduction is retroactive to last Jan. 1.

All tax reductions would amount to $148,000,000 this fiscal year. About four per cent of all tax income—and $207,000,000 in a full year of application.

INCREASES BALK

A few small increases in some types of company taxation were too insignificant to show in budget predictions of revenue changes.

Although the personal income tax reductions will amount to an estimated $128,000,000 in a full calendar year, Mr. Harris predicts that will total $85,000,000 in the fiscal year ending March 31, 1956, due to the delayed start.

Cuts will range between 13 per cent for lower-paid Canadians to 23 per cent for those in top income brackets. Mr. Harris estimated 85 per cent of the 3,000,000 taxpayers will obtain reductions between 10 and 13 per cent.

He forecast these effects of other tax reductions: Corporation tax down $28,000,000 this fiscal year, $41,000,000 in a full year; special automobile excise tax down $27,000,000 a year; elimination of the tires-tubes tax, $8,500,000 a year.

VARIETY OF CUTS

A variety of minor sales tax changes will affect consumers, an estimated $1,000,000 in annual revenue.

The tax rate for corporation income remains unchanged at 18 per cent on the first $20,000 and is sliced to 45 per cent from 47 on earnings over that.

The sections in personal and corporate income tax affect only the parts of those levies going into general revenues. The special two-per-cent tax earmarked for the old age security fund remains unchanged.

Taxes will not be changed on beer, wines, tobacco, cigarets, tobacco, soft drinks and candies. Nor is there a change on television and radio sets where a special 15-per-cent excise tax is earmarked for the CBC and a 10-per-cent sales tax goes into general funds.

Mr. Harris forecast 1955-56 budget revenues at $4,202,000,000; expenditures at $4,352,000,000.

INCLUDED DEFICITS

The spending figure includes a $62,000,000 deficit incurred by the old age security fund in 1954-55. That, together with a $46,000,000 deficit from the 1953-54 pension fund, were covered by special loans.

'Bloody Shame, It Was,' Pubs Agree, That Churchill Denied Front Pages

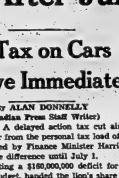
LONDON (AP) — They never along with the city's 10 morning papers, have been closed since 1926 except for last Friday by a wage strike of maintenance men.

So great many people didn't know Winnie had done it until they stopped in at the neighborhood pub after the evening news.

Thus one of the great British news stories of recent times was spread largely by word of mouth in a city whose dwellers are the world's most avid consumers of printed matter.

Pubs must have been the way the death of kings became known to the people in the old days before nearly everyone learned to read and the popular press came into being to tell them what was going on.

The London press was ready with some mighty fine eulogies—that's what the cab driver meant—but they didn't get printed in London.



The strikebound newspapers handed them to Prime Minister Eden, which put them on its teletype system. Bbc in London only members of the news profession read them.

"It's a bloody shame, it was."

The BBC gave out the news at 5:30 p. m., but a lot of Londoners were still working then or riding subway trains and buses home, and they didn't hear it.

Ordinarily they would have learned about this page in world history from their newspapers. But London's three afternoon dailies,

Eden Has Accepted Prime Ministry Post

Walks To Palace Where He Receives Seals Of Office

Harold Macmillan Expected To Be New Foreign Secretary

LONDON (CP) — Sir Anthony Eden walked out of Buckingham Palace today as the new prime minister of Great Britain.

The 57-year-old diplomat, who once quit the government rather than appease dictators, had been summoned by the Queen to take over the high office which Sir Winston Churchill vacated Tuesday.

An official announcement of Eden's acceptance was made at 11.35 a.m. (6.35 a.m. E.S.T.)

Nervously fidgeting with his tie and smoothing his grey hair, Churchill's political heir arrived 12 minutes early for his 11 a. m. appointment to kiss the Queen's hand and hear her historic offer.

The former foreign secretary's interview with the young sovereign followed the pattern by which England has named her prime ministers for centuries past.

GIVEN SEALS

Elegant—as usual for Eden—in immaculate morning dress and top hat, he was escorted by officials of the royal household to a room where the Queen awaited him.

He bowed low and then the Queen formally asked him if he would serve her as her "first lord of the treasury"—the nominal post which makes him her first minister.

Eden said he would be pleased to accept. Then, in accordance with tradition, he kissed the Queen's hand and accepted from her the seals of office which she received Tuesday from Churchill.

After the plain ceremony the Queen and her new prime minister stayed talking on terms of the problems he now has to solve, including the date of a national election and formation of a new government.

HONOR TO CHURCHILL

Churchill, in giving his resignation to the Queen, presumably "advised" her to appoint Eden to succeed him. Breaking with tradition to keep the day of resignation entirely Sir Winston's, the monarch waited overnight instead of calling her new first minister at once.

Following tradition, all Churchill's cabinet resigned along with him Tuesday. They were expected to recall most ministers, postponing any major reshuffle until after the voting.

Slight Mistake, Cadi Convicts Crown Witness

TORONTO (CP)—Magistrate Norman A. Gianelli got mixed up Tuesday.

He convicted a man for impaired driving.

"But, your worship," blurted crown attorney W. Herbert Lafoglon, "You have convicted the one crown witness, constable George Malherwax."

There was a ruffle of papers as magistrate Gianelli consulted his notes.

He withdrew the conviction and $80 fine against the police officer and transferred them to John Host, 32.

Recounts Likely In Several Michigan Votes

DETROIT (AP) — Michigan's ballot boxes and voting machines were ordered safeguarded today as recounts appeared likely in several of Monday's election contests.

All the returns are in from heavily Democratic Wayne (Detroit) county, but early Democratic leads in virtually all races were whittled as laggard outstate counties reported.

This dampened Democratic hopes of a sweep that would oust Republicans from every major office outside the Michigan legislature except that of state highway commissioner. Republicans still hold that, and substantial control of the legislature.

Governor G. Mennen Williams, often mentioned as a Democratic presidential candidate in 1956, campaigned vigorously for his party slate and was given strong backing from his Democratic-labor coalition.

Iran's Premier To Be Replaced

TEHRAN (AP)—A source at the shah of Iran's court said today Court Minister Hussein Ala has agreed to take over the Iranian premiership from Gen. Fazollah Zahedi.

Zahedi, strong man who destroyed the Mossadegh dictatorship and restored the shah to his throne-cock throw in 1953, was reported Tuesday to have resigned on account of ill health.

Ala's appointment will keep the government firmly in the hands of the court group who helped engineer Mossadegh's overthrow and put Iran back on the path of cooperation with the West.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) — Synopsis: A westerly flow of warm air will give southern Ontario sunny skies most of today with afternoon temperatures in the 60s. However, cold air which covers the prairies has invaded northern Ontario and its advance southward will bring some cloudiness to the latter part Thursday with temperatures 10 to 15 degrees lower than today's readings.

SUPERSONIC WIND TUNNEL WILL BE BUILT AT UPLANDS

Howe Says Cost Will Be $3,500,000

OTTAWA (CP) — A supersonic tunnel is to be built at Uplands airport at a cost of about $3,500,000, it is apparently part of a growing government interest in aviation research.

Construction of the tunnel was announced today in a joint statement by Hon. Ralph Campney, Minister of National Defence, and Hon. Clarence Decatur Howe, Minister of Defence Production.

The statement outlined the work so far of the National Aeronautical Establishment, created in 1951 to provide aviation research and development facilities, and plans for its future. NAE, at present run by the National Research Council, will handle the new wind tunnel.

Construction on the tunnel will start this summer and is expected to take three years. It will have a speed range of 200 to 3,000 miles an hour with which to test this speed, manoeuvrability, controllability and other performance qualities of new aircraft and missile developments.

The statement added:

"Installation of this versatile, powerful research tool is considered a necessity to support current and future Canadian development of military aircraft and guided missile air-defence guided weapons.

"Existing wind tunnels in Canada lack the variety of facilities necessary for jet and missile-ages developments, etc."

The Aeronautical Establishment at present consists of several small research wind tunnels with varying speeds and engine, structural and aerodynamics laboratories at the Research Council.

When the new wind tunnel is available, the statement said, NAE will move from the Research Council buildings. No updating will be taken over by the defence research board.

Abandon Ships In Heavy Ice Off Cape Breton

GLACE BAY, N. S. (CP)—Owners prepared today to determine the fate of two Nova Scotia steamers off this Cape Breton port Tuesday after becoming jammed in heavy ice.

The six crew members of the 30-ton Sarah Jacobs and her sister-ship Nelson Miles joined forces and walked mid-channel to the Nelson when the ice threatened to crush the Sarah Jacobs.

Owner Donald Cadegan who operates a fish business here said at first he believed the Sarah Jacobs had been sunk but later said it was possible she was being held up by the ice floes and being swept seaward.

Highlights of Budget

OTTAWA (CP) — Highlights of Finance Minister Harris' budget speech:

Personal income tax reduced by average 10 per cent, effective July 1; 13 to 15 per cent for $5 per cent of taxpayers.

Half of personal income tax cut applies on 1955 income; full in 1956.

Special 15-per-cent excise tax on new automobiles reduced to 10 per cent, effective immediately.

Special 10-per-cent excise tax on tires and tubes repealed immediately.

Corporation tax on large company incomes reduced to 45 per cent from 47, effective January 1, 1955; small company — under $20,000 income — tax unchanged.

Incentive tax concessions for oil, gas and mining industries, now temporary, made permanent.

Tax cuts total $168,000,000 for the current 1955-56 fiscal year or an estimated $207,000,000 for a full year.

Government to set up royal commission to survey Canada's economic prospects.

Government forecasts $150,000,000 budget deficit in 1955-56.

Budget revenue forecast at $4,202,000,000; expenditure, $4,383,000,000.

Earlier estimate of 1954-55 budget deficit of $148,251,000 revised to $134,000,000.

Minor exemptions to general sales tax provided, totalling about $1,000,000 a year, effective immediately.

Tariff of 7½ per cent imposed for first time on polyethylene resins, widely used in plastic industry, effective immediately.

Tariff board to inquire into tariffs on chemicals, potatoes and shimay iron and steel.

Canadian civilians abroad for a year or more may bring in household and personal effects duty-free if they have owned the articles for at least six months. The change, similar to a concession already given soldiers and government employees, is effective immediately.

Current taxes on liquor, beer, wines, cigarets, tobacco, soft drinks and candies unchanged.

No change in current 10-per-cent sales tax and 15-per-cent excise tax on television and radio sets.

No change in old age security tax—two per cent sales tax, corporation tax and income tax.

Canadians Generally Welcome Tax Reductions in Budget

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canadians today gave general welcome to tax reductions announced in the federal budget and hailed them as a stimulant to business.

The welcome, however, was mixed with criticism, especially from sections of the economy which felt their needs had been overlooked.

J. A. Calder, president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, said Finance Minister Harris had recognized that business and employment both needed a shot in the arm, and described Mr. Harris' approach as "realistic."

The two-per-cent reduction in corporation income tax would encourage manufacturers, though the remaining 45-per-cent remained "unduly high." Reduction in personal income rates should give a fillip to purchasing power generally. He regretted that the minister did not see fit to provide safeguards for Canadian industries whose products were being replaced by "increasingly low-priced imports."

James Muir, president and chairman of the Royal Bank of Canada, said Mr. Harris had made "a strategically correct approach to his problem," and added:

"If successful, his policy will promote an increase in the national product to the point where the yield of taxation would achieve the results he desires."

A different view came from George Burt, Canadian director of the United Automobile Workers (CIO-CCL), who said the budget is opposed to "the basic economic purposes of organized labor."

The reduction in personal income taxes, he stated, did not put enough purchasing power in the hands of the people who most need it, and the same was true of the reduction in corporation taxes.

Among the most disappointed were the woolens and tobacco industries.

Francis E. Cleyn of Huntington, Que., chairman of the wool cloth section of the Primary Textiles Institute, said announcement that there would be no tariff increase on imports from Britain "had disappointed many thousands of Canadians who rely on the industry for their livelihood."

Ruinous competition from abroad he said, had caused more than 30 Canadian wool-cloth mills to close down in recent years.

Fred Casselman, chairman of the Ontario Flue-Cured Tobacco Marketing Association, said peeves over no cigarets and tobacco unchanged by the budget, are "unrealistic discrimination against tobacco products."

Manufacturers, described as a bitter blow the decision to retain the special 15-per-cent excise tax on radio and television sets.

"We thought Ottawa could at least have reduced the tax by five per cent," said Stuart D. Brownlee, manager of the Radio and Electrical Manufacturers' Association of Canada. "That would still have meant quite a sizeable source of revenue."

William A. Wecker, president of General Motors of Canada, said the reduction in excise tax on automobiles from 15 per cent to 10 per cent "is certainly welcome" but regretted that the government could not see its way clear to remove the tax entirely.

He regretted, too, that some relief was not given to dealers who had already paid the old tax on new cars.

LOGICAL STEP

E. C. Row, president of Chrysler Corporation of Canada, thought the excise-tax reduction was a logical step if the industry was to be expected to maintain a high level of employment.

WORLD LEADERS LAVISH TRIBUTES ON CHURCHILL

Even Pro-Red Paper Gives Him Pat on Back

LONDON (CP)—Political" leaders and the press of the Western democracies lavished tributes today on Sir Winston Churchill. He even got a pat on the back from a pro-Communist paper.

In general, the 80-year-old British statesman's departure from the prime ministry was recognized as an historic moment in history. He was lauded far and wide as a leading architect of victory in the Second World War.

"More than any other single person he deserves honor for organizing the free people's fight against nazism and fascism," said Norway's Foreign Minister Halvard Lange.

Many agreed that Churchill's career is not over. President Eisenhower appeared before television and newsreel cameras in Washington to address this message to his old associate in hot and cold war:

". . . We shall never accept the fact that we are to be denied your counsel, your advice. Out of your great experience, your great wisdom and your great courage, the free world yet has much to gain. And we know that you will never be backward in bringing those qualities forward when we appeal to you for help, as all of us are bound to do."

'Bloody Shame, It Was,' Pubs Agree, That Churchill Denied Front Pages

LONDON (AP) — They never have thought he would do it in the middle of a newspaper strike.

That's what they were saying in the pubs Tuesday night as word spread that Sir Winston Churchill had resigned as prime minister.

And most Britons, even the Labor critics, thought it was a pity it had to end like that.

"He ought to have had his front pages this day," said a Scottish janitor who lives in cozy Conservative in his life.

"It must have broken the old man's heart to go out with none of them fine obituaries the newspapers get ready," said a bar owner. "A bloody shame, it was."

The BBC gave out the news at 5:30 p. m., but a lot of Londoners were still working then or riding subway trains and buses home, and they didn't hear it.

He foresaw these effects of other tax reductions: Corporation tax down $29,000,000 this fiscal year, $43,000,000 in a full tax year; automobile excise tax down $27,000,000 with elimination of the tires-tubes tax, $8,500,000 a year.

Fish and Game Club Closes Fine Season

The enrolment of 35 new members last night brought to a close of another successful season of the Belleville Fish and Game Association at its final meeting of the term at the YMCA here.

The club will meet again in the fall.

Following the general meeting the directors chose the winners of the club's fishing contest during 1954. First prize went to Leo Hudgies, Belleville, for his catch of a four-lb. speckled trout. Second place was given C. Caverly for an 8 lb.-8 oz. pickerel while third was E. Gibson with a 4 lb. 3 oz. brown trout.

A committee also was formed to handle arrangements for the setting-up of the club's shooting range, and consists of president Don MacKinnon, Bruce Smith, Howard Smith and Ken Yorke. The range, which is on loan from the Moira Valley Conservation Authority, is situated northwest of Foxboro on the seventh of Sidney township.

The club proposes to bulldoze the land before the spring season for both practice and competition shoots. Through the shoots it may be possible to organize into provincial and Dominion competition.

Another future activity for the club also was stressed by president MacKinnon when he reminded members of the forthcoming stream improvement plan which the club, instrumental in carrying out at Crystal Creek. The creek, situated south of Hallowy, will be surveyed by a Department of Lands and Forests official following which it is intended to commence work under the direction of Don Bell, field officer for the Moira Valley Conservation Authority.

The improvement work will include the construction of deflecting dams and the planting of willow trees around the stream.

Last night's meeting was highlighted by the showing of two films, "Breadcrumbs in the Reef" and "Newfoundland Scene."

The first was a fascinating record of sea-life filmed below a reef in the Caribbean Sea while the last presentation brought the members on a tour of Newfoundland and the sea hounding it.

The showing also saw draws for fishing gear and a "Swap Night" with members exchanging gear and tackle.

Winners of the night's draws were as follows:

Casting line, Will Broad; bait, Burton Wiley; spring-rod baits, Alec Wells, Dick Bird and Stan Downing.

Police Blotter

Theft of a bubble gum dispenser, together with its contents, from the doorway at Black's Wholesale store on Front street, was reported to police this morning. The gum dispenser was taken some time during the night.

Police recovered a car stolen from Toronto, which had been abandoned near the Greenleaf building.

The vehicle had been left parked adjacent to the Greenleaf building for several days before its presence was reported to police.

Makers Want Premium Prices For High Scoring Cheese

High scoring cheese should call for premium prices on cheese exchanges across the province is the feeling of members of the Central Ontario Cheesemakers' Association.

This was a topic up for discussion at the annual spring conference of the above association held Tuesday at the Hotel Quinte here. The matter was considered to enable interest on the part of members but no official action by way of resolution was taken.

Associated with the meeting was Neil of Moscow, introduced the matter in his president's address and several speakers heard later during the day also referred to the question. Mr. McNeil said that directors of the association felt cheese scoring 94 points should sell for more money than cheese scoring only 92 points.

Ralph Hall, dairy inspector of the Ontario Cheese Producers' Association, also referred to a premium being paid on high scoring cheese and said that cheesemakers were probably justified in questioning a marketing system which does not recognize any difference in the value of cheese scoring 94 and 92 points.

He said the Dairy Department of Canada recognizes the difference in value to the extent of two cents per pound and still the initial buyer is not required to pay any difference in the case of 94 scoring cheese. He noted that in other products quality almost invariably demands extra price.

MIGHT ACHIEVE RESULTS

He noted that selling cheese according to quality might achieve results. It might mean that some factories would be able to get more milk and it also occurred he asked whether the cheese maker would receive more money.

It also might mean an improvement in the quality of milk delivered to cheese factories and it stood to reason producer and cheese maker being paid for what he produces.

He noted that cheese buyers had been questioned on the matter of cheese grades according to score but they were not entirely agreed on their conclusions.

Referring to the 1955 market outlook for cheese, Mr. Heath said the domestic market outlook was good and that the sale of Ontario matured cheddar in the United Kingdom could be expected to be maintained and improved as the product became more firmly established. He noted Ontario cheese now sold at a substantial premium in the United Kingdom over that of New Zealand.

Mr. Heath said that there appeared to be a trend indicating customers would like to have cheddar cheese placed in eating places in individually wrapped portions. Increasingly, however, that top quality was vitally important if packaged cheese was to be branded by distributors.

He referred to an association in the state of Oregon which manufactures and merchandises ten million pounds of cheese annually. Special sizes of cheese were made and wrapped with very healthy prices being received. In 1953 supplying farmers received as high as $105 cwt. for their milk.

In conclusion, Mr. Heath said the initial selling of Ontario cheese was a phase of marketing due for careful consideration and close scrutiny.

Several speakers referred to the new government premium and price regulations to go into effect July 1st. On that date the government premium on $3 and 94 scoring cheese will apply only on cheese classifying No. 1 and No. 2 in an extraneous matter analysis.

There was little criticism of the new regulations, it being generally felt the move would result in the production of higher quality and cleaner cheese.

C. E. Lochner, chairman of the Ontario Milk Products Board, noted that in 1954 slightly over 53 per cent Ontario cheese would have been "passable" under the new premium payments regulations.

Farmers last year received approximately $800,000 in premium payments and unless there was an improvement this year farmers stood to lose close to $300,000 in premium on their cheese.

Tighter regulations with respect to the grading of milk were expected to be in force before long the year, according to Mr. Lochner. This regulation which would give the cheese maker wider authority in rejecting unfit milk and also in the new regulations regarding premium payments on high scoring cheese.

W. C. Cameron, associate director marketing services, emphasized the importance of uniformity in cheese and the classification of cheese for the consumer.

He stressed the importance of the "Canada" die on cheese for sale in the Canadian market. Only through use of this die could British consumers recognize Canadian quality cheese.

J. M. Bain, chief instructor for Canada and Western Canada, spoke on the results of experimental cheese. He noted that cheese made from clarified milk, mature as well or better than those made from unclarified milk and said that early waxing of cheese was necessary.

R. H. Gillan, dairy produce grader, reported on re-grading results.

Dr. A. Knutrom, Hansen's Laboratory, Milwaukee, talked on current developments in cultures.

Campney Expects Further Cuts In Defence Budget

VANCOUVER (CP) — Defence Minister Campney said here Tuesday night he hopes to make further reductions in the $2,000,000,000 budget for his department, but will do it cautiously.

Mr. Campney said reductions in public department "undoubtedly" had an effect on the 10-per-cent income tax cut and other tax reductions.

Mr. Campney, who spoke at a Liberal party rally, is in Vancouver to open a new federal customs building.

Ken McNaught New Proprietor Bateman Motors

A deal of considerable interest to residents of Belleville and district was announced today by C. A. Bateman, president and general manager of Bateman Motors Limited.

Ken McNaught has been associated with Bateman Motors for eight years and has a complete knowledge of all phases of the automobile business.

Prior to joining the company, Mr. McNaught was associated with General Motors of Canada, and while there played hockey with the Oshawa Generals and was a member of the team when they won the Memorial Cup. He also played with the Montreal Royals for some time. Mr. McNaught was president of the Belleville Hockey Association for quite a while, and during his time in hockey participated as a coach as well as a player. Mr. McNaught also served with the armed forces for four years.

Since joining Bateman Motors eight years ago, Mr. McNaught has held the positions of parts manager, service sales manager, retail salesman and general manager of the company.

Since moving to London when Bateman's first opened for several years ago, he has held the position of sales manager of the company.

Robin Russell, Northumberland, In Final Contest

Robin D. Russell, 13, a grade 8 pupil at Cook's school, Hamilton township, Northumberland County, will represent the Belleville district of the Ontario School Trustees' and Ratepayers' Association in an oratorical contest being held in conjunction with the Ontario Educational Association's annual meeting in Toronto April 7th to 9th.

Seven district finalists will take part in the public speaking contest which will be held in the King Edward Hotel.

Robin Russell won the Belleville district finals last November at Havelock with a speech on the life of Verdi. He is a pupil of Mrs. D. Birney.

The Belleville district includes Hastings, Northumberland, Dunham, Peterborough, Prince Edward and Frontenac counties.

Work on Land Starts in Oak Hills District

Approximately ten days later than in the normal year, spring cultivation has commenced on the higher ground in the Bay of Quinte area.

Ernest Hollinger, of the Oak Hills district, ten miles north of the city, reports that he has commenced cultivation on well-drained land. Frost has left the ground very quickly with result that moisture is sinking into the ground instead of running off and flooding the low areas. The snow has almost completely disappeared from the fields.

"Clover and meadows look good and fall grains have apparently wintered in good condition," Mr. Hollinger said.

IN MEMORIAM

COOK. — In loving memory of our dear mother and grandmother Elizabeth Jennie Cook, who passed away April 6th, 1954.
My cup runs dry of tears to-day
My heart is full of pain
My family is broken now
But memories live forever.
If I can see her as she was,
Nor has she travelled far
Just entered God's eternal home.
And left the gate ajar.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — Trading continued at the fairly brisk pace in history in early afternoon on the stock market today.

By 1 p. m. EST, 7,678,000 shares changed hands as enthusiasm for speculative issues brought buy orders flooding into the exchange.

All major sections of the market advanced strongly with industrials climbing more than a point on the 1 p. m. index.

Uranium issues and other lower-priced issues accounted for most of the huge turnover. One stock alone, Coldstream Copper Mines, accounted for more than half a million shares. The stock climbed 19 to 49 after touching 53 cents following underwriting.

Coulee and Headway, which jointly own properties in the Oka district of Quebec, continued to gain strength. Coulee climbed 39 to $3.20 and Headway 39 to $3.10 for a 1955 high.

Pronto, however, fell to $1.70.

DOLLAR RATE

MONTREAL (CP) — The U. S. dollar was at a discount of 1 19-32 per cent the Bank of Canada reported at noon EST, today. Tuesday's noon rate was 98 5-16 cents. Pound sterling $2.75 1-16, up 1-16.

APRIL

Mists o'er the lush green meadow,
Arrow of silver showers,
Winds that awake the blossoms
Sleeping through winter hours,
Migrants a-winging northward,
Streams from their fetters free,
The first red blush on the maple—
True herald of Spring to be.

Oh! May we catch the summons
The winds of April bring,
The call to the world of nature
To wake to new life and Spring.
And oh! may the heart and spirit
Respond to Springtime's yearn,
And like the feathered migrants
Rejoice in the Spring's return.

District Lakeshore Property Owners To Attend Joint Commission Meets

Representation from the Bay of Quinte and Lake Ontario Shore Property Protective Association of Trenton will be present at public meetings of the International Joint Commission in Toronto and Rochester called to discuss Great Lakes water levels. The Toronto meeting is scheduled for April 14.

In a recent press release the Joint Commission stated that under a new method of regulation for the waters in the St. Lawrence River Project, Lake Ontario shore property owners would see a maximum level of 248 feet. The record peak of these waters is 249.3 feet.

It is stated that Bay of Quinte and Lake Ontario Association members want the level set at 246 feet, and will present a brief to this effect at the Joint Commission hearing called to hear the views of all interested parties. The Bay of Quinte group believes the 246-foot level is too high.

At its meetings held in Montreal on 14, 15 and 16 March, the International Joint Commission examined with its technical advisers the feasibility of introducing the wide fluctuations of levels (up to 6.6 feet) which have prevailed on Lake Ontario in the past. The Commission came to the tentative conclusion that, having due regard to all the interests concerned, both upstream and downstream from the International rapids section, it would be technically feasible to operate the St. Lawrence power project so as to reduce the wide range of fluctuations of levels on Lake Ontario.

In order to achieve this desirable result, the commission's tentative view is that a new method of regulation for the waters used in the project must be substituted for Method of Regulation No. 5 referred to in the Commission's Order of Approval of 29 August, 1952. The new method of regulation would fulfill the basic requirements of that Order and would comply with the detailed criteria attached hereto.

These standards set are designed to benefit all interested parties. They will afford protection for downstream interests and, in fact, would improve conditions on Lake St. Louis. The lakefront property owners on Lake Ontario will find substantial relief from the high water levels, which reached a recorded peak of 249.3 feet. The maximum level, under historical supply conditions, would under the regulation proposed not exceed 248.0 feet. Navigation interests will gain the advantage of 1.3 feet in depth which is important under low water conditions by virtue of raising the extreme low Lake Ontario zone of regulation from 242.7 feet to 244.0 feet. Water supply, sanitation, recreational, municipal and other lakeshore interests will also benefit from this substantial improvement in low water conditions. Finally, the power interests will obtain, under the new method of regulation, a regulated flow of water which will represent an improvement over the benefits which might have been calculated under the method contemplated in 1952.

Eden Admits Churchill Still 'Dominant Figure'

LONDON (CP) — Sir Anthony Eden took over as prime minister of Great Britain today with the frank admission that Winston Churchill is "still the dominant figure among us."

The 57-year-old Eden went to the House of Commons to laud his political godfather within a few hours after Queen Elizabeth II had named him 42nd premier in British history—the youngest in three decades.

"We all know that whenever he (Churchill) returns to us from his holiday he will still be the dominant figure among us," Eden said in a voice shaking with emotion.

The 80-year-old Churchill, who retired Tuesday, is keeping his seat in the House of Commons as an elder statesman on the back benches.

Churchill was not present to hear the tributes of Eden and Clement Attlee, leader of the Labor opposition.

Eden said Churchill's greatest attribute in statesmanship rests on the fact that "he brought a most complete vision" to problems before him and always cut through to their core.

Attlee, the opposition leader, said Churchill "gave leadership to the country when it needed it most." His voice seemed to break a little as he spoke of his party's "warm affection" for the wartime leader.

Council Sets 60-Mill Tax Rate Also Votes to Pay Members

TRENTON (Special) — Town council enacted two pieces of legislation affecting the ratepayers here Tuesday night.

First of all by a unanimous vote the tax rate of 60 mills, seven mills above the rate in 1954, was confirmed. Figures showed that the rise in education costs accounted for 6.83 mills of the increase. The first instalments of taxes under the new rate are due May 16. Penalty for defaulting is one per cent the first month and one per cent per month in each calendar month thereafter.

For the first time in municipal history town councillors will be paid for their services. By a vote of 3 to 1 a by-law was adopted authorizing the town treasurer to pay Councillor $300 yearly. Councillor N. J. McNair objected without comment.

It was not so many years ago that the ratepayers voted against salaries for councillors. In the same balloting the residents who pay the bills authorized pay for the mayor.

All councilmen agreed that Mayor Burt Bonter receive an annual remuneration of $1,200.

Salaries for council will become effective when the by-law has been finally passed by the Department of Municipal Affairs.

In the case of councilmen absent from meeting the penalty is a deduction of $12.50 from their set salary. The Act carries no penalty for the mayor in that event he does not attend regular meetings.

The mayor is on the payroll as of January 1. Council has the authority to approve his salary without sanction of the Municipal Affairs Department.

WILL SEND ENGINEER

Council decided to send town engineer Reid Clarke to the meeting of the International Joint Commission hearing in Toronto, April 14... As spokesman for the town he will propose that the water levels be set at a point not exceeding 246 feet. The Joint Commission seeks to establish the lake level higher.

Alarmed at the expectations of higher waters and damages from erosion residents of Trenton, Belleville and district, owning bay and lakefront property formed a protective association that has for the purpose of bringing attention to the plight land owners in the Quinte area are faced with if the high mark goes into effect. The association is sending representation to the Joint Commission hearing.

A recommendation from the Board of Health that Trenton water be given fluorine treatment was passed along to the Public Utilities Commission.

CheeseExchange

A total of 1,358 cheese was sold on the Belleville Cheese Exchange last night. The total consisted of 810 specials and 1,148 colored — the heaviest offering of colored in some weeks. Price all round was 30 cents. Next meeting of the Exchange will be April 19.

CHURCHILL

The Man

Sir Winston Churchill has resigned.

"Retired" is not the word.

A man who when he withdraws from business. Churchill's business is life. He will not retire while breath is left in his aging, pudgy, gallant body.

Sir Winston has resigned as prime minister of Britain, resigned before his life work was completed.

But that was inevitable.

Churchill is not merely a big man; he is a great man. Big men make themselves into history, take it by prodigious effort, by fortuitous circumstances, by being born in the right hour in history, they finish these big tasks.

But the great man, while he labors at a big task, never lets his horizons be so narrowed that he does not see other big tasks challenging his hands and his energies.

Churchill could live to be a thousand without finishing his life work.

This man blessed with unquenchable faith in himself and enduring hope in the future has not come by this faith and this hope as the result of an easy parade of triumphs. Rather has his life been a ceaseless struggle against adversity.

Some times he was wrong; unlike lesser men, he was able to recognize the fact and change his views.

Many times he was right; and too frequently when he was most right he was most ignored.

Several times events proved him right; then, as only the great can do, he came back from the depths of past slights and bowed his shoulders to tasks, made more arduous and necessary by delays imposed by the obtuseness or stupidity of others.

Yet, though fortune spurned him through most of his years, he was that happiest of men, a man born for his time.

If there had been no Churchill, the poet's hard, grey Englishmen would still have been prepared to bleed and sweat and cry, to fight on the beaches, on the landing fields, in the fields, in the streets and in the hills. But they would never have been able to say so.

They needed a man, not hard, not grey, only half an Englishman, to give utterance to the cry locked in their souls.

They found that man, and that man found them, and together they sweat and bled and wept and fought—and came at last to victory.

But while the hard, grey men he had led rested, and tended their wounds and dried their tears, Churchill straightened his back and raised his eyes to search out the next task.

There on the horizon it loomed—the struggle for a world at peace. This time, however, there was to be no victory for him. Time and the times were against him.

Yet it is possible that his millions of admirers, in almost every nation of the world, may eventually offer him victory. Also, following upon the downfall of men so accidently desired to lead, into a world both safe and free.

If the future could grant him this final triumph it would, as they have in the past, in those days remaining to him, days which all his well-wishers, of varied political faiths and of many races, will hope are long, happy and blessed with continued vigor of mind and body.

His Era

The fifty years of the Churchill era have been the most turbulent in mankind's turbulent history. Science, philosophy and economics have conspired to change the world and man's place in it with unprecedented swiftness and power. Men, races, nations, even their distinguishing traits have given nations a consciousness of their identity while destroying individual man's appreciation of his own identity. Economic forces have been challenged by experiments at control with the resulting tensions involving all men, everywhere. Science has given man weapons which threaten his very existence.

These combinations of forces and events has created a turbulence in nations and in men that has spawned physical, economic and idiological wars on a scale never before experienced by the human race.

This is the period to which Churchill bequeaths his name.

In the age of the common man he was the most uncommon man alive.

He personified individualism in an age that tended to collectivism. In an atmosphere of fear he radiated courage. In a world of doubt he spread a world at war. He prophesied victory from the abyss of defeat. He was reckless in danger and cautious in victory. He sang of hope while the world groaned in despair and he groaned when the world clutched at false hopes.

He was a dreamer with his shirt sleeves rolled up, his tools in order, and his spirit kindled for the task ahead. He met life's challenges with spirit and with joy, and while he took his duties seriously he never took himself too seriously.

Sir Winston is one of History's most gallant knights.

SNOWDROPS

When in the dirt I used to play,
As often was the case,
My parents ordered me away
To wash my hands and face.
They did not care to dine with me
In
With cheeks and forehead smeared.
And since I wasn't fit to see,
I promptly disappeared.

But in the spring the snowdrops
white
Come rising from the soil.
No sign of dirt appears in sight
Their loveliness to spoil.

The spotless petals they display
Are always fit to see.
To wash they're never sent away,
As oft we have done with me.

The snowdrops rise through mud and clay
As soon as spring returns.
They have a way to spotless stay
No human ever learns.
They show a mark of having toiled,
But gleaming in the sun
They keep themselves by dirt unspoiled.
I wonder how it's done.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

April 6, 1918

Mr. Bruce Graham will leave tomorrow for a business trip to the Old Country.

Mr. Arthur Graham parade of the Argyll Light Infantry and ex-service men will take place Sunday morning to Holloway Street United Church. The battalion brass band and the pipe band will be in the parade. The service will be conducted by the pastor, the Rev. R. E. Newman.

Maple sugar is plentiful on the market today and sold at 40 cents per quart or $1.50 per gallon. Maple sugar sold at 30 cents a pound. Butter sold at 25 cents per pound or 3 lbs. for 70 cents; eggs brought 14 cents to 18 cents per dozen for spring and 13 cents to 13 cents for pullets; Chickens 80 cents to $1. per pair; ducks 90 cents to $1. and geese $1.25 to $1.50; potatoes 50 cents per bag.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Morant of Montreal are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Cronk, Albert Street.

Major the Rev. A. Beauchamp Payne, Vicar of St. Thomas' Church here will be the special speaker at the eighteenth anniversary of "my" Ridge Day which is to be conducted by the veterans of Trenton Branch of the Canadian Legion on Tuesday evening.

30 YEARS AGO

April 6, 1923

St. John's Anglican Church in the Vlei in the Village of Bath, one of the oldest edifices in the province, dating back 133 years, was destroyed by fire on the afternoon of April 5th. The fire started from a spark from a grass in the church yard and it was not known that the church had caught fire until flames broke out in the roof and spire. The Rev. W. G. Swayne is the rector of the parish.

Big operations will commence shortly in the preparations of the new athletic park, according to Mr. Thomas F. D. Power, the chairman of the Board.

Archdeacon the Ven. George Ross Beamish, M.S., rector of St. Thomas' Parish, presented fifty candidates for the rite of confirmation to the Lord Bishop of the Diocese of Ontario on Sunday morning. Archdeacon Beamish has been in Orders for twenty - seven years and during that time he has had on an average of forty candidates each year for confirmation.

40 YEARS AGO

April 6, 1915

Mrs. C. Hadden has returned to her home in Picton after visiting Mrs. H. J. Clarke, Foster Avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Way, Hillside Street, have returned home after visiting at the home of Mrs. J. Way, Wooler.

Mr. G. L. Reid is here from Ottawa on a visit to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James A. Bird.

Work on the new building for the Canadian Bank of Commerce at the corner of Front and Campbell Streets, will commence in May.

Mr. P. H. Clarke of St. Ola was in town today.

Mrs. S. G. Sills, Avondale, Trent Road, left today to visit friends in Chicago and Vancouver.

Mr. Harry J. Clarke, B. A. is attending meetings of the Library Association and the Teachers' Association in Toronto.

50 YEARS AGO

April 6, 1905

The Belleville old boys and girls now living in Toronto, are making preparations to visit the "old home town" at the time of the reunion this summer and they will run an excursion to this city on July 22 and will remain here until July 24. The return fare will be $1.75.

Mr. Arthur R. Weeks, photographer, formerly of this city and for the past three years a resident of Peterborough, is spending a few days in town.

The Rev. Rural Dean G. H. Seamish, M.A., rector of St. Thomas' Church, gave a Lenten address in St. John's Church, Peterborough, last evening.

Faith That Survives

(Excerpts in this West Bank Herald, New Orleans, from an editorial by Robert M. Stewart, which received the Freedoms Foundation Award.)

The Communists say that in God is a narcotic for the masses; that is a fine classic philosophy and that Jesus Christ was a revolutionary.

With one stroke of the pen, the Soviets dispose of a faith that has survived man's hundred for one thousand one hundred and fifty five years. With one group of words the Red World have up before it the lieve that God is a myth and Jesus Christ a faker. In one single sentence they would destroy the hope of mankind.

In their attempt to degrade human beings to the status of animals, the Soviets know they first must destroy his faith in himself in others and in God. When this has been done and the futility of despair has set in, then, like chattel, he meekly will accept the brutal subjugation of the absolute dictatorship. When the last vestige becomes an automat of a terrible tyranny.

Democracy and Christianity recognize the personal dignity of the individual. Democracy says that he has a soul and Democracy gives him freedom to worship, speak and act.

It is sad man, indeed, who does not recognize the power of the supreme Being. His influence in our daily lives, and the strength we receive from Him, in prayer and prayer.

Much of us finds it extremely hard and difficult to keep his own life in harmony and balance. What greater power is needed to keep the mechanism of the whole of nature in line?

Those of us who have known the utter desolation of tragedy; of frustration and hope; of need not be told of this power that surpasses all, first-hand, from experience. Those of us who have prayed for guidance in a highly complex world have found God's great power in the solution of these problems. All Christians know that many prayers are answered almost at the moment of prayer.

The godless men of Russia do not know these things. They have cast faith, love, goodness and mercy from their hearts. Perhaps they have never known the joy of real happiness, a gentle love and happy associations. To say that these things do not exist is to condemn all men. A sightless person may not see a rose, for he can smell its fragrance. A deaf person may not hear the happy voices of little children but he can feel their tender presence.

We say there is no God is to say there is no life. If we admit life we must admit God. Faith is a dynamic force that takes in all of the philosophy, science, history and progress of man. It is practical and workable. It is not just a corner where we may seek out in time of trouble—it is not only a refuge for those that have no other place to go. It is the foundation the lives of men toward a better, more abundant and substantial life. It gives peace of mind, brave courage and a quiet will to face and conquer all things.

Yet, its power is not enforced at the point of a bayonet, threat of imprisonment or death before squads. Men accept it voluntarily and willingly gladly.

This the Soviets would destroy! Which clearly defines, in letters of fire, the true nature of all things they advocate. They may pass laws and issue decrees but they should know from the recorded pages of history, that faith in God cannot be wrung out of the hearts of men. For One Thousand Nine Hundred and Fifty Years it has survived, and as God as men live it will endure.

Andersen's Fairy Tale

(New York Times)

No fairy tale ever written is, more full of wonder than the real one that started 150 years ago today (April 2). None of the circumstances surrounding the birth of Hans Christian Andersen in Odense on April 2, 1805, could in the least foreshadow the fame today his native Denmark, her fellow countries happy to join with her, celebrates the anniversary of one of her most famous sons. The child of a poor shoemaker, died when he was young, and his widow was left with the wash clothes in the Odense River to support herself and her only child, her youngster. The child himself, unprepossessing in appearance, awkward, shy, lacking in all ways, refused the benefits of education in formal and conventional schools. And this was the boy who believed sublimely in the words of a fortuneteller that he was to be a great man and that his native town some day would be illuminated in his honor.

Nothing daunted him. When others were in the classroom he was inventing plays for the displays of Holberg and Shakespeare, and writing his own for the theatre he had himself founded where he acted all the roles. At 14 he went to Copenhagen to seek fame and fortune in the theatre in the Danish capital. After years of failure followed, and eventually he switched from acting to writing. Some influential friends of the Danish King provided him with a scholarship which enabled him to travel through Europe. His impressions of foreign lands, published for the first time in 1833, gave him his first triumph. He was soon translated into other languages, and found himself a figure known and loved throughout the Civilized world. Charles Dickens escorted him to Ramsgate pier at the end of his first visit to England, in 1847. The fortuneteller's prediction was coming true.

Frustration of a sort common to artists nevertheless dogged his life in exaggerated measure. The world, Denmark included, seemed elsewhere. An unparalleled tellier of fairy tales, he finished his recognition as novelist and playwright, but this was denied by a public impervious to some of his little stories. In the agony of learning to write he turned his back on his own great gift. For these tales, matchless expressions of insight into the hearts of young and made their elders and children alike, were for him the simple legends of his native land—he added genius. The commonplace developed under his magic touch. The few flowers on the roof of the Old Danish Hall he born were transformed into the Snowdrop of his immortal story. A shiny pair of boots that dogedly clutched his attention during a performance of Hamlet was immortalized in the Red Shoes. His attic room became the setting for Only a Fiddler. And he himself —who else but the Ugly Duckling.

Today more than sixty countries will be celebrating his birthday. The London the National Book League is arranging for an exhibition of his works. Denmark, his native land, has founded Elysees, is hursing pridefully over an international display of children's illustrations of his tales. His acclaim pierces even the Iron Curtain. And the bright fame has been sanctioned in Pelping. Mao Tse-tung's favorite is Odense, vindicating the words of the fortuneteller, will be illuminated in his honor. Next year will join with hundreds of digthanks from nations and languages, and found himself a memorative celebration at the figure known and loved throughout the Civilized world. Charles Dickens escorted him to Ramsgate pier at the end of his first visit to England, in 1847. The

Sports Terms Have Changed

(Neal O'Hara, in The Philadelphia Bulletin)

Modern sports terminology don't seem to dip into mythology as they did half a century ago.

In those days many a baseball game was "interrupted by Jupiter Pluvius," instead of being called on account of rain; or "Old Boreas," instead of a strong wind, made kicking a football difficult, or "Old Sol," instead of a blistering sun, made the athletes uncomfortable.

Many an "Argus-eyed" pitcher caught a runner off base sometimes because the careless base runner was "deep in the arms of Morpheus." Many a runner stole a base "with the speed of Mercury." And in a pitcher might be a doubleheader "with the strength of Hercules."

Those likewise wore the days of snappy slang when first base was the initial bag, second base was the keystone sack and third base was the hot corner. The outfielders cavorted in the outer garden, the pitcher mounted the rubber rostrum, and a pennant-winning team either matched the cherry-cloth or garnered the gonfalon.

Early Nautilus Trapped by Mud

(Manchester Guardian)

The trials of the United States nuclear-powered submarine Nautilus will recall memories of the occasion in 1887 when the British admiralty arranged for an experimental dive of another pioneer submarine named Nautilus in Tilbury dock.

That little vessel, crude by modern standards, submerged with a distinguished party on board. Then she stuck her bed mud on the dock bottom and for hours the crew made frantic efforts to free her.

They were beginning to despair of success when an observer suggested rolling the vessel. This movement promptly released the submarine from the grip of the mud and she shot to the dock surface, to the great relief of all aboard.

Why, naturally she have to walk a country mile for her mail, but if she required a box, she has to pay $2.00 a year.

Personal Health Talks

By DR. WM. BRADY.

ENOUGH TO MAKE A PESSIMIST

Regular readers, if any, will have noticed, I hope, that the author is pessimistic about the diagnosis and treatment of chronic "arthritis."

Dr. Brady

In the first place, most victims of the "arthritis" swindle have a fair to middling idea what ails them nor have they the wish to know.

They drift along like children as long as their memory holds out or their "leading" quacks come up every month or two with the very latest wonder drug, which, unfortunately, is not yet freely available and hence extremely expensive.

Not yet freely available to the general profession, that is. By dint of his eminence, the charlatan has enough at his disposal to take care of a fair selected cases. The new drug has what the tricksters call "great promises," even though it may not be an immediate cure for arthritis.

For a while the medical journals carry reports of treatment of series of cases with the drug which seem to be movies very encouraging. Although I should have known better, from bitter experience, I permitted my personal sympathy to overrule my professional judgment and recommended the use of a "wonder" drug for the rheumatic (the patient's physician called it arthritis) of a member of my own family. The dope gave extremely heavy relief from pain and hopeless for a few days — and in an irresponsible child, I suppose I will about it here.

Simultaneously with publications of my half-baked ping cause reports of disastrous by-effects followed by the death some of them fatal. And, while there was no such effect in the case in which I was interested, the pain and lameness returned as the effects of the drug wore off, and that was the end of the experiment.

I broke the Hippocratic injunction which I have tried to follow here since Tonga was a colt. And I tell you I prayed hard that no harm would come to any reader who might take the dope on the strength of my ill-considered words.

Yes, I'm a pessimist. Want to make anything of it?

Let me add that proper books are under treatment for "arthritis" two simple questions:

1) What does the word arthritis mean? It means joint inflammation—and the cause of your trouble joint inflammation in Greek or Latin-derived words. Simple, isn't it? Sup-

2) Whatever became of chronic rheumatism after "arthritis" became fashionable?

ENJOY YOUR FRIENDS

A friend wouldn't be worth his salt were it not for the fact that God gave him to us to be enjoyed! He is a friend in name only, otherwise. But that doesn't mean we always—a friend of ours should find enjoyment in us.

The most stable investment on earth is that of a friend. A fortune in money can easily be wiped out in a day, but when we invest in a friend it is for a lifetime. Our love and confidence in a friend remains through storms, depressions and wars. It takes more than any of these things to wipe out a friend.

Friends to be valuable, however, must be enjoyed. They are gradually inherit something of ourselves, so that they become in many ways our other self. Then it is that the enjoyment begins. The love for our friends grows as we learn the more to accurately appraise them. The better we know them the greater is our enjoyment in them.

A friendship is like a garden. It must be regularly watered and fertilized, if it is going to grow best, like a garden does. A garden lives through a drought if it is watered occasionally, but the more we ought to enjoy such a one to the full we see, can't that friend like you do a bond, a house, a boat, or a suit of clothes. A friend is a friend for a lifetime!

How fortunate it is that we can select our friends. We can choose the ones to enjoy because of like interests, temperament and personality. We begin to enjoy such a friend, or friends, the richness of our experience, each time we see them. And how worth while! Nothing is so valuable as a friendship that we enjoy! In other words, a friend for a lifetime!

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

So much publicity has been given the marvels of mechanization of our wonder age that we are liable to forget that countless thousands of our fellow citizens still work with tools as ancient as man, and there is little likelihood the skills that were developed in the time of Moses will ever be superseded while we live. We find stone axes amongst the remains of the Stone Age civilizations. And the axe today is still the basic implement of every acre of inhabited land on the face of the globe. We count the machete and various oldfashioned tools as axes for all intents and purposes. When the bulldozer and the power saw get into their job, the axeman has to follow.

The file is even a more striking example of the essential handicraft tools. Files are referred to in the Bible, and archaeologists find files in the most ancient ruins. Even stone-age man used rough flints as files.

Today, not a casting comes out of the most ultra-modern foundry that does not require to be filed by men expert in that art passed many familiar of all tools. Rarely a gear is assembled, a die casting fitted, a pattern made, without the use of the file in the hands of a master of an industrial art, which filling is. Files are like many other types of file, and in every industry they have to be employed, from foundries to aircraft engine works, from watch repair shops and jewellers' establishments. Here are men skilled in the employment of files with a dexterity unsurpassed wherever else it is done. When we look at a new motor car, we think a little proudly of the skill of mass production. It would be interesting to know how many files have been touched this masterpiece of modern mechanics and design from start to finish, from its castings, body metal, engine, gears, intricate ignition system, plastics, glass and aluminum. It probably would be nearer a hundred than a thousand. Mechanization has become slightly mythical in contract to the realism of human handicraft.

NOT MORE RELIGION

A great deal is being said today about the necessity of getting back to religion as a way to save the life of the world.

Christians who believe, teach and practice sound New Testament religion may well scoff at such an idea and reject it. The word "religion" is derived from a Latin word meaning to restrain, to bind, to bring back, binding fast. Christianity is something vastly more than this. It is the revelation of God and the invitation to people to attain salvation through faith. Public speakers, journalists, politicians and others are constantly hammering away at the idea that we must have more religion.

But what kind of religion? For Christians, there can be only one kind of religion—the New Testament religion. Jesus Christ is to be our Himself at the center of a process of redemption. This is the religion we need more than anything else today—more love, benevolence, loving one's neighbor, being tolerant, trying to keep the Golden Rule, going to church and Sunday school.

"I, Jesus ," This we read in the Book of Revelation. Religion for us must mean fellowship with that One who was dead and is now alive for ever more and who has the keys of hell and death (Rev. 1:18).

What we need is not more religion, but more vigor, indeed, more faith in that Messiah which God has sent to redeem the world.

Canada To Work For Freer World Trade--Harris

Surge of Tariff Protectionist Sentiment in U.S. Clouds Trade Picture Throughout World

By JOHN LEBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Harris Tuesday night said a new surge of protectionist sentiment exists in the United States and that Canada will work for freer world trade.

In his first budget speech Parliament has entered the U.S. administration with resisting trade-choking proposals but said efforts have been disappointing.

He asked the U.S. to continue in the forefront leadership in lowering barriers against free trade throughout the world.

He added:

"It is of the utmost importance for the future of international economic co-operation that the U.S. should continue to give positive direction in leadership in reducing barriers to the free flow of world trade."

HINGE ON U.S. ECONOMY

From the strictly - Canadian standpoint, Mr. Harris said that Canada's economic welfare--apart from links with world trade generally--hinges to some extent on the U.S. economy. He described recent developments in U.S. economic activity as "heartening" for Canada's export industries.

Mr. Harris, in the background part of his budget speech before getting down to the tariff changes, also reported a 1954-55 budget deficit of $400,000,000 and Canadian government's first in nine years.

The deficit was based on estimated revenues of $4,187,136,000 and expenditures of $4,587,136,000 for the fiscal year that ended last March 31. It compared with a surplus of $155,000,000 for the 1953-54 fiscal year.

Each of the fiscal part of the budget speech reviewed what was covered in the paper which Mr. Harris tabled in the Commons Monday.

SUMMARIZES FISCAL YEAR.

Summarizing the fiscal picture Mr. Harris also said:

1. Despite heavy investments in the world situation, the free nations cannot afford to relax from building up their defences.

2. Canada intends to join other countries in the conference of the tariff concessions under the revised 36-country General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

3. The government has decided not to increase the tariff on British woollens, despite representations from Canadian manufacturers.

4. The government cannot correct competitive troubles of Canadian industry as a result of world competition, but resourceful efforts by management and labor will help us able to do this.

5. Canada's exports there likely to expand.

6. National production which fell off last year should expand this year by five or six per cent to about $25,250,000,000, a better-than-normal rate of growth.

LACK OF PROGRESS

Mr. Harris's remarks on U.S. trade policies evidently were engendered by the fact that the U.S. is generally regarded as largely responsible for new barriers to increased trade that have been put up in last round of international negotiations late in 1954 and early this year.

He said tribute to U.S. efforts in recent years to lower trade liability, expand production and increase international trade.

"In these efforts no nation has played a more constructive role than the United States," he said.

AMERICAN POLICIES

"In the last 12 months, however, there were also developments in American policies, there was a disappointing lack of progress toward actual reduction of trade barriers and there were disconcerting signs of a surge of protectionist feeling in response to the increase in competitive conditions."

WELCOMES ASSISTANCE

While Canada welcomes resistance by the U.S. administration to moves that would add to trade barriers that resistance had not been uniformly successful.

"It must be recognized," Mr. Harris said, "that actions, proposed or even implied by the government of the United States may weaken support for liberal commercial policies and may impose upon the United States and the supporters of such policies a greater burden in defending them in our own countries."

"One country cannot attempt to get for itself more benefit at the cost of the minimum adjustments without creating a desire in other countries to achieve similar benefits. There must be a reasonable give and take in any desirable trade relationships . . ."

Canada should continue to play her part in promoting that objective. It was clearly in Canada's interest to buy more from abroad so other countries could buy more from Canada.

For this reason, Canada as an important exporting country must "look very carefully" at proposals for tariff protection and other assistance for Canadian industry in accordance with countries selling to Canada.

BORNE BY CONSUMER

"The effects of higher costs resulting from artificial assistance in one form or another," he declared, "would have to be borne by the Canadian consumer in the form of higher taxes and higher prices and, even more important, by the Canadian producer for export in his own and markets overseas and lost employment here."

In dealing with the relationship of the U.S. economy to that of Canada, Mr. Harris said Canadian production and employment last year were adversely affected by U.S. recession.

"Our economic relations with the U.S. are so significant for Canada to remain unaffected when the American economy is going through a period of readjustment," he said. "Fortunately, those conditions have begun to disappear."

Of external trade Mr. Harris said that in the last four months there has been an encouraging reversal of a previous downward trend in exports to the U.S. and continue to expand in the year ahead with better prices for wheat, lumber and continuation of prosperous conditions in western Europe and the United Kingdom.

Within Canada, there should be further expansion of industrial activity. Government fiscal and monetary policies would contribute to be aimed at encouraging enterprise, investment and employment.

Mr. Harris said the government expenditures will also continue to provide substantial support to construction and employment in the year ahead. Apart from public works, expenditures on social welfare such as old age pensions will be substantially increased, based on law with growth in population.

The forecast indicated an active increase in consumer spending on goods, despite the expected "confidently."

Although these factors into account, Mr. Harris said he felt justified in making his prediction of a national production of $25,250,000,000 "or perhaps just a bit more"—if there are been "no unforeseen adverse events."

Average Price Of New Cars Likely to Drop

OTTAWA (CP) — The average price of new automobiles likely will drop as a result of the government's decision to reduce the excise tax by one-third.

Motorists also may get a break in the budget proposal to cut Finance Minister Harris' budget that the 10-per-cent excise tax on new tires and tubes is eliminated. Both decisions are effective immediately.

The excise tax on cars will be reduced to 10 per cent from 15. Officials estimated that the reduction will amount to about $75 on a car selling at a retail price of $1,000. The saving would be larger on higher-priced models.

The tax is borne by the manufacturer's selling price. Officials said they are sure that, under competitive conditions in the auto market, the tax cut will be passed along to the consumer.

The tax cut on tires selling, say, at a wholesale price of $18, would amount to $1.80 on a tube selling at $2.50 wholesale, the reduction would be 25 cents.

Altogether, the federal treasury will lose about $34,000,000 in potential revenue in the 1955-56 fiscal year through these cuts.

Persons who already have purchased new cars cannot obtain tax refunds. The reductions apply only to future purchases starting today.

Expect Gross National Product To Be Increased

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Harris forecast Tuesday night that Canada's Gross National Production—value of all goods and services produced—will rise in 1955 to a record $25,250,000,000 or more.

This would be an increase of more than five per cent or $1,250,000,000 from the GNP of $24,000,000,000 in 1954. The previous high was $24,400,000,000 in 1953.

Mr. Harris' estimate is based on an average crop and various public and private spending estimates indicating, he said, an active year for production.

Canada Plans To Bring In Heavy Water

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada plans to import substantial quantities of heavy water from the United States during the next three years for use in this country's atomic energy program.

This was disclosed Tuesday night by a government official after Finance Minister Harris announced in his budget that a 15-per-cent duty on imports of heavy water has been removed, effective immediately, until June 30, 1958.

The official said the duty has been lifted to reduce the amount of paper work which would be required by "substantial" imports of heavy water for Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd., crown company which operates the Chalk River atomic energy project.

ONLY PURCHASER

The move won't affect anyone because the government is the only purchaser of the material. Removal of the duty would reflect a saving of about $1,000,000 in the books of the company.

Canada receives large quantities of heavy water from the $10,000,000 atomic reactor at Chalk River and for the experimental power station at Rolphton now under construction.

Imports are necessary because Canada cannot produce enough heavy water to meet the requirements of the Chalk River project and the Rolphton one, the official said.

The forecast indicated an active year in production, which would be reflected in increased incomes and employment. A further increase in consumer spending on goods, the forecast expected "confidently."

Although these factors into account, Mr. Harris said he felt justified in making his prediction of a national production of $25,250,000,000 "or perhaps just a bit more"—if there are been "no unforeseen adverse events."

Minor Changes In Corporation Tax Field

OTTAWA (CP)—A number of minor changes in the corporation tax field are contained in the budget presented to the Commons by Finance Minister Harris.

They are:

1. Income in the form of rentals from real estate to which the special four-per-cent tax on investment income applies will be included in computing the profits as of Jan. 1, 1955. This provision applies to personal income tax of individuals and not real estate, but not as a business.

2. Costs incidental to borrowing money and issuing shares will be allowed as a business expense. This will cover such items as professional fees and printing costs but not brokerage fees or commissions on the sale of securities. This becomes effective as of Jan. 1, 1955.

3. Dividends which in future pay dividends out of "designated" surplus will be exempted from or to tax-exempt persons where control of the corporation rests with tax-exempt persons. After 31, 1954, will be taxed at the rate of 15 per cent. Dividends paid by corporations to be taxed paid to the person controlling it. Previous rate will be 20 per cent for residents of the United States and some for residents of sources in Canada.

4. For fiscal periods ending in 1956 and following years, the manufacturer's selling price. Officials said they are sure that, under competitive conditions in the auto market, the tax cut will be passed along to the consumer.

5. Where a corporation resident in Canada that pays a dividend out of its designated surplus to a non-resident corporation or a person exempt from tax, by whom the paper corporation is controlled, be subject to a tax of 15 per cent computed by reference to the amount of the dividend, where control of the paper corporation was acquired after June 30, 1954.

6. That for the 1956 and subsequent taxation years a corporation with more than 10 per cent of whose gross revenue was derived from the sale of timber limits shall be treated for tax purposes as a non-resident-owned investment corporation.

11. That for the 1956 and subsequent taxation years a corporation any part of whose income was derived from leasing or operating iron ore mines be disqualified from being treated for tax purposes as a foreign business corporation.

12. That payments made after 1954 to a non-resident, computed by reference to the amount of royalty that is paid from a timber limit in Canada be subject to the 15 per cent tax on income from royalties of non-residents.

13. That the exemption of income from metalliferous or industrial mineral mines from the Canadian income tax be extended to mines coming into production at any time before 1958.

14. That the special deduction from income allowed in computation of exploration or drilling for petroleum or natural gas in Canada be extended to corporations that become allowed for expenses incurred at any time hereafter.

15. That a deduction from income be allowed to a corporation which is engaged in the business of production, refining or marketing of petroleum, petroleum products or natural gas or in the business of drilling for petroleum or natural gas, and which has expended in the principal business is mining or exploring for minerals, for expenses incurred in 1954 and subsequent calendar years in exploring or drilling for petroleum or natural gas in Canada or searching for minerals in Canada. If such expenses were incurred otherwise than on its own account, in consideration for shares or on account of the purchaser of shares of a corporation on whose account they were incurred.

Text of Income Tax Resolution in Budget

OTTAWA (CP)—Text of income tax resolution contained in finance Minister Harris' budget:

1. That for the 1956 and subsequent taxation years each of the graduated rates on tax at present applicable to individuals be reduced by 9% percentage points, and that for the 1955 taxation year each of the graduated rates of tax at present applicable to individuals be reduced by one percentage point.

2. That with respect to income of corporations earned on and after Jan. 1, 1955, the 47 per cent rate of tax on income in excess of $25,000 be reduced to 45 per cent.

3. That for the 1954 taxation year, an individual may deduct from the tax otherwise payable by him the amount of tax on income paid to the government of any province in which he resided, or carried on business, not exceeding 10 per cent of the tax otherwise payable by him.

4. That for the 1955 and 1956 taxation years a corporation resident, was employed or carried on business in a province in which the tax on income was payable by the government of the province may deduct from the tax otherwise wise payable by him to Canada that proportion of 10 per cent of his tax otherwise payable that his income earned in the province is of his whole income.

DIVIDEND TAX

5. That for the 1955 and subsequent taxation years rental income paid by a taxpayer shall not be included in income to which the additional four per cent tax on investment income applies.

6. That the right of an investment company at any time to claim as regards its taxable status be repealed and that for 1954 and subsequent taxation years an investment company be subject to tax of 20 per cent on its taxable income.

7. That expenses incurred in the 1955 and subsequent taxation years by a taxpayer in the course of purchasing or selling shares of its capital stock or in the course of borrowing money shall not be the taxpayer's business (other than amounts in respect of interest, bonus, payments or discounts) to be allowed as a deduction in computing the income of the taxpayer.

8. That for the 1955 and subsequent taxation years proceeds of a sale or realization of inventory of a taxpayer receivable at a taxpayer upon or after selling or ceasing to carry on a business be included in computing income, but that the taxpayer be given the option of paying tax in respect thereof at his average rate of tax for the three taxation years preceding the year in which he ceased to carry on the business.

DIVIDEND DEPOSIT

9. That a corporation resident in Canada that pays a dividend out of its designated surplus to a non-resident corporation or a person exempt from tax, by whom the paper corporation is controlled, be subject to a tax of 15 per cent computed by reference to the amount of the dividend, where control of the paper corporation was acquired after June 30, 1954.

10. That for the 1956 and subsequent taxation years a corporation with more than 10 per cent of whose gross revenue was derived from the sale of timber limits shall be treated for tax purposes as a non-resident-owned investment corporation.

Continuation of Agreements Between Govts. Advocated

OTTAWA (CP)—Continuation of temporary agreements governing tax relations between federal and provincial governments was advocated by Finance Minister Harris in his budget address.

Various provincial leaders in the past had expressed views on various changes in financial relations with the federal government, including a formal reallocation of tax resources and responsibilities.

"I find it difficult to envisage any reallocation of taxing powers or more practical division of sources of revenue that is likely to meet all future contingencies," Mr. Harris said.

FAVORS AGREEMENTS

Federal and provincial governments must continue to seek reasonable solutions to their fiscal problems through "medium-term arrangements, freely entered into, and subject to review after consideration at regular intervals."

Provincial premiers will meet federal ministers here April 26 to draft an agenda for a conference later this year to review present five-year tax agreements between the federal government and each provincial but Quebec.

The agreements expire in 1957. They give the federal government exclusive collection rights to personal and corporation taxes and succession duties in return for annual payments to the provinces.

NO WITHDRAWALS

Mr. Harris said that no province has indicated it wants to withdraw from its present agreement in favor of tax terms similar to those made available to Quebec which last year imposed its own personal income tax.

Prime Minister St. Laurent announced in January that Quebecers who paid the 1954 provincial rates would be allowed a deduction of 10 per cent from their federal tax payment. For 1955 there would be a straight exemption of 10 per cent in the federal levy in Quebec.

The Quebec tax amounts to about 12 per cent of the federal levy but a higher scale of exemptions relating to the tax collection would about 10 per cent of federal income tax collections in Quebec.

Mr. St. Laurent said similar provisions are available to any other province which may wish to end existing federal tax agreement.

It is understood that the cut in Quebec will cost the federal treasury some $30,000,000 in the 1955-56 fiscal year just ended and somewhat more than that in the present fiscal year.

List of Products Exempt from Tax

OTTAWA (CP) — Planning to help the low income family will be the kitchen floor? Finance Minister Harris' budget speech Tuesday night listed the among seven items added to the list of products exempt from the 10-per-cent federal sales tax.

The tax is applied at the manufacturer's selling price.

The budget speech listed the following items exempted:

1. Materials for exclusive use in the manufacture or production of fish, poultry, cattle and other stock and fur-bearing animals;

2. Cement, lime and other wood preservatives for exclusive use in the treatment of timber, poles or lumber;

3. Material to be used exclusively in the production of terrazzo floorings;

4. Perforated bituminized fibre pipe for drainage purposes not to exceed four inches in diameter;

5. Rims of kitchen sinks.

Mr. Harris estimated the exemptions will cost the federal treasury about $1,000,000.

Financial Critic Of Opposition Deplores Budget

OTTAWA (CP)—J. M. Macdonnell, Progressive Conservative financial critic, said Tuesday night Finance Minister Harris' tax cuts are "pleasant" but getting away from reality.

He said the tax reductions should not come out of a deficit or be borrowed. They should come from savings on expenditures.

Mr. Macdonnell described as inflationary the way in which the tax cuts were achieved, saying it was contrary to policy adopted in the United Kingdom and the United States. He referred to Mr. Harris' forecast of a $180,000,000 deficit for 1955-56 with a drop in revenues of $148,000,000.

The budget contained "nothing to comfort the people of the country who are suffering at the present time."

SLOW TO SOME

It was a blow to Canadians with fixed incomes.

Referring to his quip last year that former Finance Minister Abbott's last budget was a "swan song," Mr. Macdonnell in his speech as soothething "breaking out in song."

Mr. Harris had indicated in a speech in Montreal last November that he would make tax reductions this year.

"Canada has come then and I'm a little dizzy now," he said.

The unemployed were neglected. Not a word for them.

NO HINT

The budget was not a good thing but there was no hint of chagrin or apology on the part of the government for the tax increases which the government had been unable to explain the economy of the country.

"The government, like Louis XIV, has come to the belief that it is the state and always right," Mr. Macdonnell said.

If the government was asked whether it had done anything about unemployment or trade, it replied "no" but that it had provided encouragement for members of the Historic Sites and Monuments Board.

"You've got them on the run," called out George Hees (PC—Northumberland).

Mr. Macdonnell is scheduled to speak this afternoon when April 19, the day after the Commons reconvenes after the Easter recess.

Canada to Join Other Countries To Revise Pact

OTTAWA (CP) — The government Tuesday night announced it proposes to join with other countries to renew tariff concessions under the revised 34-country General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

Finance Minister Harris said in his budget speech in the Commons that Trade Minister Howe, who is attending a session of the GATT talks, believes the revised agreement is preferred to an agreement at all.

No one was better qualified to conclude such negotiations for Canada than Mr. Howe.

Britain, through the revised pact serves Canada's interests far better than a series of separate negotiations with the other GATT countries and it infinitely better than the United States, Mr. Harris said.

He said in his budget speech in the Commons.

Some mills now are closed. The multi-million-dollar industry have appealed for an increase of the present maximum duty of 50 cents on a pound on British wool cloth, described as inadequate and unrealistic.

The tariff board advised Mr. Harris in February that a shrink-worsted manufacturer will

Royal Commission to Study Economy, Govt. Will Devote Attention to Tariff Needs

OTTAWA (CP) — The government has decided to devote more attention to tariff needs of Canadian industry and to set up a royal commission to study the economy and prepare guides for possible future policy.

The two steps were announced Tuesday night by Finance Minister Harris in his first budget speech in which he implemented part of the tariff board recommendations for higher duties and indicated the government may take action concerning further proposals.

A tariff of 7½ per cent was imposed for the first time on polyethylene resins, a plastic ingredient used to make transparent food wrappers, toys, kitchenware, electric insulation, piping and a host of other goods.

NEW INDUSTRY

The industry is relatively new in Canada and the United States is the biggest competitor. The only Canadian producer, Dow Chemicals Limited, has a $13,000,000 plant at Edmonton. It requested a tariff of 30 per cent but the tariff board recommended 10 per cent; Harris finally decided on 7½ per cent.

Mr. Harris also announced increases—but not a similar rate for the first time on another plastic, phenol aldehyde moulding and adhesive. It will still enter duty-free when used to make plywood. Canada has now concluded with other countries on these items under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade and therefore can take whatever action it wishes. However, a protective tariff case, ethylene glycol, the anti-freeze base, Mr. Harris observed, has no immediate action on the board's recommendation that it be granted. The industry wanted about 45 per cent.

The changes now comes in duty-free and again imports come mostly from the U.S. Mr. Harris observed, however, that Canada is obliged to keep ethylene glycol duty-free under GATT.

WILL APPEOACH U.S.

But he said he may bring down a tariff on this item in a few months later. It was understood the government will approach the U.S. first and find out how it feels about the recommendation. The U.S. receives most of some from products from Canada and other countries.

Meanwhile, the government has decided to ask the tariff board to investigate the tariff structure on chemicals and iron and steel products and to study whether the industry complaints against the tariff on imports of potatoes, again mostly from the U.S.

American potatoes come into Canada duty-free except for a six-week summer period. Canadian potatoes going to the U.S. are subject to a tariff of 75 cents a hundredweight, except for a restricted quantity on which the rate is 37½ cents.

Wool Industry's Demands Rejected by Government

OTTAWA (CP) — The government Tuesday night rejected the wool industry's demands for higher tariff protection against imports from Britain.

"We have decided that, even though sections of our economy are subject to competitive difficulties, it would not be wise to increase the tariffs," Finance Minister Harris said in his budget speech in the Commons.

Some mills now are closed. The multi-million-dollar industry have appealed for an increase of the present maximum duty of 50 cents on a pound on British wool cloth, described as inadequate and unrealistic.

The tariff board advised Mr. Harris in February that a shrink-worsted manufacturer will

Fiscal Highlights

OTTAWA (CP) — Highlights of the economic portion of Finance Minister Harris' budget speech to Parliament:

The United States has shown a disappointing lack of progress towards reducing trade barriers.

It is of the utmost importance that the U.S. should give leadership in bringing down such obstacles.

Canada will continue to work for a freer world trade.

The government has decided against increasing the tariff on British woollens as sought by some Canadian industry.

Canada will sign a new tariff-trade agreement with 34 countries.

National production should rise five or six per cent in 1955 to about $25,250,000,000.

A current rise in U.S. economic activity should affect Canada favorably.

proposed some new restrictions, bringing more complaints from Canadian industry.

OVERHAUL NEEDED

Mr. Harris said he is not pleasing any general change in the country's economic or financial policy, but said the tariff structure, cut iron and steel, worked out years ago, "badly needs overhauling." Perhaps Canada's chemical industry was most urgently in need of a review by the tariff board because it had changed and developed so rapidly.

The tariff decisions were not all on the side of Canadian manufacturers. He reduced and eliminated tariffs on a number of minor items and announced the government's rejection of higher tariff protection asked by Canada's wool textile industry.

While the tariff board considers the chemical, iron and steel and potato tariff requests, the government will map details for establishing the royal commission to study Canada's economic future.

The government, said Mr. Harris in his budget speech, will assure by setting up this body, nor did he expect the commission to make any startling new recommendations on developing Canada's economic potential.

EXPECTS USEFUL GUIDE

He said he expects the commission's findings will help sharpen our understanding of some of the problems we face and will provide useful guides for the government, business and businessmen and to leaders in all walks of life in making plans and policies for the future."

He also announced another study—by a committee of businessmen and government officials on the question of depreciation and federal sales tax to goods.

Mr. Harris and Revenue Minister McCann are concerned about the present law defining the extent to which the 15-per-cent sales tax is applied.

The law is generally levied on an article's price when it leaves the factory. Thus in many cases it is applied to a price charged by wholesalers and retailers.

SIGN ACTRESS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Actress Audrey Hepburn has been signed to star in a lead role in Dino De Laurentiis Company's film version of Tennessee Wynn's "Tea and Sympathy," a spokesman for the firm announced Tuesday. Shooting of the picture will begin in June.

FREED IN STABBING

TORONTO (CP)—A grand jury Tuesday freed Mrs. Alex Livingston, 61, of a murder charge arising from the New Year's Eve stabbing of her husband. She told police that they had attacked with a bread knife during a quarrel and that she struggled with him during the scuffle, he suffered fatal injuries.

Weddings

HEARD — ALEXANDER

Ferns and pastel-tinted gladioli adorned George Street United Church, Peterborough, on Friday, April 1st, for a pretty double-ring wedding at 8.00 p.m. when Barbara Elizabeth Alexander, of Peterborough, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Alexander, of Belleville, became the bride of Richard Terrance Heard, also of Peterborough, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Clare Heard. The Reverend Arnold Matthews, pastor of the church, officiated. The guest pews were designated by bows of white satin ribbon.

The church organist rendered the traditional wedding music, and accompanied the soloist, Miss Margaret Christmas, who sang before the ceremony, "The Lord's Prayer", and during the signing of the register, "Because."

Given in marriage by her father, Mr. Jasmin Alexander, the bride was radiant in her bridal gown of Chantilly lace, nylon net and white slipper satin, fashioned with strapless, molded bodice having a Chantilly lace jacket with long, sheath-like sleeves ending in lily points over the wrists, and bouffant, ballerina-length skirt of satin and nylon net. Her floor-length veil of tulle illusion was held by a coronet encrusted with sequins and seed pearls, and she carried a semi-cascade bouquet of American Beauty roses and white carnations.

Mrs. Kenneth Heard, of Peterborough, and sister-in-law of the bridegroom, was her only attendant, attractively attired in moss green velvet and net, in ballerina-length, with matching feather headdress. She carried a nosegay of yellow baby 'mums and green carnations.

Little Nancy Heard, three-year-old niece of the bridegroom, was flower girl, demure in her pale yellow taffeta, with matching headdress, and carrying a tiny nosegay of pale pink baby 'mums and yellow rosebuds.

Mr. Kenneth Heard, of Peterborough, brother of the bridegroom, acted as groomsman, while Mr. George Douglas, of Peterborough, uncle of the bridegroom, and LAC. R. J. Alexander, of the RCAF Station, Aylmer, twin brother of the bride, were ushers.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bridegroom, which was beautifully decorated with spring flowers, white streamers and bows, for the occasion.

The bride's table was daintily appointed with white damask, and centred by a three-tiered wedding cake topped by tiny pink rosebuds and lily-of-the-valley, and its base hidden in a cloud of white tulle, while the bridal bouquets added a charming accent.

The bride's mother received, gowned in Dior blue crepe with French lace, and pink accessories, with corsage of American Beauty rosebuds. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore navy blue brocaded silk with pique trim, black accessories, and corsage of American Beauty rosebuds.

For travelling to Toronto and western points, the bride chose a navy taffeta dress with rose-colored feathered hat. Mr. and Mrs. Heard will reside in Peterborough upon their return.

Guests were present from Edmonton, Alberta; Oshawa, Belleville and Aylmer.

The bride's gift to her bridesmaid, a rhinestone bracelet; to the soloist, a muff; to the maid to her flower girl, a silver locket and chain.

The bridegroom's gift to his best man and ushers, cuff links.

Secondary School Education Discussed at BCIVS H-S Club

The parents of Grade VIII Public School pupils were guests of the BCIVS Home and School Club at the Collegiate on Monday evening, to hear Dr. J. E. Farmer on Grade IX studies, and the curriculum in the secondary schools in Belleville.

A short business meeting was held with Mrs. R. G. Williams in the chair, after which the meeting was turned over to Mr. J. Musgrove, guidance director, as chairman of the forum. The panel members introduced, which consisted of Mr. R. A. Orr, principal of the Belleville Collegiate and Vocational School, and Mr. F. Reid, the pincipal of the Quinte Secondary School.

COST OF EDUCATION

The chairman in his introductory remarks, spoke of the cost of education. Education is costing the community a considerable sum of money and is too expensive and valuable to be wasted, and those students who are not interested in using it. Mr. Musgrove stated that as well as the consideration of the financial side, it was becoming extremely difficult to get sufficient teachers for the present requirements of the schools.

It was surprising to learn, that while the Universities are having capacity registrations each year, only three per cent of Secondary School students in Canada enter University, as compared to 15 per cent in the United States. Compulsory Education ceases at 18 years of age, and as a result there is a large "drop out" of students at this age.

QUESTION CARDS

Question cards were then received by the panel and the interest of the parents of the Grade IX students of the Secondary Schools was indicated by the large number of questions of all kinds forthcoming.

Both Mr. Orr and Mr. Reid gave a clear and concise outline of the details of the courses at Quinte Secondary and Belleville Collegiate Schools and all parents present were given a leaflet containing a message from the principals to the parents and to the grade eight graduating classes.

Most of the questions asked the panel had bearing on the different courses and options which should be taken for various ultimate vocations, and also on the ability of a child of twelve to be able to decide on entering the Secondary School, just what vocation in life they wished to follow. It was generally agreed that few children are able to finally make their vocational decisions on entering secondary schools, and for this reason it would be desirable for them to start in the general course from which they can afterwards transfer, if they decide on another course.

VOCATION CHOICE ENCOURAGED

It was pointed out that it is desirable to start a child thinking about his future as early as possible and to encourage a decision of vocation even if the child changes its mind as it matures, but above all, stimulate a desire for more education regardless of what the child wants to be.

Children should be trained to distinguish in their studies between entertainment and interest and be taught to realize that the important factor was interest looking forward to accomplishment, even though entertainment was lacking. Some children complain that they have lost interest, when in reality they still have interest in accomplishing, but are starting to realize that some sacrifices have to be made to attain the goal in which they are interested.

A most educative evening drew to a close, and many parents of children who will be new comers to the Collegiate and the Quinte Secondary Schools, next fall, left the meeting with some knowledge and a better understanding of their children's Secondary School education.

Rylstone Couple Given Shower

RYLSTONE — On Friday evening a number of friends, relatives and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Morton met at the home of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Morton, 9th line on Thurlow, for their recent marriage, and to present them with a miscellaneous shower.

Mr. Murray Mckleljohn was chairman for an interesting program consisting of vocal solo readings. Miss Barbara Watson, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Jack Watson, favored with "The Lord Is Counting on You." "Signs of Growing Old," by Mrs. Ray Stewart; "Are You Mine?" by 9th line quartet, Norma Petherick, Anne Reid and Diana and Dorothy Morton; "Auntie Dolehil's Visit" by Mrs. Ellis Jones; "Taxes", by Murray Mckleljohn; "Let the Sunshine In", by the above quartet, accompanied by Marian Petherick at the piano; and community singing with Mrs. Ellis Jones at the piano—"Home on the Range"; "Pack Up Your Troubles".

ADDRESS READ

An address was read by Billie McCrorem, in verse form, advising them to keep the home utensils as bright and shining as their hopes and plans, and meet the trials that may beset their way, with a smile and a determination to work things out.

Following the address, which was signed on behalf of the community by Jack Soltoss, Ray Petherick, Ali Radcliffe, Doreen Reid, Grace Heath and Winnie Jones, the gifts were presented to the young couple as silent reminders of their esteem and fellowship.

Jack and Marie both expressed their appreciative thanks for the good wishes and for the gifts which accompanied them.

The young couple are at present making their home on the Trent Road near Trenton.

Another shower for this popular young couple will be held in Campbellford next week.

Quintena Lodge 133 Entertains District Deputy

Quintena Rebekah Lodge, No. 133 played host to district representatives on Tuesday afternoon and to a banquet supper.

In the evening at regular meeting they entertained Sister Miss Embury, D.D.P., on her official visit to the lodge and presented her with a gift, a cup and saucer with the Lodge crest and emblem in gold leaf on English bone china. Visiting members were from Madoc, Tweed, Stirling and Thomasburg.

After lodge the sisters were entertained by Sister V. Hill of Madoc, and Sister A. Webb, P.N.G., of Thomasburg, with two rollicking readings while the Foursquare girls of Quintena presented their skit of back yard gossip over the clothesliner.

Refreshments of delicious fruit bread and tea were served by the conveners, Sisters M. Andrews and D. Webber and helpers.

A vote of thanks was tendered them by Sister Embury, both for their delightful banquet and the after-lodge refreshments.

UNPOPULAR POPULARITY

MANILA (AP) — Police said Olimpiades Velasco, 25, killed his wife, mother-in-law, sister-in-law and a fourth person with a hoe knife at a dance Tuesday night and wounded seven persons. Police charged Velasco with multiple murder. He had been brooding, they said, over his wife's popularity.

Telephone Employees Hold Cut-Over Party

Last Friday the Bell Telephone Employees of 214 Pinnacle St., Belleville, held their farewell dial cut-over party at St. Thomas' parish hall.

Over a hundred employees sat down to a delicious turkey dinner, served by the ladies of the W.A. of St. Thomas' Church.

During the evening, an old-fashioned mixed dance was enjoyed by all, assisted at the piano by Miss Mary McBride, and Mrs. Ira Howard.

PRESENTATIONS MADE

Each employee leaving the area also received a remembrance and presentations were made to Miss R. V. McEwen, chief operator; Miss G. M. Godden, assistant chief operator, and Mr. H. J. Code, traffic superintendent.

Miss McEwen is being transferred to Smiths Falls and Mr. Code to Ottawa. The staff wished them every success in their new positions.

The group then journeyed to the "Club Lane" where dancing was enjoyed for the remainder of the evening.

BACK TO EARTH

TOKYO (AP)—Four pretty Japanese girls Tuesday strutted out on a bicycle race track near here, light as feathers. Each carried 80 small hydrogen-filled balloons to which they clung. One of the balloons exploded. The others followed in quick succession until all 320 balloons blew up. Three girls were burned.

David Cotten Honored By Family, Friends

A most enjoyable social evening was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Sine, Stirling, last Saturday evening when the family and friends of Mr. David Cotten of Stirling, gathered together to wish him a happy birthday on his 75th birthday.

Relatives and friends were present from Arnprior, Madoc, Eldorado, Deloro, Harold, Trenton, Belleville and Stirling.

After listening to some music and also having a few dances, an address was read by Mr. Ross Cotten, expressing the family's love and good wishes to Mr. Cotten, who said it was a great surprise as he did not know anything about it until they came after him to take him out to Mr. Sine's. He also thanked them for their kindness and presents.

Dancing was resumed till midnight after which Mrs. Sine served refreshments and also a birthday cake.

Later the guests left wishing Mr. Cotten many more birthdays.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

IS SHE BEING NOBLE, OR JUST DRAMATIZING HERSELF?

Here is a disconcerting thought to ponder, and let's put it this way:

Sometimes when we human beings think we are acting most nobly, all we are doing is dramatizing our actions and getting considerable satisfaction out of it. It's a device which is usually prompted by our subconscious selves, which help us dodge the hard way out of a situation by making the easy way seem highly praiseworthy.

For example, take the letter I have received from a young woman of 18, who is engrossed and about to have a child.

The young man responsible for her condition, she says, does not know of her pregnancy and she doesn't intend to tell him. She doesn't intend, either, to tell her family and expect their help. Instead, she says she plans to go away and see the thing through by herself, because she "feels it is the right thing to do."

With this in mind, she asks about hospitals which, as she puts it, "would admit single girls." She says no wants to know whether or not it would be advisable for her to take a fictitious married name at what ever hospital she entered. "for the baby's sake." Another question is would she "be obliged" to give the baby up for adoption.

Now in my mind, in taking the attitude she does about going through the ordeal of becoming an unmarried mother without telling anyone, there is a big chance that she is dramatizing herself, as a martyr, to make things easier for herself, rather than choosing a course which might be harder, but perhaps more sensible. It all sounds very noble and unselfish for a girl to say that she will not tell the father of her unborn child about its coming, and that she will go through the baby's birth alone in order to spare her family the hurt of it would cause them to know of the tragic mistake she made. But I doubt if unselfishness would actually be the real motive for all this.

I would certainly be easier to go away quietly and then avoid family reproaches, neighbors' lifted eyebrows, and all the unpleasantness that might follow disclosure of the situation to the man who is responsible. To avoid having any body in the world know that we have done wrong, or acted foolishly, is infinitely preferable to be with people who are aware of it.

There is no reason, of course, to tell people what you have done for the sole purpose of making a clean breast of things. But there might be other reasons why it would be fairer and wiser to tell those most intimately concerned in such a situation as the one we are discussing.

For example, isn't it definitely unfair to the young man in question to give him no opportunity to accept a responsibility which he might well wish to assume? Why should this girl not give the other party to the affair a chance to be noble, too? Isn't she perhaps overlooking the fact that he may even have been in love with her and be glad to marry her? Again, which does she think would hurt her parents more—to learn that their daughter had made a mistake for which she is truly sorry, or to discover some day, as they well might, that she didn't have faith enough in them to trust them to stand by her?

Since this girl has asked me certain questions, I will answer them by saying that any hospital will admit a girl whether married or single, for obstetrical care; that she would not need to take a fictitious married name; that she would, by no means, have to give up the baby for adoption if she didn't wish to.

But I hope she will reconsider her decision about the whole matter in the light of what I have just said, and inform those most closely concerned of her predicament.

Mr. and Mrs. P. Boulton Honored On 43rd Anniversary

A surprise party was held last evening in honor of the 43rd wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Boulton, O.S.D. lane, at the home of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Sills, of Roslin, when approximately thirty friends assembled to congratulate them on this milestone along their journey with wishes for many more to come.

Mrs. Boulton had been supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Gray, junior, Dundas Street, who later escorted them to the surprise in Roslin.

The evening was spent in cards and a social get-together, after which Mr. Foster Boulton, acting as master of ceremonies, spoke briefly on the years that had gone, and those that lie ahead. This was followed by the presentation of several lovely gifts for which the guest of honor graciously expressed their appreciation for this unexpected kindness.

Bountiful refreshments concluded the evening, starting a special reception.

Beauty

By HELEN JAMIESON

SUPERFLUOUS HAIR

A most distressing facial condition is an incipient moustache or witch-like bristles on the chin. As there are means of overcoming these troubles, no woman should bear with it.

Some dermatologists are of the opinion that the trouble may be caused by improper functioning of the endocrine glands. Heredity is an influence. If both parents have a heavy growth of coarse hair, the tendency to overgrowth is on the face. Then there is the racial factor, with Latin types more prone to have excess hair than others. Also exposure to strong sunlight may also cause superfluous hair.

Electrolysis has been used for more than sixty years for the extermination of unwanted hair on the face. Accomplished by an expert operator, no blemishes appear or the removal is permanent. As each shaft must be treated separately, progress is slow, however.

A fine, flexible needle is inserted into the pore that holds the hair shaft. It is pressed gently downward until it reaches the papilla from which the shaft emerges. The current is turned on, and the papilla destroyed so there will be no regrowth. When timing is perfect, the surrounding tissues are not burned, so no scar results.

The shaft is removed with tweezers. If it breaks, the needle is inserted again.

There are other methods of hair removal which are also satisfactory. But, in any case, the help of superfluous hair should consult a physician who specializes in treatment of the skin and scalp who will recommend the best treatment and a reliable operator.

With hosiery transparent, hairy legs should not be tolerated. The growth can be removed with a depilatory, which acts on the hair, not on the skin. As some women are allergic to these preparations, it is wise to make a test application.

SIX CHILDREN SEND INVITATIONS TO PARENTS' GOLDEN WEDDING

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

Our parents are to observe their 50th Wedding Anniversary in several months. We their six children are planning on having a family dinner at home for them at noon; this to include, of course, the daughters-in-law, the son-in-law, and the grandchildren. Then some time during the remainder of the day we would like to have Open House for their many friends. Should we send out invitations for their many friends. Should we send out invitations for this, or just telephone their friends? —We Six.

This is such a wonderful and important occasion that I suggest the sons and daughters should send special invitations to the many friends of your mother and father. Like this:

1905-1955
In honor of the Fiftieth Wedding Anniversary of
Mr. and Mrs. John Clark their sons and daughters request the pleasure of your company on Tuesday, the second of August four until o'clock
One Park Road

R.s.v.p.
Mrs. Arthur Hall
121 Dale Street

(While this kind of invitation is usually engraved, it may be handwritten on large white dome-sheet letter-paper, or you may be able to buy large white cards, gilt-edged. The invitations should be spaced as indicated.)

SHOULD GROOM'S SISTER GIVE BRIDAL SHOWER?

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

Would it be correct for me to give a bridal shower for my brother's fiancee? Some tell me it is not correct to give a shower for a relative. But at this time before the wedding, the bride-to-be is not a relative of mine. Please put me right about this. —P.S.

The point is that it is not considered correct for a member of the family of either the bride-to-be or the groom-to-be to give a bridal shower. Since you are a sister of the groom-to-be, it would not be considered correct (as some of your friends have told you also) for you to give a bridal shower. When a member of either family gives a shower it gives the too-obvious appearance of being a planned "promotion" for gifts for the new home.

EASTER GREETINGS TO BOTH

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

When the husband is away in service, should an Easter greeting card be addressed to both the husband and wife, or only to the wife? —Ellen

It's the friendliest idea, I think, to address a greeting to both. pleasantly points up the fact that you are "remembering" both. It makes the card a heart-warming greeting for the wife to send on to her husband. Of course, you can send a card to each, if you know the serviceman's address. Or, to explain your including both names on the envelope, write a warm-hearted little note under the greeting-words. For example: "Please tell your Bob, the next time you write to him, that Arthur and I are sending him our friendliest Easter greetings and every good wish. We pray that "all's well" with both you two cherished friends. Do write us the news, and do send us Bob's address so we can write to him."

EASTER GREETINGS FROM BOTH

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

My husband is in the service in Germany. Would it be proper for me to include he name with mine in the signature of my Easter cards? — Laurie B.

Yes! Please do this . . . for naturally your husband would want to be included in the greeting, just as would be if he were here. Moreover, I suggest you add a friendship-linking message which would something like this: "Although Michael is so far away, I know, and you and Jim will know, that he would want me to include his Easter greetings with mine. So, you dear friends, greetings to you both from us, and our devoted love. Michael and Laurie.

(And wouldn't this be the perfect time too, for you to send your husband's address to those to whom you are sending Easter cards, adding a postscript like "Hint" to the message: "I'm not sure you have Michael's address . . . so here it is, and I just can't tell you how happy he would be to have a message from you. He is always so hungry, hungry, hungry, for mail!")

Do You Know Lemon Crumbles?

As Conducted by Mary Moore

When you read this column on April 6th it will not be expressing any thoughts or cooking activities for that day at all, at all.

In preparation for wedding guests (and principals) arriving from British Columbia, I am getting some beforehand work done.

Two items of business that should be cleared up are: 1) a recipe for Lemon Crumbles (I never heard of lemons crumbling did you? — if it had been Lemon Snickers I could understand) — which is recommended highly — should be passed on to you by me and herewith is and 2) a note has been received from a Women's Editor regarding her findings on mould on fruit cake.

Let us clear the agenda of those two items, then soon I can give you the dope on the wedding — if you are still interested — as your friendly letters seem to indicate.

LEMON CRUMBLES
(Courtesy of Burdette)

Three – quarter cup sifted flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, ⅓ cup shortening, 1¼ cups soda cracker crumbs (about 30), ½ cup sugar, 1 cup coconut. Sift flour, baking powder, salt cut in shortening until mixture is crumbly. Add remaining ingredients and mix well. Spread half mixture in bottered 9 x 9-inch pan. Add filling and sprinkle with remaining mixture. Make in moderate oven 375 deg. Fahr. for 20 to 25 minutes. FILLING: 1 cup sugar, 3 tablespoons flour, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1 well beaten egg, 1 cup water, 3 tablespoons lemon juice, 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind. Mix flour, sugar and salt, add egg and water, mix well and cook over boiling water, stirring constantly until thickened. Remove from heat and add juice and rind.

These are pan cookies which are cut into squares or oblongs or diamonds while warm, allowed to cool in pan, then carefully lifted out. They are perfectly delicious.

A delightfully conscientious women's editor writes: "... readers are still writing about mouldy fruit cake. May I put in my say? My sister who is a super cook rushed her Christmas puddings one year . . . they were impropertly cooked . . . wells . . . mould! In my opinion this could very easily be the answer because every time while we homemakers will carefully fallow a recipe, we will crib a bit on the size and shape of the baking utensil forgetting that the deeper the cake the longer it takes to bake (sometimes) and I would think that this would be especially applicable to fruit cake. Also, from telephone inquiries I have learned that many cooks are not sure where, in the oven, various foodstuffs should be placed. They forget that heat rises and worry about the bottom scorching, hence the top of the cake becomes fairly browned and baked-looking before it is thoroughly cooked. Maybe this is the answer to this pesky question! C."

I think "C." has a cogent point there and hope the readers who have had this trouble see her comments. I certainly had not thought of that angle in trying to solve the mystery.

MADOC

Local Art Exhibit Most Praiseworthy

MADOC — The local art exhibit for Madoc and community was held in the high school auditorium on Friday evening. The variety and quality of the paintings on display by the amateur artists were much appreciated by all who were present at this delightful event, the first ever held in Madoc.

Two paintings were chosen to be entered in the East Central Ontario Travelling Art Exhibit. The judges were Miss Mary Merrill, art instructor at the night school here, and Mr. Allan Cameron of Carrying Place, Ontario.

Mr. Cameron is a well qualified judge of art. He was born in Owen Sound and has sketched with the well-known artist, Geo. Thompson. He studied at the Toronto School of Art, and also in the Regent St. Polytechnic School, London, England, for nearly three years. He has exhibited at the Royal Canadian Academy.

PRAISEWORTHY ART EXHIBIT

The community can justly feel proud that these judges found this first art exhibit praiseworthy. Mr. Cameron was overheard to remark that he had seldom seen a better amateur art display outside a large city. The paintings chosen to be entered in the Travelling Exhibit are an oil painting of St. Peter's Presbyterian Church by Margaret Connor and a water colour scene painted by Veronica Cadwell, Tweed.

Honorable mention went to Margaret Connors, "Sunrise on Ice"; Veronica Cadwell's "Sugar Bush"; Sue Barber's "Portrait of a Mother" (mare and foal); Gethin Burns' "Summer Scene on Black River," and Peter Lodge's wash drawings of local scenes.

Honorable mention was also given to copies of well known paintings done by local artists—Miss Halpenny, copy of Manley MacDonald's autumn scene; Mrs. T. Nicols, "Pintails at Dusk," and Margaret Wright's, "A Lighthouse on Georgian Bay."

There also were some fine exhibits of portrait painting done by Sonia Hailstone, Florence Locke and Miriam Atkinson. John Wagner's "Victus Est", painting of a defeated prisoner, attracted favorable attention.

After the judging was completed, Mr. Howe thanked Miss Moull for the fine work she had done as art instructor during the winter; also to Mr. Cameron, who gave of his time to come out to judge the paintings. Mrs. Gilkinson presented him with a gift.

An attractive tea table, decorated with spring flowers, was set up in the auditorium and guests were served with refreshments.

Mrs. C. Whytock and Miss Vankleek poured tea while Mrs. Nicol looked after the guests.

Miss Lansdale West, at the piano, provided pleasant background music for the evening.

It is hoped that this art exhibit will become an annual event here.

ANOTHER ATOMIC HAZARD

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Scientists are forced to deal with the remote possibility that atomic reactors may accidentally blow up and spread their radioactive poison over the country, Dr. Edward Teller, noted figure in the development of the hydrogen bomb, said Monday. He added the chances are remote because of elaborate safeguards.

START HUGE PROJECT

LONDON (Reuters)—The House of Commons was told Monday that manufacture of equipment has started on both sides of the Atlantic for the biggest cable hookup between the United States, Britain and Canada. The cable, the largest ever laid, will allow 35 simultaneous telephone conversations across the Atlantic. The project will cost about $42,000,000.

Little Benny's Notebook

I was watching pop smoking to himself, and I said, Hay pop, is it good or bad to marry for money? Well, there are 2 schools of thought, pop said. Many sensible parents feel that it's not a breech of etiquette for their dawters to marry good tall dark graceful men even if he's checking accounts have graceful figures too, he said, and I said, But I spoze for men to marry rich gerls.

Oh, that puts the ring on the other finger pop said. What made you wonder? Some nonsense on television? he said, and I said, No sir, it's personel.

The docee it is, pop said, and I said, Yes sir. Every time Mary Watkins has a birthday, her rich aunt gives her a 50 dollar government bond to put in the bank, and she'll have a lot of birthdays before she gets married, I said.

I see what you mean, pop said. Well, it would be possible to keep your self respect by eating canned beens at home while she eats fifty steaks and mushrooms at an expensive resterant. And when you go to the theater with her, you could take a bus and sit in the rear of the gallery while she has a taxy and sits in a stage box. And one Saturday you could take the children a walk to the park, and the next Saturday she could take them to the circus in her car. Of course you wouldn't see very much of each other, but you must allow for that. You still have time to think it over, he said.

GRAHAM BACK AT WORK

GLASGOW (AP)—Billy Graham, apparently recovered from the influenza and sore throat which caused him to miss a service last week, preached to 16,650 persons in Kelvin Hall Monday night. A total of 237,760 persons has attended the American evangelist's meetings since he opened his "all-Scotland crusade" here March 31.

Rosebud Cake

Chocolate rosebuds, frothy pink frosting, and cake airy-light as only Jewel can make it

ROSEBUD CAKE

Yields Two 9-inch layers

½ cup Swift's Jewel Shortening
1 cup sugar
2½ cups sifted cake flour
2½ teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup milk
1½ teaspoons vanilla
½ cup egg whites (about 4)
½ cup sugar

This is the conventional method of cake making where you first of all cream your Jewel, then gradually blend in 1 cup of sugar and cream until light and fluffy. You'll find snow-white, homogenized Jewel is specially easy to cream. Besides, Jewel's special quick-mix ingredient ensures you an extra high and light cake. Add sifted flour, baking powder and salt alternately with combined milk and vanilla, stirring lightly after each addition. In a separate bowl beat egg whites till stiff, then gradually beat in ½ cup sugar to make a meringue. Gently fold meringue into batter; pour into paper-lined cake pans; bake. When cool, split each layer.

Baking Temp: 375°F. Baking Time: about 25 mins.

CHOCOLATE FILLING

Melt together 2 tablespoons Allwest Margarine or butter, ½ cup chocolate rosebud candies or chocolate chips and 3½ tablespoons water. Add chocolate mixture to about ¼ of the frosting. Spread between the 4 layers of cake.

JEWEL JIFFY FROSTING

½ cup Swift's Jewel Shortening

PERSONAL LEVY

Mr. Harris said the $48,500,000 will be counted against expenditures for the fiscal year ending last March 31, boosting the deficit to $134,361,000 from the $126,861,000 announced earlier.

His revenue forecast was based on expectations that the gross national product—value of all goods and services produced — would reach $32,250,000,000 in 1955. In 1954, it dropped about two per cent to an estimated $31,000,000,000.

He said that in deciding to cut taxes he set the tax at a rate estimated by produce a balanced budget if gross national productivity reached $30,000,000,000. He did not expect that amount this year, but hoped it would reach that total by the end of the fiscal year next March 31.

TAX CONCESSIONS

Tax concessions to encourage development in oil, natural gas and mining, hitherto granted on a year-to-year basis, were made permanent.

Canadians living abroad were given the same break as military and government employees on their refund by Canada—freedom from duty on household and personal effects owned for at least six months, provided the individual has lived abroad a year or more. The change is effective immediately.

The budget's predictions of 1955-56 revenue showed personal income tax at $1,130,000,000 continuing as the largest item, with corporation income tax next at $1,057,000,000.

Other revenue forecasts:

Sales tax, $398,000,000; non-resident tax, $85,000,000; succession duties $45,000,000; customs duties, $410,000,000; excise duties, $238,000,000; other excise taxes, $231,000,000; miscellaneous taxes, $17,000,000.

Non-tax revenue would be $300,000,000.

Churchill's Toast to the Queen

LONDON (Reuters) — Official quarters today released the text of the short speech made by Sir Winston Churchill in proposing the health of the Queen at the dinner he gave at 10 Downing Street Monday night in honor of the sovereign.

Churchill said: "I have the honor of proposing a toast which I used often during the years when I was a cavalry subaltern in the reign of Your Majesty's great grandmother Queen Victoria.

"Having served in office or in Parliament with many Queens, signs who have reigned since those days, I felt, with these credentials, that in asking Our Majesty's gracious permission to propose this toast I should not be leading to the creation of a precedent which would often cause inconvenience. BEWARE FOR AIL.

"Madame, I should like to express the deep and lively sense of gratitude which we and all your peoples feel to you and to His Royal Highness the Duke of Edinburgh for all the help and inspiration we receive in our daily lives.

"Queen Victoria had been succeeded by her uncles, the Kings who followed her father, King Edward VII and King George V, and I was brought up to look upon the Throne as the supreme symbol of the life of the nation and of the Empire.

"Never have we needed it more than in the anxious and darkling age through which we are passing and through which we hope to help the world to pass.

"Never have the august duties which fall upon the British monarchy been discharged with more devotion than in the brilliant opening of Your Majesty's reign. We thank God for the gift He has bestowed upon us and vow ourselves anew to the ancient cause and wise and kindly way of life of which Your Majesty is the young, gleaming champion.

"The Queen."

Churchill then proposed the health of the Duke of Edinburgh.

When all were again seated, the Queen rose and said she wished to do something which probably few of her predecessors had had an opportunity of doing and that was to propose the health of her prime minister.

She then proposed the health of Churchill, and which spreads with ever-growing strength throughout the British realm and the Commonwealth and Empire.

"Never have we needed it more than in the anxious and darkling age through which we are passing and through which we hope to help the world to pass.

"Never have the august duties which fall upon the British monarchy been discharged with more devotion than in the brilliant opening of Your Majesty's reign. RAWDON — Mr. and Mrs. Ray White and children, Kildorado, visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest White and family, Mount Pleasant, on Thursday.

Mrs. Lorne Watson has been engaged as teacher at the Allan Public School, S.S. No. 3, Rawdon. Her duties will begin in September.

The railroad work crew have completed their bridge job at Anson. The men have spent several weeks repairing a bridge south of the former Anson Station in readiness for the shipping of ore from Marmora to Picton.

TWO-BY-TWO CLUB

Twenty-five folks recently represented the Two-by-Two Club of Mount Pleasant when the group journeyed to Redneersville and were welcomed by Rev. and Mrs. T. F. Townsend.

Mr. Ed. Richardson presided over the worship period. Mrs. Mac Sharp played quiet music; Mrs. Eric Summers read the Bible lesson; Mr. Orno Sharp gave the topic on Easter. Mrs. James Hoard contributed a vocal solo. Albury and Redneersville gave the balance of the program.

Refreshments and a fellowship hour closed an enjoyable evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy MacMullen were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Sharp, Campbellford, and enjoyed a delightful program of tap dancing and music recital by Donna Sharp's pupils, in the new auditorium of St. John's United Church. There were 75 numbers presented and this included a baton number by Miss Donna Sharp, and a tap solo on roller skates by Miss Iona Sharp.

The pupils gave a first class performance and received hearty applause for their efforts. The Sharp family were former Rawdon residents.

MOUNT PLEASANT W.A.

Miss Doris Sine and her mother, Mrs. Clifford Sine, recently entertained Mount Pleasant Rawdon Women's Auxiliary with 23 adults in attendance. The program based on Easter — was arranged by Mrs. Orno Sharp. The president, Mrs. Kenneth Weaver, opened with an Easter poem, followed by the W.A. theme, song and prayer with Mrs. Caroline Potts presiding at the piano, and later in the program she contributed a vocal solo. Plans were made to have a bazaar in November and committees were appointed.

The Bible lesson was read by Mrs. Raymond McConnell and Mrs. John Holmes read a paper on "The Crown". Mrs. Frank Jeffs offered prayer. Mrs. W. G. Fletcher read a selection.

SLIDES SHOWN

The pastor, Rev. W. G. Fletcher showed a set of slides with religious views.

It was regretted that Mrs. Clifford Lansing was unable to be in attendance.

Mrs. Herbert Smith was in charge of a contest.

Cookies and tea were served by the committee in charge, and a fellowship hour enjoyed.

Wellington

WELLINGTON — On Saturday evening Mr. and Mrs. George Bailey were pleasantly surprised when about fifty or more of their friends and neighbors gathered at their home to help them celebrate their 40th wedding anniversary.

Earlier in the evening their children, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Bailey, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Channel, of Wellington, and Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Osterhout of Toronto, had invited them out for a turkey dinner at Maple Inn, Bloomfield, and while they were away friends began to gather at the Bailey home. By the time they returned home the house was nearly filled to capacity.

After things calmed down a little, progressive euchre was played. Order was then called by Mr. Clifford McPaul, who called Mr. and Mrs. Bailey forward and seated them on the chesterfield. Mr. and Mrs. Alf Ogilvy, who were the attendants at the ceremony thirty years ago, were also called forward and seated beside the honored couple. Mr. McPaul then spoke a few congratulatory words to Mr. and Mrs. Bailey, and Mrs. Elmer McPaul presented them with a huge basket of snapdragons and mums.

Master Wayne Channel then came forward and presented his grandparents with a lovely chair, a gift from their children and grandchildren. Mr. Donald Bailey, Dr. R. A. Thompson and Mr. A. Ogilvy each in turn made a few well chosen remarks.

Mr. and Mrs. Bailey then thanked every one for the party and beautiful gifts.

WED IN 1918

Mr. and Mrs. Bailey were married on March 31, 1918, by the Rev. Barber in St. Mary Magdalene Anglican Church, Picton.

They have resided ever since on their farm a mile northwest of the village of Wellington. They have three children, Mrs. Clifford (Olive) Channel, of Wellington; Mr. Donald Bailey who resides on the farm, and Mrs. E. Osterhout, of Toronto.

They also have six grandchildren.

Stirling

STIRLING — Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Wilson and Nancy and Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Dafoe, Stirling, also Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Maynes of Glen Ross, spent the week-end with relatives in Watertown, New York.

Mrs. Walter Elliott, and Miss Mary Thomas visited Mrs. J. R. Beatty at Brighton General Hospital, on Tuesday.

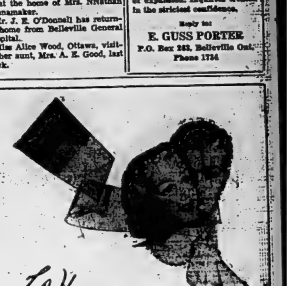
Mrs. D. F. Carruth, Toronto, spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Walter Elliott.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Jones and Danny, who have been holidaying in the State of Arizona, arrived home last week.

Rev. and Mrs. W. H. V. Walters entertained Dr. and Mrs. Rowan Walters and sons, Toronto, for the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Pitcher recently entertained Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Vanalelk, Havelock; Mr. and Mrs. Roy Holland and Lindsay, Mr. and Mrs. Will Pitcher, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Pitcher and children, all of Stockdale.

Mrs. Lorne Anderson, Carmel, is spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester Holden.



Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stapley attended the recital at Campbellford Thursday evening, when their granddaughters, Joan and Beth Fraser gave a tap duet entitled "April Showers".

Mr. Harry McAdam and a group of ladies were recently entertained at the home of Mrs. Nwaiban wannamaker.

Mr. J. R. O'Donnell has returned home from Belleville General Hospital.

Miss Alice Wood, Ottawa, visited her aunt, Mrs. A. E. Good, last week.

Churchill's Career As Seen Through The Camera Lens

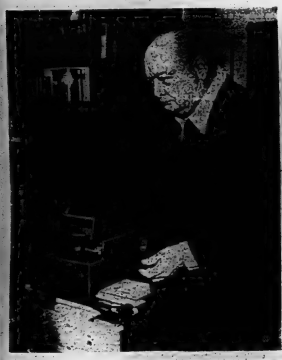
WEARS CANADIAN HAT

Churchill added to his collection of striking hats in Canada. This black sealskin was presented by the Parliamentary Press Gallery in 1941. The picture was taken at Yalta in February, 1945, when he met President Roosevelt and Stalin at Yalta. Two months later Roosevelt died, and vice-President Harry S. Truman moved into the White House. (CP Photo.)

YALTA CONFERENCE

Winston Churchill laid aside his personal hatred of Communism during the Second World War to accept Russia as a full ally. To keep Stalin posted on war plans, he went to Moscow in 1942 and 1944. In 1943 Churchill, Roosevelt and Stalin met at Tehran to plan attacks on Germany from south, east and west. In February, 1945, they met again at Yalta, where this photograph was taken, to lay the shaky foundation-stones of peace, settle boundary controversies in eastern Europe and argue out problems of the new United Nations. While final Big Three meeting was being held in Potsdam, after Germany's defeat, Labor Leader Clement Attlee succeeded Churchill as Prime Minister and chief British delegate. Churchill, starting six years in opposition, renewed his pre-war warning against Communism. He added a phrase to the language when he said at Fulton, Mo., that an "iron curtain" had descended across much of Europe. (CP Photo).

ELECTION VICTORY



Labor won the 1945 general election, held soon after Germany surrendered. For six years, Churchill as member for Woodford constituency, led the Conservative official opposition. Then in 1951, after 51 years in politics, he won his first election as party leader. Although he was 76, he showed during the campaign much of his wartime energy and thunder. His "V-for-Victory" sign still drew cheers. (CP Photo).

YOUNG LIEUTENANT

Churchill was dubbed an "eccentric dunce" at Harrow but found his niche at Sandhurst Royal Military College. He was a lieutenant at 21 and soldiering took him to four continents. As Boer War correspondent for the London Daily Post he was captured and escaped. His dispatches gave him prominence that won him Commons election in 1900. Above, Churchill wears South African Light Horse Uniform. (CP Photo).

DICTATES MEMOIRS

Always a prolific writer, Churchill soon after the Second World War started his voluminous memoirs. They sold for a reported $1,000,000. For comfort as he dictated, he often wore this striped "siren suit," which he designed for quick dressing during air raids. Besides writing, Churchill turned also to oil painting. Two landscapes submitted under the name "Mr. Winters," were accepted by the Royal Academy. He signed earlier pictures "Charles Morin." (C.P. from A.P.)

TORY AGAIN

First a Conservative, Churchill switched to Liberalism, then rejoined the Conservative party in 1924. That year, when this picture was taken, he became Conservative M.P. for Epping and Chancellor of the Exchequer. Note the square-crowned Cambridge derby, a favorite hat style. (CP Photo).

NIAGARA TOURIST

Winston Churchill held ministerial office more times than any other British politician. Often he was in hot water. In the First World War, after he was held responsible for the disastrous Dardanelles naval operation, he resigned as First Lord of the Admiralty and went to Belgium as commander of the 6th Royal Scots Fusiliers. Later he was appointed "munitions minister by Lloyd George and fostered development of the tank. For several years after he became prime minister for the first time in May, 1940—when Neville Chamberlain resigned—he had to ride out intermittent storms of parliamentary criticism as British arms faced critical reverses. But he was at the height of his popularity when he came to Canada in 1943 for the Quebec Conference which picked the Normandy invasion beaches. By then the outer fringe of Axis defenses was being cracked. Churchill is shown en route to Washington from Canada to meet President Roosevelt. Like any tourist, he stopped with his wife, his daughter Mary, and Canada's wartime prime minister, Mackenzie King, to view Niagara Falls. (CP from National Film Board.)

QUEBEC CONFERENCE

In August, 1943, Churchill and Roosevelt met at Quebec with their chiefs of staff to choose the invasion beaches for the Second Front in Europe. It was one of many historic meetings to which Churchill travelled in the cause of Allied unity—Moscow, Washington, Cairo, Casablanca, Yalta, Teheran—back to Quebec in 1944. The first Churchill-Roosevelt meeting, in a Newfoundland bay in August, 1941, produced the Atlantic Charter from which the United Nations stemmed. Shown on the ramparts of Quebec are Churchill, Roosevelt, Prime Minister Mackenzie King, host to the visitors; the Earl of Athlone, wartime governor-general, and his wife, Princess Alice. (CP from National Film Board.)

STRONG HELPMATE

Through times of crisis, his wife was Winston Churchill's stalwart supporter. She accompanied him to many wartime conferences, including the two in Quebec. Here she welcomes her husband back to London from his Moscow meeting with Stalin in 1944. The Churchills were married in 1908 and had one son, Randolph, and four daughters, Diana, Sarah and Mary, and Marigold Frances who died in 1921, aged 2. Both had noble forebears: Churchill was descended from the Duke of Marlborough; Mrs. Churchill's maternal grandfather was the seventh Earl of Airlie. Churchill, however, refused knighthood or a peerage. (C.P. from U.K. Information.)

PREMIER'S MEET

Winston Churchill and Mackenzie King met in Ottawa in December, 1941, after Pearl Harbor brought the United States into the Second World War. It was the first of three wartime visits to Canada. Churchill's sparkling speech to parliament, full of confidence in ultimate victory, was broadcast around the world. Churchill, a consistent champion of strong Empire ties, expressed fervent belief in the inherent strength and worth of the British peoples. He reminded the Axis leaders that "we have not journeyed across the centuries . . . because we are made of stuff that can die." Churchill was made a member of the Canadian Privy Council and posed with King for this picture. (CP from Karsh.)

A CITY'S TRIBUTE

When he became prime minister in 1940, Churchill promised Britons only "blood and toil, tears and sweat." During five years as head of a coalition government he led his countrymen to victory. Here he is shown, with his daughter Mary, after receiving the freedom of the City of London in 1963. After the war he accepted the Order of Merit but insisted on remaining a commoner. (CP Photo.)

Albury

ALBURY — Welcome home to Tom Dawson of RCAF, who has been in Germany three years. He returned last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Cole returned home on Monday after spending three months with relatives in California and other places.

Several from this neighborhood attended the Centre-Victoria Farm Forum picture at Centre school on Tuesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Peck and Stella spent the tea hour on Wednesday evening with Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Peck.

Around 30 attended the charivari for Mr. and Mrs. Bob Weese on Thursday night. All were treated to cigarettes, cake and ice cream.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Russell, Mrs. S. C. Peck, Mrs. Hattie Williamson, attended the Quinte O.E.S. euchre at Ameliasburg on Thursday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bonter returned home on Friday after spending three weeks in Florida, U. S. A.

The Albury Ladies Aid sponsored a Variety Concert put on by the choir of the Albert College of Belleville on Tuesday evening.

Around 40 took part in this fine program, one of the best ever held in Albury Church.

Refreshments were served following the program, to the choir.

Stirling

STIRLING — A large number of visitors from Stirling, Frankford, Murray and Sidney townships attended the closing euchre sponsored by River Valley Women's Institute at the school house Friday.

There were 13 tables in play and a number of small children were also in attendance. The prizes were donated by Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Moore and were awarded as follows:

Ladies: Mrs. J. R. Donohoe, Mrs. Ina Free. Men: Percy MacMullen, Dennis Reasman.

The president, Mrs. Ross Bush, voiced thanks to all who had attended the parties throughout the winter months. Mrs. A. E. Caskey presented a motion of thanks to River Valley W.I. for providing such evenings at such a nominal price. She hoped to resume the social evenings next November.

NOISE ALARMS HUNDREDS

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The sky over Salt Lake Valley was alive with sound Tuesday night, and the noise prompted hundreds of residents to call newspapers and police in alarm. Most said it sounded like airplanes overhead. Others thought it was blasting. But the weird noise in the sky was caused by something else, being used to clean out steam and water lines and test boiler safety valves at a steam plant of the Utah Power and Light Co.

Will Set Record

OTTAWA (CP)—Parliament this session will set a record in dissolving marriages in Quebec and Newfoundland, only provinces without divorce courts.

Senator Arthur Roebuck (L—Ontario) chairman of the Senate's divorce committee, told the Senate Tuesday night he expects more than 400 petitions will be handled by the committee, compared with last year's previous high of 382.

He reported that to date 307 divorces have been recommended by his committee. Four petitions were rejected and six withdrawn. Another four have been partially heard and 132 still are pending.

Of those still pending, Senator Roebuck said probably 100 will be heard after the Easter recess of Parliament.

Read

READ — The Home and School Club sponsored a euchre in the hall one evening recently.

Mr. Phonse O'Ray and children of Toronto, sent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Pat O'Ray.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence McGrath and children of Tamworth, were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Enright.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob McFaul and family were Sunday dinner-guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Rae Ferguson and family and Mrs. Edith McFaul.

Melrose

MELROSE — Several from here attended the funeral of the late Mrs. Symington, Napanee, on Monday. Mrs. Symington was a one time resident in this community, a sister of the late Edward Simpkins. Sympathy is extended to the bereaved relatives.

The bazaar and concert, sponsored by the Melrose Mission Band under the leadership of Mrs. Ken McMechan and Mrs. Newton Hamilton, and held in the Township Hall on Wednesday evening, was a fine success, the proceeds amounting to nearly $30.

The combined meeting of the Melrose W.I. and the Tyendinaga township Federation of Agriculture was well attended on Friday evening. The Federation held its election of officers, Raymond Clark, president and Jack McFarlane, secretary, with two appointed on each line to act as a committee on problems pertaining to the Federation. The guest speaker Earl Sager, of Madoc, outlined the accomplishments of the Federation and encouraged farmers to take a fresh interest in it.

TRAVELOGUE

Musical numbers by Messrs. Arnold and Fred Mitchel, and the Garrison family were enjoyed as were also the colored slides shown by Mr. Redner, accompanied by a travelogue by Miss Redner.

Miss Redner had visited the British Isles last summer, being one of the two girls chosen from Homemaking Clubs of the Provinces to study similar problems in the Old Country and visit many of the beauty spots in Great Britain and Ireland.

Refreshments were served, bringing the late evening's entertainment to a close.

Mrs. Clarence Hagerman was hostess to the Melrose W.I. for their March meeting on Thursday last.

Many attended the L.O.L. euchre held in Shannonville Hall on Friday evening.

Congratulations are extended to Mr. and Mrs. Roy Asselstine on the arrival of a baby boy at Belleville hospital.

Congratulations are extended also to Mr. and Mrs. Ray Doyle on the arrival of a baby girl at the Belleville Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Abrams and family have purchased the farm of the late Phillip Cowan and moved into the house during the week. Mr. and Mrs. Pat McCormick and family have moved into the Dryden house, lately vacated by the Abrams.

Mrs. Pat McCormick had the misfortune to fall while house cleaning and break her arm.

Miss Margaret English, Belleville, sent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Arthur English.

Members of the Farm Forum visited River Valley Forum last Monday evening.

Melrose Forum enjoyed a turkey dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur English on Saturday evening.

Mr. James McLaren and family arrived here Saturday evening to be present at the 50th wedding anniversary of his parents today.

White's District

WHITE'S DISTRICT — Mr. and Mrs. Will Parcels and Allen, of Norwood, were recent Sunday guests of Mrs. Sarah Acker.

Mrs. Vera Sine sent last week-end with her daughter, Mrs. Gordon Richardson, and Mr. Richardson of Rawdon.

Mrs. Bernard Wadsworth, of Belleville, is spending a few days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Yateman.

The sympathy of the community is extended to the family of the late George Page, who passed away in Pontiac, Michigan, on Thursday. The funeral service will be held on Monday from the Weaver Funeral Home, Trenton, with interment at White's Cemetery. His wife was formerly Pauline Sarles, of this district.

The Rev. R. W. T. Middleton made a few calls in this district the past week.

A number from this district attended the interment service on Saturday at the Bellaville Cemetery of the late Mrs. Charles Wills, formerly Edith Gunn, of this district. The sympathy of the community is extended to the Gunn family.

Communion service was observed at White's Church on Sunday by the Rev. R. W. T. Middleton. In the Sunday School service Mrs. Albert Hockaday, Temperance superintendent, gave many interesting facts and told the story of a brewer's son who gave up his inheritance to work against the liquor traffic.

WALKS TO PALACE

The major shift in prospect is the naming of Defence Minister Harold Macmillan, 60, to the post of foreign secretary that Eden had filled in three governments.

Richard A. Butler, Churchill's 53-year-old chancellor of the exchequer, is expected to stay on in that key economic post. Many assume that he will succeed Eden as the Conservatives' deputy leader.

SUMMARY AT 4:30

For Eden, it was the summit of a long climb which began in December, 1923, with his election to the House of Commons from the Warwick and Leamington division. He has held the seat ever since.

Though he had waited for years for Churchill to step aside, Eden is younger than any Conservative minister since Stanley Baldwin first took office in 1923 at 56.

Churchill meanwhile made ready today to move from the prime minister's residence at 10 Downing St. to his country home in Kent, Chartwell. He will leave Tuesday for a vacation in Sicily, his first long holiday in 18 months.

His personal physician, Lord Moran, called on him this morning but it was announced later that the 50-minute call had been "routine." It was believed, however, that the elder statesman had been under a strong emotional strain during his resignation day.

Loyal Britons packed Downing street until late Tuesday night, cheering for the feckless old warrior. The "good old Winnie" about was heard again and again, and the serenade: "For he's a jolly good fellow."

FAMILIAR SIGN

At 2:45 p. m. he leaned from a window, waved his cigar and beamed. But the clamor continued until, he appeared at a window again at 11:40. Wearing a red dressing gown, he smiled, gave his famous "V" sign, then waved his arms in good-humored dismissal. The curtains closed and the lights of No. 10 snapped out.

After his return from Sicily, Churchill is expected to remain in the House of Commons as an ordinary member. But his voice still will be accorded deep respect in the Western world.

The New York Times, in a dispatch from London, says the Queen offered Churchill a dukedom but he refused as he could remain in the House of Commons. He previously refused an earldom in 1945 because it, too, would have moved him to the House of Lords.

PRAISE FOR EDEN

Because London's newspapers are still silenced by the newspaper strike, the city's editorial writers could not salute the outgoing and incoming government chiefs. But the Yorkshire Post comments:

"Apart from Sir Winston himself, no man in the country can rival his equipment for this task. . . . He handles foreign relations with a finesse born of natural aptitude for diplomacy and a lifetime's practice in its arts."

The big north country paper, one of the most influential published outside London, says Eden will bring similar "zeal, intelligence and goodwill" to his handling of domestic affairs.

"The prestige and fortunes of Britain remain in safe hands."

Settlement Approved

VANCOUVER (CP) — A $60,000 settlement was approved by Chief Justice Wendell B. Farris here Tuesday on behalf of the family of George Herbert Gillett, 52, killed April 8, 1954, in a mid-air collision between an RCAF trainer and a Trans-Canada Air Lines plane over Moose Jaw, Sask.

Chief Justice Farris approved payment of $15,000 each to Gillett's two children, Peter, 16, and Shirley 14. The remainder goes to the widow, Mrs. Georgo Jean Gillett.

The money is paid by the Crown and TCA.

Security Council Called to Deal With Gaza Strife

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) — The United Nations Security Council was called into emergency session today to deal once more with the growing border strife between Israel and Egypt.

Today's meeting came just a week after the 11-member council sent a formal appeal to both countries to co-operate in restoring peace. The delegates hoped then that the situation would improve.

Israel, however, filed a detailed complaint two days ago alleging 16 border violations by Egypt since March 24 and calling for action to halt the "purposeful Egyptian aggression."

Egyptian ambassador Omar Loutfi promptly sent a letter to the council charging that Israel was responsible for one of the major incidents listed.

CANADIANS

Rhys M. Sale, president of Ford Motor Company of Canada, said the budget removed the uncertainty which had created a bottleneck in car sales for the last several weeks. The tax reductions should mean a brighter economic picture for Canada.

Rubber companies welcomed removal of the 10-per-cent excise tax on tires and tubes.

R. C. Berkinshaw, president of Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, said repeal of the tax should stimulate sales. J. G. Needles, president of B. F. Goodrich Company said it would give the Canadian rubber industry a better chance to compete with American products.

The plastics industry welcomed the 7½-per-cent tariff imposed on importation of polyethylene, basic ingredient of many plastic products.

A spokesman for Canadian Industries (1954) Ltd., said that about three-quarters of the polyethylene used in plastics in Canada is imported from the United States and the tariff should tend to equalize the position of American and Canadian manufacturers.

Mining and exploration circles were cheered by the budget's action of making permanent certain tax concessions in the mining and oil fields.

Mrs. Viola MacMillan, president of the Canadian Prospectors and Developers Association, called it a step in the right direction which would give mining companies further incentive.

WAKE UP FRESH FEELING FINE!

PHILLIPS'

Bringing Up Baby

Hints Collected by Mrs. Ben Parker (Mother of 5)

Little ones dearly love "look toys" and mobiles are especially exciting to the crib set. Why not make an inexpensive mobile like this? Wind satin ribbon around a clothes hanger until it is completely covered. Tie six different lengths of ribbon to the cross bar. Then fashion simple birds, fish, fruit, etc., from colored or metallic paper and tie to ribbon ends. Hang the mobile on a suction hook attached to the wall above baby's crib. He (or she) will be fascinated by the merry movement and color.

Coloring the mealtime story. Sunny yellow (most babies' favorite color) can add a heap of eating interest to a wee one's meals. Like Lerber's Strained Egg Yolks, for instance. Eye-appealing, taste-tempting, they have a delicate, fresh-egg flavor and custard-like consistency that's ideal to beat for a palate-pleaser. Nutritious too, since they're rich in iron and vitamin A . . . and meet certain requirements for growing babies. Ready to serve "as is" or mix with other solid foods.

Short sheet story. Rips in baby's bed or crib sheet can easily and quickly repaired with adhesive tape.

Crib cue. A slender curtain rod, fastened to the foot of baby's crib, makes a swell hanger for an emergency diaper or fresh nightie.

Appetite appeal is just one of the things Gerber's Strained Meats are good for. Because they have the savory, true-meat flavors that most babies take to with real relish. Made from selected juicy cuts, specially processed to remove most of the fat and fiber, they're extra-easy to digest. All 6 are 100% protein-rich meat, with just enough natural meat broth to give a smooth take-on-the-tongue texture. Gerber-Ogilvie Baby Foods Limited, Niagara Falls, Canada.

While most of Canada is expected to enjoy near normal or above temperatures during the next thirty days, a belt of below-normal temperatures is predicted for the Maritimes, much of Quebec and Ottawa. This map, based on the long-range forecast of the United States Weather Bureau, shows that the near normal belt covers much of Central Ontario and most of British Columbia. The remainder of Western Canada is expected to have above-normal weather. (CP Photo).

United States Concern Seen For Western Solidarity With New British Government

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP)—An overriding concern to preserve Western solidarity against Russia is likely to dominate the policies of Britain's new government as it did those of Sir Winston Churchill, Washington circles believe.

But United States officials say privately that they think Sir Anthony will not do things in the same way as Churchill did, and that there is no use pretending there will not be some differences in British-American relations.

What these differences are going to be, how they will develop and how they must be handled to prevent unnecessary frictions will be major sources of interest in American conduct of foreign affairs during the next few months.

Authorities here think it possible that Eden will seek early talks with high American officials. He might find such an occasion when State Secretary Dulles goes to Europe for a North Atlantic Treaty Organization meeting in May. He also could come here to confer with President Eisenhower, though officials say there is no present plan for such a meeting.

MOTIVES DIFFER

Eden and Churchill have been closely identified for so many years that there is a tendency to consider them identical in motives and reactions. That is not true, according to Americans who have worked with both of them.

As prime minister and foreign minister, Churchill and Eden were accustomed to disagree on many issues. Sometimes U.S. diplomats have had to cheek and recheck both men to learn what was the true British position on some issue.

One well-known difference was Churchill's desire for a long time for a big-power meeting at what he called "the summit"—involving heads of state. Eisenhower was cool to the notion. So were Dulles and Eden.

On the specific question of relations with Red China, diplomats believe Eden will be just as devoted as Churchill was to preserving the Anglo-American relationship as the foundation of free world alliance.

SOME STRAIN

But some difficulties in the recent past certainly placed a strain on British-American relationships.

Eden's refusal to support last year to French efforts to find a peace formula in Indochina, Dulles is known to believe, would not spend more than a few days at the Asian peace talks at Geneva.

Last September and October, Eden, with Dulles' approval, took the lead in setting up a new Western European Union system to provide for rearming Germany.

His relationship with the Eisenhower administration thus has followed a roller-coaster course, and there is no reason to think it will be any different as prime minister.

INGRID BERGMAN ILL

ROME (AP) — Actress Ingrid Bergman has scarlet fever and is confined to bed with a temperature up to 104, Frickedo today reported that the Swedish film star showed signs the disease Tuesday, a day after her return to Rome from a visit in Sweden. Her condition is not serious.

Companies Will Seek Damages From Montreal

MONTREAL (CP)—A group of insurance companies Tuesday gave notice it will seek payment from the city for damages caused during a March 17 riot that followed a hockey game at the Montreal Forum, No damage figure was given.

In a written notice, the group said the city was responsible for the damages caused by rioters, protesting the suspension of Maurice (Rocket) Richard, star of Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League.

Steel Industry Earns 6 Per Cent On Sales in 1954

NEW YORK (AP)—Steel industry earnings for 1954 in the United States were estimated today at $645,000,000 in an analysis just completed by Iron Age, weekly metal-working magazine.

This represented a return of six per cent on sales, Iron Age says. In 1953, the industry earned about $710,000,000, or 5.6 per cent on sales.

"This year," the publication continues, "the earnings outlook is even better. Mills are operating at near-capacity and probably will continue at a high level through 1955. Sales will be up and profits will rise accordingly."

It attributes the industry's good financial showing last year in the face of relatively poor business to elimination of the excess profits tax, new and more efficient equipment and better planning by better management.

Three Brothers Burned to Death In Detroit Fire

DETROIT (AP) — Three small brothers died Tuesday in a fire at their one-storey frame home in suburban St. Clair Shores.

Their young mother, Mrs. Dolores Vanderberghe, a truck driver's wife, was spared with an infant son although she risked her life trying to save the other boys.

Thomas, 4; Richard, 2½, and George, 1, suffocated.

Mrs. Vanderberghe, 25, was found on the floor of the living room where she had collapsed. She was badly burned.

Firemen said the blaze was caused by a defect in the electric wiring.

Member Claims Egg Prices Set By Toronto Men

TORONTO (CP)—A member of the Ontario legislature said Tuesday that the price of eggs in the province is set by a few wholesale dealers in Toronto who handle less than 50 per cent of the product.

William Murdoch, Progressive Conservative member for Essex south, told the Ontario Poultry Producers Association:

"It doesn't matter if eggs are selling well in Windsor, London, Hamilton, Ottawa or North Bay. If the Toronto dealers are getting more and they can sell locally, down comes the price. This drops the price for everybody in the business."

STORAGE PROBLEM

Eggs which have been kept in storage under the federal government's protection plan are sold as grade A and for the same price as fresh eggs, Mr. Murdoch said.

"But," he added, "the consumer will not buy them. That's the reason the government was left with unsold eggs last year.

"If, instead of trying to fool the consumer into buying storage eggs for fresh eggs, at the same price, they were put into cartons marked grade B and sold for 10 cents a dozen less, we could sell these storage eggs."

Mr. Murdoch urged egg producers to establish a marketing plan which would be beneficial to all.

High Levels Pose Severe Flood Threat

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Dangerously high water levels in lakes Erie and St. Clair continue to pose a "severe" flood threat, United States army engineers said Tuesday.

The engineers said the lakes are rising "in an alarming fashion," and unless a reverse trend ensues soon the lake levels will exceed the flood crest reached in 1952, when thousands of acres were flooded and millions of dollars damage done throughout low-lying Essex county areas.

At the present rate of climb, the lakes will reach their highest point in June, the engineers said.

Lake Erie's level is 12 inches above that of April 1 last year, and almost two feet above the average. Lake St. Clair is nine inches above the 1954 level at this time, and more than two feet above the average.

Both lakes are expected to rise about six inches this month, the report stated. The engineers said water-power committee is trying to consider possible means of preventing high waters smashing over banks and causing serious flood.

STRIKE BROKEN

AMSTERDAM (AP) — Amsterdam municipal workers Tuesday gave up their wildcat strike after five days. The tramway workers, gravemen, garbage collectors, ferry deckhands and road crews returned to work, although the city did not meet their demands for higher pay. The strike failed because it lacked union support and troops were used to operate public utilities.

Churchill Sidelights

By ARCH MacKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—As era ended Tuesday in Downing street. An old man laid down his burden as Her Majesty's 41st first minister. Hundreds—and a heavy, heavy sprinkling of overseas visitors—came early on Downing street to watch Sir Winston Churchill make more history. They came, too, to pay a spontaneous shouted and sung tribute to the 80-year-old statesman in the little deserted street in which British prime ministers have lived since it was Sir Robert Walpole's residence in 1735.

Early-gathering watchers at 8 a.m. are routing Downing street life—deliveries of dispatch boxes, a carton of groceries, a bunch of flowers. Domestic and secretarial employees passed through the big, black, front door with the large knocker and the brass plate, lettered "First Lord of the Treasury," under the number "10." Reporters and cameramen sat under a living office archway.

With a precision born of practice, Sir Winston's cabinet colleagues materialized a few at a time, afoot and auto-bound for the noon final meeting, nimbly sidestepping pools of rain and cameras shooting pictures that may never appear in London's glossy picture magazines. "Fancy being the Queen and facing that all the time," said an awestruck matron.

At 12:45, after a brief melee, the street was cleared of its loud, black limousines but the people still waited, growing numbers. Some went for lunch. Others abled chocolate bars and sandwiches the side of the narrow street. There were no papers to read.

Patience was rewarded at 1:22 when Sir Winston appeared to No. 10 from the offices of the Buckingham Palace. He was back at 3:15, content wreathing his rosy face, and a few hours formed themselves into his eyes as he acknowledged the tributes of 400-500 persons.

Another wait, with office workers swelling the ranks, taking a cue from Sir Winston's car still parked in the street. A pert young woman came back from taking Sir Winston's poodle, Rufus, for a walk. Unlicensed porters carried messages to and fro, killing reporters noted inside Sir Winston's premises one periodical on goldfish, which he keeps at Chartwell, one box of matches and one specially-long ashtray designed for holding mammoth cigars. A porter gave the official word—"Winnie" had resigned.

Suddenly, the street was full of limousines again as Sir Winston's ministers came to make their farewells at his summons. Within 15 minutes they were out and gone. Another wait. Then his auto was driven to the door.

At 6:45 Sir Winston, accompanied by wife, Lady Clementine Soames, appeared and climbed quickly into the car, destination unknown. The crowd broke ranks, swarming with shouts around it. Those nearest heard Sir Winston in the street mouth until the vehicle gathered speed up Whitehall. Many of the people to take up the vigil. Others, breathless from roaring the "For he's a jolly good fellow," took a rest before joining them.

Churchill was back at 7:30. The long day was done. The people "vi" to the window to flash his sign 11 times. "Victory," it is finding comparable to today's events has been seen since William Ewart Gladstone left office in March, 1894," comments the Manchester Guardian.

Churchill was then 82 and two months, Sir Winston is 80 and four months. A correspondent in 1894 time wrote then that "Generations may pass before Britain again finds a political figure so great as that which is facing from our eyes."

Churchill's Retirement Brings Feelings of Sadness, Regret

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The resignation of Rt. Hon. Sir Winston Churchill has been received in official Canadian quarters with mixed feelings of admiration and sadness.

"All of us here that no one more richly deserves a respite from the overpowering public responsibility that falls to office in times," Prime Minister St. Laurent told the House of Commons in Ottawa Tuesday after Sir Winston's resignation was announced.

"But we shall miss a leadership which for so many years — and especially in the dark autumn days of the war — has inspired and encouraged the people of the British Commonwealth and indeed the whole free world."

Mr. St. Laurent, speaker of a number of Canadian tributes to the British leader, paid by leaders of all parties in the Commons, provincial and civic officials and persons who were acquainted with Sir Winston through his visits to Canada.

Sir Winston was in Canada for two Quebec conferences during the war. He addressed a special session of Parliament in 1941 and made his last visit here last June.

Hon. George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, said Sir Winston's retirement brings to an end a great period in the parliamentary history. Sir Winston was the greatest statesman and parliamentarian of all time.

"We are not here to mourn him", Mr. Drew said. His retirement was not the end of his duties but the beginning of a "new period of activities."

CCF leader M.J. Coldwell said no man has better expressed the spirit of democratic world. Whether one agreed with Sir Winston's philosophy or not, it was the spirit of democracy and of the Commonwealth that all persons respected. In his old age Churchill gave his services to his generation.

Social Credit leader Solon Low said Sir Winston had aroused the imagination and admiration of all the people. It was remarkable that he was unable to realize his ambitions for the world but it was still in office. He had earned the gratitude of many millions for his great services to humanity.

Mayor Charlotte Whitton of Ottawa suggested a board of control meeting to announce Sir Winston's retirement. "In the whole history of the century, she said, it marks "the end of an epoch." Most Rev. Philip Carrington, Anglican Archbishop of Quebec, who met Churchill during the wartime Quebec conferences said:

"He was the voice of England, and the voice of freedom, a voice, I was his courage and his character that made him the champion of the free world; it was his faith in God and in great principles of freedom and human truth. ... He is recognized today as the greatest man of his age."

Failing to Keep Club Date, Mario Lanza Loses $100,000

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Where does Mario Lanza go from here?

That was the question the movie world pondered today after the dynamic singer failed to appear and was fired from the world's highest salaried night club date. The Hotel New Frontier Tuesday cancelled Lanza's contract which called for $100,000 for a week of singing twice a night.

Lanza, his wife, Betty, their four children and the nurses were scheduled to motor back to Hollywood today. The rest of their entourage pulled out Tuesday night after the singer's club debut fizzled out.

A confidante of Lanza reported that the singer was suffering from his failure to keep the date. The reason is more than professional. He expected to use the $100,000 to rent a new house.

Heavily in debt to the government for past income taxes, he now plans to rent an apartment. For the last three months he had been preparing for the abortive engagement.

"He was in a good mood and talking very sensibly," a closed wind-friend said. "He remarked that he guessed that motion pictures is his business."

Lanza apparently will get back to Hollywood under contract to Warner Bros. for the James M. Cain story, Serenade. He was also quoted as saying he now hopes he can make good pre-recorded records. He has never given him the encouragement he apparently needs.

The cause of his pull-out of the much-publicized show here is still clouded. A local doctor examined him Tuesday and said he was in no danger to sing. But the wording of his backers decided later that Lanza could not sing. The "sick" leave then ruled that his contract had been broken.

'COPTER JET CRASHES

TOKYO (AP)—Japan's first experimental jet helicopter, product of three years' research, rose three feet on its maiden flight Tuesday, then suddenly nosedived and crashed. The pilot was hurled out and injured. Builders blamed a gust of wind.

Former Police Constable Will Stand Trial

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Clarence Hawkshaw, 31, former London township police constable, Tuesday was committed to stand trial in a higher court on a charge of assault in the March 4 blackjack beating of a young mother of three.

A joint charge of conspiracy to rob, laid against Hawkshaw and Francis J. Morrow, 19, of nearby Lambeth, was withdrawn Tuesday in county magistrate's court.

Hawkshaw was charged with an assault inflicting grievous bodily harm in connection with an attack on Mrs. Stanley Ogg, 25, at her home in nearby Byron.

The former township and provincial police officer, free on $4,000 bail, will be tried during the spring assizes of Supreme Court, which start April 18.

Morrow and John C. Swanson, 19 of London, have also been charged with assault inflicting grievous bodily harm in the beating. They are to stand trial at the next county court assizes.

Begin Clearing St. Mary's River With Icebreaker

CLEVELAND (AP) — The U.S. coast guard icebreaker Mackinaw will begin today to clear the lower St. Mary's river in preparation for the 1955 Great Lakes navigation season.

This was announced Tuesday at a meeting of the Lake Carriers Association's ice committee, which plans another meeting Friday to "review" icebreaking operations and plans. The committee also heard a weather report from Cleveland's meteorologist Neil Frank that next week has been exceptionally favorable for ice breaking operations in the upper lakes region.

The Mackinaw has been working in the Straits of Mackinac and in the Green bay area. Her crew has been relieved through the Sault Ste. Marie locks this weekend and on through the upper river to Whitefish bay.

Drinking Survey in N.S. Shows Teen-Age Problem

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Forty per cent of all teenagers over 18 in Nova Scotia are classed in a survey as "occasional, moderate or frequent drinkers."

Findings of the survey were included in a report tabled in the N.S. legislature Tuesday by Victor Stanbury, M.L.A. for Yarmouth, Dr. Digby and chairman of the temperance committee.

The report cited the findings of Nova Scotia temperance director Donald Jones in a "first of its kind survey" of 5,360 high school students.

The survey said 45 per cent of students under 14-have had their first drink and that one-third per cent of those could be classed as alcoholics.

In other legislatures:

NEWFOUNDLAND

Newfoundland's controversial redistribution bill came up for second reading in the legislature.

The bill would add five new seats to the present 28.

Mr. Justice Conservative Conservative member for St. John's West, led off the opposition by saying there was no justification for increased membership.

"Newfoundlanders don't have nearly as much to do as they once did," he said.

NEW BRUNSWICK

New Brunswick's 42nd legislature prorogued with Lieutenant-Governor Hugh John Flemming's assent to a final batch of bills. The session opened Feb. 10.

Flattening political fences in a quest of more power for the provincial government Tuesday Opposition united in a resolution signalling a start on St. John river hydro development at Beechwood. The cost of putting two 70,000-horsepower units in operation in 1957, and a third in 1959 has been estimated at $48,000,000. The plant would produce 135,000 horsepower.

SASKATCHEWAN

Saskatchewan Provincial Treasurer C. M. Fines blasted the Opposition in the legislature for not being at its toes.

He charged the Opposition with "deliberate incompetence" because it failed to question why expenses of the Saskatchewan Power Corporation had increased to $90,-

Government Plans to Bring Fishermen Under Benefits Of Unemployment Insurance

OTTAWA (CP) — The government plans to bring Canada's fishermen under the benefits of unemployment insurance — if it can possibly be done.

Labor Minister Gregg made that promise in the Commons Tuesday as he piloted through the first reading stage government legislation that will make broad changes in the Unemployment Insurance Act.

He said the government has been studying the matter for months and these studies will continue. He hoped a solution might be found to include fishermen "whether they're comes within the field of unemployment insurance, under some special measure administered by the department of fisheries, or in a combination of both."

Maritime members long have urged the government to extend unemployment insurance benefits to out-of-work fishermen. The government has said the difficulty of including them lies in their complicated employment conditions.

START EASTER HOLIDAY

The Commons starts a 12-day Easter holiday after today's half-day sitting. The Senate also will begin a 26-day Easter recess.

Elsewhere in Commons business Tuesday the House defeated by a vote of 152 to 25 a bill sponsored by Ray Thomas (CCF—Wetaskiwin) which would have provided for inclusion of the political affiliation of candidates on election ballots. The CCF joined the Social Creditors in supporting the bill while the Progressive Conservatives sided with the Liberals in opposing it.

Labor Minister Gregg said the government is alive to the problem of seasonal unemployment and would work with other agencies against another threat of unemployment slump. But it planned no change this year in the April 15 last date for payment of supplementary benefits paid in winter months.

ARREST ANOTHER PRIEST

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Police Tuesday disclosed the arrest of Rev. Rolando Federico, assistant parish priest of the Roman Catholic church in suburban Boulogne. He was taken into custody after the Palm Sunday services and charged with disrespect to President Juan D. Peron. Sixteen other Roman Catholic priests have been jailed on similar charges in the last four months.

Tasty Suckers Will Soon Be Going Up Rivers

TORONTO—Suckers will be running soon. The Ontario Department of Lands and Forests is being deluged with inquiries about this spring phenomenon — when and where to find 'em, whether they're good to eat—they are—and how to cook them. Suckers average one to two pounds and occasionally may be more than 18 inches long. They have a sucker-like mouth overhung by the snout and directed downward. They're found in almost all Ontario lakes and rivers from the Great Lakes to Hudson Bay.

In the spring the suckers move from the lakes into the streams to spawn; one female may simultaneously have anywhere up to 50,000 eggs over stony or gravelly shoals.

Square or circular dip nets usually are used to catch them during the spawning run. On some shallow reaches the fish may actually be picked up by hand. At this time the flesh is considered the finest; in many claim it's too soft and "muddy" for eating.

Suckers are classed as coarse fish and so there are no limits on the numbers which may be taken.

They may be salted down or otherwise preserved. The bones may be softened by boiling or cooking under pressure—more commonly the fish are filleted.

For some years the Department has been trying to find a wide commercial use for suckers, which are somewhat prevalent in spawning.

Dr. F. J. Fry, head of the experimental station at South Bay on Manitoulin Island, has filleted and fast-frozen them as an unusually tasty many have only taken the fillets for anything from speckled trout to codfish.

Many claim that the sucker is a predator which feeds on the eggs of other fish. Principal food, however, includes aquatic insects, snails and other invertebrates, and aquatic plant material. Not infrequently, some fishermen are puzzled to find a weeds may be given a real tussle by a sucker who has hit at a dry or wet fly. The sucker also is said to provide food for some of Ontario's larger game species such as fish. Muskinonge, pike and pickerel anglers and expert muskie fishermen claim that a large, live sucker "still fished" will attract a muskie in a hurry.

The white sucker and the longnose are the two main types found in Ontario waters. The longnose is more frequently caught in the commercial nets in the Great Lakes. It is sometimes known as the northern longnose, fine-scaled, sturgeon-nosed or red-sided sucker.

Game wardens and conservation officers in the far northern areas Manning and his colleagues served fire for 12 to 48 hours. Indian trappers fly them for use as dog food or dice them into small portions for bait in the sturgeon fisheries of the Albany River.

Despite the tremendous numbers taken annually by commercial fishermen, anglers, small boys and others, suckers never seem to diminish. There's many an old resident who recalls that

Three Named Executors Of McCormick Estate

CHICAGO (AP)—Col. Robert R. McCormick, late editor and publisher of the Chicago Tribune, designated three of his executives to direct the operations of the newspaper, his will showed Friday.

Named executors of his estate were Chester M. Campbell; William D. Maxwell, managing editor of The Tribune, and J. Howard Wood, treasurer of the Tribune Co.

Campbell, who was vice president of the Tribune Co., was elected president by company directors shortly after terms of the will were disclosed.

Maxwell will be in charge of the editorial department and Wood will be concerned with advertising and circulation.

McCormick died Friday at 74.

SHARES INTO TRUST

McCormick's shares of stock in The Tribune and his beneficial interest in the McCormick-Patterson Trust which owns controlling interest in the Tribune Co. will go into a trust to be known as the Robert R. McCormick Charitable Trust.

Trustees of both these charitable trusts are Arthur Schmon, president of the Ontario Paper Co., Ltd., Quebec, and North Shore Paper Co., and other Canadian subsidiaries of the Tribune Co., Campbell, Maxwell and Wood, and Stewart D. Owen, an assistant managing editor of The Tribune.

McCormick designated Schmon, Campbell, Maxwell and Wood and his niece, Mrs. Ruth McCormick Tankuysley, former editor of the Washington Times-Herald, to succeed him as trustee of the McCormick-Patterson Trust.

DEHYDRATED
LAWN-ORGANIC
FOR RAPID GROWTH
FOR THE BEST LAWN RESULTS
FOLLOW THESE DIRECTIONS CLOSELY

LAWN ORGANIC being a natural organic product will not burn as is the possibility with inorganic or chemical fertilizers.

Uniform color and growth depend on even distribution of LAWN Organic. Careless methods not only waste valuable material, but leave tell-tale marks of dark green, rapidly growing grass on treated areas and thin, disappointing turf on skipped areas. Best results are obtained by using a FERTILIZER DISTRIBUTOR, but LAWN ORGANIC can be applied by hand. To obtain uniform distribution apply ONE HALF the LAWN ORGANIC while walking in one direction and the balance while walking in a direction at right angles to this. Never drop LAWN ORGANIC in piles.

FOR ESTABLISHED LAWNS use from 25 to 35 lbs. per 1000 square feet of area. (½ to 3½ pounds per 100 sq. ft.). Make one application in early spring and another about September 1st. This encourages vigorous fall growth insuring better grass the next year. On poor soil, where the grass is very thin, an application in late May or June, using one half the quantity indicated will make the grass spread to form a denser sod. Additional seed should be sown on old lawns where grass is poor. Sow the seed after applying LAWN ORGANIC and rake lightly, just sufficient to cover the seed.

WATERING: Upon the application of LAWN ORGANIC, the user will find that the soil will absorb moisture and watering often is recommended.

NEW LAWNS: Use 40 to 50 lbs. of LAWN ORGANIC per 1000 square feet, (4 to 5 lbs. per 100 sq. ft.). Prepare a mellow seed bed. Scatter the LAWN ORGANIC evenly and work into the surface soil with a rake. Sow ample seed of good quality. Rake lightly to cover seed and roll. If possible, keep the soil moist until a good turf is obtained. The nozzle of the sprinkler should be kept at a fine spray, otherwise the seed will be washed out.

YOU CAN WIN $2,000 THIS WEEK in the exciting DOMINION "Famous Brands" FORTUNE-HUNT!

Mrs. E. Forder of 362 St. George St., Smithers won the first Grand Prize winner in the DOMINION "Famous Brands" FORTUNE-HUNT. Last Saturday at 8.30 p.m. she answered her telephone by saying "DOMINION STORES — RICHMELLO COFFEE." That was the correct answer to last week's puzzle, and so a smart Mrs. Forder is $1,000 richer. Unfortunately for her, Mrs. Forder did not qualify for the additional Bonus Prize of $1,000.

Unsuccessful calls were made to Hamilton, St. Catharines, Sarnia, Windsor, Stratford, Chapleau, Ottawa, Cobalt, Peterborough, London, Kingston, Amherstburg and several Toronto area exchanges before a Grand Winner was found. Mrs. E. W. Elliott of 36 Albert St., St. Catharines, and Mr. D. R. Garratt of 56 John St., Weston, won consolation prizes of $100.

You can win $2,000 this week in the DOMINION "Famous Brands" FORTUNE-HUNT. First, find the "Phantom Famous Brand" listed on this page but not illustrated. Next, if your telephone rings between 8 and 9 o'clock next Saturday evening, DO NOT ANSWER HELLO or you will be automatically disqualified from an opportunity to win $2,000.

Instead of answering HELLO, say "DOMINION STORES" and then state the name of this week's "Phantom Famous Brand." If you do, and it is the DOMINION FORTUNE-HUNT calling, you will win the Grand Prize of $1,000.

$1,000 BONUS! If you win the Grand Prize and have in your home at the time a box top or label from this week's "Phantom Famous Brand" (or a reasonable facsimile) PLUS a DOMINION cash register slip dated this week and totalling $5.00 or more, you will qualify for a bonus prize of $1,000.

$500 CONSOLATION PRIZES! If the DOMINION FORTUNE-HUNT calls your telephone number and you make the mistake of answering HELLO, but you still name this week's "Phantom Famous Brand," you will qualify for a consolation prize of $100.

GRAND PRIZE MUST BE WON! If this week's Grand Prize is not won on Saturday night, it will be added to next week's Grand Prize of $1,000. This will be repeated if necessary until someone wins the accumulated Grand Prize.

Employees and agents of Dominion Stores Limited and their families are not eligible for this contest.

Find the "PHANTOM FAMOUS BRAND!"

Below are listed a number of Canada's most famous brands of food and household products. ALL BUT ONE of these products are illustrated on this page. Check the list of products against the illustrations and find the one that is NOT ILLUSTRATED. That is the "Phantom Famous Brand" in this week's contest.

Eden Takes Up Where Master Leaves Off

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — The long wait finally ended today for Robert Anthony Eden.

Anthony, faithful shadow of Prime Minister Churchill for 13 years, now takes up where the master leaves off.

With Churchill's retirement, Eden's appointment as his successor becomes a formality, though the official announcement is yet to come.

Eden had waited so long some began to doubt he would ever make it. Smoking-room jokes, disdained in respectable quarters, circulated about the perennial heir apparent.

In fact, Eden has been marked out more or less clearly as Churchill's successor since his second term at the foreign office, 1940-45. His first term, 1935-38, ended with his resignation in protest against policies of appeasement, a word he is credited with adding to the political vocabulary in its current meaning.

He started his third period as foreign secretary Oct. 27, 1951.

Churchill, given as the source of many a utterance—he is said to have called former Labor prime minister Clement Attlee "a sheep in sheep's clothing"—is reported to have chaffed Eden occasionally for the latter's reported impatience to take over.

Undoubtedly Sir Winston and Sir Anthony have had moments of disagreement. But there are many evidences of real affection. Several years ago Churchill said:

"If Anthony and I have differences we thrash them out. I should not take any important step in public life, nor do I, without consulting this most able and distinguished man."

A climacteric in Eden's career came Feb. 20, 1938. As foreign secretary, he opposed Prime Minister Chamberlain's policy of talking softly to the dictators. Feeling himself isolated in the cabinet, he resigned, a decision whose impact was heightened by the fact that he was then only 41 years old.

Churchill has recalled in his war memoirs how the decision affected him.

"Late in the night of Feb. 20 a telephone message reached me . . . that Eden had resigned. I must confess that my heart sank, and for a while the dark waters of despair overwhelmed me.

"In a long life I have had many ups and downs. . . . During all the (second world) war. . . . I have never had any trouble sleeping. . . . But now on this night I lay in my bed consumed by emotions of sorrow and fear. There seemed one strong young figure standing up against long, dismal, drawling tides of drift and surrender, of wrong measurements and feeble impulses.

"My conduct of affairs would have been different from his in various ways; but he seemed at the moment to embody the life-hope of the British nation. . . .

"Now he was gone. I watched the daylight slowly creep in through the windows, and saw before me in mental gaze the vision of Death."

$10,000,000 BRIDGE OPENED

Crowds attend the official opening of the new $10,000,000 Angus L. Macdonald bridge linking Halifax and Dartmouth. The suspension span, three years in the building, is the second largest in the British Commonwealth and was opened officially by Mrs. Macdonald, widow of the former Nova Scotia premier after whom the bridge was named. Three Livestock Firms in Man. Fined $100,000

ST. BONIFACE, Man. (CP)—Three St. Boniface livestock firms and their five directors Tues. were fined a total of $100,000 and costs after pleading guilty to 180 charges of income tax evasion and making false returns.

The fines were levied in St. Boniface police court by magistrate Henri Lacerte after the accused pleaded guilty to the charges last Friday. At that time crown counsel termed it the "largest tax evasion case ever to come to court in Canada."

The St. Boniface Abattoir Ltd. was fined a total of $34,500 on 18 charges, St. Boniface Hide and Wool Co. Ltd. was fined $27,500 on 14 charges and Slotin, Fainstein and Trepel Ltd. $5,000 on four charges.

Elia Trepel, 60, former president of the Winnipeg livestock exchange and Harold Fainstein, 68, were each fined a total of $7,275. Both men pleaded guilty to 30 charges each.

Louis Fainstein, 63, and Moses Levin, 62, were each fined a total of $6,175. Both pleaded guilty to 26 charges each.

Moses Cohen, 74, was fined a total of $1,800 on 12 charges.

HALF RECOVERED

The charges were laid by the department of internal revenue under the Income War Tax Act, the Income Tax Act and the Excess Profits Tax Act.

The charges involved taxes totalling $721,985.93 over a period of 10 years from 1942 to 1952. Total taxes due, plus interest, and exclusive of any fines, were $1,300,000. Magistrate Lacerte said more than half this total had been recovered by the department of internal revenue.

TAX FORCES MOVE

WOBURN, Eng. (Reuters)—The Duke of Bedford, faced with a $20,000,000 inheritance tax bill, Monday announced he probably will move to the island of Jersey to make ends meet. Standard income taxes on the little English channel island are only four shillings on the pound while the same tax rate in Britain proper is nine shillings.

Fire Sweeps Hardware Store In Calgary

CALGARY (CP) — Fire early today swept the big Marshall-Wells Hardware warehouse in Calgary's warehouse district. Most of the city's fire-fighting equipment was fighting the blaze.

The fire was believed to have broken out on the building's first floor about 2:30 a. m. MST. By 6:30 a. m. it had developed into a general-alarm blaze and 12 pieces of apparatus from five stations were send to the scene.

Clouds of smoke from the blazing building covered the area and firemen fought the blaze wearing oxygen masks.

One fireman, one of the first to enter the building, was overcome by smoke. Taken to hospital, he was released after treatment.

GENERAL ALARM

By 4 a. m. the fire, cause of which was not known immediately, was a five-alarm blaze. At 6:30 a. m. it was listed as a general alarm.

Heavy steel doors hindered firemen as they sought to break into the building and acetylene torches were being used.

Firemen fought the blaze under the menace of the possibility of explosion of large stores of paint in the warehouse.

BUILDING CRAMMED

Ambulances and the fire department rescue car stood by with police lines formed on all four sides of the block in which the warehouse is located.

The warehouse was crammed with mine and mill supplies, sporting goods, automobile accessories, electrical goods, plumbing and heating equipment and paint and roofing materials.

Twp. Council Bitterly Critical Of Lack of Roads

MICHIPICOTEN, Ont. (CP) — Michipicoten township council Tuesday night was bitterly critical of the lack of roads in the township and Algoma district generally.

Reeve Hugh Ferguson said if government road machinery were available roads could be built with local labor now unemployed.

Councillor Ralph Mills said Algoma was being treated "like a leper colony," although Michipicoten is the site of one of Canada's largest iron ore mines.

Councillor Mills said a 43-mile road was being built into Hornepayne for the sake of 40 vehicles there but Michipicoten has 500 vehicles and 2,000 persons. Many of the children here over 13 have never seen paved road, he said.

Council also discovered only one man, a new Canadian, was willing to sit on the local planning board. Councillor Mills said these were the only people interested in local government any more.

WORLD LEADERS

President Rene Coty of France cabled that his country, "united with Great Britain and all free peoples, renders you affectionate homage and extends her admiration and recognition." Like Eisenhower, French Premier Edgar Faure said on behalf of his cabinet: "We know that your counsels will continue to inspire the policy of your country."

West Germany's Chancellor Konrad Adenauer issued this statement: "It is one of Sir Winston's greatest services that the Western world now lives in freedom. All of us in the free world need his counsel and will continue to seek it."

South Africa's Prime Minister J. G. Strijdom declared: "Sir Winston leaves the public scene at the zenith of his power and prestige, and as one of the most dynamic figures that Europe has ever produced."

From Britain's Communist ally, Yugoslavia, Radio Belgrade praised Churchill's wartime leadership and said he was "no great" that he could "change his own errors and recognize his own mistakes."

Moscow radio reported Churchill's resignation to the Russian people without comment.

L'Unita, organ of the Italian Communist party, said he left his high office "without applause." But Rome's pro-Communist Paese Sera called him "a great old man."

INVITATION RENEWED

In Australia, the Sydney Morning Herald described Churchill as "a giant among men."

In Wellington, Prime Minister Sydney Holland renewed his invitation to Sir Winston and Lady Churchill to visit New Zealand. He had extended the earlier invitation while he was attending the recent Commonwealth prime ministers' conference in London. Churchill has never visited New Zealand.

The resignation of Churchill removed "one of the most outstanding statesmen from one of the world's great positions," Japanese Prime Minister Ichiro Hatoyama said in Tokyo.

APPOINTED CONDUCTOR

BERLIN (Reuters) — German conductor Herbert von Karajan Tuesday night was officially appointed successor to the late Wilhelm Furtwaengler as conductor of the Berlin Philharmonic Orchestra. The Orchestra gave its first performance here since returning from its successful United States and Canadian tour during which it was conducted by Karajan.

Sports Roundup

NEW YORK (AP)—After watching Brooklyn Dodgers play two exhibition games down South there was an almost overpowering urge to pick them to win the National League flag. They looked unbeatable. But we were strongly touted off by a friend who had been close to them all spring.

"Don't pick this outfit," he advised. "There's too much unrest. Items of them still are sore at (manager Walter) Alston because they think he beat them out of a world series share last year. I don't know how much ball they're going to play for him unless he changes his way of handling them, and I don't think he knows how to do that."

From the wrangle which has been going on between Alston and Jackie Robinson, there can be no doubt that the 35-year-old Negro star was one of the players under discussion. Any Brooklyn fan who believes his club can win without Robinson in there doing his best is an optimist indeed.

ROBINSON COMPLAINT

Jackie's open blast at the strange gloomy man who is managing the Dodgers for the second season stemmed from Alston's failure to use him regularly at third base in exhibition games. Alston replied angrily that he thought Jackie's arm still was sore. Robinson's answer was, in effect, that a manager who knew his job would have asked or at least noted that he was throwing hard in infield drill.

No matter what apologies are made by Robinson, nothing is going to make them like or respect each other again, and the Dodgers' chances will suffer accordingly.

Those who know Alston best will not be at all surprised to see Don Hoak, a .345 hitter, playing third on opening day.

One suspects that, as of the moment, there is nothing would please the Dodger brass more than to exchange the temperamental Robinson for a couple of sound players, including a good, second-string catcher.

Robinson's biting tongue, plus a habit of playing rough, has made him a lot of enemies around the National League since he came up in 1947.

KINGSTON GIRL REMANDED

MONTREAL (CP) — James Bowman, 25, Toronto, and Eileen M. Jones, Kingston, were remanded to May 3 in court here Tuesday when they appeared on a charge of theft with violence.

Plaintiff Geo. Woods, a Montrealer, testified he was beaten and robbed of a $75 wrist watch on April 1 after he met the woman in a hotel.

'Bums' May Lose Karl Spooner; Maglie Scalps Indians 5-1

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It begins to look as though Brooklyn Dodgers may not have Karl Spooner any sooner this season than last.

The 22-year-old lefty was the kid who broke up the wake held by the Brooklyn faithful at the tail end of the 1954 campaign after New York Giants had laid their club to rest.

Spooner came up from Fort Worth and in two starts he set Giants on their ears 2-0 and bumped off Pittsburgh (the club that slugged Dodgers in the home stretch) 1-0. His 15 strikeouts against the National League champs was a league record for a first appearance. And the 12 strikeouts he added against Pittsburgh gave him a National League mark for two consecutive games.

During the winter, Spooner had a balky right knee set right and he showed up for spring training ready to fire. Trouble was, he fired too hard too soon.

A shoulder pain made him rest most of the way, ostsbed the Frontenacs 20-21 but the solid work of Quebec netminder Jacques Marcotte kept them off the scoresheet until late in the game. Johnny Albani in the Toronto nets also saved the day on a number of occasions.

O'Rec, a native of Fredericton, N.B., who may become the first Negro to play in the National Hockey League, opened the scoring at 13:16 of the second period and it was a work of art. He took a pass from Pat Presley, went around a Marlboro defenceman and poked the puck past Albani.

Marlboros kept up the pressure in the third period and Albani didn't have a stop to make until the 10-minute mark. But Quebec's lead appeared bigger and bigger as the game went on.

A ganging attack paid off for Toronto when Bill Girard, a pass from Harris just inside the Frontenac blue line and clapped it in footer that hit the bottom left corner of the net.

Harris also set up the winner in overtime, digging the puck out of the corner and passing in front of the net. Girard's backhander found the mark.

Michael Lagace, 16-year-old Quebec rightwinger, was in the penalty box when Lagace scored their final two goals.

A shot by Cressman hit a Frontenac stick, flew high into the air and landed in the net behind Marcotte at 6:36. Aldcorn had an empty net when he wrapped up the scoring at 8:07. Marcotte was credited out to one side of the goal when James shoved a pass to Aldcorn and the Toronto leftwinger barely slid the puck over the line.

Toronto Marlboros Defeat Frontenacs To Square Junior 'A' Playdown Series

By BILL SENYK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — Unceasing pressure for almost 60 minutes paid off Tuesday night as Toronto Marlboros, led by Ken Girard's tying and winning goals, defeated Quebec Frontenacs 4-3 in overtime. It squared their best-of-seven eastern Canada Memorial Cup final 2-2-1.

The victory, watched by 4,000 fans, cancelled the 4-1 decision posted by the Frontenacs in the series' opener last Saturday. The teams now move to Quebec for the third game Thursday and the fourth either Saturday or Sunday.

Girard, 18-year-old native of Toronto playing his first year in junior A company, tied the score 1-1 less than seven minutes from the end of the third period and fired the winner at 1:02 of overtime.

Glen Cressman and Gary Aldcorn scored the other Toronto goals. Quebec's only marker was scored on a picture play by Willie O'Ree, 18-year-old Negro leftwinger who starred from Quebec in the first game of the series.

Both of Girard's goals were made possible by centre Billy Harris, Toronto's scoring ace during the season and in the playoffs. Harris, who suffered a severe charley horse Saturday, was a doubtful starter until game time. Marlboros, who dominated play a while. Then he threw against White Sox and Milwaukee, but no hitter pain.

He tried three frames against Braves Tuesday and the arm hurt.

Spooner left for shortstop probably an examination by a specialist—and Reeves were off to an 8-0 victory.

New York Giants got good pitching, as Sal Maglie set down Cleveland Indians 5-1 on nine scattered hits over nine innings.

Pitching never did put in an appearance in the Philadelphia-Boston doubleheader, Phils taking the pair 17-12 and 8-3.

St. Louis also swept a twin bill, beating Chicago White Sox 9-3 and 3-1. Cincinnati ended a five-game losing streak by clouting Washington 13-2.

Pittsburgh beat Baltimore 4-1; New York Yankees took a 2-1 win over Birmingham of the Southern Association; Chicago Cubs downed Beaumont of the Texas League 9-1; and Kansas City walloped Winston-Salem, Carolina League, 20-4.

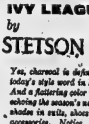
gentlemen, the word is charcoal



the IVY LEAGUE by STETSON

Yes, charcoal is definitely today's style word in hats. And a Saturday color it is, echoing the season's newest shades in suits, shoes and accessories. Notice, too, these new smart features of the Stetson Ivy League: the narrower brim, the subtly tapered crown in balance with today's lean lapel.

Lindsay Leads Power-Laden Red Wings To 7-1 Triumph Over Canadiens

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

THIS IS DIFFERENT!

Mr. Michael J. Rodden, strangely quiet anent the two-game reverse of his beloved Goodyears at the hands (and feet) of the Orillia Pontiacs, bursts forth in flaming prose over the prowess of the Goodies in their 9-2 third-game victory over the Couchiching Lakers. And pal Johnny Kelly, the voice of the Goodyears, via the airwaves is not far behind.

Here they are:

"Kingston Goodyears' recent cordiale to the Orillia Pontiacs on the ice of the latter last night could be listed among the most startling dual reversals of form in the last half century. In two previous losing engagements Goodyears had been outscored 11 to 5 but now their lead in the tallying department 16 to 13. The outlook, now drastically altered, suggests that the Doeglamen will be on even terms with the former free-wheeling Pontiacs when the firing ceases in the Community Centre on Thursday night.

No less than ten attackers split the scoring points during the tornado that hit the Simcoe and Couchiching lakes district last evening. Jack Irvine, a defenceman, paced the pack with four assists; Don Murray and Willie Pawchuk each scored twice and Murray and Don Bellringer each amassed three points.

"The outburst of power deeply dented a previous impression held by students of statistics that Orillia's heavyweight defencemen and Goaltender Bob Shropshire wouldn't allow many counters in any one engagement. Goodyears, apparently, discovered flaws in the system and during the carnage fired 39 shots at the unfortunate Shropshire.

"Johnny Kelly, gazing ahead, no doubt, thundered that 'Goodyears weathered the storm like true champions.' Factually, the champions of last season have departed and the new monarchs will be either Goodyears, Orillia, Dundas or Sarnia. But Goodyears, as they did last night, could rate Barnstorm all the way."

TOODLE WHO LIVE . . ."

Stung by the taunts of other National Hockey League cousins, especially Detroit, that the "Richard incident" "wouldn't happen here," Montreal sportswriters hied themselves to the records and discovered that the hale "Jolly Jester" Adams has been selling other than the "incident" is of recent manufacture and created by home industry.

For the records show that disgraceful incidents can happen—and did happen—in Detroit's proud Olympia, where the gods cannot see north, or is it south?—of the border down thataway.

The central figure in one of the disgraceful episodes that took place in Adam's hockey Garden of Eden, was one Michael J. Rodden, one of the country's better known hockey referees, whose whistle-tooting chores number nearly 3,000.

Some time ago Mr. Rodden told us about the incident, but it remained for a Buffalo sports editor to come up with the details.

What Mr. Rodden omitted to tell us was the fact that he saw "yellow" instead of "red," after the flare-up started, and awarded the game between the Buffalo Bisons and the Detroit Olympics played during the 1934 championship series. The International League title went with it.

The reason Mr. Rodden saw yellow was that a second or so before he put a stop to the puck-chasing activities, a fan with unerring aim plastered an over-ripe egg on one of the Reddaman optics.

According to the Buffalo scrivener, Mr. Rodden disallowed a goal scored by the Olympics when the Bisons were leading 2-1. The score was washed out because a Detroit player, Farrand Gillie, was sprawled in the nets behind the Buffalo goalie. A wild demonstration followed and suddenly fans started pelting the official with every loose object in sight. Came the egg on target and Mr. Rodden immediately declared the game forfeited to the Bisons. His decision was upheld by the late C. S. King, then president of the International League.

"Despite what Adams said the other day, it could and did happen in Detroit, wrote the Buffalo sportswriter.

Vern (Montreal Gazette) DeGeer wrote in his column that he and the Buffalo scribe sat shoulder to shoulder during the incident and the pens ban was directly in the line of egg fire. He said Mr. Rodden had skated to the penalty box and advised police that the game would not continue until the fans cooled off. Then came the eggs.

Later DeGeer writes: "the identity of the egg-thrower was revealed. It was the late Scottie Monteith, boxing matchmaker at Olympia—and one of the most rabid hockey fans in Detroit history.

"I figured something might happen," Scotty is quoted as saying, "So I dropped in a grocery store near the arena and bought a dozen eggs. Just in case they'd be needed.' Later he added: "I'm sorry I was such a lousy shot. Only two of the eggs connected."

Incidentally, says DeGeer, it was the late lamented Scotty who "suggested the first over-ripe mackerel into Olympia one season—and tossed it in the general direction of an arbiter. It was recovered by Eddie Wares, a Detroit player, who hustled it off to the official—and precipitated another riot.

On still another occasion Jack Adams raced across the ice from the Detroit bench to exchange punches with referee Mel Harwood—for which Adams was suspended by N.H.L. president Frank Calder for the remainder of the season.

What was that old saying anent "People who live in glass houses . . ."

Ruins Weakened Habs' Hopes With Fiery Four-Goal Effort In Detroit's 15th Straight Win

By W. R. WHEATLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

DETROIT (CP) — Detroit's power-laden Red Wings, riding the crest of a record 15-game winning streak, handed Montreal Canadiens an unmerciful 7-1 shellacking Tuesday night to take a commanding 2-0 lead in the Stanley Cup final.

A four-goal splurge by tough little Ted Lindsay ruined whatever hopes Canadiens had, and a temperamous rampage by Montreal's Dickie Moore in the third period spiced the entertainment for the 13,942 happy Detroit customers. Moore wound up with minor, misconduct and game misconduct penalties for his mad dash to nowhere in an unsuccessful effort to punmel Lindsay.

When the teams headed for Montreal early today for the third and fourth games, the Red Wings were overwhelming favorites to close out the series in short order. They were also only three points away from equalling the 29 series record for individual scoring points, an honor that may fall to either Lindsay or Gordie Howe.

COULD REPEAT 1952

The way the Red Wings have thrown power and speed at their class at the admittedly weak Montrealers so far, they could be a repetition of the 1952 cup series. Through the best-of-seven semi-final and the first two games of the final in the first period—a festive romp in which Marcel Provencal, Lindsay, Alex Delvecchio and Howe took part, the second period was a Lindsay show all its own.

Ken Mosdell, veteran Montreal centre, finally came to life—mostly for Canadiens by scoring on a smart piece of work in the final period.

HOT SCORING

Throughout the semi - final against Toronto and the final against Montreal, Lindsay and Howe have each counted 13 points, three short of the cup series record of 16 made by retired Toe Blake of Canadiens in 1944. Lindsay so far has seven goals and eight assists and Howe five goals and 10 assists.

The record that was wiped out was Boston Bruins' 14-game winning streak, although the previous record of 14 was set in regular season play by the Bruins in the 1929-30 season. The Red Wings, in finishing off the season, have won nine victories in schedule games and six in playoffs.

Coach Dick Irvin of Montreal pulled out every trick in his bag Tuesday night in an effort to fool rookie goalie Charlie Hodge to take over from Jacques Plante early in the first period and the ploy was beaten for three goals. Plante worked the full second and third period.

STARTED OFF

Howe started the Red Wings on their way by scoring at 2:15 of the first period when his own team was shorthanded. Provencal went around defenceman Doug Harvey like a breeze and caught Plante off guard with a shot to his short side. Hodge was sent to the Montreal nets and Lindsay scored on Howe's pass from the corner.

When Delvecchio counted on Vic Stasiuk's goalmouth pass and Howe scored on Reibel's pass, the rout was well under way. Lindsay took full charge in the second period. He rammed in Howe's rebound, added another on a pass out while Montreal was two men short, and beat Plante to Reibel's rebound.

Mosdell drifted inside the Red Kelly-Benny Woit defence to score Montreal's only goal at 12:32 of the third period, outdoing goalie Terry Sawchuk on the play.

The teams meet Thursday and Saturday in Montreal.

Seaforth Edges Woodstock 4-3

SEAFORTH, Ont. (CP)—Seaforth Baldwins edged Woodstock Warriors 4-3 in overtime play Tuesday night to deadlock their best-of-seven Ontario Hockey Association junior B semi-final 3-3 with one game tied.

The two teams will play off in a two-game total-goals series with the opener here Thursday night and the second in Woodstock Saturday.

McIlwain scored the winning goal after Seaforth's Shantz tied the game in regulation play. McPherson and Vena got the others two. Woodstock scorers were Hull, Collette and Blair.

Flyers Defeat Calgary 4-2

EDMONTON (CP)—An early two goal first-period burst stood up for Edmonton Flyers who went to a 4-2 victory over Calgary Stampeders Tuesday night in the first game of the Western Hockey League final.

Second game of the best-of-seven series will be played here Thursday and the third in Calgary Saturday.

A crowd of 7,000 saw Lorne Davis count twice for Edmonton in the third period after Larry Zeidel and Bronco Horvath had given Flyers a two-goal bulge in the first period.

Calgary scorers were Doc Couture and Jim McFadden.

Jackie, Alston 'Blow Tops' In Baseball Feud

BROOKLYN (AP)—Jackie Robinson blew a gasket, Walt Alston popped his lid and back home the man who hires both of them, Brooklyn baseball owner Walter O'Malley, chuckled with great glee.

"Am I disturbed about all this feuding and fighting?" O'Malley asked rhetorically. "I should say not. I'm delighted. I think it's wonderful.

"I'll tell you exactly how upset I am. I am so disturbed I'm not going to pick up the phone and talk to either one of them."

The Dodger pyrotechnics started Sunday in Nashville, Tenn., on the team's swing north. Robinson, the Dodgers' veteran Negro infielder, got miffed when he was held out of an exhibition game and his rival, Don Hoak, was put on third. Jackie told a newspaper man that he was "fit and should be playing—and Alston knows it."

ROBINSON TOLD OFF

Alston, the normally mild-mannered manager, sharply told Robinson when he had some beefs not to air them in the press but to bring them to the manager. Then Jackie let fly at Alston and batted as the Dodgers moved into Louisville and Robinson relented a bit and said he was sorry it all happened.

Back in his Brooklyn front office, the man who was supposed to be biting his fingernails over this outbreak of friction on his ball club was enjoying it immensely.

"It's great," O'Malley repeated. "I'm glad to see my manager at the end of the spring training blow his top. He needs it. Now it's over. Okay, let him. It's a healthy sign.

"I'm also pleased that one of my veteran ball players is so keen to get in there and play that he blows his top when he's left on the bench. I blow my top, too. It's good to let off steam, and so I say let 'em blow away."

Shawinigan Ousts Chicoutimi In Quebec League

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

One team bowed out and another fought back with unexpected vigor Tuesday night in the semi-finals of the Quebec Hockey League.

The league-champion Shawinigan Falls Cataracts dumped the Chicoutimi Sagueneens 6-2 to win their best-of-nine semi-final set in seven games. At Quebec, however, the Aces, only one game away from elimination, thumped the Montreal Royals 9-1.

The elimination of the Saguenens means that Montreal Canadiens are now free to recall leftwinger Rocky Bartlett for the rest of their Stanley Cup series against Detroit. Bartlett, who was up with the National League team for a couple of games earlier this season, is expected to be dressed by the Habs Thursday.

Bob Baker Betters Rating

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Heavyweight Bob Baker is advanced to "outstanding boxer" and Harold Johnson is back at his old stand of logical light heavyweight contender in the sparkling ratings of the National Boxing Association.

No Canadians are listed in the latest ratings.

Baker's promotion from honorable mention to one of the outstanding heavyweights reflects his string of nine straight victories, NBA matchmaker Jimmy Little chairman Fred Saddy said in releasing the quarterly ratings Tuesday. Baker's last win was over Julio Mederos of Cuba, who had knocked out Roland La Starza.

The ratings include top new champions—Tony Pellone of Pennsacuetts, who whipped welterweight King Johnny Saxton last December, and Joe Brown of Mexico, bantamweight titlist.

Nerve Weakness
How common is it among men and women over a certain age?
Nerve Weakness—Nervousness—Nervous Exhaustion. There are many words for it, including the Greek word Neurasthenia, meaning nerve weakness. Nervousness is often used to describe a condition that can affect many people over forty—when you may complain of being easily tired, with no energy or inclination for your daily tasks.
Yet your symptoms are vague, hard to trace to any definite physical cause.
LIFE AFTER FORTY
It is often after forty that the wear and tear of modern living may take a lot out of you—day after day, the same old things to do, the eternal rush with the clock.
Although you consider yourself physically fit, from time to time you may run into a spell when you feel "all in"—no interest in work or other people—irritable, moody, poor appetite. Such a spell may last for weeks—or for months. At such times many people wisely turn to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food for dependable help.
How long should you take Dr. Chase's Nerve Food?
It's important to remember this: it may have taken many months for your body to become gradually "run down", finally sending out distress signals that many people call "nerves".
Although Dr. Chase's Nerve Food helps to build up nerve energy quickly, for best results you should continue for at least six weeks. This gives your body a chance to get the full benefit of Dr. Chase's Vitamin B1 and other valuable medical ingredients in Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. They work together to help build you up and strengthen your nerves—improve your general health.
At the end of 6 weeks you must be able to say to yourself: "I feel like a new person" . . . or we'll refund every penny you paid for the entire Plan. Why not get started today? 30-30

Dutchmen Defeat Moncton 6-2 In Allan Cup Opening Game

KITCHENER (CP) — Playing-coach Dugger Mitchell of Moncton Hawks was right when he said the Eastern Canada Allan Cup final series would be a high-scoring affair but he didn't count on Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen doing most of it.

Dutchmen manager McNeil's prediction today, second Tuesday night as they trounced the Hawks 6-2 in the opening game of a best-of-seven series. They found Hawks' wide-open style of play was right up their alley.

Dutchmen carried to the limit in the seven-game series for the all-Ontario championship against Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds, had things their own way Tuesday night, They led 2-1 at the end of the first period, 3-1 at the end of the second and outscored Hawks 3-1 in the windup session. Second game of the series will be played here tonight.

KITCHENER PRESSURE

Hawks went through playoff rounds with New Glasgow, N.S., and Stimpy, Nfld., Flyers without losing a game but they couldn't stand up under the Kitchener pressure.

Gerry Theberge led Dutchmen with two goals. Ken Hamilton, leading point scorer in the senior A Ontario Hockey Association, Clare Martin, Joe White and Jim Logan tallied one apiece.

Bill Sinnett and Bryan Thomson scored for Hawks. Sinnett's came at 4:18 of the first period and Thomson defended a long shot by McNeil into the Dutchmen cage at 14:58 of the third. That's all far as Moncton could go.

Theberge sent Dutchmen into a 2-0 lead at 3:19 of the first period by slapping in a wide pass from Georges Soboles while Moncton rearguard Joe Lepine was serving an elbowing penalty. Sinnett tied the score 6:18 seconds later when he picked up a loose puck near the Dutchmen cage and beat Dutchmen defenceman Lorne (Gump) Worsley with a low drive.

IN OPEN CORNER

At 11:36, Martin's shot trickled into an open corner, off Fred Weaver's skates to give Kitchener a 3-1 edge. Dutchmen increased the lead to 3-1 at 12:06 of the second period; Wells scored on Howie Lee's pass in front of the goal.

Dutchmen scored three goals before the Luminaire mark of the third period to make it a rout. Logan got his at 4:35, Lautman made it 5-1 at 8:45 and Theberge scored his second at 10:26. Thomson closed out the scoring at 14:58.

Goalkeeper Mick Pidsudny stopped 26 shots for Moncton. Woodall handled 27.

Referee Hap Shouldice assessed 19 minor penalties, 10 to Hawks. Sinnett was given four of the sentences.

Andy's Defeat Halifax 87-61

HALIFAX (CP)—Faced by lanky Doug Armstrong, Toronto Andy's defeated Halifax Studios Greds 87-61 in the first game of the Canadian senior 18 men's basketball final Tuesday night.

Armstrong, a six-foot-seven centre, fired 31 of his team's total. The second game will be played tonight and the third, if necessary, will go Thursday.

Shaffers Square Series With Soo

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) Ottawa Shaffers evened their best-of-five series for the eastern Canada senior men's basketball championship at 1-1 Tuesday night when they edged Sault Ste. Marie Cubans 78-73. Third game is scheduled here tonight.

Shaffers jumped into an early lead, but saw an 11-point margin wiped out by the Gunners as they came through with 12 points in the final three minutes of the half to tie the game 40-40.

Gunners were sparked by Lou Lakenda, who scored 21 points. Avatus Stone was the big man for Shaffers, scoring 19 points. Glen Pettigrew came up with 16.

Stone had seven field goals and picked up five points on free throws.

Three players shared the runner honors for Gunners. Bob Forster, Jerry Kable and Ray Schifano each scored 13 points.

AUSSIES LEAD CRICKET

PORT OF SPAIN (Reuters)—The Australian touring cricket team, robbed of easy play before lunch owing to rain, got rid of the three outstanding Trinidad batsmen here Tuesday, second day of their match, for the addition of 78 runs to the overnight score to retire the home side all out for 217.

Then, despite a further rain interruption, and the loss of two wickets for only 47 runs, the Australians finished the day with 106 for 2, almost halfway to a first innings lead with eight wickets in hand.

Charles Meets Johnny Arthur In Edmonton

By BILL CUNNINGHAM

Canadian Press Staff Writer

EDMONTON (CP) — Ernest Charles, former world's welterweight champion and one of the most clever boxers in the business, meets South African heavyweight titleholder Johnny Arthur here Monday night. It may turn out to be the most important fight ever staged in Canada.

The winner of the 10-round clash will be well in line for a shot at Rocky Marciano and the world championship — nothing new for Charles who has fallen twice previously before Marciano's fists, but a big step for the relatively unknown South African.

Charles climbs into the ring for the first time in Canada as step No. 3 of a comeback campaign which has already put one victory under his belt. He won a decision over Charley Norkus in New York Feb. 18. Defeat at the hands of the 25-year-old Arthur, nearly 10 years his junior, might make Edmonton the end of his comeback trail.

Arthur is pretty much a dark horse in North America. Since his arrival late last year he found little trouble in disposing away his first two partners in three rounds each without giving much indication of what he can really do against a top-notch fighter.

The handsome young South African gathered as impressive record in Europe and in his home land where he met Don Cockell, top contender and British heavyweight champion, last summer. Cockell won a close 15-round decision but was in his water twice as Arthur gave him plenty of trouble throughout. In 25 professional fights, Arthur has 22 knockouts and four losses.

Some here call the Monday night bout a "build-over" for Charles, the crafty old warrior. But so far, nobody has pushed over the popular Arthur, who stands six feet, two inches.

Saddler Whips Kenny Davis

BUTTE, Mont. (AP) — World featherweight champion Sandy Saddler, concentrating on hammering body punches, scored a technical knockout over Kenny Davis of Los Angeles at 2:20 of the fifth round of a scheduled 10-round non-title fight Tuesday night.

Both fighters weighed 126½.

Davis went down for an eight count under a series of lefts and rights, hung on for a few seconds more, then was dropped again for a count of six before referee Joe Dimonick stepped in and stopped the contest.

Pt. Anne Hands Marmora 6-3 Defeat, Takes Game Lead in Titular Series

By GARRY ALEXANDER

Point Anne gained revenge for their only defeat on home ice this year and at the same time took a two-games to one lead in their best-of-seven TVL finals here last night by handing the Marmora Ironsmiths a 6-3 decision before a small crowd. No date has been set for the fourth fixture which will be played at Marmora.

The victors were never headed after the first minute of play, leading 3-1 and 3-2 by periods before sewing up the decision with three goals to the losers' one in the final frame.

The first period consisted of fast even hockey with both teams missing several good opportunities to take a commanding lead. Flute and Paranilli of Marmora had great chances, both going in with only Letman to beat and hitting the post both times. All the scoring was done in the first 80 seconds.

Captain Trumble gave the visitors a short-lived 1-0 lead on the opening play driving a high blast to the upper left-hand corner at 28 seconds. Gerry Goyer tied the score at 1.02, cutting across Killian's doorstep and banging home a rebound from the power play with Williams and Leo Goyer on.

Just 16 seconds later, Williams gave his club the lead steering Gerry Goyer's perfect goalmouth pass by Killian's short side. The period ended that way. Jed Dorsa drew the only penalty of the period for tripping at 3.21.

Following much the same pattern as last Saturday's game, the second period was rather quiet, with Letman and Killian both making a couple of key saves. The Goyer-Williams-Goyer trio came close with good passing plays in the Marmora defence zone, but were outlucked or outguessed each time.

Jones netted Marmore's tying marker at 3.17, slapping home a loose puck from a blue in the side of the Point Anne cage but the Anderson - Williams crew came right back.

Pat Gilmour and Duke Doran teamed up at 4.36 to make it 3-3. Gilmour sliding the rubber out from behind the net to Doran, his shot beating Killian without leaving the line. Bob Mayne and Jud Semark were assessed roughing penalties at 14.39 but no damage resulted.

The Cementmen surged to the attack in the final twenty minutes and built up a 6-2 lead before Lavender deflected Mayne' pass home at 19.40 with Pat Gilmour sitting out a penalty for delaying the game.

Gerry Goyer was the marksman on Point Anne's initial goal of the period at 2.00. Duke Doran fired the next one on another breakaway at 14.32 with his own team a man short. Gilmour drawing the assist, Williams lashed home the winner's final tally at 18.40. Five penalties were handed out this period with Point Anne getting three.

Tim Williams nosed out Gerry Goyer as top point man, the playing-coach slashing two goals and an equal number of assists while Gerry had two and one. Duke Doran netted the other two goals. Trumble, Jones and Lavender scored for the Millionaires.

PICKS LIONS OVER ARGOS

DALLAS (AP) — Harley Sewell, former University of Texas football star, named his third one-year contract with Detroit Lions Tuesday, passing up an offer from Toronto Argonauts of the Canadian Big Four that would have paid him more money.

Nick Kerbawy, general manager of the Lions, said Sewell "didn't like the gimmicks" in the Argo contract.

Players Vote To Relax Training Rule

CINCINNATI (AP)—Player representatives of major league baseball clubs reversed themselves Tuesday and voted to recommend relaxing of the rule which now prohibits the start of spring training before March 1.

Representatives of 13 of the 16 teams—only the New York Giants were not represented—will make this proposal to club owners:

No player shall be required to report for spring training prior to March 1 but players may report prior to that time on invitation of the club. The original March 1 deadline was set at the request of the players.

The players Tuesday asked that there be no change in the rule which bans exhibition games prior to March 10.

LEAFS GET CATCHER

NEW YORK (CP) — New York Yankee rookie catcher Lou Berberet will probably be optioned to Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League within a few days, a spokesman for the New York club said Tuesday. Last season Elston Howard won the International League's most valuable player award as a Leaf backstop. Howard is expected to stick with the Yankees this season.

Nettled by Lindsay's Sharp Checks Canadiens' Dickie Moore Runs Wild

DETROIT (CP) — Montreal's Dickie Moore went berserk in the third period of the Canadiens-Red Wings Stanley Cup final Tuesday night and trailed Detroit's Ted Lindsay all over the ice.

Nettled by Lindsay's sharp checking in the game, won by Detroit 7-1, Moore dropped his stick and gloves and went after the Red Wing player. He was plastered with minor, misconduct and game misconduct penalties for the attempt but it took more than these to stop him.

Linesmen George Hayes and Doug Davies tried to restrain him. He broke away repeatedly, going to the ice once with his arms wrapped about Hayes. A slashing penalty against Moore had already been called by referee Red Storey. Persistently, Moore tried to get at Lindsay, Storey added a misconduct penalty. The Montreal winger still wasn't tamed. Storey thumbed him out of the game, It made no difference to Moore.

The pursuit went on. Finally at the penalty box, Gordie Howe barged into the argument, speared Moore with his stick and drew a minor penalty. Linesmen and teammates finally shooed Moore to the Montreal bench. He got into an argument with a few fans and finally was escorted to the dressing room by two policemen.

AT THE CAPITOL—Yvonne De Carlo and David Niven co-star with Barry Fitzgerald in Allied Artists' comedy hit, in color, "Tonight's the Night", opening Thursday at the Capitol Theatre for its first Belleville showing. The picture was filmed in a picturesque Irish village. On the same program is Technicolor "Drums Across the River", starring Audie Murphy and Walter Brennan. Special matinee Good Friday at 2.00 p.m.

AT THE McCARTHY

Universal-International really pulled out all the stops on its lush, romantic Technicolor-CinemaScope production of "Captain Lightfoot," opening Thursday at the McCarthy Theatre, starring Rock Hudson, Barbara Rush and Jeff Morrow — and their efforts have paid off in the film's powerful entertainment values.

"Captain Lightfoot" abounds with natural charm and the wonderful romantic spirit of turn-of-the-century Ireland, as do Hudson and Miss Rush, perfectly cast as two young lovers caught up in the swirl of the Irish rebellion.

Hudson again proves himself an actor of high calibre as he plays with great skill the role of Michael Martin, second in command of the Irish rebels.

Barbara Rush, who jumped to overnight stardom with Rock Hudson in U-I's "Magnificent Obsession," proves herself well worth the honor with a sensitive performance as Aga, daughter of Ireland's famed rebel-rogue, Captain Thunderbolt.

The Captain himself is expertly played by Jeff Morrow, who makes a vital character seem even more vital with his own personal acting "spark."

Certainly one of the biggest stars of "Captain Lightfoot" is Ireland itself, where the film was made entirely on location. The unbelievably beautiful green of the Irish terrain, the majestic, centuries-old castles and the quaint country villages were made to be taken in by the Technicolor or CinemaScope lens, and make "Captain Lightfoot" one of the most picturesquely beautiful films to come out of Hollywood.

The supporting cast, which includes Kathleen Ryan, Finlay Currie and Denis O'Dea, was wisely recruited from the Irish stage, and adds immeasurably to the authenticity of the film with strong performances.

AT THE REGENT — Mitch-in-demand Gene Kelly and spunky Jo Ann Greenwood look back on exciting days of their youth in "The Happy Time," The Bridges at Toko-Ri," showing today and Thursday at the Bell Theatre. Producer Stephen Boyd, Marsha Hunt, Mickey Rooney, are others in the cast.

ELECT NEGRO

Regina Wallops Winnipeg 7-0

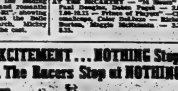
REGINA (CP) — Regina Pats, minus two key players, trounced Winnipeg Monarchs 7-0 Tuesday night in opening their best-of-seven Memorial Cup semi-finals. Second game in Pats' search for a seventh western junior hockey title will be played here Thursday.

With goalie Ted Derrett knocking in two first-period goals, the Manitoba Junior League champions opened up wide enough in an attempted comeback stretch to create gaps for five more Regina scores.

Pats completely dominated play. With centre Bill Kurtz hitting a goal-a-piece, they added to their opening-session flukes two well-earned counters in the second period and three more in the final half of the third.

PLAYERS' PREDICTION

CINCINNATI (AP)—If the major leagues' player representatives are any good at predictions, it will be Cleveland and Milwaukee in the 1955 baseball world series.



Representatives of 15 of the 16 teams took an informal poll as they opened an executive meeting here Tuesday.

The actual number of votes each club received was not disclosed, but Bob Feller of the Cleveland Indians, chief representative for the American League, said the Indians and the Braves were "rather top heavy choices."

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Thursday, April 7, 1955

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — A bright outlook for personal interests, family affairs. Attend to really important matters and don't hopscotch around aimlessly. Daily tasks should not be too difficult.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — A day for truly expressing your artistic and personal side. Forget worry, enjoy your family and friends, and use your free time to pleasant matters, helping others where possible.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Your planet stresses a need for conservation, close scrutiny if in regard to hazardous activities. Otherwise the day should bring advancement.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Some uncertainness in other than routine and familiar procedures. Avoid excesses of all kinds, and consider the wishes of others.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Carefully check all items on your agenda which deal with money, stocks, personal income; avoid needless mistakes. Get better acquainted with your problems, analyze, ask questions.

August 24 to September 23 — (Virgo) — Go along with propositions that seem reasonable. But keep investigating. Use care in travel, handling oils, machinery, motors, chemicals. Don't put too much stock in hearsay.

September 24 to October 23 — (Libra) — Use caution in speech, act and thought, so as not to be misled into errors or a false sense security...Others may be in an unstable mood; indulging in peeves. Sidestep rathey than become involved.

October 24 to November 22 — (Scorpio) — Your planetary outlook indicates a tendency toward tricks, pranks. Be warned, too, not to invite difficulties by being too exacting. Remember, we all have faults; some do not realize theirs.

November 23 to December 22 — (Sagittarius) — Aspects generally like Scorpio's. Overnights cause errors. Impatience, sharp answers are taboo. Do not be too critical of others. Bring fresh satisfaction through little courtesies.

December 23 to January 21 — (Capricorn) — Varied situations may appear early in the day. You will be wise to plan, look and analyze before acting. Refuse to worry or lose your temper and the final results can be very gratifying.

January 22 to February 20 — (Aquarius) — Like most of us today, you'd better be on your toes, attend to essentials first, and forget emotions, annoyances. A good time to review past performances, results in order to make improvements.

February 21 to March 20 — (Pisces) — If you don't expect too much in quick or extensive results and may be pleased. The day is turns you won't be disappointed—somewhat satisfying but it has its good points. Rest mind, body when you should.

You born today are usually bright, sometimes display a fiery temper. You are very capable, talented, but not always patient enough to see undertakings through to the success you could have. Learn to control temper, hasty action. One can always learn something new by listening attentively. Heed well — meant suggestions, and don't mind the manner in which some may be given. 1955 is advantageous for a creative and ingenious ideas; methods. The year keen sense of deduction. Remember, patience is a virtue.

Editorial Comment by Canadian Papers Praises Churchill's Life

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Excerpts from editorial comment by Canadian newspapers on the retirement of Sir Winston Churchill:

Toronto Star—For many people the world will no longer be the same. Churchill earned an undying place in history as the dauntless statesman who led Britain and her allies to the successful conclusion of the world's most bitterly fought war. . . .

He had been frustrated at two great turning points in history. The first was in 1919 when he wanted to crush the Bolshevist revolution . . . the second was in the 1930s when he called in vain for action to curb Hitler. There is no need to dwell on the consequences, in both cases, of rejecting his advice. . . .

Vancouver Sun—We know that Sir Winston's greatest and worthiest ambition was to crown a life of service with the greatest service of all—the gift of peace won at a meeting of minds of Eastern and Western leaders.

"But this was not in the cards. He leaves this hope to the capable hands of another eminent Englishman—as devoted to the cause of peace as he—in Sir Anthony Eden. Our fervent hope is that Winston Churchill will be spared to see his wish come true."

Winnipeg Tribune—All of us have been privileged to be alive during the Churchill era, to have lived during his finest hours and, to paraphrase one of his famous sayings, never in the field of human conflict was so much owed by so many to one man.

Perhaps it would have been more fitting for such an old war horse as Churchill to have died in harness. But in the interests of his country, his government and his party, it is probably more fitting and efficacious that he should retire the undefeated champion and make the succession easier for Eden.

Regina Leader-Post—He is now, in his own unique right, the elder statesman, the famous humanitarian the free world honors and trusts above any other man of his time. . . .

He was born to lead, to follow his star. And whose star has ever taken a man through so much to accomplish so much? . . . he has come to stand out in free world opinion as the very symbol of freedom and those allied values the free world is determined to maintain and defend.

Windsor Daily Star—That the human race has overcome the major difficulties which have been almost of them man-made—is due to its ability to produce men of destiny. These have been the leaders in its forward march and in its fight against events which would have turned the world backward in its course.

In all history there never has been an equal to Sir Winston Churchill as a man of destiny. . . .

Sir Winston's destiny was to be the leader of the free world when the dark and treacherous waves of nazism threatened to engulf it.

Prince Albert Daily Herald—For the first time in the most colorful career in British history, Sir Winston Churchill is destined to be cast in a role which is out of character for him. Sir Winston just isn't the type to be a lame duck. In this lies much of the sadness associated with his retirement.

Saskatoon Star-Phoenix—For today generalizations can go no further than to attribute greatness to him. History has had other orators, politicians, statesmen, war leaders, writers, enigmas; Sir Winston is all these in one vast man.

Yet he has been all these things in a restrained way. He has succeeded in keeping an eye on himself as a man. Perhaps this has been his greatest accomplishment. He chose, for example, to pass up one last triumphant entrance into the House of Commons. It is difficult to conceive of an Alexander or a Caesar avoiding such an opportunity.

London Free Press—This amazing figure, who is without question the colossus of this century, has at last surrendered to Father Time. He retires with the best wishes of the world.

Churchill will be recognized as probably the greatest figure in British history—certainly the most versatile genius England has ever known—soldier, writer, artist, orator and statesman. . . .

His first speech to the House of Commons in his new office (as premier of the wartime coalition government) will go down in history as one of the strongest declarations ever made on behalf of a free nation. . . .

Halifax Chronicle-Herald—From beginning to end, this has been a life of public service marked as much by devotion to duty as it has been and decisive mind, as much by hard work as by brilliant leadership. He has deserved well of his country, and good wishes from all over the world will follow him into retirement.

Toronto Globe and Mail—Members of the tremendous Churchill career crowd the mind . . . yet the dominant emotion as he steps down from high office is not awe but warm affection. . . . No man was ever diminished by his presence or the sound of his voice. . . . He is one of the small company of people who raise the ordinary citizen in the midst of the per-man race.

Archbishop Says Princess Will Not Marry Townsend

Rumor Just Newspaper Stunt Says Anglican Church Head

CAPETOWN (Reuters) — The Archbishop of Canterbury said here today "there is no truth whatsoever in the rumor" that Princess Margaret and Group Capt. Peter Townsend will marry.

The head of the Anglican Church was speaking to reporters at his arrival here for a two-month visit to central and East Africa.

He said the rumor was purely a stunt "and a most offensive one at that" by a few British newspapers, and added: "Most of the London newspapers had nothing to do with it."

STORY DROPPED

Some popular papers in London splashed the rumor that Group Capt. Townsend gave several non-committal interviews but no official statement was ever made and the story dropped out of prominence in England.

The point of contention in the alleged romance is that Townsend is divorced from his wife, and the Anglican Church, the established church in England which is headed by Queen Elizabeth, does not approve of divorce and frowns on those who remarry divorced persons, even "innocent parties."

As the leading cleric in the church, the archbishop would be personally involved.

NOT TALKING

Dr. Fisher, who arrived in the ancient Edinburgh Castle, said he had decided not to elaborate his views on South African politics while he was in South Africa. "After all, I am making a personal visit," he said.

The main reason for the archbishop's visit is to attend the inaugural ceremony of the new church province of Central Africa in Salisbury on May 4.

On his way home he will consecrate four Africans as assistant bishops in the Anglican Church.

No Publication On Good Friday

Tomorrow being "Good Friday", there will be no publication of The Ontario Intelligencer.

Ford Will Build Head Office In Toronto District

TORONTO (CP)—A head office building costing about $8,600,000 is to be erected in the Toronto area by Ford Motor Company of Canada, Limited.

The exact site has not been chosen. The building will be ready for occupancy in about three years.

Rhys M. Sale, president, announced today that the company's directors have appropriated funds for the building and planning is under way. The building eventually will accommodate up to 1,000 persons and will house not only head office staff but also personnel of the Ford-Monarch and Mercury-Lincoln-Meteor sales, service and distribution offices for Ontario's zone parts and accessories division offices, and Ford Tractor and Equipment Sales Company of Canada, Limited.

For its immediate purposes, the company has leased space in one newly-erected Crown Life building. A small group of senior executives, some of whom have been operating in Toronto since last October, will move into the new quarters April 15 to be followed by staff as the head office of the company until the new building is completed.

Last of Hundreds Marooned by Gale Are Now Safe

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP)—Wyoming and Montana today began shaking themselves free of a 40-inch blanket of snow expected to cause $1,200,000 in losses to livestock.

Four men were rescued and 24 other persons, including an infant, were located and reported safe late Wednesday. They were the last of hundreds reported marooned or missing in the two-day blizzard which virtually paralyzed the area.

With sunshine over a third of the states' highway departments expected today to open roads clogged with 15-foot drifts. Traffic still will not return to normal, however, because many cars abandoned by motorists under the massive drifts remain on roads throughout northern Wyoming and southeast Montana.

William L. Chapman, Wyoming agriculture commissioner, estimated "conservatively" the damage to cattle and sheep in the blizzard-ravaged area would reach $1,200,000.

He said perhaps 20,000 head of sheep and 8,100 cattle died in the fierce blizzard.

Hundreds of animals scattered by the blinding snow and wind are without feed, and one county agent reported, "If another storm were to hit now, it would spell disaster."

SEIZE OPIUM CACHE

BALTIMORE (AP)—Paint cans with false bottoms yielded $10,000 worth of opium, federal agents said in announcing the seizure Wednesday of two merchant seamen. Ten and a half pounds of opium were seized. Agents said they were searching for more opium in at least three other cities.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) — Synopsis: Arctic air from around Hudson Bay is flowing down over Ontario and into the border states today. This wintry blast will continue today, but some relief is in sight for Good Friday, with a high pressure ridge and the sun breaking through over most of the province.

KNOWLES SAYS U.S. VIEWS CANADA AS PAWN

Wants Planner Talks With Secretary Dulles

OTTAWA (CP)—A CCF member of Parliament says the United States views Canada as a pawn in its military defence line against Communist Russia.

Stanley Knowles, Winnipeg North Centre, said in the Commons Wednesday that the defence line means more to U.S. State Secretary John Foster Dulles than do the people living along the line.

"Mr. Dulles in Canada talk more plainly in dealing with Mr. Dulles, George Drew (PC — Carleton-Brockeville) said it is unfair to imply that Mr. Dulles would sacrifice other countries to protect the U.S. It was Mr. Dulles' serious intent to keep all countries out of war.

The discussion of Mr. Dulles' visit occurred during a resumed foreign affairs debate shortly after the House adjourned for the Easter recess until Monday, April 18—its first holiday since the session opened Jan. 6.

ATTENDANCE DOWN

Attendance during the half-day sitting was sparse. At one point only 22 of the 265 seats were filled. The quorum—minimum attendance needed to carry on business—is 20, including the Speaker. Some members, expected to be present for the resumed debate, left for home a few days early.

The Speaker also rose Wednesday until Tuesday, May 3. The government wants the bill to establish a tutor-General Ross Macdonald, said the long recess is because the Commons will be engaged in an extended budget debate when it returns and little legislation will be moved into the Senate for a while.

Mr. Knowles said Mr. Dulles' visit has been more concerned with military policy than foreign policy. The U.S. diplomat was not interested in the peoples of New Zealand, the Speaker of Parliament declared but rather in their countries as part of a "grand-scale Maginot line."

Countries in the line had become pawns in U.S. military defence strategy. The U.S. was thinking not so much of how to avoid war but more in terms of military strategy as if war were considered inevitable.

PEARSON QUESTION

External Affairs Minister Pearson interjected to ask whether Mr. Knowles' remarks included Mr. Dulles' purpose is to avoid war.

The CCF member replied that Mr. Dulles' primary policy is to keep war away from the U.S. The Soviet Union was not concerned as Mr. Pearson in avoiding war altogether.

Mr. Howard defended Mr. Dulles' intentions but criticized the U.S. secretary's failure to consult earlier the Yalta papers.

Mr. Howard said publication of what originally were considered secret talks has made future high-level talks impossible. Even if not impossible, Effective diplomacy could be carried on only in private and the release of the Yalta papers had decreased the chances of avoiding war.

He also urged a stronger line in the United Nations to counter action which adversely affect this country. If that were done, the U.S. would continue to treat Canada as "poor relations" in trade matters.

Britons Love Lady Docker Despite Fact She Drives Gold-Plated Car

By TOM OCHILTREE

LONDON (AP) — A limousine trimmed in gold carries Lady Docker through London's grey streets.

"Gold was decided upon as being the most practical," she says.

It's true chromium was scarce when the car was built, but the statement seems to echo Marie Antoinette's "Let them eat cake."

And you'd think, then, that Britain's toiling millions might resent the gold-plated bumper and wheel rims.

Lady Docker, at 44, is slim, blonde and dynamic. Formerly a dancer, Mrs. Bernard, 38, is tall and calm with a face that shows many years of beauty. She was married twice widowed. Husband No. 1, Clement Callingham, left her £250,000. No. 2 Sir William Collins, left her £1,500,000.

She and Docker married in 1949. Britain was a cold, dark place, caught in the grip of post-war austerity. Editors began to operate on the theory that nothing lifted the public's spirit like a story about Norah Docker's diamond - encrusted life. Pictures were better now, but the stories longer.

"The people in the street just love to see the show," she observes.

Her husband, Sir Bernard Docker, has many business interests, including control with an outfit that builds custom automobile bodies. The gold-plated car was born there. She has had others since it was unveiled in the U.S. Docker exceeds the splendor of its 8,000- gold stars and gold - plated radiator bumper and wheel rims.

Talks on Guaranteed Annual Wage for Auto Workers Open

By GLENN ENGLE

DETROIT (AP)—The giants of American labor and industry squared off today on a union's most ambitious demand since organizing days—the guaranteed annual wage.

The principals are the billion-dollar General Motors Corp., the largest industrial firm in the United States, and Walter Reuther's 1,300,000-member CIO United Auto Workers, the biggest American union.

The arena is a small room in the massive General Motors Building in midtown Detroit, scene of the start of formal bargaining on a new contract. The negotiations will be behind closed doors.

Immediately at stake are the fortunes of some 350,000 General Motors employees across the U.S. But the significance of the negotiations goes far beyond this.

A guaranteed annual wage at General Motors might set a pattern for the entire auto industry and possibly for much of other heavy industry as well. That could have a tremendous impact on the U.S. economy, and could well extend to Canada as well.

The current five-year cost-of-living contract between GM and the UAW expires at 12:01 a.m. Friday.

PEARSON QUESTION

External Affairs Minister Pearson interjected to ask whether Mr. Knowles' remarks included Mr. Dulles' purpose is to avoid war.

The CCF member replied that Mr. Dulles' primary policy is to keep war away from the U.S. The Soviet Union was not concerned as Mr. Pearson in avoiding war altogether.

Mr. Howard defended Mr. Dulles' intentions but criticized the U.S. secretary's failure to consult earlier the Yalta papers.

Mr. Howard said publication of what originally were considered secret talks has made future high-level talks impossible. Even if not impossible, Effective diplomacy could be carried on only in private and the release of the Yalta papers had decreased the chances of avoiding war.

He also urged a stronger line in the United Nations to counter action which adversely affect this country. If that were done, the U.S. would continue to treat Canada as "poor relations" in trade matters.

Prime Minister of Pakistan Weds Canadian, Second Wife

KARACHI (AP) — Prime Minister Mohammed Ali has taken a second wife, a Canadian, and aroused Pakistani feminist groups in this Moslem state today called emergency meetings to discuss the event.

An official of his household disclosed today that the 45-year-old prime minister married his ex-secretary, Miss Alya Saddy, 28, formerly of Edmonton, in Beirut, Lebanon, last December.

The news has not been officially announced. Ali's cabinet includes has called an emergency meeting, and other women's organizations are expected to follow suit.

All brought his new wife home from Beirut Wednesday. She was formally received by a delegation of cabinet ministers and officials at the airport.

A room had been prepared for her in the prime minister's residence. In another room on the same floor lives Ali's first wife, Hamida Begum, 46, mother of two grown boys.

Hamida's private secretary told a reporter today that the Begum is "completely shocked" by the marriage.

Prior to the announcement, Ali's aides costing countless millions in strike benefits.

If this course were followed, the UAW could delay a showdown at GM simply by refusing to sign a contract extension for a few days.

The start of negotiations brings to a head a campaign started by the union several years ago. Since 1952 the UAW has publicized its intention of seeking a year-around pay plan as its major objective in the auto industry.

Reuther, UAW and CIO president, has built his reputation on winning the objective.

Neither GM nor Reuther has commented directly on the guaranteed wage demand. GM officials have hinted at their opposition, however, by emphasizing the regularity of employment in their plants for years.

The UAW comes to the bargaining table armed with machinery for raising a $50,000,000 strike fund. A 3 months' GM increase to build up the fund was approved at the union's recent convention in Cleveland.

The UAW guaranteed-wage plan calls for 40 hours' pay for an employee works any part of a week.

Reuther has said he has considered enough to "maintain his living standards" any week he is laid off by management.

The guarantee would cover 52 weeks annually for a year's employment and would be dovetailed with local unemployment compensation.

Reuther proposes that the guaranteed wage are union demands for a 25-cent-an-hour rise, a 10-cent-an-hour, an increase in the present five-cent hourly "productivity" factor, and improvements in health and pension plans and other benefits. The current average wage in the auto industry in the U.S. is about $2.10 an hour.

TOWERS MAY HEAD NEW ECONOMIC ROYAL COMMITTEE

Board Will Examine Canada's Potentialities

OTTAWA (CP) — A Canadian with 20 years of top banking experience may conduct the biggest investigation yet into operations of Canada's economy.

Federal authorities indicated Wednesday that Graham Towers, former governor of the Bank of Canada, is being considered as chairman of a royal commission which will conduct the inquiry. The government decision to establish the commission was announced Tuesday night in Finance Minister Harris' budget.

Mr. Harris said the commission will "examine Canada's natural resources productive potentialities and the possibilities for export markets in the future. He said he hopes its findings will be useful to other businessmen, to governments and leaders in all walks of life in future planning.

The government has not completed final details of the make-up of the commission. However, officials said it may include up to five members, each a prominent Canadian.

IDEALLY SUITED

They said that Mr. Towers, who retired from the central bank last December at the age of 58, would be ideally suited as commission chairman. He has a wide background of economic matters as well as a knowledge of Canada's economic requirements.

Another possibility is Mr. Abbott of the Supreme Court of Canada, former finance minister, also has been mentioned as a possible chairman. This is not considered likely, however, because of the judge's duties he has served with the Supreme Court. Mr. Abbott was appointed to the bench last July.

Dr. W. A. Mackintosh, principal of Queen's University, Kingston, has been mentioned here as a possible commission member. He has been a member of former economic inquiries and has acted as adviser to the government on economic matters.

The commission would travel across the country for a period of months to hear briefs on economic problems and its economic possibilities 25 or 50 years from now.

Etobicoke Roads Bring Complaints

TORONTO (CP) — Reeve Rev Lewis of suburban Etobicoke township said today he has been "barraged" with complaints about township road conditions.

Complaints were that roads in certain areas were "as unsafe and "deep enough to swallow wagon wheels" and that bumps are ruining car springs and shock absorbers.

SET UP TRUSTS

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Trusts in the estate of Joseph Pulitzer, 47-year editor and publisher of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, were established for the benefit of his wife Wednesday. Net income from the trusts will be paid to the publisher's widow under terms of the will and after her death the estate will be divided equally among his two sons and two daughters.

News-Starved Londoners Get 'Meal,' It Is 'Daily Worker,' a Rotten Deal

LONDON (AP) — News-starved Londoners today saw their first local daily in nearly two weeks, but for most the offering wasn't too palatable. The Communist Daily Worker's reappearance was Reappearance of the Red organ marked the first break in the labor publications which have shut down London's 13 big dailies, and 11 Sunday papers since Tuesday, March 25.

The other London papers were shut down by a strike of maintenance men and members of the electrical union. But The Worker was halted by a wrangle with its typesetters.

The Worker said it wanted all along to meet the higher wage demands of the typesetting and electrical unions. This caused the compositors to strike on the grounds that if the paper could afford more money for maintenance employees it could raise the wages of typesetters laid off in an economy move.

Political considerations aided The Worker's reappearance with make little dent in the big city's circulation pie. But the Communist paper says it will not exceed its average press run of 80,000 copies daily. The compositors demanded that otherwise the paper rehire the men it laid off.

Today's Worker banner-lines Sir Anthony Eden's appointment as prime minister to succeed Sir Winston Churchill. Making up for the enforced silence, it also runs a front-page editorial entitled "Speed the Lot," blasting Churchill and the Conservative government in gen-

Chiang's General Says Red Buildup Will Bring Crisis

Communists Will Challenge Foes' Air and Sea Control

By FRED HAMPSON

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) — Gen. Sun Li-jen says a showdown is certain soon in the Strait of Formosa.

Chiang Kai-shek's personal chief of staff added in an interview, however, that this does not necessarily mean an imminent Communist Chinese invasion of the Chinese Nationalists' Matsu or Quemoy islands.

He said the showdown will be touched off by the Communists' building of defences along the north China coast. When that buildup is finished, he asserted, the Communists can challenge the present Nationalist and American air and surface superiority in the strait.

NEED CONTROL

Sun, a veteran of fighting against both the Japanese and the Chinese Communists, says it is difficult to stay on any island once air and sea control are lost. For that reason, he does not like the present policy which permits the Red to build installations, including airfields, along the coast without molestation.

"This buildup, once completed, might defeat us."

Sun has been a strong advocate of early counteraction of the Communist mainland. He admits it would be a desperate gamble but contends that delay will make it no less so.

Tears Stream Down Cheeks Of Churchill

LONDON (AP) — Sir Winston Churchill, tears streaming down his cheeks, walked slowly out of 10 Downing street Wednesday and into retirement.

A wildly cheering crowd of more than 1,000 gave the old statesman a great ovation and he blinked back his tears to smile at them and flash his famous V for victory sign.

Behind him in the doorway of the grimy, grey brick building Churchill's personal staff, as visibly moved as the old warrior himself, sang "for he's a jolly good fellow."

Drawing himself erect, Churchill waggled his gold-topped cane and took the inevitable big cigar from his lips to murmur "Thank you, thank you," as clambered slowly into his limousine.

TRAVELS ALONE

The car, wrapped an enormous wooly travelling rug patterned with the Union Jack, around his legs, slammed the door and the Rolls-Royce moved off for Chartwell, his country home.

Churchill leaned forward against the gleaming glass and waved and again and again over at the surging crowds as he drove off down the little Westerham road into Whitehall. He was alone in the car.

BUS DRIVERS STRIKE

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP)—A strike of 2,525 Atlantic Greyhound bus drivers and other employees today closed down the system which serves all or parts of 10 states. The strike, affecting 725 drivers and 1,800 other employees, left no bus line open and was equal to those for drivers of other Greyhound systems.

Face Prosecution

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Vancouver Sun says hundreds of persons in British Columbia face prosecution in a widespread income tax fraud.

One man has been arrested and, the newspaper said, hundreds of others have received letters as the result of an investigation into a large-scale income tax fraud scheme which has hundreds of forged T-4 slips filed from Vancouver.

The T-4 is the statement of earnings and tax-deducted slip.

Family Requests Son Be Kept Away from Man

TORONTO (CP)—The family of a Toronto youth sentenced to Kingston penitentiary for housebreaking, asked authorities Wednesday to make sure the boy was kept apart from a man already in Kingston for the death of their daughter.

Three years ago, Vonie Symser, 15, died after being beaten at a New Year's party. Frederick Morton, 22, was sentenced to life in prison for manslaughter in connection with the death.

Wednesday, Symser's brother, George, was sentenced to two years in Kingston for his part in a house break-in in suburban York township.

Another sister of George told magistrate R. P. Locke there had always been bad feeling between him and the family.

"We're afraid of what might happen when George gets to Kingston," she said.

Special treatment and exercise is often prescribed for crippled children during their lengthy hospital stays. Ontario Society for Crippled Children annually conducts the Easter Seal Campaign to raise funds necessary to ensure this treatment. This year's drive ends Saturday.

Easter Seals Are Helping Children Triumph Over Crippling Infirmities

Because ten men with a conviction met together to study a serious problem thirty-two years ago, more than nineteen thousand children in the county years have been given a better chance in life.

It was November 25th, 1932, when the ten, each a member of an Ontario service club in Southwestern Ontario, met to discuss a better way of providing a service which each of their clubs was attempting. In its own communityeach club was seeking to help youngsters who had been stricken by disease or handicapped from birth by crippling deformities. Out of their representatives' discussions grew the Ontario Society for Crippled Children.

As a central organization, functioning in close liaison with today's two hundred service clubs, the Society is maintained by the funds from the annual sale of Easter Seals. It provides control of the benefits jointly offered by the clubs and the Society. It operates five specially equipped camps where handicapped youngsters can enjoy full camp life. It arranges clinics at which topflight specialists examine their skills. It carries out broad programs of service, all directed at giving handicapped kids a better chance, such as more than a score of mobile Orthopedic nurses who work in close alliance with local doctors and provide treatment right in children's homes, or direct them to hospital for treatment.

Today there are more than nine thousand youngsters on the Society's records, all active cases who do not lack for braces or other crippling deformities, who get treatment that might otherwise be lacking, and who get a chance to triumph over the infirmities that once doomed many youngsters to a life of frustration and complete dependence on others. And this campaign now on the sale of Easter Seals to see that these services continue.

The campaign lasts until April 10th and has an objective of $550,000. Belleville Rotary, conducting the campaign here today announced that to date netted $3,650 towards its goal of $4,000.

Blind Beaver Seen Guided By Two Others

An unusual story is told by conservation officer R. J. Davison of the Tweed District, Lands and Forests Department.

Mr. Davison said a trapper told him he was resting near a stretch of open water near a beaver lodge.

Presently he observed three beaver swimming up stream, a large beaver followed by two smaller ones, the smaller beaver were swimming on each side of the larger one.

The trapper was close enough to see and believe that the larger one was blind, the two smaller beaver guided the blind one to a fallen tree; it began immediately to chew branches off and the two smaller ones swam back in turn and placed the fresh food through a hole in the ice near the beaver house. This procedure continued for some time, finally they returned in the same manner guiding the larger one and disappeared under the ice, presumably to the house.

On questioning the trapper as to how he had reached the conclusion that the larger beaver was blind, his reply was— "I was close enough to see the eyes of the larger beaver and they were both white in color, a true sign of blindness."

The Message of the Passover

(By RABBI M. KUTZNER)

In Deuteronomy XVI we read: "Observe the month of Aviv (Spring) and keep the Passover unto the Lord thy God; for in the month of Aviv the Lord thy God brought thee out of Egypt by night."

Since the liberation of our ancestors from Egyptian bondage, the Jews all over the world gather year by year to celebrate Passover in family groups, to re-tell the ancient story of the birth of liberty.

Our Haggadah (literary narration), read the first and second night of Passover tells us that every generation one must look upon himself as if he personally had come forth from Egypt.

Freedom is the heritage which God gave us in the past, but has to be won ever anew and ever again made our own.

The Talmud, the second nights of Pesach (Passover) we start the celebration with the Kiddush, which is the opening declaration of the sanctity of the Festival, and then with the psalms of thanks praising God for our freedom.

The three questions of the Pesach meal are (1) The Paschal lamb—since the destruction of the Temple we roasted lamb—symbolizes the lamb—(3) Matzah, or unleavened bread—Matzah—there was no time for the dough of our ancestors in Egypt to become leavened—(3) Maror — bitter herbs which we eat to commemorate the bitter slavery our people had in Egypt.

We fill the Maror into Tilarosset, a mixture of chopped nuts and apples, powdered cinnamon and wine. Harosset represents the clay used for making brick.

Everyone drinks four cups of wine. The sanctification of the holiday is pronounced over the first cup.

ADDITIONAL CUPS DRUNK

Three additional cups are drunk during the meal (only during the first and second night). The four cups symbolize the four expressions of the Lord's promise to redeem the children of Israel from slavery.

There is a special cup of Elijah filled with wine on the table. We hope that the prophet Elijah may appear as a messiah of the Almighty and announce the coming of the Messiah. We are looking forward to the day of universal peace, love and brotherhood.

In the last two sentences of Malachi we read: "Behold I will send unto you Elijah the prophet before the coming of the Day of the Lord. He will reconcile parents and children and the heart of the fathers to the children and the heart of the children to their fathers; lest I come and smite the earth with a curse."

The day of the Lord is the happiness of all the inhabitants of the earth. Only when there is mutual understanding between parents and children, mutual respect between the older and the younger generations, can there come the real blessings of the nations.

On Passover we proclaim: "Let all those who are hungry come and eat; let all who are in need come and celebrate the Passover."

And so Passover brings the message of the undying hope of liberty and freedom for the world.

First Season Of So-Ed Club Is Concluded

Belleville's So-Ed club last night concluded its first season in the city and already plans are underway for a second term of activities in the fall.

The club, which started functioning eight weeks ago, combines social and educational activities in its program, designed to catch the eye of young adults.

Sponsored by the Y's Men's Club, it has as its meeting-ground the clubroom on the Y building. Four subjects regarded as holding the most appeal for its members are included in the educational part of the program. For the first term these were model mechanics, ballroom dancing and photography — all held under the supervision of professional directors or experienced amateurs. Some 70 members enrolled in the club.

A typical meeting of the club goes something like this: The program commences with a business session, followed by a lecture by a guest speaker. During the past term subjects of these lectures ranged from entomology to the theatre. Members themselves divide into classes and disperse throughout the Y building for instruction on their respective educational subjects. The evening concludes with a social program.

The So-Ed movement is growing in Canada and there now are many branches of the organization strung across the continent, sponsored and linked together by the various Y's Men's clubs.

Belleville's club started on $50, donated by the Y's Men. Last night it finished its first season with a little over that, after donating $10 towards a fire escape for the YMCA building.

So-Ed's second season in Belleville likely will commence sometime in October with a new range of subjects for the educational classes and new topics for the lectures. In the interim its committee announced last night, will call on members to ascertain which subjects they wish to take next season.

Out of the census the new program will be formed.

The new committee, headed by John Luscombe, announced last night is: Jack Thomsen, Betty Rutter, Beverley McCabe, Dorothy Stewart, Marion Gable, Ken Willcocks, Maureen McHale and Edgar Ellis.

Weekly Livestock Review

TORONTO (CP) — Cattle prices were unevenly steady to as much as $1 lower this week at the Ontario public stockyards. Calf prices were steady, hogs fully $1.50 lower and sheep and lambs were generally unchanged.

The run of 7,000 head of cattle was some 1,000 head less than last week and about 900 head fewer than the same period a year ago. Included in the fresh run were 800 westerns, mostly stockers.

Prices: Choice steers, all weights $29-30.75; a few odd sales to $31; one load of choice 1,250-pound steers for export $21.25; good steers $19-20; medium $16-19; commons $13-16; good heifers $17-18; choice to $18.50; an odd extreme top to $19; medium $14-17; commons $13-14; bonner steers and heifers $10-12; choice fed yearlings $20.50-21.50; good fed yearlings $18-20; medium $17-19; good cows $13-13.50; tops of $14; good light fleshy cows $15; canners and cutters down to $7; good heavy bologna bulls $13-13.50; butcher bulls to $15; common and medium light bulls down to $10.

Replacement Cattle: There were 700 head of this class shipped to the country. Prices were steady with good stockers $18-19.50; good stock calves up to $20 with a few extreme tops of $20.50; medium $16-18; common $12-15.

Calves totalled 1,400 head, an increase of 200 head over last week. Good and choice vealers were steady at $26-28; medium slow at $18-25; common $10-17.

Hogs numbered 3,200 head. Grade A hogs sold at $21.25; B1's $21.50; sows $19 and slags $14 dressed.

Sheep and Lambs were 600 head Good native feedlot lambs were $22; good western feedlots $21.50-22; spring lambs $25-26.

Hubby Is Still In Love Trance

What does a young husband do when his new wife wants a key to his car? The young husband usually nods meekly, has the key made and deposits it, reluctantly, but silently, in his wife's hand. And end of the story.

However, one young husband we know didn't end the story like that. He threw his wife's key into the river. In the process he threw his own key into the river.

It happened like this. The husband of three weeks, who works at The Ontario Intelligencer, parks his car behind Clark and Miles butcher shop on Front St. This morning he stepped from his car, locked it and noticed something on the running board of his car. (Yes, children, your inner tube had running boards.)

He reached down, picked up the item and threw it into the Moira. Unfortunately he was holding his key case in the hand of his pitching arm. The key case contained not only his own key but a new key for his wife which he had just picked up from a local locksmith.

How do you explain a sizable bill for new keys to a new bride?

Easter Seals Sales $2,650 Quota Is $4,000

Belleville Rotary, conducting the Easter Seals campaign in this area, today reported it so far had netted $2,650. Quota in the campaign goal of $4,000.

Issuing the statement, chairman of the drive, Rotarian Freeman Burrows said the campaign ends April 10 and stressed the importance of subscriptions before that date from all intending to donate.

Easter Seal sale proceeds go toward the work of rehabilitating the province's crippled children, through the work of the Ontario Society for Crippled Children.

Queen Distributes Maundy Coins

LONDON (Reuters)—Queen Elizabeth, following a 500-year-old Easter tradition, today distributed the Royal Maundy, silver coins formerly given to the poor, in Southwark Cathedral.

The Maundy services dates from early centuries as an occasional act of humility in memory of Christ's washing the disciples' feet. Usually it is held in Westminster Abbey, but this year the diocese of Southwark, across the River Thames, celebrates its jubilee and the Queen decided to hold the service in there. She was accompanied by the Duke of Edinburgh.

This is the first time the service has been held south of the Thames with a sovereign present since the 16th century when the first Queen Elizabeth attended the ceremony at Greenwich.

GIVEN TO 58

The Maundy money, given to "as many as the years of our age," was made up of specially minted silver pennies, twopences, threepences and fourpences.

They were distributed in traditional white leather purses, fastened with red thongs.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO — (CP) — Trading pace eased slightly in first hour transactions at the stock market today following Wednesday's record-smashing tempo.

Volume at 11 a.m. EST was 3,819,000.

Most major sections of the market were inclined to slightly lower, with profit-taking cutting into recent gains.

Speculative issues which climbed steadily Wednesday, dropped back in early morning trade.

Many lower-priced stocks, however, continued to climb.

Beacon Oil was up 25 and Quebec Copper up 30. Maritimes fell 13.

Burns A fell 4 1-4 for the biggest price change in a mixed industrial group.

Home Oil led a few advancing issues among western oils with a jump of 15.

Pilot Instructor, NATO Student Killed in Crash

PORTAGE LA PRAIRIE, Man. (CP) — An RCAF pilot instructor and a NATO student were killed today when their T-33 jet collided in mid-air with a second T-33 while flying in practice formation in the vicinity of the Gimli, airport between Lakes Winnipeg and Manitoba.

The second plane, only slightly damaged, returned to its Portage base.

Killed were FO K. G. Foster, 33, of Abernethy, Sask., and the NATO student, still unidentified.

RCAF officials said Foster's plane, which had its left wing torn off in the collision, exploded before reaching the ground, indicating a full tank or line might have been punctured.

Trading Hits Highest Peak

TORONTO (CP)—Stock market trading hit a record peak Wednesday with total volume reaching 12,315,000 shares.

The previous record of 12,451,884 shares was set Oct. 22, 1953, when Beaverlodge Uranium issued and Rathurst, N.B., base metal stocks were booming.

Interest in junior base metals and low-priced uranium stocks was so great that 3,309,000 shares changed hands in the first hour an opening-hour record.

Twenty individual issues traded more than a quarter of a million shares each, and three, Headway, Ascot and Goldcrest, topped that for more than 1,500,000 shares among them.

Traders rushed ankle - deep through trading slips littering the exchange floor as they tried to keep track and sell orders for their clients.

Brokers, weary from hours of extra work due to recent heavy sessions, attributed Wednesday's record-breaking volume to public optimism following corporation tax cuts announced in the budget and continued interest in speculative issues.

Only Hearsay Evidence Claim Of Pickersgill

OTTAWA (CP) — Immigration Minister Pickersgill Wednesday described a charge by a Montreal Progressive Conservative that the immigration department has permitted United States gamblers to set up operations in Canada as an "anthology of hearsay."

William Hamilton (PC — Notre-Dame-de-Grace) said in the Commons that newspaper stories published in Montreal indicate that U.S. gamblers are operating on a large scale in the Montreal area. The immigration department had done nothing to stop them from entering Canada.

Mr. Pickersgill said all that Mr. Hamilton has done is to "read to us bits and pieces from various articles in various newspapers and talk about (the activities of gangsters) being common knowledge. I do not believe he would get very far in the courts prosecuting people on the basis of common knowledge."

INVESTIGATION UNDER WAY

The newspaper reports had been brought to the attention of the RCMP and the immigration department, he said, and a thorough investigation was in progress to determine whether there had been a violation of any federal laws, including illegal entry to Canada.

"The latest information I have is that the police investigation still is continuing," Mr. Pickersgill said. "I do not think any reasonable person would expect a minister of citizenship and immigration to get up and give a progress report on a police investigation into some alleged crime."

He assured the House that as soon as police receive information on which action could be taken in the courts, "I see no reasonable chance of success "there will be no time lost in doing that."

New Steps In Fighting Cancers Are Reported

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — New steps in fighting cancers are reported by Twin City medical scientists.

One X-ray zap in some users recently good results with the cobalt "bomb"—a chunk of radioactive cobalt only an inch or so from silver quarters piled atop one another. But it shoots out X-rays equal to those from a 3,000,000-volt x-ray machine.

Two big patients with widespread cancers hit by the cobalt beam are alive and apparently well a year later, said Drs. K. W. Stenstrom and Halvor Vermund, radiologists.

One young man had inoperable cancer which had started in part of the large intestine, then spread to the liver, lung and neck. Cobalt's x-ray beam on three separate occasions was shot into his abdomen, chest, then neck. He is "alive as anyone", a year later so far, back at work, with his cancers apparently melted.

Other patients have not fared anywhere near as well. But the Minneapolis doctors note advantages over conventional x-ray machines, including less radiation reaction from damage to healthy tissues.

Harris Declares Taxes Not Cut To Boost Economy

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Harris says he cut taxes in his first federal budget because he felt they were too high.

The fact the government had a $194,000,000 deficit in the fiscal year that ended March 31 and was budgeting for a $169,000,000 deficit in the current fiscal year is not an indication it intends to engage in cyclical budgeting, he told questioners Wednesday night on the CBC radio program "Press Conference."

He had not cut personal income taxes by roughly 10 per cent and sliced two per cent off large corporation taxes to stimulate the economy, he said, indicating he did not feel the economy necessarily needed stimulating.

The suggestion that the government, through cyclical budgeting, would aim for a surplus in good years and a deficit in bad could lead the public to expect a pattern in federal budgets, Mr. Harris said he is not committed to any budget pattern.

CAN WE EAT THIS BUDGET?

"You can't eat this budget," said J. M. Macdonnell, Progressive Conservative financial critic, after Hon. Walter E. Harris, Federal minister of finance, had presented his first budget to the House of Commons on Thursday night. He maintained that the unemployed had been neglected.

If Mr. Macdonnell is right, then the budget is a poor one. For this budget cannot be "eaten," it must provide food for Canadians. On that point members of all political parties will agree.

They will, however, differ as to whether Mr. Macdonnell is correct when he says the budget cannot be eaten. Supporters of the government will maintain that it is a very palatable pudding. Time may help provide us with an answer. For whether or not we can digest this budget, we shall have to chew on it for the next twelve months.

Almost any Canadian citizen could have told Mr. Harris what his budget should endeavor to achieve. The most urgent need in Canada is to reverse the trend revealed by the figures in the white paper which Mr. Harris had tabled in the House of Commons on Monday. The gross national production declined during the past year, by an estimated $431,000,000, or roughly 1¾ per cent. The average number of persons without jobs and seeking work was 232,000, compared with 137,000 the previous year. In other words Canada produced less, sold less, because there were too few Canadians willing to work but—because there were too few jobs available to use the talents of all those eager to work. That is a condition which needs to be remedied. This remedy should obviously be the first duty of the nation's budget for the coming year.

But while it is simple to state what needs to be done, it is beyond the power of most of us to suggest what measures are needed to provide the desired results. Even those who believe they are qualified to judge in such matters are not in agreement.

As a result the general public will judge Mr. Harris by the economic trend in Canada in the year following his first budget. If things improve, Mr. Harris will get at least some of the credit. If times get worse he will have to shoulder much of the blame. This may not be fair. Any improvement might be in spite of, rather than because of, the budget; similarly if unemployment grows it may not be because the decisions made by Mr. Harris were unwise but in spite of the wisdom of these measures.

As far as tax reductions are concerned they will be welcomed but they will not provide dancing in the streets. The relief in the level of income taxation is comparatively small. The reduction in the excise tax on automobiles was long overdue; the automobile is no longer a luxury but a necessity to many of us.

Canadians did not expect any sensational reduction in taxation. They are aware that huge sums of money are required to run the country and that many of the expenditures cannot be reduced. For instance, interest on the public debt, $478,188,000 in the fiscal year just closed, was over 11 per cent of the total revenue for the year. National defence cost $1,677,340,000 and although this was some $128,000,000 below the previous year's figure and Defence Minister Campney hopes to make further reductions, it is all too likely that defence costs will remain unavoidably high as long as the present international situation remains substantially unchanged.

Canadians, then, will not quarrel with Mr. Harris for failing to offer more substantial tax relief if the country's most urgent domestic problem, the alarming growth of unemployment, is solved in the year ahead.

EDEN FACES STIFF TEST

Sir Anthony Eden is Britain's new prime minister. Few prime ministers have stepped into shoes so big.

Will Eden be big enough to fill them?

Time alone can tell.

Time has already wrestled vigorously with Eden and has treated him none too kindly.

The one-time "boy wonder" has been transformed into a greying statesman.

The man whose uncompromising opposition to the appeasement of Mussolini led him to resign a cabinet post has been accused in some quarters of appeasing Communists.

Yet the very passing of the years has told us something about Eden. He is patient. He can wait.

He has earned the patience of the British people who should be prepared to wait and see how he can fill those enormous shoes which Eden's leader, personal friend and relative by marriage left behind when he departed from No. 10 Downing Street.

NOTE FOR NATURALISTS

Word comes from Los Angeles that a sandpiper has built its nest between the tracks of a street-car line and, between trams is endeavoring to hatch its eggs.

Here is a hint for naturalists. Wild things have a striking habit of adjusting themselves to the change man makes in the landscape.

How any local naturalist investigated the holes in Belleville's streets? Are there any a few woodchucks hibernating in these convenient caves.

SPECTATOR ONLY

For basketball too short was I.
For football much too light
And golf, no matter how I'd try,
It seemed to be my lot to fail.
At baseball on the bench I'd sit;
A curve I never learned to hit.

At boxing I'd no grace or skill;
I found no fun in trading blows.
I didn't like, and never will,
To punch a rival on the nose.
At wrestling flame I've never known;
No one has heard me grunt and grossa.

A hockey game I've never played;
I wasn't born to be that rough.
For shots on goals that must be made,
On skates I wasn't fast enough.
Strange life is mine upon the whole,
I've never vaulted with a pole.

I've hurled no javelins or spears,
With marksmen I have never shot,
And some may say throughout the years
That I have surely missed a lot.
But though I'm bad in many lines I've had
I find no reason to be sad.

First Visit to Toronto

(Durham Chronicle)

A Flesherton woman who used to live in Toronto, got a surprise when she took her eight-year-old daughter to the city for the day time one Saturday. Seeing the Bay Street buildings, she exclaimed: "Oh, look at the big barns!" And noticing the street cars, she said, "Mummy, look at all the school buses!"

When Volcano Blows Top

(Milwaukee Journal)

A group of Hawaiian plantation workers were eating lunch in a cane field one day earlier this month, their food spread out on the ground before them. Suddenly they noticed cracks opening up in the earth under their knees and witches. In their own phrase they "took off like scalded cats."

As well they might. For the cracks shortly opened out boiling lava, which eventually consumed hundreds of homes and caused more than three million dollars damage.

To be on hand when mother nature blows her top has been a tragic experience for many and a terrifying one for those living near the mouth of their lives. Unique, however, was the reaction of the famed naturalist John Muir when he experienced a heavy earthquake in the Yosemite region in 1872.

His attitude was sheer delight at being "trotted and dumped on our Mother's motherly knees." In a letter to a natural history society he described how he felt at the time: "I could fully feel the first tremors, shouting, 'a noble earthquake!' and, when it had attained, "the most sublime storm I ever experienced."

But fear and amazement are sure reasonable understandable responses, as in the case of a humble Italian farmer, Pietro Pulido, on February 20, 1943.

He was plowing a cornfield on his small farm about 200 miles west of Mexico City, His wife and young son were watching sheep a short distance away. Then just ahead of him, Pulido heard a rumbling. He saw a great smoke coming from the earth.

"Before I had hardly wondered for about 10 minutes," he said later, "clean water seemed to be running from the fissure! A short cane from the ground, like spinach except from a bulb!"

He had courage enough to drop a stone on the smoke hole, but the underground force pushed up around it. He realized then that this might be a volcano, for an underground explosion might develop because of the recent earthquakes in the region.

So Pulido hurried off to the village to fetch a priest. When he returned the next day, the cone of volcanic dust was 10 feet high and the crater 30 feet deep. The bewildered Pulido had been on eye witness to the birth of a baby volcano — the first in our time known to have started from scratch.

In a week, the volcano, called Paricutin after the village, Pulido had built a cone 550 feet high. It was three times that size some months later, and still growing.

The story of what happened when a whole city was overwhelmed by a volcano is told in the remarkable ruins of Pompeii, buried for centuries under the ashes and pumice of Vesuvius after a terrific eruption in 79 AD.

Excavators found the skeletons of two prisoners who had been chained to the prison wall that fateful day. They had struggled furiously at their bonds before succumbing. In a Pompeiian bakery, a group of loaves of bread, left in the ovens by the fleeing bakers.

Another skeleton was that of a man with 10 pieces of gold in one hand and a purse in the other. He might, just possibly have been able to escape if he had not thought of taking money with him.

A more inspiring motive kept the young Roman guard near the city gate when the deadly rain of ashes fell. Pompeii, Mark Twain, in "The Innocents Abroad" commented that this figure was "the noblest Roman of them all." Pompeii has yielded to modern research.

"Let us remember," wrote Twain, "that he was a soldier — a Roman soldier — and he chose him. Being a soldier, he stayed, because he was commanded. He made him to fly. "Had he been a policeman" he added with a smile, "he would have run home to see how his household was behaving."

Letter to the Editor

Suggests Hope Report Should Be Implemented

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

Let me congratulate your editorial writer on his approach to current affairs of every level. Our paper is daily becoming something worthwhile.

My reason for writing this letter is that our people should be showing concern at the losing battle that we are waging against the rising costs of education; losing, I say, because the recent resignations of several of our teachers because of our inability to pay them what is due them, is so richly deserve.

The public of Hastrife cost our city council has had to enter into discussion with Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation to obtain further monies to help pay the bill — and I believe that the burden on veterans and other people of our city who are paying taxes and, due to unemployment and part time work, are on the verge of losing all they have worked for. We are indeed in a serious financial plight.

The answer to my mind, sir, is that the Provincial Government should keep its election promise to pay 50% of the cost of education. It is paying 75% here in Belleville and if our local board of education would cut out the frills in building and be content with essentials, the cost could be materially reduced.

Lastly I am amazed that the teachers themselves can not come up with a better plan to solve their problem viz: that that portion of the Hope Commission report that recommends the cost of education be assumed by the Provincial government, and a tax on real estate sidy if necessary, be adopted, thereby giving the municipality the right and opportunity of raising the standard of entry into the teaching profession, which seems badly needed today.

To make our people conscious of this terrible cost of education and to remove some of the criticism that is being levelled at council, I would support the tax bills more readily if I were given some showing the cost of education and the other the remaining costs paid by taxes on real estate.

Art Cole.

Not So Smart

(Fort William Times-Journal)

If you were well acquainted with the man we are talking about, you would never believe what happened, for he is a shrewd business man, noted for his efficiency.

He lives in an apartment house where the postmen always put the mail into chutes. At the other end of the chutes there are boxes in which tenants receive their keys.

The other day this individual went out of town and took the mail box key with him.

Knowing what he had no key, he mailed it back to her.

person should attach to testimonials. God said: Whatsoever you would that men should do to you, do ye also to them. Hippocrates also said: Do good if you can but do no harm. I have received a large number of reports from readers who followed the suggestions I give for rheumatic, sciatic and lumbago. I have received great benefit or, in many instances what they call cure. Interesting short testimonials are not easy.

For instance J. R. writes:

I followed your advice, took all the calcium, vitamin D, phosphorus, iodin, thiamin, and riboflavin and it cured me. That was nine years ago and I had rheumatic so bad . . . I still take a small dose of calcium and D and when I get any aches or pains I double it for a week and I am fine.

Mrs. E. H. writes:

Let me thanks for the wonderful improvement I've made following the advice in your calcium pamphlet. I was suffered for eight years with arthritis and have had nearly now with no palas or tenderness.

I don't understand Mrs. H. H. all. In the calcium pamphlet I suggest an optimal daily ration of calcium and vitamin D for any one with rheumatis. This means every day the year around, for it is essential your daily ordinary refined diet fails to provide a sufficient quantity, and not as Mrs. E. H. and a great many others readers assume, medicine.

Mrs. L. C. A. reports that she has found wonderful relief from taking Calcage for rheumatis. It is now able to work again and hold down a good secretarial job."

From Mrs. A.'s report, one might infer that rheumatis disabled her so that she could not work — but not necessarily. Perhaps the lady thinks I'll remember her name and address points of symptoms she described when she asked for my advice, so now she need only tell me she is better. It's human nature.

Mrs. W. writes:

I have been taking ca and D as you suggested for nearly six months now. I want to tell you how wonderful I feel. No more aches and pains in my joints now . . . two friends who were similarly afflicted with arthritis of the joints . . .

Yes, I like so many credulous customers, has a child-ish notion that "arthritis" is a simple-of fashionable've up-to-date malady of people who can afford to have "specialists" or go to a well-advertised "clinic."

TODAY'S TALK

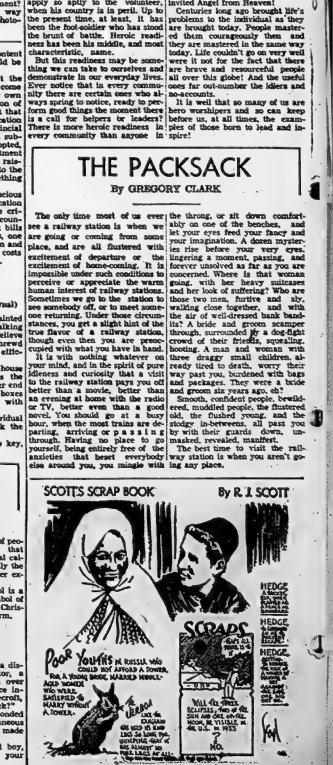
By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

HEROIC READINESS

Wendell Phillips once said it was not enough to be ready to respond when duty called, that a man should stay around where he can hear the call. I like those two words "stay around." I think you'll learn the names of your most valuable citizens!

Whenever a great sorrow or a grave disappointment occurs, unexpectedly, in the midst of calmness, faced and cultivated throughout the years, that comes to one's rescue. Here is one I like to an invited Angel from Heaven!

When his country went to war, Lloyd George brought life's problems to the individual as they are brought today. People mastered their complacency then and they are mastered in the same way today. Life couldn't go on very well were it not for the fact that there is always a host of unselfish people all over this globe! And the useful ones far out-number the idlers and non-essentials.



It is well that so many of us are brave worshippers and so can keep before us, at all times, the example of those born to lead and inspire!

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

The only time most of us ever see a railway station is when we are going or coming from some place, and are all flustered with excitement of departure or the excitement of homecoming. It is impossible under such conditions to perceive or appreciate the warm human interest of the railway station. Sometimes we go to the station to meet somebody for a few minutes one returning. Under those circumstances, you get a slight hint of the flavor of a railway station, though even then you are preoccupied with what you have in hand.

It is with nothing whatever on your mind, and in the spirit of pure idleness and curiosity that you go to the railway station pays you off from a long week's work, that an evening at home with the radio or TV, better even than a good movie. You should go at a busy hour, when the most trains are departing, arriving or passing through. Having no place to go yourself, being entirely free of the anxieties that are always involved in any place.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

OUT OF THE TOMB

During the famous trials for war crimes held at Nuremberg after World War II, one of the witnesses was describing his activities during part of the time he lived there in his home, he testified, he had lived for some time in a tomb in a cemetery in Wilno, Poland. And he had not been alone. Other members of his family ask for a resting in nearby tombs. In a tomb not far from his, in fact, a woman gave birth to a child.

Here, indeed, is a remarkable example of the individualism which sometimes reveals itself in actual events. For a tomb may ask for a better symbol of regeneration, of life-out-of-death, of hope born from despair, than that unknown child.

Let us hope and believe that our country will never see conditions which force us to hide for our lives in cemeteries. But this symbol still has value. It helps us remember that life is never utterly hopeless—that the darkest hour is often, as the proverb tells us, just before the throng, or sit down comfortably on one of the benches, and let your eyes and your fancy and your imagination. A dozen mysteries will present themselves, engrossing a moment, passing, and forever unsolved so far as you are concerned. Where is that woman going, with her heavy suitcases and her bulging cardboard valises. Those two men, furtive and sly, waiting around together for a flight crowd of their friends, squealing, shouting and laughing and occupied with three draggy small children, already tired to death, worry their heavy parcels and bundles and bags and packages. They were a bride and groom and 4 years ago!

Smooth, confident people, bewildered, muddled people, the flustered old, the flushed young, the stodgy in-betweens, all pass you by with their grands down, unmasked, revealed, manifest.

The best time to visit the railway station is when you aren't going any place.

April Theatre Diary

By Robert Tenner

With the ending last Saturday night of the Central Canada Drama Festival at Hart House Theatre in Toronto, the task of regional adjudicator Andrew Van Gyseghem, who made such an excellent impression during his visit to Belleville in February, was nearly complete.

In his final remarks Mr. Van Gyseghem told the audience that after 13 weeks and some 60 plays, he had found a lot that was good in Canadian amateur theatre, and that he was already looking forward to the possibility of re-visiting this country in the not too distant future. In the course of making his awards he re-emphasized Canada's lack of directors as the chief weakness in her amateur groups, and said that he hoped that ways would be found to cure it.

On Sunday, Mr. Van Gyseghem made his report to the executive of the Dominion Drama Festival, as a result of which the following plays have been invited to the final contest which will be held in Regina in May: The Country Girl (the Playmakers, Toronto); Jane (Regina Little Theatre); The Whitebeaded Boy (Northcliffe Players, Grand Falls, Nfld.); The Crucible (U.B.C. Alumni Players, Vancouver); I Remember Mama (Winnipeg Little Theatre); All My Sons (Kitchener-Waterloo Little Theatre); Chambres à Louer (La Jeune Scene, Montreal) and The Apple Cart (Workshop 14, Calgary.) The name of the adjudicator selected for the final festival is announced shortly.

ATTRACTIVE OFFERINGS

Along with these interesting amateur activities, the professional theatre has several attractive offerings for the month of April. "The Prisoner," at present at the Crest, is a gripping and logical study of the methods used to extort confessions in the police states of today. The part of the cardinal, unjustly accused of treason, which was played by Alec Guinness in the recent British production, is in the capable hands of Douglas Campbell. Murray Davis plays the interrogator.

This production is a first for the North American continent, as will be its successor, "The Gift of the Serpent," by Stanley Mann, well known Canadian television playwright. In fact, this performance will be a world premiere, to be followed very shortly by a production in London, England, an unusual honor for a new Canadian play.

At the Royal Alexandra, the highly successful run of "The Pajama Game" will be followed, after a week's interval, by "Pajama Tops" (apparently no relation) starring Diana Barrymore and described as a "French boudoir frolic."

BRIGHT MUSICAL

Then on April 18th, the long-awaited "Guys and Dolls", the musical inspired by the story and characters of the late inimitable Damon Runyon, comes to the Royal Alex. for two weeks.

The two one-act operas of Gian-Carlo Menotti, "The Telephone" and "The Medium," have by now achieved worldwide fame both on the stage and the television screen. Both are to be produced by the Royal Conservatory Opera School at Hart House Theatre on April 15th and 16th.

Meanwhile, the box office of the Stratford Festival is now open and this year tickets are available at a wider selection of agents than in the past. This includes the local ticket office of the Canadian National Railways, where further information regarding both drama and music festivals may be obtained.

Atomic Ack-Ack Joins Arsenal Of Nuclear Weapons

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Atomic ack-ack appears to have joined the growing United States arsenal of nuclear weapons.

The atomic era moved another military step forward Wednesday as history's highest recorded blast flamed in the sky six miles above the Nevada desert.

The burst from a device dropped from a B-36 bomber flying at 40,000 feet or higher. The detonation occurred above 30,000 feet—six times as high as any previous nuclear blast.

Small as it was in the range of A-weapons, this prototype of a nuclear air-to-air missile probably packed enough punch to wipe out an entire formation of enemy planes.

NEW DEVELOPMENTS

Ground-to-air missiles with nuclear warheads also are being developed, the U.S. defence department indicated last week. Whether any such test will be held in the current series has not been disclosed. But the firing of the 280-mm. atomic cannon here in 1953 undoubtedly was part of the war for smaller, longer-range artillery capable of firing a nuclear shell.

"Atomic air defence weapons will greatly increase our ability to repel an enemy air attack," the defence department says.

Forty aircraft will take part in the test. Some parachuted canisters containing instruments to record heat and radiation from the explosion. At least 11 of these made it to earth with data that will help to determine the efficacy of atomic ack-ack.

'Reunion in Vienna' Among Weaker Efforts of Series

By SAUL PETT

NEW YORK (AP)—Admittedly there were distractions the night poppa made his grand debut as a television critic.

The kids were growling because the old man had commandeered the set and they had to miss "Lucy." Also, there was this act. Honest, we had an ear crawling around our TV screen—on the inside. How it got there was a complete mystery, but a mysterious ear as it sat in the second act.

But even without the distractions I don't think I could have been captivated by "Reunion in Vienna," which Robert E. Sherwood wrote in 1931 and NBC revived as the latest in its "Producers' Showcase" series. In a series which also has given us "Peter Pan" and "The Women," this was among the weaker efforts.

AGED POORLY

The chief trouble, I suspect, is that "Reunion in Vienna" has not aged well. It was originally produced on Broadway at a time when the Hapsburg nobility was more recently departed from Vienna and psycho-analysis was a greater novelty. In its time, I'm told, the play was charming, funny, naughty and titillating.

But on a Monday night in 1955, cut and streamlined for television, it had little or none of these equalities. It was a great deal of expensive nonsense about some silly, incredible people.

Greer Garson (in her TV debut), Brian Aherne, Peter Lorre and Robert Fleming did their best, with uneven results. Part of the second hour to be playing the broadest kind of farce; others acted as a more realistic level. But in either case, I think, the story was too much of an unbelievable obstacle course.

NO HELP

Now about the color. We have a friend who has a friend who lives next door to someone whose mother-in-law owns a color TV set. This party of the fourth part reported that the color was shaming.

But for the rest of us, who have only black and white, all this was lost. As a matter of fact, I think the transmitting process is more aptly described as "almost but not quite connectable." A colored picture transmitted in black and white appears a bit funnier, a little mistier than ordinary reception.

SIGN OF THE TIMES

DENVER (AP)—An ice cream firm in Colorado, where snow and dust have been in the news along with increased atomic fallout from recent Nevada tests, has come up with a new flavor of the month—chocolate fall-out.

Fifty-Two Acres Are Expropriated By Federal Govt.

CORNWALL (CP) — Fifty-two acres of land, mostly in land between Cornwall canal and No. 2 highway were expropriated Wednesday by the federal government for possible future construction of 27-foot Canadian St. Lawrence seaway locks and canals.

The expropriation order and plans were filed at Stormont registry office by the transport department. The land is being acquired by the transport department for the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority.

Included in the plan is all land between the highway and the canal, west of Roosevelt International bridge to Nine Mile road.

Several industrial and commercial properties are located in the expropriated area. Approximately 100 properties, including many residences, are affected. The area also contains numerous vacant lots.

LAST CHAPTER

LONDON (AP)—A wine merchant's truck was one of the last of a long line of tradesmen's vehicles that called at 19 Downing street Wednesday. It carried away a load of empties.

Weddings

DONNAN — FLEMING

MARMORA — At the bride's home in Marmora on Saturday April 2nd, at 2.30 p.m., Nellie Eileen Fleming, daughter of Mrs. Delbert Fleming and the late Delbert Fleming, was united in marriage to Gordon Melville Donnan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Melville Donnan, of Stirling.

The house was tastefully decorated for the occasion in pink and white and the marriage vows were exchanged beneath a pretty tily decorated arch of pink and white which was banked by baskets of pink and white snapdragons. The ceremony was performed by Rev. K. J. Crawford, B.A., B.D., pastor of St. Andrew's United Church, Marmora.

Wedding music was played by Mrs. Alex F. Fraser, organist of the church. As soloist, Jack Grant sang "Because," before the ceremony, and "At Dawning," during the signing of the register.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Ross Fleming, and looked charming in a strapless gown of ballerina-length of imported Chantilly lace and nylon tulle. Her over-jacket of Chantilly lace had long sleeves which came to points over the wrists. The ensemble was completed by her shoulder-length veil which was held in place by a cluster of orange blossoms. She carried a nosegay of red roses and white hyacinths.

Her sister, Miss Ruth Fleming, as maid of honour, attended her as bridesmaid, wearing a strapless gown of heavens blue nylon lace in ballerina-length. The bouffant skirt was fashioned in tiers of lace over taffeta and nylon net. Her over-jacket was of nylon lace and she carried a nosegay of pink roses and white hyacinths.

Mr. Keith McGee of Stratford, Ontario, was groomsman.

At the reception, held at the home of the bride, the bride's mother received in a gown of rose ofion shantung with navy and white accessories and a corsage of white carnations. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who was attired in a grey crepe dress with navy accessories and wore a corsage of pink carnations.

For the wedding trip to points east, the bride travelled in a navy suit with navy and white accessories and corsage of pink carnations.

Out-of-town guests were present from Belleville, Peterborough, Stratford, Stirling, Madoc and Brockville.

Mr. and Mrs. Donnan will reside on their farm in West Huntingdon.

'Education, Board Problems' Topic At Queen Alexandra H-S Assoc.

At the regular meeting of the Queen Alexandra Home and School Association held on Tuesday it was decided to send three delegates to the Home and School convention to be held in Toronto. The delegates will be Mrs. Irving, Mrs. Jones and Mrs. Rushlow.

As a result of the response to the questionnaire sent to all the parents, it was decided to continue the Home and School Association at Queen Alexandra High School. The shield for the room count was won by Mrs. Calnan's morning class.

The Queen Alexandra Association will present the radio program over CJBQ on April 27th at 8.30.

GUEST SPEAKER

Mr. Hackett introduced the guest speaker, Mr. L. A. Kells, superintendent of elementary schools in Belleville, who spoke on "Education and the Problems Faced by the Board of Education."

He discussed the problem of providing school teachers for over 2,000 children, twice as many as there were 15 years ago.

Board of Education has had the task of building three new public schools, the maintenance and upkeep of the old schools, the provision of equipment and the introduction in recent years of courses in home economics, manual training and kindergartens.

Mr. Kells told of the new, but not revolutionary unit program which is an adjustment for the benefit of the children. It reviews the progress to safeguard the needs of the child more frequently than once a term.

Mr. Kells introduced Mr. Mac Smith, chairman of the Board, who spoke on the advancements made in the audio visual aids program in Belleville under Mrs. Sloss and her committee. He spoke also of the shortage of teachers and the necessity of raising salaries to keep their teachers and of changing the system of hiring teachers.

The Board is also faced with such problems as enrolling school boundaries and the purchase of supplies and equipment.

Mr. Fred Sprague thanked the speakers on behalf of the Association.

The mothers of Miss Heasman's class provided the refreshments at the close of the meeting.

'Terms, Titles, Traditions' Topic At Guild Meeting

Fourteen members of St. Margaret's Guild and one visitor gathered at the church hall on Monday evening for their regular meeting. The Rev. L. Arthur Page opened with prayers.

The president, Mrs. F. E. Moore conducted the usual business session. Special services being held during Holy Week were brought to the attention of the members. Basaar work was distributed to be completed and returned at the next meeting.

The highlight of the meeting was an address by the rector, entitled "Terms, Titles and Traditions." Mr. Page informed the gathering of the three orders of the Church of England, the methods used to elect bishops, the various titles used by clergy and the responsibilities entailed by such titles.

Following his talk, Mr. Page answered questions on the topic, which were asked by those present.

Mrs. Arthur Watson expressed the thanks of those present.

Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting by hostesses Mrs. L. G. Taylor and Mrs. T. S. Hay.

Ladies' Bowling League Elects Officers

The Thursday Afternoon Ladies' Bowling League held its annual banquet at the I.O.O.F. hall, Thursday evening with a delicious turkey dinner served by the Women's Auxiliary of the CNRAA.

Presentation of prize money for team standing was made by Doris Bannon.

Door prizes were won by Mesdames M. Mundry, R. Roper, J. Quincey, G. Cathers, J. Greatrix, M. Sunderland, E. Bulford and E. Klifedder.

Following this the president introduced Mr. Larry Murphy, representative of Calvert's, who presented a handsome trophy to the co-winners of the league for this season, namely the Excelsiors and Dodgers, which will be competed for annually.

The incoming president, Doris Bannon, took the chair and presented the following awards:

The high average of 206, bowled by Edna Purchase, won the trophy donated by Mr. Ronald Keel, and the high triple of 794, bowled by Kaye Maines, won the permanent prize given by Mr. Bill Sargeant, of the Vogue Beauty Salon, also the trophy given by Dorothy Dickey, for the high single, went to Sheila Lew with a 274 score.

Master Ricky Lough and Misses Karen Ponte, Sandra Sinclair and Barbara Ann Mattis, pupils of Miss Dorothy Dickey, entertained with singing and tap dancing, which was excellently done.

The remainder of the evening was spent in singing and dancing with music supplied by Mrs. E. Warham.

During the evening the retiring president, E. Klifedder, was presented with a cosmetic fitted kit.

The officers for 1955-56 season are: President, Doris Bannon; vice-president E. Klifedder; secretary, William Smith; treasurer, T. Fitzgibbon.

Quinte Skating, Tennis Club Formulates Plans

The April meeting of the Quinte Skating and Tennis Club Ladies' Auxiliary was held at the club house on Tuesday afternoon, with Mrs. J. K. Bateman, president, presiding.

Reports were given by the various members of the executive.

Plans were discussed regarding the spring tea to be held in the Masonic Temple later this month.

Tea was served at the close of the meeting.

Mead Johnson Company Holds Spring Dance

The management of Mead Johnson & Company of Canada, Limited, acted as host to its employees and their friends on the occasion of the company's recent spring dance. This took place at Club Commodore with the Commodore's Orchestra presenting the music. The dance hall was especially decorated for the occasion.

Each lady upon arriving was presented with a suitable corsage by a member of the committee.

DANCE WINNERS

There were novelty dances, square dances, social circles and spot dances. The winners of the spot dances were Gordon and Edith Prince, Lois Hillman and Doug Plumpton. The novelty dance prizes were won by Dorothy and Ross Rutter.

Special novelty prizes were won by Edith Pringle, Anna Blakely, Peggy Trice, Joan Keegan, Mary Vechter, Wally Kokesh, Gordon Pringle and Mary Post.

During the evening, the engagement of Marie Denike and Adrian Barker was announced. Also the engagement of Joan Keegan and Glen Rye.

A special birthday skit was put on for Joan Keegan honoring her birthday.

A supper and various refreshments were served during the evening. Paper hats and souvenirs made their appearance at an appropriate time.

The members of the committee were: Mary Post, Fay Hamilton, Mildred Hall, Bunk Young, Stew Hill, and Charlie Hewson.

Women's Institute

SPRINGBROOK W.I.

Nineteen members and two visitors met at the home of Mrs. James Spry, Bonariaw, for the recent meeting of Springbrook Women's Institute.

Mrs. C. Gordanier opened the meeting in the usual way. The secretary reported on the card party of 18 tables euchre and two crokinole—and also proceeds from catering to a dance. Five birthday fees were paid.

Mrs. W. J. Barlow gave an account of the district directors' and officers' meeting held in Madoc in March. The district annual is to be held at Wellman's on June 8th.

Mrs. Thomas McKeown, convener for citizenship, was in charge of the program. The motto—the strength of a nation lies in the homes of its people, was in the form of a talk by Mrs. Campney and a paper read by Mrs. Cosbey.

Each member took part in current events.

Mrs. Gerald Broadworth prepared and read a splendid paper on "Welfare of Our Senior Citizens."

Mrs. Gordon Webb played and sang "That Old Irish Mother of Mine." A reading, "Never Too Old," was read by Mrs. Clarence McKeown.

Mrs. J. Spry demonstrated potato candy and Mrs. Fred McKeown conducted a contest.

The hostess and her assistants served refreshments.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

THE DEPENDS ON WHAT SORT OF CRAP YOU REALLY ARE

Miss Fairfax:

I am 18 years old and in the Army. I am terribly in love with a girl of 17; in fact, I am engaged to her. This girl is sweet and sincere, and I would do nothing to hurt her in any way.

But my problem is that I am AWOL from the army, and am also in a bit of trouble with the law enforcement officers. At this time, I am in the county jail, awaiting trial.

If I get out of this predicament, should I break my engagement to this girl? — Billy B.

Dear Billy:

It's pretty hard to judge your situation when, aside from your being AWOL, you tell me that the sort of trouble it was that got you in the county jail. As you tell it, it appears that there are two separate counts against you.

In order for me to give any advice about your future, or what you should do about your girl, it would be necessary for me to know what kind of crap you actually are. If you had given me the details of your present predicament, they would throw a good deal of light on this latter point.

If you are a boy with basically good possibilities, who might be expected to grow into a steady, dependable, decent citizen of the community, who got into a jam more through adolescent thoughtlessness and mischief than through anything else, then I would answer your question as follows:

Tell your girl the complete truth about yourself, say that you realize you need to grow up and acquire maturity and judgment, and that you intend to do this. Tell her that you would not dream of urging her to marry you until you have shown her that you have made good progress toward this purpose. Then ask her if she will wait for you.

If you are a crud through and through, I would advise you to get as far away from her as you can, and as fast as you can, and stay away.

I certainly don't think that, as the irresponsible 18-year-old you are at present, you can rightly ask any girl to commit herself on the subject of marriage, especially when she is as young as this one. Under even the best of circumstances, both of you are too young for serious romance, and a wait of a couple of years, at least, during which you can work to turn yourself into the kind of young man you should be if you are to make a good husband, is definitely indicated.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

OCCESSIONAL, RECESSIONAL DRESSES

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. My sister-in-law is to be married in a few months, she has asked me to help her with her plans, and I told her I'd write you to ask you to help me! There is to be: 1 maid of honor and a best man; 2 bridesmaids and 2 ushers; and 2 either together or separately. Last, the bride and her father, or whoever is to escort her up the aisle. (lower girls. What is the correct order for the Processional and Recessional?

2. Would it be correct for the maid of honor to wear a dress different from the bridesmaids' dresses? —Reader

1. Processional. First, the two ushers, together. Next, the two bridesmaids, together; or, since there are so few, they may, if desired, walk separately, the shorter first. Next, the maid of honor, alone. Next, the two flower girls. Recessional. First, the bride and groom. Next, the maid of honor with the best man. Next, the two bridesmaids, together, followed by the two ushers together; or the bridesmaids and ushers may walk together.

2. If the bride particularly wishes, she may plan to have the maid of honor's dress differ in style and or color, from the bridesmaids' dresses. But today the plan is . . . in the fine and desirable interest of uniformity . . . to have the maid of honor and the bridesmaids wear dresses of the same type and the same color. The difference of status is indicated by a difference in design and or color of the bouquets.

Beauty

By HELEN JAMESON

ESSENTIALS OF GOOD GROOMING

Many factors make up the picture of attractiveness in a woman. Perfect grooming, however, is better than beauty if beauty lacks fastidious regard for the many little details which add up to the perfect whole. One slagle flaw can ruin the picture of a lovely woman. Smeared lips, for instance, or the showing of a slip beneath the skirt hem, a run in the stocking, shoes that need brushing.

Check up your own list of grooming habits and see how you rate. Do you shampoo and wave-set your hair every week or ten days, so that it retains it lustre?

Are you fussy about your make-up, and is your skin always scrupulously clean when you apply it?

You should apply your foundation cosmetic and powder well down over your neck to avoid that deadline just below your chin. If you must express your eyebrows, don't draw a harsh, straight line; use soft, feathery stokes instead. If you use mascara on your lashes, brush them afterward with a dry brush so that the shafts will be clearly separated.

When applying powder do you wham the pad on your nose first? If so it may carry too much of the fragrant fluff-stuff.

Guard against staining your teeth when you blot the lipstick application with tissues. By using a lip stick brush you will get a more lasting effect, a better distribution and clearer borders.

Change your nail polish frequently. The moment it goes patchy you are out of beauty lock. Have you tried the new, three-natural colors? They are ravishingly lovely.

This season we're going in for delicate lingerie colors. They are an asserting detail of dress but must be spotless, like white gloves. Better carry "spare" white gloves in your handbag if you are to be away from home all day and evening.

An Easter Morning Breakfast For Fifty Teen-Agers

By Mary Moore

Since this is Good Friday Eve and you are so everlastingly patient with me, I'm thinking that some of my sister Sunday School teachers who read this page may find the news of what we are doing on Easter morning interesting.

At our church we will have an extra service at 8 a.m., to make room for the swelling throngs at 11 o'clock. Mr. Brown and I will sit with our teen-agers, about twenty-five strong. Afterwards we will go downstairs where a team of us will get Easter morning breakfast ready, to which we have invited the new-church-membership class to be our guests.

We are having orange juice, scrambled eggs and back bacon, hot cross buns, (plenty of butter, please Mrs. Moore), jam (lots), marmalade, milk (16 quarts for 50), and coffee for Mr. Brown and the minister and me.

We love these young people so much, wild energy and all, that when their mothers say to us "I don't know why you do it" or "how do you stand it?" — we in turn do not understand their attitudes. It is wonderfully rewarding work. Mr. Brown had to be absent one Sunday and when I thanked the boys for an almost 100% attendance they said it is to teach the bible study to the boys and girls together, one of the boys spoke up "We thought you'd need us all to keep the girls under control." My precious mild little girls tittered and giggled and all was great fun. (It does me a great service too in keeping my mind from dwelling on the vacuum left in our house since the wedding.)

Ida B. sent me some tried and true recipes along with a request for directions for seasoning her sandwich toaster.

HONEY ICE CREAM

(Courtesy Ida B.)

"I tried to make this in the good old days when eggs were a dime a dozen and used the whites in an angel cake to go with it."

Ida B.

One pint milk, yolks 6 eggs, 1 cup mild honey, 1 pint cream (not heavy); heat milk in double boiler. Beat together eggs and honey, add hot milk, return to double boiler and cook until thick. Add the cream and when cool, freeze.

OATMEAL BREAD

Ida B. says of this "I know you will like the oatmeal bread we bought the recipe back from Texas. Please note that while it calls for flour to make a stiff dough (stiff enough that it doesn't "sag") you never quite get away from a little stickiness."

Mix and stir together 2 cups each fine oatmeal and boiling water. Add ¼ cup cold milk and 4 tablespoons brown sugar. Cool to lukewarm and add 1 yeast cake crumbled. Beat well. Let rise until it bubbles and add 4 more level tablespoons brown sugar, 2 teaspoons salt, 2 tablespoons melted shortening, 3½ to 4 cups flour to make a stiff dough. Let rise to double the size. Knead down and let rise again. Make into 2 loaves, let rise. Bake at 400 for 10 minutes, and set oven back to 300 deg. for balance of 1 hour.

To Ida B. I want to say that you should, since you are having trouble with your sandwich grill, try this: remove particles of food from surface with a wire brush, then with a small brush thoroughly cover surface with salad oil or unsalted fat melted, before using again. It should never stick. If it does not give entire satisfaction let me know the manufacturer and I will write to their director of consumer service for you.

"Unusual" Weather Ahead Better Service the Heating System

A wit once quipped that our Canadian climate consisted of "eight months winter and four months of unusual weather". Thank heaven we've learned something about combatting at least the eight months winter, and Canadian homes are, by and large, the warmest and most comfortable in the world for winter living.

But, according to the Canadian Institute of Plumbing and Heating, the "four months unusual weather" can do a lot of unpleasant things to the average heating system if it isn't properly bedded down for the summer. Damp, for instance, can cause corrosion in the smoke pipes, rust can wear away metal in the grates and flues, shortening the life of your heating system and piling up expensive repair bills later on.

A little care at this season, will not only save money but assure efficient and safe heating during the winter to come. They offer this brief routine for guidance in preparing the furnace for those months of "unusual weather" once the last fires of winter have gone out. A good place to start is the chimney itself. An inspection of the brickwork, and those spots where the chimney is adjacent to wood-work may not only save costly repairs, but even more costly fire, because these are places where fires very often break out.

Then check the smoke pipes. Take them down and clean them inside and out. Look at the joints to see that they fit properly. Where pipes show signs of leaking or thinning metal, it's wise to have them replaced.

Before storing them for the summer, wipe the inside with an oily rag, and paint the outside. And to make sure that they won't corrode during the summer, put a little lime in the pipes to absorb any moisture that may get into them. In this way you will be sure of a first class set of smoke pipes to install when the cold weather comes round again.

Then on to the furnace itself. Fires should, of course, be properly cleaned out. Firepot and grates need a good cleaning with a scraper and longhandled wire brush. In case damp should get in here and cause rust during the summer, give these surfaces a good daubing with an oily brush. If you like, use some lime here as an absorbent, but, in this case, it is wise to lay it on a wooden board.

If the heating system uses hot water or steam, it is a good idea to paint the outside of the boiler with black japan. This keeps it in good condition for the summer months, and ready for use when the system is turned on again. Double check the boiler for any evidence of leaks, which should be taken care of immediately.

Check up on the cement between sections of the furnace, either inside or outside. This is where expensive heat leaks develop, and it is good economy to have any loose cement replaced. Leaks can occur at the joints of door frames, or if the doors have become warped or twisted so that they do not fit properly. Have these serviced at the same time.

Any remaining ashes should, naturally, be removed from the ash-pit, and it might be wise to put a fresh layer of cement to act as a seal between furnace base and floor. If this is laid level with the bottom of the door opening, it will be much easier to scoop out ashes when the furnace is next in use.

This, too, is a good time to assess the value of your heating system completely, and to determine whether this is the year for renovation. Perhaps the installation of an automatic stoker, a change to some other type of fuel, or even a replacement of the heating unit altogether will pay off in added comfort and less work in the winter of 1955-56.

Renovation or replacement of the heating system has been made all the easier this year through the introduction of home improvements loans at low interest, which can be had in many of Canada's chartered banks. A discussion with your bank manager and plumbing and heating contractor now may make next winter the most comfortable you have ever experienced.

Mexico Is Mystified by Do-It-Yourself Hobbies

By JACK RUTLEDGE

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Mexico has reacted to the do-it-yourself hobby with an indifferent "Why?"

Labor is so cheap that Mexicans who can afford a hobby prefer one with more prestige and glamour.

"We don't even stock the do-it-yourself gadgets," says Jack Ruddy of Salinasy Rocha, Mexico's largest department store chain. "The hobby just doesn't click down here."

For centuries the lower classes out of pure necessity have een "doing-it-themselves"—building adobe homes, making their own simple furniture, even weaving cloth for their clothes and molding pottery for kitchen needs. They still do.

The middle class, which has made do-it-yourself a six-billion-dollar-a-year business in the United States, is comparatively small in Mexico.

And Mexico's middle class shuns the hobby for several reasons. For one thing, many of this group have just pulled themselves out of the lower bracket, and doing manual labor could mean loss of face.

A major reason is that the salary of the average white collar worker or government employee is too small to fiance the necessary gadgets, which would cost more here because of high import duties.

Take a man making 600 pesos ($48) a month—not an unusual income. To get a $200 lathe he would have to cough up 2,500 pesos. A $100 drill press would be 1,250 pesos. Even a simple utility drill means 500 pesos, almost a month's pay.

That leaves the upper class as potential do-it-yourselvers, a n d even in the United States this group produces few such hobbyists.

Those of the Mexican upper class could easily afford the estimated $2,000 needed to provide the outfit a complete hobbyist needs. But other hobbies appeal to them more. And a rich man who prefers to sit home and make a table to playing polo or even golf is considered eccentric.

Put yourself in the place of a middle class Mexican making, say, as much as 2,000 pesos ($160) a month:

He has a small home in the suburbs which he is paying for on the installment plan. The installments take up a sizable chunk of his pay. But he's a proud homeowner and wants an attractive place.

He wants it to look nice to outsiders, so that means a lawn and flowers. Should he pay about 1,875 pesos for a power mower when he can hire a man to cut his lawn for maybe 10 pesos every two weeks?

Or say he wants a painted shelf in his closet covered with fringed paper. Merely assembling the necessary material is complicated. He'd have to go to one store for paint, another for lumber, a third for supports, a fourth for paper. It's far easier—and cheaper—to pay a carpenter about 20 pesos a day to do the footwork as well as the woodwork, particularly as the tolls needed would run into hundreds of pesos.

Well, you say, how about pride of accomplishment?

A Mexican is artistic rather than utilitarian. He would much rather point to a painting of a nude over the mantlepiece and say "I did that" than boast of a handmade fence around the yard.

FOR THE SMALL FAMILY

A SIMPLE HOME for a country or suburban setting, H-339-KF economically has an exterior finished in horizontal wood siding. The two attractive trellises and a red brick planting box provide color.

SOT HBEDROOMS are at the back of the house. The front entry opens on the living room. Next to it, the kitchen has a dining corner.

By JOAN O'SULLIVAN

Build It Yourself!

Two bedrooms, a living room, kitchen and bath—it's a basic floor plan designed to meet the needs of the small family, and it's employed effectively for the two homes featured today.

Design M-339-KF meets the needs of the modest-income family. Every inch of space is utilized, giving dollar-for-dollar building value. Study the floor plan, and you'll see how well the rooms are arranged.

A covered porch protects the entry. Step inside, and you're in the living room, a comfortably large room with a top-to-bottom picture window across the front wall, small double windows on the side wall. Because this plan does not call for a living room fireplace, there's extra space for furniture arrangements.

ROOM FOR DINING

To the left of the living room, the kitchen allows for table space. A dining corner with one of those tricky fold-out-of-sight tables might also be planned in a corner of the living room.

All told, the home, designed for a 40-foot lot, comprises 14,320 cubic feet.

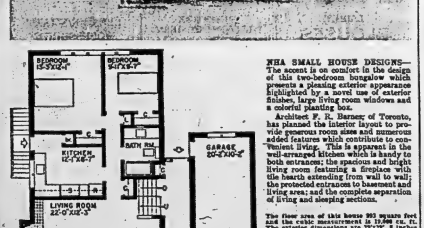
so there's plenty of light and air in the work area, which affords access to the side door and the basement stairway.

BEDROOMS AT BACK

Bedrooms are at the back of the house, near the bath, which, in addition to the compactness of the plan, is within reach of all rooms. Linen units are planned for the bath, while an all-purpose closet is placed just outside it.

board, which comes in panels 4-feet wide and from 8 to 16 feet long.

You can handle the ceiling by using a simple "T" support. It can be made from 2 x 4's, thus allowing you to support the free end of the panel while nailing it to the strapping.



For the floor, too, you can use hardboard as an underlay for linoleum or any other covering that may appeal to you.

You can make a built-in desk with useful cupboards and slots; or refreshment corner or storage wall. Card tables, snack tables, and other furniture both base and wall-in also can be made from the hardboard.

In an attic sewing room an excellent counter or work table can be easily built from a single sheet of ¼-inch Abilthi hardboard affording a working surface 4 feet by 16 feet. All you need is a frame of 2-inch for legs, and 1-inch by 2-inch for the backing of tile table top.

Abilthi hardboard comes in various grades and thicknesses. Features of this line are perforated hardboard which is both decorative and useful for hanging panels, rooms, utility rooms, etc.

In closets, kitchen cupboards and in utility rooms. And a special board-a made—known as tile board —which is scored in 4-inch squares for application in kitchens, bathrooms, utility rooms, etc.

NHA SMALL HOUSE DESIGNS—The accent is on comfort in the design of this two-bedroom bungalow which presents a pleasing exterior appearance highlighted by a novel use of exterior finishes, large living room windows and a colorful planting box.

Architect F. R. Barney of Toronto, has planned the interior layout to provide generous room sizes and numerous added features which contribute to convenient living. This is apparent in the well-arranged kitchen which is handy to both entrances; the spacious and bright living room, featuring a fireplace with tile hearth extending from wall to wall; the protected entrances to basement and living area; and the complete separation of living and sleeping sections.

The floor area of this home 903 square feet and the cubic measurement is 12,646 cu. ft. The exterior dimensions are 32'2½", 2 inches less. Working drawings, No. 339, for this house, known as Design 12, are available from Houston's at minimum cost.

Carmel Y. A. Club Entertains Y.P. Groups

RAWDON — Carmel United Church Young Adult Group, in Rawdon, entertained St. Paul's, Burnbrae and Mount Pleasant on Friday evening, with a large attendance.

Mr. Douglas Fyear, president, welcomed the guests and Mrs. Russel Fyear conducted a "get-acquainted" game.

The Mount Pleasant group presented the Devotional. Mrs. Ed. Richardson presided and Mrs. Harry McAdam read the Bible lesson. Mrs. Burton Sharpe read a paper on "The Cross". Mrs. James Hoard contributed a vocal solo.

The Burnbrae group gave two vocal selections by Mrs. Ross Hart and Mrs. Douglas Hagerman.

SLIDES SHOWN

Mr. Allan Francis introduced Miss Barbara Redner, Belleville, who gave her travelogue with screen views of rural life in England, Scotland and Ireland.

Miss Redner enjoyed the trip last year, having won it through 4-H Club work.

The Carmel president expressed thanks to Miss Redner.

The group from St. Paul's conducted the recreation under the leadership of Mrs. William Wilkins, and Mr. Francis.

The pastor, Dr. A. Packman, spoke briefly and complimented Miss Redner on her photographic ability.

The Carmel group served refreshments under the leadership of Mrs. Helen Nesi.

CCF Would Try to Extract Profit from Breweries But Would Not Socialize Makers

HEALTH OFFICER

Dr. Helen Angela Cawson has been appointed assistant medical officer of health for Ottawa. A graduate of the University of Liverpool, England, she is believed to be the first woman to hold such a post in a major Canadian city. Dr. Cawson formerly served with the Canadian Red Cross, Ont., health unit. (CP Photo).

TORONTO (CP) — Donald C. MacDonald, Ontario CCF leader, said Wednesday the party would attempt "to extract the profit" from brewing and distilling but would not socialize the beer and liquor manufacturers.

Addressing a CCF trade union conference, Mr. MacDonald said the CCF would, however, socialize the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission.

He said the CCF at one time stood for public ownership of breweries and distilleries. However, he added:

"Nationalization isn't in our program any more—the administrative problems are so big it would make it impossible."

PARTY POLICY

If the party gained power in Ontario it would take into public ownership the warehousing connected with a sales and distribution agency of the major breweries, which Mr. MacDonald described as a "cheap" form of administration.

Manufacturers' profit would be cut to raise funds for combatting alcoholism and other social problems.

A resolution demanding immediate establishment of a provincewide system of hospital insurance plan for Ontario was adopted at the conference.

The resolution, submitted by the Toronto joint board of the Cloakmakers' Union (AFL-CIO), said such a move would be the first step in backing the federal government to establish a national health insurance plan.

AIDS HEALTH PLAN

The resolution also called on the federal government to establish a complete national health insurance plan, including medical, hospital, dental, optical and related services.

David Archer, president of the Toronto and Lakeshore Labor Council, said the party was to maintain a province-sponsored health insurance plan as a defence against progressive Conservative government at the next provincial general election.

Other resolutions passed by the committee urged the government assistance for universities and students to train qualified industrial relations mediators, a low cost and low rental housing program, provincial government assistance to relieve unemployment and provide assistance for unemployed and legislation affecting conciliation and arbitration procedures.

The one-day conference preceded the annual convention of the Ontario CCF party which starts today and continues until Saturday night.

Talks by Former Citizen Editor Are Questioned

OTTAWA (CP)—Talks to Canadian troops in Korea by Charles J. Woodsworth, former editor of the Ottawa Citizen, were questioned Wednesday in the Commons.

Ray Thomas (SC—Winnipeg South) said Mr. Woodsworth, 43, son of J.S. Woodsworth, founder of the CCF, is a follower and advocate of CCF policies.

CCF Leader Coldwell interrupted to say that Mr. Woodsworth is not and never has been a member of the CCF party.

QUOTES MAGAZINE

Mr. Thomas quoted a story from Time magazine which said Mr. Woodsworth had been "sacked" as editor of the Citizen because in editorials he "came out against the rearmament of West Germany."

The magazine story quoted by Mr. Thomas also said:

"Last year the department of defence sent Mr. Woodsworth on a two-months junket through the Far East and invited him to lecture Asian audiences and troops of the (Canadian) 25th Brigade in Korea. He was also a frequent lecturer at department of external affairs briefing sessions."

External Affairs Minister Pearson interjected to say Mr. Woodsworth is not a lecturer in the department.

TORNADO RIPS ALTOONA

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — A tornado lashed the town of Altoona, Ala., Wednesday night, leaving a trail of ruined and damaged buildings, an high wind-whipped panic by torrential rains whipped Birmingham and other north Alabama area. Damage at Altoona was estimated at about $50,000. A clubhouse on the 18-hole golf course was removed and set down in one piece over railroad tracks about 50 feet away.

Blamed on Sun

TORONTO (CP)—Police Wednesday, blamed the sun, shining through a hole in the roof of a fire which broke out in a baby carriage and severely burned three-year-old Wendy Hunter.

Earlier the fire was believed started by children playing with matches. Mrs. Robert White said she placed her son in the carriage for a short nap. When she looked out later the carriage was in flames.

She snatched the infant from the carriage, ripped off his burning play suit and rushed him first aid for face burns.

Doctors at the Hospital for Sick Children said the child was in good condition but that skin grafts may be necessary.

People Braced For Big Change In Government

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Britain went under new management Wednesday and people braced for a big change in the concept of government.

Under Sir Winston Churchill, it was pretty much a one-man show.

Under Sir Anthony Eden, it will be more of a team effort. The "Big Four" in Britain's affairs will probably be Eden, Finance Chief Richard Austen Butler, Defence Minister Harold Macmillan and the Marquess of Salisbury, Lord President of the Council.

Butler, only 52, confident and assured, a smooth hand at public relations, has been a success at the treasury and is bound to be a big name in British politics for a long time to come. When he has an announcement to make affecting Canada he makes a point of calling Canadian correspondents in to tell them about it.

Macmillan, 60, probably ranks next in the hierarchy.

IN BACKGROUND

Lord Salisbury, 61, keeps in the background but has considerable influence.

Churchill certainly will be the top man but in a phrase beloved of British politicians he will probably be primus inter pares—first among equals.

Under Churchill, cabinet meetings often were dangling monologues.

Eden may well be more like a chairman of committee, paying close heed to the sense of the meeting.

ON INTUITION

The new man had flair, flashes of genius. He leaned heavily on intuition seasoned by broad experience. But he was no quick-decision horse, accustomed to learning his way and then going full speed ahead whatever the discouragements.

Sir Winston was a dominating figure in government departments through 50 years in politics. The new prime minister has served in only three.

His domestic affairs, Eden is a novice.

A minority view of Eden as prime minister might be that he will make all the correct noises, but seldom do anything inspired. The left-wing New Statesmen and Nation, in an article last February, pointed out that Churchill's successor, said it was confidently predicted among Conservative members that when he did take over, "Butler will proceed to eat him alive."

Finance Minister Harris hugs his two proud daughters, Margaret, 18 (left) and Pert, 20, after presenting the budget and his first speech. His daughters, along with his wife and son, heard the budget speech from the Commons gallery. (CP Photo).

3 Legislatures Still in Session Across Canada

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Alberta legislature adjourned Wednesday but prorogation of the Saskatchewan House, also scheduled for Wednesday, was delayed at least a day.

Two other houses still are in session, both in the Maritimes.

The Alberta session was to May 10, the Alberta legislature approved a public accounts committee report which cleared the Social Credit government of opposition charges of waste and extravagance.

The charges were laid in connection with five real estate transactions. The report was favored by a 43 to 9 vote with one independent Social Credit member voting with the government.

TWO RESIGNED

The committee's hearing resulted in the resignations of Social Credit members John C. Lang, deputy speaker, and Roy S. Lee of Taber.

Committee evidence showed the two men violated the Legislative Assembly Act by being part-owners of a building in Edmonton which the government rents. Both said they did not know they were violating the act which prohibits a member sitting in the House if he holds a contract with the government or has received public money.

Main reason for the adjournment, time to discuss the natural gas export situation with Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Ltd., producers, Dominion government and Alberta officials.

Premier Manning described as a "serious blow to Alberta the failure of Trans-Canada to obtain federal government approval for financing the $530,000,000 natural gas pipeline to eastern Canada.

In other legislatures:

SASKATCHEWAN

The Saskatchewan legislature, in a move to clean up business, approved estimates for six government agencies. Largest allocation was $9,000,000 for the social welfare department.

NEWFOUNDLAND

Opposition Leader M. Hollett said two pulp and paper companies in Newfoundland should pay higher taxes. The Progressive Conservative leader told the Newfoundland house something "drastic will have to be done" if the companies cannot see their way clear to re-negotiate their tax agreements.

NOVA SCOTIA

The subject of forestry also came up in the Nova Scotia legislature where former premier Harold Connolly said the lumber industry is the most backward of the province's fundamental industries.

The industry had not kept pace with progress in other industries and there had been little or no promotion within the industry itself.

Section of B.C. Evidence Act Is Ultra Vires

OTTAWA (CP) — The Supreme Court of Canada held Wednesday section of the British Columbia Evidence Act is ultra vires of the provincial legislature.

Chief Justice Patrick Kerwin said the section declared ultra vires is that compelling witnesses to answer all questions at legal proceedings instituted under provincial law.

The court's decision revolves mainly around the view that the B.C. legislature exceeded its powers in permitting perjury prosecutions arising from conflicting evidence given under the act.

DEFAULT IN BY CODE

Perjury is an offence dealt with in Canada's Criminal Code, and as such is a matter coming under federal jurisdiction.

The court heard an appeal arising from a civil suit for $2,500,000 damages against three officers of a west coast distillery.

The decision reversed a judgment of the British Columbia Court of Appeal which had ordered the three distillery officers to answer all questions put to them at an examination for discovery, a preliminary step in the civil suit.

The three men, Isidore J. Klein, Albert L. McLennan and George N. Morgan, are being sued by a group of Vancouver shareholders. They are accused of misrepresentation of the affairs of United Distillers of Canada Ltd., and falsifying books of accounts.

No Length Limit On Pickerel This Season

TORONTO (CP)—There will be no length limit on yellow pickerel or perch caught anywhere in Ontario this year, Dr. W. J. K. Harkness, chief of fish and wildlife division of the lands and forests department of lands and forests, said Wednesday.

"The no-length limit is on a trial basis and fishermen are requested to study the conditions carefully and report the results to their local lands and forests officer," he said.

The limit on yellow pickerel was six per day, not less than 14 inches long, and on perch 25 per day, not less than 15 inches in other waters.

For perch the length limit was not less than nine inches in the St. Lawrence river and tributaries and at Rondeau bay on Dorwood township.

There is no closed season on perch anywhere in the province. Closed seasons for yellow pickerel vary in different regions, but most are in March, April and May.

THREE FLEE IN SHIP

COPENHAGEN (AP) — Danish authorities pondered today whether to grant asylum to three East German fishermen who fled from their stranded ship on the Baltic Isle of Bornholm. Police said the trio walked ashore Wednesday from the grounded trawler. Erich Kuoek near Nekso harbor on the Danish island while their captain was away discussing salvage operations.

2nd Battalion Queen's Own On Way Home

OTTAWA (CP)—One of the big questions in the defence department is: Are more troops going to be sent to Korea?

Some officials say they don't know. Others say they can't comment on the matter. Still others say no decision has been reached.

The only definite fact to emerge so far is that the Women and Battalion, Queen's Own Rifles, Canada's one remaining infantry unit in Korea, is on the way home.

That leaves about 500 auxiliary Canadian troops in Korea and Japan and they are expected to follow the Queen's Own soon.

MOVEMENT SUSPENDED

Defence Minister Campney said March 11 that the planned movement of the 1st Battalion, the Black Watch, based at Aldershot, N.S., to Korea to relieve the Queen's Own was suspended pending talks with the Communist forces countries with forces in Korea—Britain, Australia and New Zealand.

The four countries separately were going to decide whether there should be a complete commonwealth withdrawal from Korea. Nearly a month later, a decision has not been announced and he has, nobody here is prepared to say what it will be.

In the meantime, the Maple Leaf Club in Tokyo, main Canadian leave centre in the Far East, has been closed. Last fall, the 6,000-man Silver Dollar military lodge in Korea was reduced by more than two-thirds and two of the three Canadian theatres there withdrawn from the theatre, leaving only the Sioux still there.

Dingo Barriers Being Erected In Queensland

By LOUIS LECK
Canadian Press Correspondent

SYDNEY, Australia (CP)— The dingo-plagued state of Queensland has started building the world's greatest wire-mesh fence this side of the Iron Curtain.

It will be a 3,500-mile-long barrier against the howling, hungry wild dog which roots the state several million pounds a year in sheep and cattle losses.

Both New South Wales and South Australia have vast dingo barriers, but neither is anything near the size of this Queensland project.

The new fence will join the South Australian barrier to a point it is completed in three years' time there will be a dingo-proof fence extending almost 1,000 miles across the continent from the great Australian Bight in the south northwards to the gulf of Carpentaria.

ENCLOSE SHEEP LANDS

The new fence will enclose the whole of Queensland's main sheep lands—with 18,000,000 sheep and 2,000,000 cattle. It will exist of about half of Queensland's 670,500 grazing properties.

Every year the cunning, brown-coated dingoes kill about 1,000,000 sheep and 100,000 cattle in uncounted thousands. In less than 10 years, they have caused a reduced western Queensland's sheep population from 24,000,000 to 13,000,000.

The government and the farmers have tried shooting them from aircraft, hunting them with trained dogs, trapping them and poisoning them with bait dropped from low-flying planes. All these have failed.

Premier Bjelke-Petersen initiated the new Barrier Fence Act) make their dingo-proof enclosure a long the "dingo-line." Starting six inches below the ground there must be a 3-foot length of rabbit-proof mesh, topped with three feet three inches of dingo-proof net.

The government supplies the wire and mesh. The farmers will do the rest and maintain the fence at their own expense. Government assistance equivalent to $20 a mile.

Howe Advised in November Man Seeking $13,500 Job Was Son of Liberal Politician

OTTAWA (CP)—Correspondence tabled in the Commons Wednesday disclosed that Trade Minister Howe was advised last November that Stanley Lupton, later appointed to a $13,500-a-year government job, is the son of a Saskatchewan Liberal politician.

Mr. Lupton, 47, of Bredenbury, Sask., was named in February as a member of the board of grain commissioners. He is the son of Asmundur Lupton, member of the Saskatchewan legislature for Saltcoats and former acting Liberal leader in the provincial House.

The question of whether Mr. Howe knew of Mr. Lupton's family political background was raised by CCF members in the Commons March 11.

Mr. Howe said he did not know of it at the time he decided Mr. Lupton was the man for the job. His position became vacant March 1 with the retirement of John Vallance.

Letters concerning the appointment, tabled Wednesday at the request of James Arthur (CCF—Audubon), included one dated Nov. 1 from premier T. C. Douglas of the United Grain Growers, Calgary, personally recommending Mr. Lupton.

Mr. Brownlee, former head of the United Farmers of Alberta government in that province, said in the letter that Mr. Lupton's father was "temporarily leader of the Liberal party" in Saskatchewan. He also said the premier's father-in-law was a director of the UGG and was well fitted for the commission-ership.

"I will certainly keep in mind your personal nominee," Mr. Howe replied Nov. 8.

On Jan. 24, Mr. Brownlee telegraphed Mr. Howe saying the UGG directors had unanimously confirmed the choice of Mr. Lupton.

In the House on March 11, Mr. Howe said he knew of the political affiliations of Mr. Lupton and four others and decided Mr. Lupton was the best man for the job.

"When I decided he was the right man," Mr. Howe added, "I did not know that his father had been in public life. I learned that about the day that I signed the recommendation."

He did not say on what date he made the decision.

Agriculture Minister Gardiner told the House he could corroborate what Mr. Howe said.

Guardian Praises Stand by Harris

LONDON (CP)—The Manchester Guardian, in an editorial on the Canadian budget, says the large budget of good news"—salutes the Canadian government's international trading policies.

The independent Liberal news-paper quotes approvingly a passage from the budget speech in which Finance Minister Harris warned against impeding trade between countries, such as Britain, whose principal position was impaired by the war.

"That is the authentic voice of Canada's Liberal tradition," the Guardian.

The paper also quoted contains the Canadian government's justification for its action in rejecting the request of Canadian manufacturing facturers for increased tariffs against imports of British cloth, a decision welcomed in Lancashire, convention.

Maoris of New Zealand Still Believe in Powers of Tohunga

By F.C. GRAHAM
Canadian Press Correspondent

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (CP) — The 130,000 Maoris of New Zealand are civilized and live side by side with Europeans on a basis of equality. Yet the power of superstition has led to a revival of the ancient art of the tohunga.

Among the old-time Maoris the tohunga combined something of the duties of a wise man, a priest and a witch doctor. Most chiefs had a tohunga in their entourage to advise them.

To-day the Maoris are Christians and large numbers of them live in European homes but the ethic of the tohunga still exists in the cities as well as in remote Maori villages.

Even some Maori religious sects have incorporated rites for casting out evil spirits into their practices. Many Maoris who are devout Christians also turn to the rites of the tohunga as an additional safeguard.

For instance many Maori women who have their babies in modern maternity homes ask for a visit from the tohunga before they leave. They want him to lift the tapu, or ban, which applies to a woman and child after childbirth. They have the babies baptized later, but believe in playing safe.

There is also a belief that Maoris suffer from their own forms of sickness which can only be cured by special means and many of them consult a tohunga before going to a European or Maori doctor for medical treatment.

For the most part this belief is harmless. Some diseases which are largely psychological respond to the ministrations of a tohunga once the patient is assured that the tohunga has cured him. Some tohungas nowadays are aware of the law against unauthorized medical treatment and advise a visit to a doctor where the disease obviously requires it.

But the authorities have to be on the watch for quackery and for tohungas giving illegal treatment. Examples have been exposed of tohungas giving useless remedies to patients who should have been under medical care.

Film Shelved As Unsuitable

OTTAWA (CP) — The National Film Board spent $4,430 showing sequences of a film showing Parliament Hill before it was shelved as unsuitable.

A return tabled Wednesday in the Commons by John Baker (PC—Prince Albert) said, however, that the film will be saved in case it is decided in the future to go ahead with the documentary.

Immigration Minister Pickersgill told the House March 21 that the film board itself made the decision to stop work on the film. He made that statement in reference to press reports that production was halted because the film did not contain shots of Prime Minister St. Laurent.

Trooping the Color Ceremony Most Popular for Canadians

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON (CP)—So many Canadians want to see this year's trooping the color ceremony that Canada House is putting its ticket in a hat—and leaving it to the luck of the draw.

Over the years, the Kaleidoscopic spectacle enacted each summer on London's horse guards parade ground has developed into the biggest lure of the season for visiting Canadians. Now the rush for tickets has become a stampede.

"I can't give you any figures," commented Ellie McLoughlin, social secretary at Canada House. "We're getting 10 times the requests we used to get and we've had to develop the 'trooping' at the top of the list."

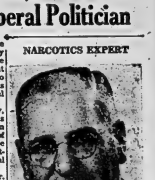
The ballooning rate giving the Canadian dollar a little extra zing, visitors have crossed the Atlantic in increasing numbers. Most come prepared to take color shots of the Horse Guards ceremony, a dazzling display for eye and ear with the scarlet - coated and black bearskin-hatted brigade of guards as chief attraction.

Tickets are distributed and scheduled for the Queen's official birthday which falls June 9 this year, brings leading members of the Royal Family to the parade ground near Trafalgar Square. This year the Queen, mounted side-saddle on the chestnut horse Winston and escorted by the household cavalry, and the central role as usual. The Duke of Edinburgh will be there for the first time and other members of the Royal Family are expected to be present.

The trooping ceremony traces its origins to the days more than 300 years ago when troops were billeted in private houses and were required each year before the flag was kept so they would know their rallying place in emergencies. Now it is a build cavalry, famous for burnished breast-plates and bobbing plumes, is drawn from two regiments, the Life Guards and the Royal Horse Guards, the exchange rate giving

The Life Guards, oldest cavalry regiment in the British army, were formed in 1660 from cavaliers who went into exile with Charles II.

The ceremony became a festival occasion in London's summer season. Those who get tickets make life trek to Trafalgar Square at daybreak, taking sandwiches and thermos flasks and waiting up to five hours in a carnival atmosphere.



Small Ottawa Section Flooded

OTTAWA (CP) — Firemen in row boats Wednesday night evacuated 12 families from a small section of the capitol under water following heavy rains. Most of Rideau river, but city officials were hopeful that cool, rainless weather would hold the river to its present level.

Water covering the Nordic Circle section in southwest Ottawa, where the river enter the city, was about four, feet deep in some places. City works director Leslie W. Pillar, who visited the area, said, however, that he believes the river has reached its peak and should now drop a little.

The two families, numbering 11 persons, were taken to Lisgar collegiate in the Colsgum at Lansdowne Park after their evacuation.

Senator Claims Committee Saves Money by Trip

OTTAWA (CP)—Senator J. G. Turgeon said Wednesday the Senate's special committee on narcotics is saving the country money by travelling to Vancouver to hold hearings during the Easter recess.

The British Columbia Liberal, a committee member, told the Senate that cost of the trip for the 12 senators going to Vancouver will be "insignificant" compared with the estimated $10,000 it would cost to bring 25 or more witnesses here from the west coast.

Rising on a question of privilege, Senator Turgeon referred to yesterday articles appearing in the press" which he said might give the public a wrong impression about the trip.

RAILWAY PASSES

Senators received railway passes. Of the 12 making the trip five are from British Columbia and would fare only to the coast for Easter anyway.

Senator Turgeon said the decision to make the trip—an unprecedented step for a Senate committee—was based largely on the demand by various groups in the west wishing to make representations and the fact that the major city of drug addicts are in the Vancouver area.

The committee, under the chairmanship of Senator Thomas Reid (L—British Columbia), is making a broad study of Canada's narcotics problem.

Mrs. T. Wilson Honored On 79th Birthday

IVANHOE — Last Thursday evening the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Tanner was the scene of a happy family gathering, held in honor of Mrs. Thomas Wilson, (nee Martha Ray of Winnipeg, Manitoba), on the occasion of her 79th birthday.

The evening was spent in visiting and reminiscing.

Mr. Percy Ray of Harold, brother of Mrs. Wilson, on behalf of the family extended congratulations and best wishes for many happy returns of the day.

PRESENTATION MADE

Mrs. Wilson was presented with a handsome dressing gown and matching slippers. She was also the recipient of many congratulatory cards and other gifts, for which she expressed her pleasure and thanks, being happy to celebrate her birthday in good old Ontario with her "kin" folk. All joined in singing "Happy Birthday" and "For She's a Jolly Good Fellow."

Bountious refreshments were served. The prettily decorated birthday cake, complete with candles, was made by a niece, Miss Gwen Ray, of Harold.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. William Ray, Halloway; Mr. and Mrs. Percy Ray, Harold; Mr. and Mrs. Theo. Cooney, Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Ray, Belleville; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bateman, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Ray, Mrs. John Stiles and Miss Annie Fleming, all of Ivanhoe.

Mrs. Wilson was born in Ivanhoe and old friends here join in extending congratulations and best wishes on this occasion.

Many Actors Making Plans To Produce Own Pictures

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "Every actor wants to get into the act," That variation of the Jimmy Durante lament might be voiced by any film producer these days. Almost every day a film performer announces creation of a firm to produce movies.

Look at the names of those who have plans to produce their own pictures: Burt Lancaster, Marilyn Monroe, Marlon Brando, Joan Crawford, Rita Hayworth, Jane Russel, Lucille Ball-Desi Arnaz, Cornel Wilde, Henry Fonda, Kirk Douglas, Robert Mitchum, Frank Sinatra, Errol Flynn, Dick Powell-June Allyson, Jane Wyman, Ann Sothern, James Mason.

The majority of these players have made deals with the bustling United Artists firm, which is certainly living up to its name. As a matter of fact, the company was formed on the same principal 35 years ago, as a releasing company for producers Mary Pickford, Douglas Fairbanks, Charlie Chaplin and D.W. Griffith.

The focal point for the producer-star deals on this coast is the office of Robert Blumofe, vice-president in charge of Hollywood operations for U.A. He explained why stars are turning producers:

LIMITED EARNINGS

"It's because the present tax setup is extremely unfair to performers. Sure, the star makes a lot of money, but his span of high earning is short. It's possible for a star to be rich one year and broke the next.

"Stars are naturally looking for ways to spread their earnings over a period of years. The production setup is one way to do that. When the stars own their films, they have a large residual value that can be realized in many ways."

Here's how the plan works: U.A. puts up the money for making the picture, the star is given complete autonomy except U.A. is consulted on (1) a realistic budget and (2) a salable film subject.

Blumofe scoffed at the big-studio notion that actors don't know what's good for them. The major lots have always resisted giving stars the right to choose stories, arguing that actors should act, not tend to business.

Andy's Win Cage Crown

HALIFAX (CP)—Toronto Andy's captured the Canadian men's senior B basketball title Wednesday with a 79-65 win over Halifax Shelley Grads to win the best-of-three final in straight games.

Andy's, won the game 37-32. Jack Garbutt took over from Doug Armstrong, the star of Tuesday's game, to score 25 of the Toronto team's total.

AUSSIES LEAD

PORT OF SPAIN (Reuters)—Trinidad, with all of its second innings wickets in hand, was three runs behind Australia at close of play on the third day of their cricket test here.

Australia, 108 for two wickets overnight, were all out for 289 at ten in reply to Trinidad's first-innings total of 217. The colony was 79 for no wicket in the second innings at close of play.

Red Wings Hope To Extend Win String To 16 Games In Montreal Tonight

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

BEETON HERE TONIGHT!

Pedal Anno will be at full strength when they clash with Beeton here tonight in the first game of what is said to be a best-of-three series. The second game is slated for Beeton Saturday night. The third game, if it has been staged, will probably be played in Roberts-ons, a half-way point between Beeton and Belleville. This will be decided before tonight's game gets underway. The winners of this series meet the winners of the Lonsa-Electric semi-finals for the OHA intermediate "C" crown.

The Ox Pointers will go all out to cop this all-important first game, so tonight's tilt should be a thriller. Game at 8.30.

SOFTBALL CONVENTION

Softball tees off for the 1955 season in Peterborough this week-end when the Ontario Amateur Softball Association holds its annual confab. Nearly 300 delegates from softball Ontario are expected to be on hand when the convention gets under way this afternoon through Saturday morning.

Belleville and District Softball League president Cy Barrinje, vice-president Joe Agnew and Mac Carson will represent the city organization as delegates, while it is expected a number of other softball enthusiasts will take in the convention.

The confab gets under way this afternoon with an executive meeting with the first session of the annual meeting starting at seven o'clock. There will be a ladies' auxiliary session while the males of the species are guests of the Peterborough Softball Association at a reception followed by some outstanding entertainment.

Tomorrow morning the delegates will be taken on an hours' sight-seeing tour and at noon they will be guests at a civic luncheon and welcome by city officials. At 2 p.m. comes the general meeting which includes election of officers, amendments and general business. Executive meetings will be held at 10 a.m. and on Saturday morning at 10 o'clock

Three nominees are slated for the presidential chair, these include J. G. Brady, Oshawa; J. R. Brush, Sarnia, and W. G. Jacko, Kirkland Lake, who held down the job two years ago. Five are nominated for the first vice, second vice and third vice positions. Secretary Fraser Peaver and treasurer W. L. Algure will not have any competition.

Twenty-two will vie for the six positions in the election of executive members. Only four are from east of Toronto, these include J. Bond and J. G. Brady of Oshawa; H. Derbyshire, Peterborough and Don Lee of Belleville. Don has done a good job for the "down-easters" and it is hoped he will be re-elected.

It should be a busy session for the delegates with no less than fifty-seven amendments from the executive and associations and clubs all over the province.

This afternoon, Secretary Peaver presented his report to the delegates. He stated that an all-time record was established last year when 141 associations entered 726 affiliations in the 16 series. This marks the steady growth of the association since 1943 when 34 associations entered 52 affiliations.

He made special mention of the Harry Knoll Memorial trophy which was gratefully accepted by the association for annual competition among league "C" clubs of the province. The trophy was made possible by the foresight and generosity of a group of Belleville Kinsmen, a club, of which the late Harry Knoll was a past president and popular member.

The number of umpires registered for 1954 was 331, an increase of 19 from the previous year. He said he believed umpires should be given greater assistance by the OASA with the objective of assisting in uniform interpretation of rules and the development of standard attire to be worn by all umpires.

34,591 players in 2,823 teams were registered last year, a slight decrease from 1953, but this was mostly in minor league registration. The record registration figure is 35,836 in 1952.

Feaver said that phenominal success was indicated in all official reports. Competition continues to be keener each year and travelling distances required in the zone championship series continues to increase—only matched by the interest and enthusiasm of the towns and cities supporting their teams and greatly encouraging the players throughout the 16 series.

Among the many additions to the constitution is one forwarded by the Belleville and District Softball Association. It requests that "championship competitions in the pee-wee and bantam series shall consist of home and home games within the zone with the zone winners meeting in a central place to compete for championships in a tournament."

This should meet with the approval of the convention. It eliminates a lot of unnecessary travel for these youngsters and a tournament will be no fair for one as the other.

First National League Club To Win Fifteen In a Row; Coaches Refuse to Comment

MONTREAL (CP) — Just how long the champion Detroit Red Wings can extend their remarkable winning streak, is one of the questions that will be answered tonight when the Wings and Montreal Canadiens meet in the third game of the Stanley Cup final.

So far, coach Jim Skinner's power-laden crew has won 15 consecutive games, including the elimination of Toronto Maple Leafs in the semi-finals and the defeat of the Canadiens in the first two games of the final in Detroit.

No other National Hockey League team has won that many games in a row. The previous record-holders were Boston Bruins, who won 14 straight games during the 1929-30 season. The Bruins first, however, tied a record to play during the regular season.

Meantime, it is known that drifted over Montreal following the Canadiens' humiliating 5-1 defeat in Detroit Tuesday night appeared to be lifting as diehard fans convinced themselves that the Montreal club has the stuff to reverse the picture.

However, the coaches—one a rookie and the other a gray-haired veteran—refused to commit themselves for the third game. The fourth will also be played here Saturday night.

On the train from Detroit Wednesday, Dick Irvin, the veteran Montreal pilot, surprisingly wasn't downhearted about Montreal's two game defeat, but made no predictions.

While Skinner said:

"I'm only a rookie coach and I don't dare predict anything. Of course I'm pretty happy the way things are. I feel rather sorry for . . . Irvin . . . because he has had a tough season, what with Maurice Richard's suspension and everything."

Irvin's troubles, besides the loss of Richard, stack up this way:

Jean Beliveau, pivot centre, is playable but ill. Beliveau suffered an infection in the mouth on arrival in Detroit for the first game Saturday night—Montreal lost 4-3—and this may greatly affect his ability tonight.

"The Canadiens on the whole were described as jumpy and a bit foul, shaky on defence and up front, wobbly straight down centre both ways.

White Sox Belt Haddix, Raschi 'Oiskin' Blanks Senators 6-0

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Unless Eddie Stanky really is a changed man this season, Si will get you $10 the scrappy little manager of the St. Louis Cardinals mutttered something like this Wednesday: "Great Jehovah! Not another season like this!"

That may not be an accurate quote. But it's about as close as you can get in decency.

What aroused Stanky was the terrible beating that appeared to Harvey Haddix, his southpaw ace, and the struggling Vic Raschi, the Chicago White Sox behind the pair for a 13-3 decision.

It was pitching, or the lack of it, that outweighed the Cards' hitting power and scuttled them in ninth place last season.

HAD IT ROUGH

Thus far this spring—with opening day just around the weekend—Haddix has had it rough. In five exhibition appearances he has a 0-3 record. Raschi, believed a hard luck back, made his first appearance in the White Sox game.

The man who done them wrong in Little Rock, Ark., was Walt Dropo, swatting a three-run homer off Haddix and a two-run clout off Raschi. That pushed Dropo's home run production to six in eight days.

In the first game to be played in a major league park named for a son, Brooklyn defeated Washington in Griffith Stadium 6-0 as Carl Erskine blanked the Senators with some difficulty. Erskine, the Brooks' opening day choice to pitch against Tuesday, gave up 10 hits as he became the first Dodger to go nine innings. He also accomplished the first full-length shutout of a major league team this spring.

TIGERS LOSE

Billy Hoeft, trying to evade the Detroit Tigers, allowed just two hits, one a Hank Aaron home run, in six innings as the Tigers lost to Milwaukee 2-1. Warren Spahn got the decision when the Braves broke a tie with two singles, a walk and a sacrifice fly in the eighth off George Zuverink.

Cleveland nudged the New York Giants 3-2 as Dave Pope doubled across the winning run in the 10th.

Jim Hearn looked good for the Giants, yielding just one earned run in the seven innings he worked. He also homered.

Sammy Ellis hit a home run in the fourth with two on to break up a duel between Boston's Ike Delock and Philadelphia's Murry Dickson and the Red Sox went on to win 9-3. Jackie Jensen and Grady Hatton drove in five runs as each homered for Boston. Earl Torgeson and Del Ennis homered for the Phils.

Baltimore edged Pittsburgh 3-2 when reliefer Roger Bowman walked Vern Stephens with the bases loaded in the ninth.

Hornets Sting Bisons 3-2; Take 3-1 Lead

BUFFALO, N.Y. (CP)—It cost Bob Solinger a two-stitch head cut Wednesday night to gain credit for the winning goal as Pittsburgh Hornets downed Buffalo Bisons 3-2 to take a 3-1 lead in the American Hockey League's best-of-seven Calder Cup finals.

Solinger was standing in front of the Buffalo cage when Pittsburgh captain Frank Mathers fired a wild shot from 15 feet out. The puck struck the wire mesh behind the Bison net, struck Solinger's head on the rebound and dropped into the goal.

Bison goalie Ray Frederick was as stunned as the 8,815 partisan fans who turned out for the fourth game of the series.

TWO DOWN

The Bisons had been two goals down near the end of the second period on goals by the Hornets' Willy Marcon and Mathers. But at 17:30 Dick Gamble sank a lone one to make it 2-1, and at 19:01 Don Bettio fired one from the corner to tie the score.

Frederick now moves to Pittsburgh Saturday night. The two teams will return here Sunday if a seventh game is necessary.

Solinger gets credit for the third period goal because he was the last man to touch the puck before it went into the cage.

The Hornets coupled a hard-hitting offence with an almost airtight defence. They stopped almost every effort by the Bisons to get past the blue line. It was the Bisons' second loss of the season before the homefolks. The first one was Saturday night when the Hornets edged Buffalo 4-3.

Marciano Fight 'Just a Job' Says Cockell

SOUTHAMPTON, Eng. (AP)—Don Cockell said Wednesday he regards his world heavyweight title fight against Rocky Marciano as "just another job. I am in this for Britain."

The British and Empire heavyweight champion boarded the liner Queen Mary on the first stage of his journey to the United States for the world title bout in San Francisco May 16.

Cockell, rated a 3-5 betting underdog, shrugged off suggestions by American sports writers that he is in for a beating from Marciano.

"I have boxed against a hostile press before, both here and overseas. The main thing is that they are interested. As long as my fighting brings in the dollars I am okay," said the 26-year-old British champion.

Meanwhile, at San Francisco, promoter Jimmy Murray said Wednesday that the bout will start a Kezar Stadium at 8 p.m. PDT. The starting time had been in dispute for several weeks. The fight will be broadcast on a closed circuit theatre network.

Major Baseball for Twin Cities Proposed Stadium Will Seat 42,000

By JIM KLOBUCHAR

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Gilding forces behind the Twin Cities major league baseball venture are viewing 1957 with high hopes—and a barrel of unexpected cash.

Some of the optimists believe that big league banners will be flosting over the proposed stadium in suburban Bloomington by 1958. Most are convinced that big-time baseball will arrive here no later than 1957.

Impetus for these suggestive estimates sprung from a willingness of baseball zealots here and in neighboring St. Paul to back up conversation with cash. A bond drive just concluded added $1,200,000 to previous bond commitments of about $1,000,000 to finance the new stadium.

Major league supporters say they have been assured by investment houses that the remainder of the estimated, $4,500,000 stadium cost can be underwritten by nationwide bond sales.

Grading of the 160-acre site in Bloomington is expected to begin sometime in May. Bids for actual construction may be let as early as June 1.

Initially the plant might have a capacity of around 17,000. Once a major league commitment is made the stadium would be expanded to 42,000.

If the stadium is ready by next year," said Charles Johnson, executive editor of the Minneapolis Star and Tribune, "we should have major league baseball here by 1957."

Johnson has been one of the main movers behind the plan and a spokesman for Twin Cities baseball interests in the councils of the major leagues.

"The Bloomington park, baseball men here say, should offer the Twin Cities a lush new pasture for money-troubled big league club owners.

They give these reasons:

Baseball here has no serious competition for the spectator dollar as it does in towns near race tracks and other sports activities.

The Twin Cities have a metropolitan population in excess of 1,300,000. To this they add thousands of fans from outstate, the Dakotas, Iowa and Wisconsin to whom major league baseball would be eminently attractive.

TIRES TO BE CUT

KITCHENER (CP) — Ira G. Needles, president of the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Company of Canada Limited, announced Wednesday prices of his firm's tires, tubes and tubeless tires will be cut at once as a result of the removal of a 10-per-cent excise tax.

Albernis Crush Edmonton 92-67

ALBERNI, B.C. (CP)—The Alberni Athletics rolled to their first western Canada senior men's basketball championship Wednesday night by crushing Edmonton Towne Ralters 92-67 in the fifth and deciding game of their final series.

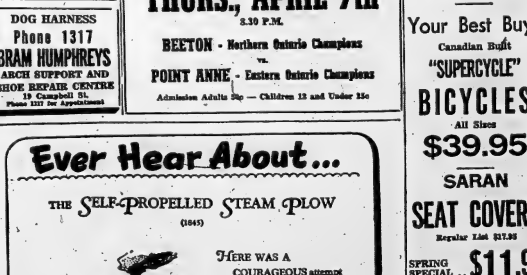
The fast-breaking British Columbia club grabbed a big lead in the first quarter and never looked back.

They now meet the winner of the eastern Canada series between Ottawa and Sault Ste. Marie for the Dominion title.

Jumping Joe Samarin shared scoring honors with Ron Bissett, both with 19 points, for the Albernis.

Bill Price was top man for Edmonton with 21 points.

Peg Cagers Meet Toronto



WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg Light Infantry Oak Leafs advanced to the Canadian junior men's basketball finals Wednesday night for the third time in the last four years when they disposed of Raymond Comets 81-71 to capture the western championship.

They won the best-of-three western series in straight games, taking the opener 73-71 and the second game 71-58.

Leafs, who won the Canadian championship in 1953 and 1953, now will meet Toronto Nortons in the national final.

Co-captain Abbie Hansford and Norm Rauhaus led Winnipeg with 19 points apiece.

Quebec Frontenacs Have to Get By Flu, Marlies, Referee Says Watson

By GEORGE FRAIKOR
Canadian Press Staff Writer

QUEBEC (CP)—The way Phil Watson sells it, Quebec Frontenacs have to overcome the flu, Toronto Marlboros, and referee Chief McDonald to enter the Memorial Cup finals.

Watson, scrappy coach of the Quebec Junior Hockey League champions, said in an interview McDonald "calls penalties when he's 40 feet away from the play and tries to referee three-quarters of the game himself."

McDonald and Stan Pratt, both of Ottawa, are the two referees assigned to the best-of-seven series between Quebec and Toronto for the right to meet western Canada's junior hockey champions.

Toronto and Quebec split a pair of 4-1 games in Toronto to tie the series.

ARRIVE TODAY

Coach Turk Broda and his team are expected to arrive in Quebec today for the third game of the series tonight. Fourth game will be here Saturday or Sunday.

"McDonald must like to be heard on that whistle," Watson said. "He blows it all the time.

"But I've got no official beef. He hampers both teams."

Watson said he'd like to see Hap Shouldice, also of Ottawa, referee the series but realized the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association wouldn't switch referees in mid-series unless all teams involved agree. Shouldice is refereeing an Allan Cup semi-final series between Moncton Hawks and Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen.

SAME LINEUP

Watson said he's stuck with the same line-up despite the fact that bouts of the flu have weakened most of his top players and defenceman Pat Presley has a broken nose.

The Marlboros are a hard-hitting team, he said. "In the first game my boys outskated them, but after the flu, they were too weak to skate around the Marlboros and they were hit hard."

Some of the Toronto players were down with flu earlier but were in shape by the time the series started, he said.

He added if he can get "a little better work from the third line" and hearty support from Quebec fans the Frontenacs stand a good chance of taking the series.

Large Field Tees Off In Masters

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP)—Fifty-nine professionals and 19 amateurs were assigned tee times for today's first round of the 1955 Masters golf tournament, which is 31 years has grown in prestige until it ranks second only to the national Open.

There are two schools of thought in pre - tournament speculation about the possible winner of this year's classic. One leaned toward the younger golfers, pointing to the way they had stolen much of the limelight during the winter tour. The other stuck by the veterans, pointing to the tremendous pressure generated in this prestige-packed event.

Sam Snead, three-time Masters winner and the defending champion, and Ben Hogan, a two-time winner who lost to Snead in a playoff last year, headed the corps of veterans.

Others in the field with several years of tournament success behind them include Cary Middlecoff, Lloyd Mangrum, E. J. (Dutch) Harrison, Ed Furgol, Julius Boros, Lew Worsham, Byron Nelson and Jackie Burke.

Mike Souchak, the former Duke football player and leading money winner on the winter circuit, is the king bee of the younger generation.

The Augusta National course, which stretches 6,950 yards, has the reputation of being one of the best tests of golf anywhere. Par is 36-36—72.

Hornets' Centre Slugs Referee Draws Suspension

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Centre Bob Bailey of the American Hockey League Pittsburgh Hornets Wednesday was suspended for the rest of the Calder Cup playoffs for slugging referee Jerry Olmstead in a playoff game last Saturday in Pittsburgh.

Bailey has been under suspension since Sunday and the decision to continue the suspension was reached here at a meeting of league officials, Bailey and Hornet coach Howie Meeker.

A league spokesman said the suspension will be continued until the league meets after the season is over. He said the league would then vote on final disposition of the case. Bailey could be suspended for next season, fined, or reinstated, the spokesman said.

OHA Committee Rejects Protest

SIMCOE, Ont. (CP)—An Ontario Hockey Association sub-committee has rejected a protest from Fisherville Combines that four members of Electric Hurricanes were not eligible to play in their intermediate C quarter-final under the residence rule.

Electric took the best-of-five series 3-1 to advance into the semi-finals against Lucan, winner of the Western Ontario Hockey Association Intermediate C title.

Richie Ashburn Is 'Iron Man'

NEW YORK (AP)—Don't snicker when they call Richie Ashburn the new "iron man." The Philadelphia Phillies' whippet centre fielder may turn out to be the most durable athlete in National League history.

Nobody ever confuses little Richie, with muscle men like big Ted Kluszewski of Cincinnati or Gil Hodges of Brooklyn. He's built more like the boy who tops the pyramid of strong men in a carnival act. But Ashburn stays in the lineup day after day while stronger men rest their aching bones.

At the close of the 1954 season, Ashburn had played 730 consecutive games since June 7, 1950. The National League record is 822, set by Gus Suhr, Pittsburgh first baseman, from 1931 to 1937. With 92 games to go, Ashburn should beat Suhr's mark by Aug. 1, barring injury.

The major league record of 2,130, set by the late Lou Gehrig of New York Yankees, is beyond reach of Ashburn or any other present day major leaguer.

Charles, Arthur Fight Was Set For Syracuse

EDMONTON (CP)—The battle here Monday night between former world champion Ezzard Charles and Sammy Arthur, pug of South African titleholder, was originally planned for Syracuse, N.Y.

Bobby (Pops) Evans, Arthur's mentor, couldn't come to terms. He turned down a box deal of $4,000 including television rights, saying he'll probably make more here.

"We'll still make money," Evans said Wednesday. The EBC (International Boxing Commission) can keep its TV money, We'll put people back into the arenas."

Said Jake Mintz, Charles' co-manager: "We wanted to see what Canadian money tastes like."

For both, the take appears healthy. With only reserve tickets for sale in advance at prices ranging from $15 for preferred ringside down to $3, the fight is expected to gross between $30,000 and $40,000. Charles has a $10,000 guarantee and a percentage option.

Edmonton Gardens has a fight capacity of 10,000 but the expected crowds for Monday night's show has been estimated by promoter Jack Berry as between 5,000 and 8,000.

NEXT TONIGHT

VANCOUVER (CP) — Saskatoon Aces and Vancouver Ellers tangle here tonight in the first game of a best-of-five series for the Canadian women's basketball championship. Ellers will be seeking their sixth straight Canadian title.

Schmidt Verdicts Sonny Forbes

TORONTO (CP)—Peter Schmidt of Toronto decisioned Canadian welterweight champion Sonny Forbes, also of Toronto, in the highlight three-round bout of the metropolitan Toronto boxing championships Wednesday night.

The winner in the card will participate in the all-Ontario championships here April 26. Those winners will travel to Regina for the Canadian championships.

In three-round, 140-pound bout John Lapadula of Toronto won a decision over George Heard of Peterborough. Another match in the same class saw Heard winning a decision over George Francis of Toronto.

Lindsay Edges Meaford 2-1

LINDSAY (CP) — Ron Ted Teel scored both goals for the Lindsay Regent Muskies here Wednesday night as they defeated Meaford Knights 2-1 for their first win in the Ontario intermediate A semi-final series. Meaford leads the best - of - seven series three games to one with one tied.

Teel's first goal came early in the third period after the teams had fought through two scoreless frames.

Barney Walmsley got one back for the Knights late in the final period.

Golfers Fail To Score Double Eagle

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Gene Sarazen sat on a new stone bridge Wednesday and watched 43 of the top golfers in the U.S. try in vain to duplicate his famous "double eagle" shot of 20 years ago.

The occasion was the dedication of a bridge named for the 15th green of the Augusta national golf course, site of the Masters tournament that won Sarazen his first and fourth round of the 1935 tournament that Sarazen holed out a 235-yard spoon, or four wood, shot for a deuce on the par-five hole.

Those three strokes he saved enabled him to tie Craig Wood and in the playoff Sarazen won by a five-strokes margin.

Fred Haas came closest to matching the historic shot, banging his second ball four feet, one inch to the right of the cup.

Each player took two shots from the approximate spot Sarazen stood when he made his double-eagle, but few managed to hit them great, much less get close to the cup.

Gunners Edge Shaffers 65-62

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — Sault Ste. Marie Gunners edged Ottawa Shaffers 65-62 here Wednesday night to take a 3-1 lead in the best-of-five eastern Canada senior men's basketball finals.

Fourth game of the series will be played here Friday.

Wednesday night's game was the most exciting of the series. Ogle Petersen came from Ottawa to take a 17-15 lead at the 10-minute mark and from then on were never headed. Orval Hunt scored 19 of it all the way.

Sault Ste. Marie was ahead 27-23 at the half.

Jerry Kahle paced the victors with 18 points. He had only three field goals, the other 10 points coming on free throws. Lou Lobrenda was close behind with 15 points on six field goals and three free throws. Orval Hunt scored 19 for the Gunners, all in the first half.

Glen Pettinger of the Shaffers was the game's highest scorer with 17 points. Norman Holmes had 16 for Ottawa and Avalon Stone and Abalron had eight each.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Friday, April 8, 1955

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — This is a day of great meaning. Make some time for prayer to the Saviour Who loved us so much He died for our salvation. What can we do for Him and our brethren?

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Whatever your duties, handle them patiently and in honor of God Who gave us our many blessings. Pray for those in troubled lands; work with honor, integrity.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Sincerity, earnestness, devotion to one's duty is a fitting way to honor a good day. Useful, purposeful activities encouraged; frivolity should be curbed.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — If we haven't done all we had hoped to during Lent, let us make some extra sacrifices, prayers beginning today. We in free countries have much for which to be thankful. Lend a helping hand.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — Necessary travel, work for a worthy cause and the good of our country are under highly favorable aspects. Be mindful of your spiritual needs. Aid others for His sake.

August 23 to September 23 — (Virgo) — Helping underprivileged children, the ill and all in trouble especially encouraged. Many blessings will be yours for small kindnesses. Tend to duties promptly.

September 24 to October 23 — (Libra) — A time for unusual service to God, to one's fellowmen. All good deeds, good intentions can be offered as prayer. Think of work, responsibilities as privileges and thank God for them.

October 24 to November 22 — (Scorpio) — If you try hard enough, you can always succeed; but success isn't always just the kind our asks for. It can well come in another way and for our betterment. Today asks some self-sacrifice.

November 23 to December 22— (Sagittarius)— If you think about the true values in life, you will think first of the true meaning of this great religious day. Charity, patience, forgiveness are Firsts. Visit your church.

December 23 to January 21 — (Capricorn) — The end reflects a just means in a just man's life. After sincere contemplation, no one can truly say that the material ever satisfies a thousandth as much as a clear, good conscience.

January 22 to February 20 — (Aquarius) — Whatever business you have, tend to it promptly, but make time for prayer. Give honorable consideration to the God Who gave you all you have. We can offer this day's acts as prayers.

February 21 to March 20 — (Pisces) — The dignity of man, his faith and morals should be first thoughts on this Good Friday. Even small sacrifices lift one's soul to wonderful heights; daily ones build strong character.

You born today can help others to realize the greatness of their better selves, and bring your own stock to admirable levels if you heed God's laws and respect your mind and the great mechanism that is your body. Your assets at birth were many, your potentialities fine. Never blame anyone or anything for your own errors, for reasonable doubt about likes, dislikes, your disappointments; harder toward the high goals that overlook "little things." Birthstone is the diamond. You should be yours. When you achieve it should be spurred to do better. Be glad.

Pray for God's guidance; don't gate of: Albert I, King of the Belgians, World War I.

How to Get Rid of SOFT CORNS AND CALLUSES

Here is the latest, easiest and classiest way you ever heard of to get rid of painful soft corns and, here, now actually apply a Blue-Jay-ized corn or callus plaster. Instantly the pain is relieved, then it really fades off with no pain or soreness leaving the skin clean and smooth.

Try Blue-Jay today—the small cost will be refunded if you are not 100% pleased. Ask your druggist for Blue-Jay.

Your Horoscope

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Saturday, April 9, 1955

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Quiet reflection, calm attention to duties and some time set aside for prayer, church devotions are appropriate for this day before Easter. Think of decorating the soul, honoring God.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Splendid Jupiter, Saturn and other planetary aspects. All good deeds and useful, pleasant activities are sponsored. Thank God for His great blessings to mankind. Active days ahead.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Slow down your usual high-speed tempo and serenely reflect on the significance of this holy Saturday and Easter Sunday. Think, too, how grateful we living in free lands should be for our blessings.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — No unfriendly aspects for today, and many cheering, benefic contacts for all good deeds. Rejoice that renewed hope and success-element are possible. Let us pray for those less fortunate.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — Enthusiastic, pleasant Leoites can get along happily, profitably on this generally, friendly day. Did you improve your spiritual self during Lent? Even now you can make up for lost time.

August 23 to September 23 — (Virgo) — Benefic indications. Do not let hope, fine ideals and sound principles decay — as they can with apathy, a lukewarm attitude toward spiritual values. A day for action — for good.

September 24 to October 23 — (Libra) — Read Taurus; your aspects similar. Prepare for a bright Easter but be sure your soul prepares, too. Cleanse it of evil by prayer, true contrition, good works; follow His Divine teachings.

October 24 to November 22 — (Scorpio) — Encouraging, helpful influences prevail. Don't waste time or yourself on pointless thinking, purposeless associations. You can be happy doing something worthwhile. Improve talents.

November 23 to December 22 — (Sagittarius) — Your Jupiter one of the favorably aspected planets this Easter Saturday. Be cheered but keep thoughts and conduct motivated by the solemnity of this occasion. Happy day!

December 23 to January 21 — (Capricorn) — Fixed notations in Scorpio today; similar influences. It can be a happy and fruitful period for matters spiritual and (soundly) material. Enjoy rest when free from work.

January 22 to February 20 — (Aquarius) — No matter the strenuousness of your program or the lightness of obligatory tasks, you should make some time for prayer and proper preparation for Easter. Today promotes good will.

February 21 to March 20 — (Pisces) — A fine day for family interests, shopping and children's affairs. Put worry aside, help bring others a happier outlook. Necessary chores, difficult matters are favored by fine rays.

You born today have many splendid traits which can be as helpful to your community and government as they are to the house and family (if, of course, you are living true to them?) You possess a high order of intelligence, adaptability, strength, bravery and dependability. With these choice talents go great responsibility, and responsibilities are among civilization's best heritage. We should never, never belittle them. You can be a leader for great good. Pray daily that you will rightly use your God - given assets. Birthdate: Chas. Baudelaire, French poet.

BLACKHEADS

Don't squeeze blackheads — dissolve them. Get two ounces of PEROXIDE POWDER from any drug store and apply gently with cotton. Soon over the blackheads. They simply dissolve and disappear by this safe simple method.

Marmora

MARMORA — Mr. and Mrs. Alex Fraser (nee Jean Nash), visited relatives in Montreal over the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Fluke, of Bronte, spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. William R. Aunger, and other relatives.

Born in Mrs. J. R. Barker's Nursing Home, on Tuesday, April 5th, to Mr. and Mrs. Victor Neal, a daughter.

Rev. Carrie Hazzard and Rev. Lois Richardson, Evangelists, are holding revival services at Marmora Free Methodist Church, this week.

If You're TIRED ALL THE TIME

Everybody gets a bit run-down now and then, tired-out, hazy-headed, and worry bothered by backaches. Perhaps nothing seriously wrong, just a temporary build-up needed to help drive acids and wastes. That's the time to take Dodd's Kidney Pills. Dodd's stimulate the kidneys, and so help restore their normal action of removing excess acids and wastes. Then you feel better, sleep better, work better. Get Dodd's Kidney Pills now. Look for the blue box with the red band at all druggists. You can depend on Dodd's. 33

Finds Syntona Gives Best Help For Stomach Trouble

"For years I have been troubled with stomach disorders and I find that nothing ever helped me as much as Syntona," said Mr. Elmer Pearson, 19 Lincoln Street, Hamilton, Ontario, in a recent report.

MR. ELMER PEARSON

"In fact I don't know how I would ever have got along without this medicine as it has certainly cured the most effective remedy I've ever had for gas distress, sour stomach and indigestion. If there is any headache or sour upset following with this, it too, goes away and I feel very good time I'm feeling O.K. again.

"I always feel better after taking Syntona and, I have more energy, sleep better and don't get tired-out as I otherwise might. In my case Syntona has proved its worth many times over and I recommend it to anyone suffering as I did."

How It Acts

Syntona is made from 12 of Nature's herbs and roots, which act on the stomach, liver and bowels. It aids in the elimination of excess acids and impurities from the system and promotes better assimilation of food for increased strength and energy. Countless numbers of men and women have used Syntona with satisfactory results.

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville by Dolan the Druggist.

Little Benny's Notebook

I was walking home from school with Pods Simkins, us 2 being the secret Perrin Pirates, and we made up a plan to go around to the empty lot and locate the hidden stock pile of crossbows there a forrin government berried it in.

Pods said, I'll put my books in the house and get the Geiger Counter.

And he ran in the house and I ran in mine to throw my books on the hall table, and Mrs. Clabble was in the living room with me and so was her darn little kid Herbit, and ma said, Benny, I want you to take little Herbit out on the front steps and talk to him while Mrs. Clabble and I are having our tea.

Me thinking, Aw, cramberries. And Herbit followed me out, and Pods was waiting there with the Geiger counter, and Herbit, he's only loo 2 doller alarm clock, and he said, Hay, who's that?

Meaning Herbit, and I said, I got to stay here and mind him, rats on the luck.

Well hay, why cant he come too and be a nootral observer? Pods said, and I said, I'm sure, and Herbit said, I dont want to, I want to stay here and talk to Benny like his mother told him.

Well hay, listen, you can be an enemy spy, said Pods, and Herbit started to yell, saying, I want to stay here and if you go away I'll run in and tell Perrin mother.

Which just then Mrs. Crabble looked out the window and says Herbit, you know it's bad for your health to shout like that. Come in here, Mrs. Potts has some nice little cakes, and I'm sure she will let you have some with a nice glass of milk.

Well, the cakes, maybe, Herbit said. Meaning not the milk, and he went in, and the Forrin Intrigers burry up went around to the empty lot feeling lucky.

Fifty FBI Men Assigned To $305,000 Robbery

NEW YORK (AP) — Fifty FBI men were assigned today to track down the four holdup men who robbed a Queens bank Wednesday of a record $305,263 in cash.

The federal men augmented a force of 50 New York City detectives working on the cold trail.

In a move to halt the increasing number of such robberies, a policemen henceforth will be assigned to every bank building in the city each day for about an hour before and as hour after the opening hour.

Wednesday's precision job, like a number of others, was pulled-off after the bank employees began arriving but before the bank opened for business.

The timing was such that the money had been taken out of the vaults for the day's business but the bank doors still were locked so that there was no money on hand.

The FBI reported $17 banks were robbed in the United States last year, compared with 246 in 1953.

Alarmed at the increase, the FBI has inaugurated a series of conferences between bank officials and law enforcement authorities to find means to curb the menace.

So far as could be learned, there was no guard and no alarm system in the robbed Queens bank. The employees were locked behind a metal grill while the holdup men made an easy getaway.

The quartet kidnapped a clerk near his home in order to get into the Queens branch of the Chase Manhattan bank. They locked 11 persons in a vault and escaped with bundles of bills of mostly 5, 10, and 20-dollar denominations. No shots were fired and no one was hurt.

A bank employee said the robbers remarked that they had studied the layout for six months.

Three of the men, one with a sawed-off shotgun, did the actual looking while a fourth man availed in a getaway car.

The car later was found abandoned a short distance from the bank. The bandits apparently transferred to another car and vanished despite a hastily set up FBI and police dragnet.

Praise for Eden Is Mingled With Tributes to Churchill

LONDON (Reuters) — Discordant notes from behind the Iron Curtain today marred the symphony of world-wide tributes for Sir Winston Churchill and his successor.

Messages of praise and affection for Churchill and Sir Anthony Eden, the new prime minister, continued to flow into London from all parts of the globe. Newspapers everywhere gave top prominence to the momentous change.

But Pravda, the Soviet Communist party paper, commented that Churchill stepped down because he had become a hindrance to his Conservative party "on the eve of the elections" and was moved into the background when he found himself "outside the game."

CYPRIOTS HOSTILE

Pravda's articles described Churchill as "an enemy of the Soviet Union" and assailed him for having a "hostile attitude toward the British working class and the colonial people."

Another critical note was sounded in Cyprus, where Greek elements of the population have been agitating for union of the Mediterranean island colony with Greece. The leading Greek-language paper Eleftheria, while wishing Eden good luck, said Cypriots knew him best as a man who "showed himself unswervingly opposed to the Cypriots' right of self-determination."

But elsewhere the comment was favorable. In Austria the right-wing Salzburger Nachrichten said Eden, even more than Churchill, had wielded Western European unity last year at a time when it was threatening to disintegrate.

In Germany the Cologne Rundschau described Eden as "the most English of living British politicians."

PRAISE FROM INDIA

France's left-wing Independent paper, Combat, said of Churchill and Eden: "One was the prodigious leader of men. The other has the gifts to become a modern statesman."

Tributes to Churchill appeared even in India, where the outgoing leader has not always been popular in the past. The Times of India said "it is unusual for anyone to have his claim to greatness recognized so fully, not only in the English-speaking world but also in those parts of Asia where some of Sir Winston's limitations are more readily understood."

DEATHS ACCIDENTAL

SARNIA (CP)—A coroner's jury decided Wednesday that no one was to blame for the drowning deaths last month of two, four-year-old children in a bird sanctuary on the estate of Mayor W. C. Nelson. The verdict was that Daniel Boucher and Marion Grace Rose were accidentally drowned.

RUSSIA TO CANCEL FRIENDSHIP TREATY

Fourteen Ousted From Ontario CCF; Said Communists

Group at No Time Exerted Influence Says Party Head

TORONTO (CP)—Fourteen persons have been ousted from the Ontario CCF party on the grounds they were members of a Communist-front organization.

Cancellation of the CCF membership of the 14 was approved Friday by delegates attending the 21st annual convention of the Ontario CCF.

The party's provincial council charged that those expelled were members of the Canadian section of the Fourth (Trotskyist) International, "in effect another political party with aims quite contrary to the CCF."

Such membership automatically cancels membership in the CCF, the council stated, and this action was confirmed at a four-hour closed meeting.

GIVE DETAILS

Details were issued later by CCF Provincial Leader Donald C. MacDonald, provincial president Eamon Park and provincial secretary Ken Bryden.

They said a 15th person accused of belonging to the Trotskyist was reinstated because of inconclusive evidence.

Copies of a 2,000-word report detailing the history of the investigation and proceedings against the 15 were presented to delegates.

The report said the Trotskyist party, "in spite of its many differences with Stalinist communism, is nevertheless a Communist party with a revolutionary and authoritarian philosophy which is quite incompatible with the democratic and parliamentarian socialism of the CCF."

WAS LEADER

Leon Trotsky was one of the leaders of the Russian revolution. He quarrelled with Stalin and was expelled from the Communist party in 1927. He eventually found his way to Mexico City where he was assassinated in 1940.

The report said the Canadian section of the Fourth International exists with dues-paying members, ship and with its members under strict discipline.

"... Members were under the instruction to join the CCF with the objective of using the CCF for Trotskyist purposes."

Mr. Bryden in an interview identified nine of the 14 as Jim and Kit Mitchell of the Davenport riding, Harry and Pat Payne of East York, Bruce Batten of High Park, Gerry Houle of Rosedale, Paddy Stanton and Ken Stanford of St. Paul's and Meyer Shapiro of Greenwood, all in the Toronto suburban area.

He said four of the other six were from the Toronto area and two from Windsor. He declined to identify them.

HEARD ACCUSATIONS

Charges were laid by the executive and at the first hearing into the accusations, nine of the 14 named appeared.

"Several of the accused admitted having been, until quite recently, members of a Trotskyist faction and that they had been using members of the CCF and that their first loyalty had been to Trotskyist goals and purposes. Others denied everything."

Subsequently eight of the 14 appealed and were heard at Friday's meeting.

Delegates were also given copies of a letter written by Colin Cameron, CCF member of Parliament for Nanaimo, B.C., asking careful consideration before. Mr. Stanton was expelled.

Mr. Cameron said he had been asked by Mr. Stanton to write on his behalf. He said that Mr. Stanton could be a most exasperating creature" but the role of the Paddy Stantons was "the role of goads, spurs, prickly thorns in the flesh of our complacency."

MOSTLY VERY YOUNG

Mr. MacDonald said the group was "small and inconsequential, mostly very young. But because of their activity in another political party, they have excluded themselves from the CCF."

Mr. Park said the group had nothing in common with objectives of the CCF and entered it by false pretences.

35 Persons Die In Crashes Since Beginning of '54

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Thirty-five persons have died in crashes involving 34 air force training planes since the beginning of 1954.

The crash of a T-33 jet trainer after a mid-air collision with another T-33 Thursday at Portage La Prairie, Man., brought to 21 the number of that type of plane that have plunged to earth since Jan. 1, 1954.

Four of the total of 35 persons who died in the training plane crashes have been killed since March. On that date, Defence Minister Campney, in a written reply to a question in the Commons, said 31 RCAF personnel had died in crashes involving 32 air force training planes since the first of 1954.

Good Friday Sermon Televised All Over Britain

GLASGOW (Reuters)—American evangelist Billy Graham, crusading in this Scottish city notorious for its razor gangs, had an audience of millions Friday night when his Good Friday sermon was televised all over Britain at one of the peak viewing periods.

Sixteen thousand persons filled Kelvin Hall, the city's largest auditorium, where his all-Scotland crusade is being held.

Graham spoke for 35 minutes, often turning towards the cameras and speaking directly to his vast unseen audience.

At the end, as he always does, Graham invited members of the audience to come forward and "decision" for Christ.

Later it was announced that 343 persons had come forward at the meeting. This brought the number of "decisions" since the start of the crusade three weeks ago to 7,194.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Last-minute acceptance of a new contract with the National Broadcasting Company by employees members of the National Association of Broadcast Engineers and Technicians (CIO) Thursday averted a threatened country - wide strike against NBC.

BULLDOZERS BREAK DOWN ON WAY TO RESCUE VILLAGE

Quebec Community Badly in Need of Food

QUEBEC (CP)—Four miles of snow-choked highway still kept St. Hilaire de Dorset cut off from needed food supplies early today.

Two bulldozers trying to clear the nine miles of road from St. Hilaire to St. Ecariste floundered through the heavy, soggy drifts for five miles Friday before breaking down.

Rev. Armand Germain, parish priest of the little farming village 75 miles south of Quebec, appealed to the roads department for help, seeking either snowblowers or mechanics to repair the bulldozers.

The machines are owned by contractor Henri Paul Gilbert of St. Ecariste, and the men contracted with them have been working steadily for nearly a week clearing the road. But the job either couldn't go on without a weekend's rest, Father Germain said.

Without road department help, the village's situation, precarious Thursday when the first airplane was launched, may not be relieved until Monday, he said.

ISOLATED 19 DAYS

St. Hilaire has 265 people, no grocery store, butcher, baker, or doctor. For 18 days, since a series of spring blizzards piled up drifts 15 feet high, there has been no way for the villagers to get food for themselves and for animals except by tractor - drawn sleds through snow so sticky even snowmobiles quit 11 days ago.

Animals are starving. Many farmers had planned to bring in fresh feed two weeks ago, but the snow made it impossible.

What feed remained had to be doled out among the regular stock and the new horses brought in by persons who tap trees for the maple-syrup area.

Father Germain said he had received appeals from a maple syrup camp where eight men had run out of food. In another case, a family of nine children had sent her 10-year-old boy trudging two miles through the snow to ask for food.

On Good Friday, only 40 parishioners braved the storm to hear church services. In ordinary times there would have been 200, Father Germain said.

STAR RETRACTS STORY

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto Star said Thursday it is "satisfied as to the untruth as well as the unfairness" of a story it carried Oct. 30, 1953, the effect that Igor Gouzenko had squandered about $100,000 in "high living" and "wild parties in Toronto." The Toronto law firm of Robinson and Haines, which sold its Gouzenko in 1953, it had been retained by Mr. Gouzenko in a libel action against the Star, said Thursday that in view of the retraction the matter is settled.

Christians Everywhere Prepare To Celebrate the Resurrection

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Christians in many lands today observed with prayer the end of Lent and the beginning of the Easter vigil.

With Holy Week services rising to the climax of the Resurrection, churches opened their doors for services commemorating the hours when Christ lay in His tomb.

Roman Catholic churches were decked with flowers as the 40-day penitential season came to an end. The purple shrouds that covered the sacred images and altars during those penitential weeks were gone.

Families laid in last - minute Easter luxury treats for the children in preparation for the joyous day ahead when Christendom celebrates in song and story, pageant and sermon the wondrous account of the resurrection of Christ.

In Rome, thousands of pilgrims and citizens gathered at St. Peter's basilica for the Holy Saturday high mass. The ringing of the great bronze bells of the church, as the service reaches its "Gloria," announced joyously here the official end of Lent.

Services at St. Peter's and other Catholic churches also included the blessing of the fire—celebrating the Resurrection — and of the holy water fonts. The latter ceremony symbolizes purification, one of the which-baptisms were performed on this day.

The blessing of the fire also was observed at the Church of the Holy Sepulchre in Jerusalem, where Christ's body was placed after it was taken from the cross. Some 3,000 persons each week were present.

Eden Ponders When to Call Election and How to Win It

LONDON (Reuters)—Prime Minister Eden today pondered the biggest problem of his political career —when to call Britain's next general election and how to win it.

Politicians here agree that if Eden can engineer a solid Conservative victory at the polls, his position as leader of the party and as prodger and minder of the British Commonwealth would be insured.

But a loss to the Labor party would not only deprive the Conservatives of control of the country, it would greatly strengthen the hand of critics within the party who would like to see a leader with more experience of domestic affairs than Eden, whose political experience is largely on the foreign policy level.

Eden went out to the official prime minister's country house, Chequers, in Buckinghamshire for the Easter weekend to think things over carefully.

The election decision is his, since a prime minister may call a poll at any time up to the end of the government's five - year term, whenever he thinks he has the best chance of winning. The present term does not expire until fall of 1956. Most observers here are backing the election to be held in May, currently running a hot favorite.

Eden, who took over Wednesday after the resignation of the 80-year-old Churchill, travelled to Chequers Thursday night after announcing a new cabinet in which positions of responsibility went to several rising politicians of the younger generation.

Some see this move as further support for an early election.

Eden's main appointments were those of 61-year-old Harold Macmillan, who moves to the War Office as foreign secretary, and of his protege, Selwyn Lloyd, 50, to replace Macmillan as minister of defence.

Other changes placed sport-loving Earl of Home, a Scottish peer, entered the cabinet with Lloyd as secretary of state for Commonwealth relations.

Lord Home replaced 73-year-old Viscount Swinton, who was shunted into a sinecure on leaving the government.

Other young men promoted by Eden included Reginald Maudling, 38, who leaves the position of economic secretary to the treasury to follow Lloyd as minister of supply.

Maudling was succeeded at the treasury by Edward Boyle, 31, year-old "baby" of the government.

And Dr. Charles Hill, once a BBC "star" as the "Radio Doctor" on health matters, takes over (replacing Earl) de la Warr, who does not get a place in the new administration.

Atomic Device Exploded Only Prelude to Biggest of Series

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — An atomic device was exploded from a tower on the Nevada desert at 10:30 a.m. PST (12:30 a.m. EST) today as a preliminary to a second shot, scheduled for later in the day, which may be one of the largest of the 1955 test series.

The first explosion came during the busy test day was from the top of a 300-foot tower on Yucca flat in Las Vegas bombing range over a bright whiteness that faded into a rich yellow. The quick glare of the pre-dawn shot was seen as far away as San Francisco and Los Angeles.

The second shot was to be fired from a 400-foot tower high over Frenchman flat at 9 a.m. PST (noon (EST).

Weather forced postponements of the tests Friday morning.

The department of defense made elaborate preparations for today's second shot. It set up a many-lane "exit of supply problems in event of a general evacuation.

Three jet drones, directed by remote control, were to fly into the target area—one before, one during and one after the blast that they were expected to be destroyed.

Many vehicles, fortifications and supplies were exposed at varying distance from ground zero, the point of blast, heat and radiation will be measured on three structures on artificial lake, an asphalted surface and a section of dry lake bed.

Structures have been built around the tower by military and civil effects studies. A group of 170 military observers, including two dozen British and Canadian experts, planned to observe the big test from 5½ miles away.

Six Fishermen Trapped on Tug Taken to Safety

POINTE AU BARIL, Ont. (CP) — A 15-hour battle to rescue six fishermen, trapped aboard their holed tug in an ice-jam 10 miles off shore in Georgian bay ended Thursday night when a rescue ship smashed a channel through the ice and towed the stricken vessel to nearby Double Island.

All the men aboard were reported unharmed.

The tug, the 60-foot Gary M, skippered by 30-year-old William H. Oldfield, the oldest captain on the Great Lakes — reached the safety of Oldfield's summer fishing headquarters on the island.

The boys are all okay," Mrs. William Oldfield, daughter-in-law of the Gary M's captain, reported. "They've tired and wet but they're all right."

TOWED BY TUG

The Gary M, a hole gashed in her bow by crushing ice, was towed to the island by the tug Sharalee, owned by Harry Temple of Sand Bay, after the 15 miles from Parry Sound.

Oldfield, his son Frank, 34, his grandson Lewis, 17, Charles Green, 30, Marvin Foster, 22, and Ivan Crawford, 18, all of Thornbury, were aboard the Gary M.

Oldfield, a veteran of dozens of rescues in the treacherous waters of Georgian bay, was rescued by the Sharalee early Thursday when the tug was swept onto a rocky shoal by strong, shifting winds and ice.

A huge wave struck the craft, knocking it off the shoal and into the bay. Later the captain radioed that the tug was filling with water and the crew was pumping frantically to keep the vessel afloat.

CAMPBELLFORD (CP) — Delegates from nine municipalities Thursday on formation of a government-sponsored co - operative scheme to promote the Lake Ontario region for industrial expansion.

The organization would be known as the Lake Ontario region development board. The region would be split into nine areas with four or more representatives from each municipality on the board.

Counties involved are Northumberland, Durham, Victoria, Haliburton, Peterborough, Hastings, Prince Edward, Lennox and Addington. An organizational meeting is scheduled for May 4.

BUSINESS MAN DIES

CHATHAM (CP)—Edward Massey, 78, prominent Chatham businessman, died Thursday in hospital. He was well-known as a representative of several paint companies and as contractor for Brewers Warehousing Co. Ltd., for Kent county.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) — Synopsis: Skies are clear over Ontario today and the prospects are good for continued sunny warm weather today and most of Sunday. Temperatures in all of the province will be around 60 degrees today, and readings of 70 or higher are forecast for southern Ontario on Sunday.

Moist air over Texas has been creeping slowly northward but its progress is slow, and current available cloudiness will stay out of the province until Sunday evening.

TRUST FUND MAY BE SET UP BY SURVIVING QUINTS

Each Will Receive $200,000 May 28

NORTH BAY (CP) — The four surviving Dionne quintuplets may set up their own trust fund when they come of age May 28 and each receives approximately $200,000.

Their solicitor, Richard F. Donnelly of North Bay, is reported working on such a plan for their consideration.

Annette and Yvonne are nurses-in-training at Notre Dame de L'Esperance Hospital on the outskirts of Montreal. Annette is specializing in piano at the College Marguerite-Bourgeoys in Montreal and Yvonne is at home, the other quintuplet, Emilie, died last July 6.

The quintuplets accumulated their wealth through advertising endorsements, motion picture contracts and exclusive newspaper, newsreel and calendar pictures.

CONTRACTS EXPIRED

All such contracts now have expired, the girls' father, Oliva Dionne, said in an interview with the North Bay Nugget.

The birth of the quintuplets at nearby Callander 21 years ago next month aroused world-wide interest. For more than 10 years countless thousands thronged the wall of one-way glass to watch the children at play. There was no charge for viewing them.

To protect the Dionne family and to see that the quintuplets were not exploited, the Ontario government set up a board of guardians. In 1944 it appointed the father as the girls' guardian and Oliva Dionne still is.

The quintuplets' money was placed in a special trust fund.

Mr. Dionne, in an interview with the North Bay Nugget, said the amount of money held in trust for the quints has never before been made public.

Liberal Leader Nominated For Ninth Time

DURHAM, Ont. (CP)—Farquhar Oliver, Ontario Liberal leader, predicts a party victory in general election.

Mr. Oliver Thursday was nominated to contest the riding of Grey South for the ninth successive time. His nomination was unanimous.

The Liberal party now has 32 candidates nominated for the next Ontario election.

There are 98 seats in the legislature at present but a redistribution will increase the number to the House representation to 96.

Nine RCAF Officers Prove Rations, Equipment Perfect for Bush Work

OTTAWA (CP)—Nine RCAF aircrew officers recently spent 10 days in the bush testing RCAF rations in the open in sub-zero temperatures and evaluating survival and emergency rations and their intensity.

RCAF headquarters, disclosing the survival test today, said the officers proved that air force emergency rations and equipment will keep a man alive and well.

They found consisted mostly of emergency rations with a day's ration of only enough to cover the palm of a man's hand. Some existed with nothing but their normal flying gear, a parachute and emergency items contained in the small survival pack of a flight pilot's parachute harness.

Temperatures during the February test ranged as low as 36 degrees below zero. While each man lost weight during the test, as much as 11 pounds, all came through in perfect physical condition and there were no serious illnesses and no accidents.

Purpose of the exercise was to test certain types of survival equipment under winter bush conditions and to determine what equipment aircrew would get along with only the barest minimum in the bush or crash landing. The results are being studied.

Flying Officer L. under three supervising officers who kept the others under observation, was stationed at Edmonton Feb. 21 and flew to the RCAF station at Cold Lake, Alta., side of the air force's armament weapons range. After medical examination he was left on the frozen lake, 30 minutes flying time away.

The party of three observers returned to the base and spent the next comfort of a log cabin.

Sic of the officers were presumed to have crash-landed their plane.

They camped in a group.

The group included Flt. Lt. R. Weidman, Scott Bay, Ont.; Flt. Lt. B. D. Henry, Bracebridge, Ont.; and FO. L. A. Flander, Fort Williams, Ont.

Observing officers included FO. W. H. Stockdale, North Bay, Ont.

Twenty-Year Pacts With U.K., France Signed During War

Kremlin Hopes to Settle Long Dispute Over Austria

MOSCOW (Reuters)—Russia today announced first steps to cancel her 20-year treaties of friendship with Britain and France—as she previously had threatened to do if they decided to rearm West Germany.

The presidium of the Supreme Soviet is certain to accept within a few weeks a cancellation proposal which the two Allied signatories has put forward.

The treaties were signed during the war years—that with Britain in 1942 and with France in 1944. They provided for mutual assistance and co-operation.

HOPEFUL ABOUT AUSTRIA

In a simultaneous development, the Kremlin expressed optimism about settlement of the long dispute over an Austrian state treaty, saying the Soviet Union hopes that the coming visit to Moscow of Austria's Chancellor Julius Raab will lead to "speedy conclusion" of such a treaty. Moscow said agreement on a treaty should be possible "given the appropriate desire on the part of all interested states."

American ambassador Charles Bohlen was summoned to the foreign ministry to receive this morning a note regarding the treaty from Foreign Minister Molotov. Identical notes were handed by the Russian foreign minister to British ambassador Sir William Hayter and the French charge d'affaires Jean Le Roy.

The Soviet note said: "The Soviet government considers that an exchange of opinions in Moscow with the representatives of the Austrian government will help to advance the settlement of the Austrian question.

They consider in this connection that in the time which has passed since the Berlin conference, the leaders of the Austrian government have already had contact with a number of the western powers and exchanger of opinions with leading figures from Britain, France and the United States."

The note added: "It appears that at the present time the possibility exists of assisting the hastening of a settlement of the Austrian question by means of the conclusion of an appropriate agreement between the four powers and Austria."

RECALL 1954 STEP

The note said that at the Berlin conference in 1954 the Soviet government put forward proposals for a speedy settlement of the Austrian question and for the taking of measures to avoid creation of new anschluss in Austria (union with Germany), the setting up of foreign military bases on Austrian territory or the inclusion of Austria in any military alliance. "Any alliance directed against any power which took part in the war with Germany and the liberation of Austria.

Archbishop Says He Was Misquoted About Princess

GRAHAMSTOWN, S.A. (AP)—The Archbishop of Canterbury says he was incorrectly quoted when Canterbury reporters questioned him Thursday about rumours that Princess Margaret is to wed.

"I was not asked whether there is any truth in the rumors that Princess Margaret will marry Group Capt. Peter Townsend," the archbishop, Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, said Friday. "I was asked: 'Have you anything to say about Princess Margaret,' to which I replied 'No comment'.

"I was then asked 'is everybody in England talking about this?' to which I replied that it was a stunt —and a most offensive one at that —by a few English newspapers. Apparently one of the overseas news agencies appear to have taken over the one newspaper report which did not accurately report what I had said."

The original story quoted him as saying "There is no truth whatsoever in the rumor that Princess Margaret and Group Capt. Peter Townsend are to wed." It appeared on page 1 of a Cape News newspaper, Cape Argus, Thursday. The story was by an Argus staff reporter who attended a shipboard press conference just after the archbishop's arrival from England.

FIREMEN BUSY ON HOLIDAY

City firemen had a busy day on Good Friday with several calls for grass fires, both in the city and in the rural areas being answered. No damage as result of the grass blazes was reported.

Late Friday afternoon the reels were called to the second concession of Thurlow where the home of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar King was destroyed by fire.

This morning the reels were out again, this time to the York Road on the Mohawk Reserve, east of Shannonville where grass blaze was in progress.

797 Pupils Are Inoculated In First Round

Some 797 elementary school pupils were inoculated in the first round of polio inoculations completed this week by the Public Board of Health in Grades 1 and 2 of city schools.

The figure represents about 85 percent of all pupils registered in those grades, a record of "which the city of Belleville might well be proud," the board reports.

"It is doubtful whether it will be bettered by any municipality of a similar size in the province," says the board's official report on the inoculations.

There were no reactions to the inoculations.

The second round of the series will start April 18, following the Easter recess, and will end April 30th.

Parents and Four Small Children Homeless After Fire Destroys House

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar King, 2nd concession of Thurlow township, and their four small children are homeless today following a fire which late Friday afternoon burned their frame farm-house to the ground and destroyed all of the second storey household effects.

A defective chimney was blamed for the fire which was discovered about five o'clock in the afternoon and gained considerable headway before it was noticed by a neighbor who turned in the alarm. Belleville firemen responded the call, said the entire attic of the large two-storey structure was ablaze when they arrived on the scene and little could be done to check the flames.

Neighbors carried the downstairs household effects to safety but flames barred efforts to get bedroom furniture from the second floor.

The King had purchased the farm two miles east of the C.N.R. coal chutes about a year ago and had moved into the family in Christmas time after carrying out renovations to the house.

Poster Contest To Be Run By Hospital

"Your Hospital, The Sentinel That Never Sleeps" has been chosen as the theme of the Belleville General Hospital's third annual poster contests for elementary and secondary school students in Hastings County.

Both elementary and secondary school contests close May 1st. Entries will be judged by a panel of three and will be on display at the hospital on Hospital Day, May 12th.

The elementary schools contest, is open to all public and separate school pupils in Belleville and Hastings County over the age of 10 years. Public and separate high school students in the city and county compete in a separate contest.

Rules of both contests are the same.

Contestants can use crayon water colors, pencil or ink in illustrating their entries but must not submit a poster larger than 14 x 18 inches. The entrant's name, age, school and his teacher's name must be clearly marked on the poster.

Contest officials expect entries from 40 schools in the city and county.

Prizes totalling $55 will be distributed to winners.

Prizes in the high school contest are: first prize, $15; second, $10, and third, $5. Elementary school prizes are: first, $10; second, $5; and 10 prizes of $1 each.

Announcement of the winning posters and awards to winners will be the form of silver dollars will take place at the hospital on Hospital Day.

Judges for the contests are Ernest Trindale, Mrs. R. S. Hobbins and Mrs. Philippa Faulkner.

Five Injured In Two-Car Crash at Madoc

Five persons were injured and went to hospital at Belleville and Peterborough following a Madoc car crash opposite Keilar's Canteen west of Madoc on No. 7 Highway early Thursday evening.

Injured in the accident were Mr. and Mrs. Roy Turner of Blackstock and their one-year-old daughter, Lynda, and Cecil Long and Charles Logan, both of Marmora.

The Turners went to hospital at Peterborough, while the two Marmora men and the child went to Belleville General Hospital by Bush's Ambulance and were released after treatment.

Mrs. Turner suffered head injury lacerations and bruises and Turner and Janet suffered minor head injuries. Lorraine Turner, age two, riding in the Turner car, escaped injury.

The Turner car was eastbound, while the other car driven by Long, was westbound, when the two vehicles collided. The cars, damaged to the extent of about $500 each, ended at the left of the Keilar's Canteen driveway.

Provincial Constable Ron Devey of Madoc investigated.

Crushed Stone Contracts Not Altered by Committee

Public works committee recommendations for the award of crushed stone contracts for three grades of stone to the H. J. McFarland Construction Company, and for the acceptance of the John Both Ltd. tender for stone chips will come back to city council for approval at the next meeting Tuesday evening.

The same recommendations were considered by city council at the last meeting but were referred back to the public works committee for further consideration when Mayor J. Bush claimed discrimination was being used in the letting of stone contracts.

The works committee recommendations call for acceptance of the McFarland tender for crushed rock in sizes ¾ inch, ¾ inch and 1 inch at $1.28 per ton in truck loads of not less than five tons delivered to any location in the city. The John Both Ltd. tender for ¾ inch screened, clean stone chips for road patching quoted a price of $1.40 per ton in truck loads of five ton or over delivered.

The committee also recommended acceptance of tenders from Proctor, Redfern and Laughlin, civil and consulting engineers, for engineering work on various schemes, plans or recommendations as may be required by the west end of the city.

A car allowance of $25 per month for Adam Stalker during the time he is acting as building inspector was recommended by the committee. The committee will meet with Thurlow township officials at Madoc about the widening of College Street.

IN MEMORIAM

MARACLE. — In loving memory of our dear grandmother, Mary Jane Maracle, who passed away April 10th, 1953.

Life leaves the years pass by,
But memories of you will never die;
In our hearts you will always stay,
Loved and remembered every day.
—Sadly missed by Grandchildren.

MARACLE. — In loving memory of our dear mother, Mary Jane Maracle, who passed away April 10th, 1953.

If I had all the world to give,
I'd give it to you, mother dear,
To see you once and see her smile
And hear her voice I'd be glad.
But all I can do, dear mother,
Is go and lay flowers
And leave behind tokens of love
To the best mother I've ever had.
—Sadly missed by daughter Tina and son-in-law Alfred.

A Lift For Living

The Resurrection and Life

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

From coast to coast multitudes gather in Easter Dawn services. It is right that Easter should be welcomed at sunrise. The earliest gospel record of the resurrection, that given by Mark, has this statement, "They came to the sepulchre at the rising of the sun." Easter is a festival of dawn.

Jesus Christ did not originate the belief that life is too great for the grave. That conviction is found among the most primitive people and persists among the most cultured. But what Christ by His career and resurrection did do, was as Saint Paul said, to bring "life and immortality to light through the gospel." Christ transformed death from a sunset to a sunrise.

I should believe in immortality even if I had never read the stories of Easter morning. When I look at the physical world, my reason leads me to believe that life goes beyond the body.
